The visitors broke into the scoring column in the sixth. Smith started with a single to right. Williamson in trying to sacrifice bunted a fly down the first base line and Whitehouse and Lebarr both running at top speed crashed into each other, Whitehouse caught and held the ball although both players were still dazed when play was resumed. Smith stole second. Foster hit to Lew Lebarr who fumbled, Smith going to third. Foster stole second and both scored when Doyle singled to right centre. Doyle reached second on Cameron's miss of the throw in. Whitehouse then got going again and fanned Giroux, who batted for Regan, and Crump to retire the side

The Toronto gang added another in the eighth. Williamson beat out a bunt and stole second. Foster fanned. Cameron threw out Doyle. Williamson going to third. He scored when Cameron mussed up Giroux's tap. Crump flied to J. Lebarr for the third out.

It was a fine workout for the Lakeviews and a good exhibition for the fans who enjoyed Whitehouse's great pitching and the work of the local Junior champions generally.

MIDGET TITLE TO THE CURLERS

Shut-out Victory in Final Game for Championship of Midget Series.

MEET LINDSAY

Alex. Kay's Curlers won the city title in Midget baseball yesterday afternoon at Riverside Park by defeating Sacred Heart in a final game; the score being 5 to 0. The victory sends the Curlers into the O.B.A.A. semi-finals with Classics of Lindsay.

Wood pitched to twenty-five batters in the seven innings, striking out sixteen, hitting one and passing two. He allowed three hits, all singles.

Masterson pitched to twenty-six batters without issuing a pass, and fanned eleven. He was hit for a quartette of safeties, one being a home run by McDuffee with a runner on, in the fourth.

Curlers scored three runs in the third. McDuffee hit down short and advanced to second on a wild peg to first. Ecobichon singled into right, scoring McDuffee. Ecobichon made his way to third on Baird's infield out, and scored on a play to the plate off MacDonald's choice to short. MacDonald made second and third and went home on a passed ball after Wood had struckout.

In the fourth, Baker singled and stole, and scored along with McDuffee, who hit to deep centre for the circuit.

Sacred Heart's big opportunity to get some runs came in the sixth. Holland, batting for Solmes, singled into right. Archambault shot one through third, and the runners advanced on a passed ball. Richea and Kenneally, who usually hit in the pinches, were struck out. McDougal waited and walked, filling the bases. Masterson, another good hitter, fanned, retiring the side.

ADANACS WIN FROM OSHAWA

Local Runners-up Score Easy Victory in Exhibition Game.

The Adanacs runners-up for the local junior championship demonstrated once more the superiority of the Peterboro League at Riverside Park yesterday morning when they defeated the Christian Church team of Oshawa, 10 runs to 1, in an exhibition game. The visitors were runners-up to the St. George's team of Oshawa who were beaten by the local Lakeviews in the O.B.A.A. series. Jeff Hardill and Lefty Turner on the rubber for the Adanacs were too much for the visitor while the home crew did some lusty hitting.

Alex Kay and Edgar Lebarr handled the game.

PUZZLING PLAYS

THE PLAY

There is a runner on first base. The batsman hits to the shortstop. The hit and run play is on. The shortstop fumbles the ball slightly, and realizing he has no chance to get the runner at second, cuts loose a hurried throw to first to get the batsman.

The throw is wild and gets away from the first baseman, and the base umpire believes that it has gone into the player's bench, which according to the ground rule entitles the runners to advance two bases.

The runner from first slid hard into second and slightly injured his ankle. He made no attempt to go to third on getting to his feet. The base umpire waved him over to third and he started to jog to that base.

The catcher of the team in the field recovered the ball and threw the ball to the third baseman, who touched out the runner coming into third.

The ball did not go back into the player's bench. The umpire back of the plate so ruled.

What about this play?

THE INTERPRETATION

The mistake in this case must be charged against the umpire.

The base umpire, believing the ball had gone into the bench, waved the runner, who had stopped at second to advance to third.

The player, in following the dictates of the umpire, is touched with the ball and apparently retired.

Common sense must decide this play. Since the player advanced because the umpire so ordered him, there is no reason why he should suffer because the ball didn't go into the bench. The umpire should have sent the runner back to second.

DONOGHUE'S MODEST FEE.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—(Canadian Press)—Steve Donoghue, the leading English jockey, who rode Papyrus in the recent winning of the Epsom Derby, has asked a fee of £15,000 to ride the Derby winner on his forthcoming appearance in the United States against the champion three-year-old of the United States.

FOOTBALL MEETING.

The regular meeting of the G. W. V. A. football club will be held on Thursday evening, owing to the meeting of the P. and D. F. A. being held on Wednesday evening.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

Fairy tales hold an irresistable appeal even after the days of childhood have long been left behind and for that reason the reproduction of musical phantasies, based on some legend that has held a hallowed place in the memories of childhood, attract considerable success and attention. "Cinderalla" is one of the most beloved of fairy tales and the charm of its telling is doubled when set to music which interprets vividly the varying moods of the tale. In the forthcoming production of "Cinderella," which will be seen here Friday and Saturday, September 7-8, with special children's matinee Saturday at 2.30. Dialogue, music and settings have all been combined so as to make the presentation of this tale one of unusual interest. Stanley T. Vermilyea has written some fascinatiing and melodious tunes, while the liberto is from the versatile pen of Forrent Audubon Rucker. Special efforts have been made to retain the old charm of the original and any jarring suggestion of modernization has been eliminated. The settings are of a picturesque nature and serve as effective background for the romantic figure of Cinderella herself, which, in this All-Canadian production, is interpreted by a dainty little Canadian actress, Miss Theo Macfarlane, who possesses both unusual charm and fine histrionic ability. "Cinderella" is laid in seventeen scenes, introduced by an effective prologue, and special mechanical devices have been installed which eliminates as far as is humanly possible, the necessity of long waits between one scene and the other. In staging, mounting and direction this Canadian production will be found to measure up to the best standards of musical phantasy. The cast with Miss Macfarlane is a splendid one and composed of Canadian artists who are endeavouring to add to the recognition of the Canadian stage.

AT THE ROYAL.

Big English Movie "The Sporting Earl" based on Drury-Lane Melodrama at the Royal.

Yesterday was a big day for Peterboro theatregoers as the big English production "The Sporting Earl" started off with a bang on its four day run. The matinee was comfortably filled and turn-away crowds greeted the night performance.

"The Sporting Earl" is one of the most popular English pictures that ever came over to Canada. It is somewhat on the style of the former big American successes, "Mickey" and "The Whip," having all the delightful comedy of the one and the hurricane action of the other. The picture concerns Sir Horace Pilking ton Baronet, who leaves an eccentric will, by virtue of which one of his nephews inherits his entire fortune, and the other nephew, afterwards known as "The Sporting Earl," is left the Baronet's racing stable. 'The porting Earl," without a single ha' penny to his name, is the possessor of a stable of horses which includes "Cheerio 'Arf a Mo'," known throughout English sporting circles as the fastest and gamest horse that ever went over the Ascot water jump The picture is full of laughs, thrills fights steeplechases; includes a big fire, and centres around the story of the Baronet's will, which is nothing short of whizz-bang.

The cast includes Victor Herbert as "The Sporting Earl," and Lillian all-Davis as the girl in the case.

"The Sporting Earl" is good enter tainment. The comedy 'A Tropical Romeo" is a clever travesty in "Tarzan of the Apes" and kept the large audience in constant laughter. A decided improvement is noted in the musical accompaniment. The orchestra last night brought out the dif ferent emotions portrayed and blends perfectly with the production. Music lovers will have no fault to find with the Royal orchestra.

Little girls are young persons who are not going to be a help to their mothers soon.

Capitol Entertainment

The third season of "Capitol Entertainment" in Peterboro commenced with the holiday matinee yesterday, when deMille's "The World's Applause" was the feature attraction.

Based on the age-old triangle of a man and two women, it is a picture that is certain to have an attraction for any audience by reason of the fact that its central character is a stage favorite. Bebe Daniels, as Corrinne d'Alys, plays her favorite role of a "good little, bad little girl," and does it beautifully. Although the whole mixup rests on her vain little shoulders, she emerges triumphant, with an aspect of innocence that never deserts her, right through a shocking murder scene and the suicide of the woman whose husband she has vamped.

There are two stellar masculine characters in this picture, the "bad" man whose wife kills him with a curved dagger, Robert Townsend, played by Adolphe Menjou, and the somewhat spineless "good" man, Corrinne's dramatic manager and husband also of Townsend's wife. Lewis Stone acts this part, and Kathlyn Williams, an old favorite of the screen, does some splendid work as the neglected and vengeful wife.

A craze for publicity leads the actress to encourage the infatuation of Townsend, an internationally famous artist, and she poses for him, regardless of his wife's jealous demeanor and her manager's pleadings. In a scene of tempestuous rage, the wife slashes the completed picture and, unintentionally, also stabs her husband fatally. The onus of blame finally falls on the shoulders of the woman's brother, John Elliott, and the ensuing scenes give ample scope to the different actors to portray their varying abilities. It is an interesting picture, with the element of suspense maintained to the end and an atmosphere of strong dramatic tension.

There are some timely and entertaining views of the Harding funeral cortege in the News reels, and Lloyd Hamilton does some new and very funny stunts in an original way in "The Speeder."

NO NEWS YET RECEIVED AS TO CANADIANS' FATE IN JAPANESE DISASTER

But It is Believed That Among Members of United States Firms Reported "All Safe" Several Canadians Are Included as Employees

A WORLD-APPEAL

(By Canadian Press.)

Private cables this morning gave news as to the fate of a number of foreigners who were in Japan at the time of the disaster.

Several United States business houses and welfare organizations received messages which indicated that a large number of their staff members escaped, and that the loss of life and property was not as great as at first feared.

No news has been received as to the fate of Canadians in the disaster zone, though it is believed that some of the United States firms which received "all safe" messages to-day numbered several Canadians among their employees in Japan.

Fears are expressed at Ottawa for the safety of A. E. Bryan, Trade Commissioners to Japan there, with headquarters at Yokohama. No word has been received from Mr. Bryan since the disaster.

Shanghai despatches to London to-day report the death of two prominent British residents at Yokohama, Dr. Wheeler and Mr. Mollison. The French consul here and the Italian ambassador to Japan, G. De Martino, are also reported to have perished.

United States Vice Consul Paul Jenks, and Commercial Attache Babbitt of the United States Consul are among the missing.

Relief Work.

Several big movements to secure funds for relief work were launched to-day. General Booth of the Salvation Army, London, issued a world call for funds of two million pounds. An appeal was directed to 76 countries. Red Cross organizations are taking charge of collecting in the United States and money is already pouring into the Red Cross headquarters.

A story of the terrible disaster is unfolded in fragmentary messages from the Press Association's correspondents, Japanese newspapers, and individuals, and it is apparent that the magnitude of the catastrophe has not been overdrawn.

In only one despatch has there been a suggestion that the death list will not reach the proportions already indicated. This was a message from the Radio Corporation of America in Japan, which said that the Japanese home office estimated the dead in Tokio at ten thousand and in Yokohama at one hundred thousand.

On the other hand Admiral Edwin, commanding the United States Asiatic fleet, says that the latest unofficial reports give the casualties in the Capital and Yokohama as 250,000 dead and 450,000 inpured.

Another estimate of the Eastern News Agency says that 320,000 have been killed in the stricken area.

NEW YORK, Sept 5.—All missionaries in Tokio and Yokohama of the Reformed church in America are safe, according to a cablegram from Kobe received to-day by the Board of Foreign Missions of the church.

All staff members of the Young Women's Christian Association in Japan are safe, says a message received by the National Board from Miss Jane Neil Scott, head of the Y. W. C. A. in Kioto.

U. S. Citizens Safe.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—All United States citizens in Tokio are believed safe, Ambassador Woods reported to-day to the State Department. Estimates of the dead in Tokio are placed at ten thousand by the Ambassador.

Premier's Sympathy.

The Japanese Consulate at Ottawa was visited this morning by Prime Minister King, who expressed his sympathy with the Consul-General, Mr. Ohta, in the terrible disaster that had befallen Japan.

A formal message of the Canadian Government is being sent to-day and will be transmitted by the Consulate to Japan as soon as communication is resumed.

The Cabinet is meeting this afternoon to consider the sending of relief to Japan.

Island Sprung Up.

It is reported in a message received at Moscow that an island thirty miles long has sprung up in the sea off Yokohama, as the result of the earthquake. Many big battleships were sunk, according to reports. The coast-line was considerably altered and the sea-bed changed.

The crew of the United States transport while engaged in recovering bodies, found that of the French Vice-Consul, M. Valentine.

It is reported from Peking that the number of refugees exceed two million.

Europeans Starve and Rot Because of Black Workers

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press Cable.) — "One hundred and fifty thousand unemployed and destitute Europeans are rotting in starvation," is a portion of some of the forceful phraseology in a letter from the committee of unemployed men in South Africa to Tom Mann, Vice-President of the Workers' Union here.

The letter pleads for "repatriation to any white country in the world," and declares that cheap, black labor in South Africa is driving the white workers out of existence.

500 FOREIGNERS DEAD IN JAPAN

American Naval Hospital at Yokohama Collapsed During the Earth Shocks on Saturday.

PEKING, Sept. 5. — (United Press.)—The American naval hospital at Yokohama collapsed during the earth shocks Saturday, injuring Commander Webb, U.S.N. and burying members of the staff in the ruins, according to refugees who reached Kobe and whose first accounts of the horrors in the foreign quarters of the stricken area reached here by wireless.

Consul Dickover, at Kobe, forwarded to Peking the report of casualties among the Americans. Five hundred foreigners, including a number of Americans, are feared to have perished in Yokohama and Tokio, according to a message from Osaka. The Yokohama Club is reported to have collapsed and only a handful of the foreigners who were in it at the time escaped.

Besides the acting American Consular D. Kirjasoff, and his wife, others who are understood to have lost their lives in Yokohama include: American Vice-Consul Paul E. Jenks, Commercial Attache Bassett, Edwin Wheeler, J. P. D. Hollison, Capt. Simpson, a Mrs. Root, of California and a Mrs. Mantel and two daughters.

Orphanage Destroyed.

The French orphanage was destroyed and sixteen Sisters and 160 children perished in the ruins, according to stories of survivors.

The French Consul General was killed, as was former Mexican Consul General Henriq.

An official message to the Japanese Legation here says that the loss of life among foreigners in Yokohama was believed to be heavy, but extremely small in Tokio.

Mrs. Rupert Hughes, wife of the well-known author, was in one or the other of the stricken cities on the day before the quake.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS WILL BE NUMEROUS

Those Who Want Space in Annex Are Advised to Act Quickly.

There promises to be an unusually large number of special exhibits at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition this year, for all available space in the main building has already been taken, and at the present rate the annex will also be quickly snapped up. The following have already made reservations for space in the main building annex: The Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Miller, Powell and Watson, Geo. Rossiter, jeweller, Toronto, the Artware Company, the Beekeeper Association and J. Brownlie. Merchants who have been considering the matter of a special exhibit should lose no time in communicating with W. F. Turner to arrange space. The advantage of a display that will be seen by 30,000 people is so readily apparent that every foot of accommodation is likely to be quickly secured.

DEAD BODY IS FOUND IN HIS FATHER'S BARN

STRATFORD, September 5. Canadian Press. — The body of George Fischer, aged 40, of Fullerton township, who has been missing since Saturday last, was found yesterday afternoon in the hay mow of the barn on his father's farm. He was lying face downward and bore evidence of having suffered great pain.

VOGUE FOR TAFFETA.

A vogue for taffeta, both plain and fancy, is predicted for spring.

MORE PAVING BEFORE FROST WAS DEBATED

Section of McDonnell Street, From Aylmer to Reid Streets Discussed by Council.

ROUTINE BUSINFSS

Whether the city shall or shall not proceed with more street paving this year than that under contract with Contractor Carroll proved a debatable question with the city council last night ending in a tie vote, which was broken by the Mayor who seemed in favor of the project were it practicable.

Ald. Maher raised the issue when he advocated paving McDonnell street, from Aylmer to Reid providing work until later in the season than originally arranged for. This found opposition from Ald. Fife, on the ground that the corporation had contracted for more of this class of work than at first intended this year. Then the question of weather conditions coming to the front, Engineer Parsons was not sure there would be time to start and finish more paving than that already projected before freezing set in and he warned that a road torn up for pavement and caught unfinished by winter, would be blocked until next spring.

Ald. Maher and Morrison moved that Mr. Carroll be conferred with in regard to adding this section of paving to his contract, he to report in what time he could complete the work when council would definitely act.

The vote proving a tie, his worship voted in the affirmative.

Fill in Ditch

On motion of Ald. Fife and Maher the ditch on the west side of Park street from just south of Braund's store to Chamberlain street is to be filled in, ready for a concrete walk.

Why the Delay

Hydro-Electric Commission could not understand the delay by the city in providing such suitable access to their property on Hunter street, as is necessary through raising the grade of sidewalk and street up to the new bridge from the west. No definite action was taken on this.

A Fine Road

The De Laval Co., wrote, heartily appreciating the fine road work done by the city on Park street, which now offers a substantial traffic highway for which council is to be highly commended. A little binder oil, the letter said, would complete a good job.

Trip to Bobcaygeon

Ald. Maher and Stocker moved that the Mayor and all of Council who can, go to Bobcaygeon on Thursday and inspect the tarvia pavement there.—Carried.

Fire Losses

Fire Chief George Gimblett reported the total loss by fire for August as $1721—in buildings, $921; contents $800.

Popular Petition

The Council of Kitchener asked Council to endorse a petition that the Provincial government endeavour to secure a rate on Alberta coal which would enable Ontario to compete with United States anthracite.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Stocker Council proved heartily in accord with the above.

Bus Competition

Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario wrote, strongly objecting to the city operating a motor bus in competition with their electric street railway system. "We need all the revenue that can be derived from our service," the Commissioner added.

City Clerk Armstrong explained that he had replied to this that the Commission was under some misapprehension in this connection, as the city is not operating a bus or bus line. And he had emphasized that while a license had been granted Gordon Mein to run a tally-o coach between East City and other points and Chemong, which coach he did not think competed with electric lines in operation here.

Train Service.

W. S. Dodd, for the C.P.R., reported in connection with the city's application for train service from Montreal on Saturday evening as follows: The superintendent says it has been decided that it is not possible to comply with the request at present."

Damages Wanted.

Peck, Kerr and McElderry, on behalf of George P. Edwards, 7 Engleburn Avenue, notified Council that Edwards' car was damaged in an accident at or near the curve of Engleburn and Dale Avenues on August 29. Mr. Edwards' car was damaged to the extent of $100, and he claims the mishap due to the highway being out of repair by reason of defective construction and because of a quantity of loose sand being piled on the road, causing his car to collide with another. One of

NON-CONFIDENCE VOTE IN OFFICERS OF THE G.W.V.A.

Peterborough Branch Select a New List to Finish Out the Year—Dr. N. H. Sutton Appointed to the Presidency

At the regular meeting of the G. W.V.A. held last evening an entire new set of officers was elected to hold office for the remainder of the present year.

This action was made necessary by the resignation of the president and four members of the executive commitee, which was followed by a vote of non-confidence in the remaining officers. Those who will fill the offices temporarily will be:

President, Dr. N. H. Sutton.
Vice-President, Robt. Muir.
Second Vice-President, W. G. Nicholls.
Executive Committee, O. Kellar, T. Guerin, H. Duke, J. Wade and A. McColl.

WALES LEAVES FOR DOMINION

Londoners Fully Respected the Prince's Wishes For No Demonstration on His Departure.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(Special.)—Londoners fully respected the wishes of the Prince of Wales on his departure this morning on his Canadian holiday and there was no demeonstration on his re[L] demonstration either on the streets or at the railway station. The Prince is travelling as Lord Renfrew, the title used by his grandfather, the late King Edward on his tour of the United States, sixty years ago. He arrived at Waterloo station sharp at eight o'clock just at the time when thousands of suburbanites were hurrying through the great terminal on the way to their daily work.

Bands Absent.

Yet not more than two hundred of this crowd delayed their journey into the city to catch a glimpse of the Prince. The bands and the red carpets which are the usual trappings of such occasion were absent, and the only sign visible was the setting up of a barrier separating the Prince and his staff from the remainder of the train. The only demonstration made was a feeble cheer that were raised as fellow passengers crowded against the barrier when the rolls royce bearing the Prince drew up.

Sir George Maclaren Brown greeted the Prince and spoke a few words to him and in reply Lord Renfrew said that he anticipated a wonderful time in Canada and that he was delighted with all the arrangements that had been made for his comfort during the trip.

The Prince is spending one day at the Chateau Frontenac, proceeding immediately thereafter to his ranch in Alberta.

The most excited people in London this morning were the fellow travellers of the Prince, who anticipate more than a week's visit with their heir to the throne.

Friends who were seeing them off bemoaned their ill luck that they were not passengers also.

As the train drew out of the station the Prince waved gaily to the group on the platform. He was entirely unaccompanied to the station save by the suite who will travel with him and it was evident that farewells to friends and relations had been said last night.

The following are accompanying the Prince to Canada: General F. Trotter, gentleman usher to the king, and Sir Godfrey Thomas, Prince's private secretary.

LITTLE EFFECT ON THE MARKET

Stocks Adopt a Neutral Attitude in Regard to Japanese Catastrophe.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Although additional details regarding the Japanese catastrophe heightened the seriousness of its aspect, it was not possible from overnight despatches to gauge the full import of its effect in the economic situation. The stocks therefore adopted a neutral attitude in the early dealings. Apprehension over the huge loss of life and property was offset somewhat by the thought that the reconstruction order placed in this country was bound to reach large proportions. This counter-balance served to steady the general list and price changes were confined to fractional areas.

Some selling of Steel American Can. and other industrial leaders was easily absorbed in the first hour and the main body of stocks displayed a steady front at 11 a.m.

Opening prices included: Erie 14½, up 3-8; Westinghouse 58¾, off ¼; Baldwin 122¼, off ¼; Bethlehem Steel 51¼, off 7-8; General Motors 15 3-8, off 1-8; Amer. Telephone 125 5-8; N.Y. Central 99; Can. 98 3-8, up 3-8; U. S. Steel 92 1-8, up ¼; Davison Chemical 45, up 2½; U. S. Rubber 42, up ½; Northern Pacific 95, off 5-8; Studebaker 105 5-8; Southern Rly. 32 1-8, up 1 8; Great Northern Pfd. 57½, off ¼.

NO ACTION ON GREEK AFFAIR

Council of Ambassadors Had No Instructions From Their Governments.

PARIS, Sept. 5.— (United Press) —The Council of Ambassadors began discussion of the Italo-Greek situation at half past eleven this morning. M. Cambon of France presided. M. Graxezzi represented Italy, Lord Crewe, England, Sheldon Whitehouse, United States, charge D'Affaires.

The council of Ambassadors today accepted in principle a suggestion by Greece for an international inquiry in the number of Italian Commissioners at Janina. The Council took no definite decision, however owing to lack of instructions from the various governments.

First observation made by each member of the Council was to say that they had no instructions from his government.

It was agreed that this being so the council present should delay definite action. Ambassadors examined the Greek reply to its note at a meeting in Foreign Office, this morning and paid particular attention to Greek stipulation that Athens Government was prepared to make any reparation the Council Ambassadors regarded as just.

The Board will meet next on Wednesday, September 19.

DOUBT OIL SUPPLY EVER EQUAL DEMAND

WASHINGTON, Sept5.—(Associated Press). — Despite government efforts in promoting the most efficient development of oil fields, it is becoming more and more evident that the country's oil production will probably never again catch up with the demand, according to a recent statement of the Bureau of Mines.

Domestic consumption increased from 261,000,000 barrels in 1914 to 586,000,000 barrels in 1922, the bureau's figures show, while production increased from 266,000,000 barrels to 552,000,000 in the same period. Imports increased to make up the deficit.

Bureau engineers have made extensive investigations of oil shale deposits in the Rocky mountains and elsewhere and declare a potential fuel supply of great importance exists in these deposits and some day will furnish the raw materials upon which producers must rely. Investigation is being continued to determine the most favorable conditions and methods for retorting oil from shale deposits.

J.T. BRAUND IS MEMBER BOARD OF EDUCATION

Appointed Last Night to Succeeed Joseph Wearing—Attendance Opening Day of Collegiate.

GRANT HALF HOLIDAY

J. T. Braund was appointed to the Board of Education last night to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Joseph Wearing. He was proposed by Roland Denne, who said Mr. Braund would be an acquisition to the Board of Education.

H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of the Collegiate Institute, reported that the Institute opened this morning with an attendance of 449, this being 14 below last year's opening number of 463.

Mr. Kenner warned the Board that this cannot be taken as a definite indication of the number that will be entered, as several in the first forms who were not promoted last June were not present this morning, and he cannot tell whether they will apply later for admission. "We have room for at least twenty more in Form 1D and 20 in the Commercial Department in South Central School." Mr. Kenner reported. There are 58 enrolled in the latter school. The attendance by forms this morning was: Form 5, 19; Form 4, 32; Form 3A, 37; Form 3B, 41; Form 2A, 34; Form 2B, 35; Form 2C, 33; Form 1A, 39; Form 1B, 36; Form 1C, 34; Form 1D, 16; Commercial Form 1A, 29; 1B, 29 and Form 2, 35.

In his report Mr. Kenner said: "May I ask if there is any prospect of increased accommodation by September, 1924? We can, it is true, get through this year with what we have, but with 78 pupils in forms 3A and 3B we shall need two fourth forms next year, and with 102 pupils in the second forms there will be needed at least as many third forms as we have at present." Mr. Kenner also intimated that if accommodation was available the number of commercial students could be doubled.

Non-resident Pupils

Following a discussion of the question of admission of non-resident pupils if room remains when the city pupils are placed, the matter was left with the Supervision Committee and Mr. Kenner, with power to act. It was suggested that pupils living within a radius of three to five miles who by their nearness were enabled to return home after school be admitted to the vacant places. A limit for these applications was set, none being considered after 5 o'clock on Monday next.

The Board is anxious, several members said, to provide out-of-the-city pupils with accommodation, but it is impossible with the facilities under its control at present.

Appointees Accepted

A communication was read and received from W. A. Richardson, accepting his appointment to the Board to replace J. W. Worth. G. A. Gillespie wrote accepting his appointment to the Advisory Industrial Committee.

On request of the Secretary of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, a half holiday was granted the pupils of all schools in the city to enable them to attend the Exhibition on September 12.

A. Mowat, Public School Inspector, reported that during the vacation the schools were re-decorated where necessary and many of them were greatly improved in other ways. He commended J. M. Greene, Chairman of the Property Committee on his activities.

Appointments Made

The Committee on Appointments, Chairman Dr. F. Neal, reported and recommended:

1st.—That Mr. George Cloke, who has been assistant janitor at the Prince of Wales School, be appointed janitor at the Queen Mary School, to succeed Mr. H. Saunders, with salary according to schedule, and under the usual contract.

LICENSE IN PETERBORO EOR TRANSIENT TRADERS IS INCREASED TO $250

Another Milestone Passed on the Road To Electric Cars

The city fathers felt last night that another milestone had been passed toward the goal of gasoline electric cars on the Canadian National line, and electric railway extension to Peterboro. For they are in receipt of the following communcation from Sir Henry Thornton in that regard:

"The operation of gasoline-electric cars by the Canadian National Railways in Peterboro district, and the advisability of extending the Toronto and Eastern Electric Line from Bowmanville to Peterboro, shall have careful consideration, with a view to seeing if something can be done to bring about the changes desired by Peterborough City."

Alderman Maher Stresses That the Measure is Not a Selfish One, But Adopted in the Interests of Ratepayers Generally.

GIRLS GET INCREASE

The transient traders' license fee was raised by the City Council last night from $100 to $250. Ald. Maher fathered the by-law to this end, and in doing so remarked that its endorsation by business men generally was induced by no selfish motives, but urged in protection of citizens themselves. The measure would, he said, prevent a certain class of transients from temporarily renting a store and subsequently evading their equitable share of the city's assessment and taxes. Claiming that the increased license would not prove a hardship to the transient trader who decided to locate permanently, inasmuch as the $250 would then be applied on his taxes as a residential business man, the Alderman had reason to conclude that the old transient traders' license fee had not been rigorously enforced. And in support of this contention, he named one store recently opened on George Street, the tenant of which had not been taxed undsr the transient traders' by-law.

The measure passed its several readings without opposition, and is now in force.

Jump in Salaries.

Council also voted another cash increase, this one in the way of salaries, and, according to Ald. Maher, at a time when the citizens were not in a mood to favor salary increases, however small. Each of five girl clerks in the city clerk's, treasurer's and engineer's offices were granted an extra $5 a month dating from September first. There are seven girl civic employees all told.

This increase was voted at a meeting of the Finance Committee immediately preceding Council session, on motion of the Mayor and Ald. Stocker. But when this committee's report came to Council Ald. Maher protested its adoption. "While I like to see," he said, "persons well paid for their services, is this an opportune time in the municipal year and under existing conditions, for raising salaries?"

Pointing out that this would be the first raise for these girls in two years, and recalling that they were not being paid as well as many girls in similar positions, Ald. Phelan explained that the increase for the whole five city employees affected, from now until the year's end, would not represent more than $100. "Next year's Council," he said, "could please themselves about continuing the salaries now fixed." In conclusion, Ald. Phelan urged that these small raises would show that Council is satisfied with the recipients' work, and prove an incentive for increased clerical effort.

On motion by Ald. Phelan and Stocker, the recommended increases were allowed, and the girls will now be paid at the rate of $710 a year until the end of December, instead of $650 as hitherto.

Licenses Renewed.

Louis Yeotes, 339 George Street, applied for renewal of five billiard table licenses.

F. B. Patterson, 431 George Street, asked for a renewal of three billiard table licenses.

E. M. Austin, 380 George Street, applied for renewal of his eating house license.

Mrs. John Fowler, 326 Water Street, applied for renewal of her eating house license, as also did Charles Chew, 162 Simcoe Street.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Fife, the above applications were granted.

Sanitary Improvements.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Maher, sanitary improvements will be installed in three private dwellings, the cost of same to be paid for in instalments to the city.

There were present: Mayor W. H. Taylor, Aldermen M. J. Maher, Malcolm McIntyre, Walter Stocker, Robert Morrison, H. O Fife, Dr. W. T. Holloway, Nagle Phelan, City Engineer R. F. Parsons and City Solicitor Joseph Wearing.

NATIONS' LEAGUE MUST STAND PAT

Now in Crisis of Career and Cannot Give Way to Italian Premier Mussolini.

LONDON, September 5. Canadian Press. — In referring to the threat of Premier Mussolini to withdraw from the League of Nations, should the latter insist upon intervening in the Greco-Italian dispute, the London newspapers to-day urge the League to stand firm and not allow itself to be intimidated by the Italian premier, which would mean suicide. The League is challenged at its foundation and it must take up the challenge or abdicate, says the Daily Chronicle.

The Morning Post asserts that the league is now at the very crisis of its career.

The Manchester Guardian says that if Mussolini means seriously to withdraw, then the league is in great peril, but warns that if it surrenders to the Italian Premier its life would be over.

Geneva reports that Paul Hymans, the Belgian delegate, has received instructions from Brussels to stand solid with Britain in assuring respect for the League of Nations pact even at the cost of Italy's withdrawal from the League.

WILL "SHOOT" SUN'S ECLIPSE FROM ABOVE THE CLOUDS

Greatest Scientific Conclave in History Gathered in Southern and Lower California For Great Event September 10.

By ROBERT A. DONALDON

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 5.—(United Press).—The greatest scientific conclave in the world's history has gathered in Southern California and Lower California to catch old Sol napping.

The sun will be totally eclipsed on September 10 for 3 minutes 34 seconds along the extreme southwesterly tip of the United States—in the neighborhood of San Diego.

Scientists for two years have been making their plans to "shoot' the sun under these conditions— when the moon has intervened between it and the earth.

A half a hundred different scientific theories and researches are at stake in the observations, and scientists from all over the world, bearing very latest astronomical apparatus have gathered stronomicl fiuah& hu have gathered each to prove or disprove another point in his theory.

The eclipse will take place at 12:54 p.m., Pacific Coast time, which is three hours slower than eastern standard time and two hours slower than central time.

The great shadow which will be cast over the earth's face 105 miles wide—will originate near Japan, shoot across the Pacific at over 1,800 miles an hour cut the edge of California from San Francisco to Los Angeles with a 95 per cent shadow and from San Diego through Lower California and Mexico with a full shadow.

The gathering of scientists is especially great at this time for several reason. One is that the locality is easily reached, and facilities are in readiness for the setting up of delicate instruments.

Furthermore the trip is not unduly expensive, as was that to Walal Beach Australia, and to the South Sea Islands last year where the last total eclipse occurred.

Good Weather Expected

Furthermore weather conditions at this time of year in Southern California are ideal. No rain falls in this district from May to December, and there is seldom any fog or cloudy weather....This gives the scientists the utmost possible insurance against spending thousands of dollars and coming thouands of miles only to be balked entirely by a rainy day or a low fog, making photographs impossible.

At Mount Hamilton Observatory near San Francisco; at Mt. Wilson near Los Angeles, and at points on Catalina Island and other channel islands off the coast, San Diego, Coronado, Ensenada, Lower California and a number of other scientist have their apparatus ready to shoot rapidly during the precious three minutes of darkness during mid day.

But even if clouds or fog come unexpectedly the scientists will still try to take enough observations to make the trip worth while. The two great observatories are usually far above the cloud level.

Shoot From Airplane

Furthermore, the army air service will co-operate. Lieutenant John A Mac Ready one of the aviators who spanned the American continent in the air in a single leap, has been detailed by General Patrick, chief of the air service, to co-operate in flying above the clouds during the eclipse for the purpose of making photographs. He will fly to a height of 20,000 feet.

MacReady will be accompanied by Captain George Stephens, the army's most expert photographer, who, under direction of scientists at San Diego will "shoot the sun" from above the clouds with highly technical cameras in case the day is foggy.

AUTO FEATURES FOR OTTAWA EXHIBITION

Polo and Races Should Give Thrills Aplenty To Patrons of Big Fair.

Auto polo and auto races will again be features in the grandstand program for the Ottawa exhibition. Each afternoon and evening there will be auto polo and this is sure to furnish thrills aplenty when the fire spitting polo cars, handled by skilled and daring drivers, tangle up on the track. It was a big hit last year and stronger teams have been secured for this year.

The auto races will be given for two afternoons only. On the first four days the trotters and pacers will be seen in competition for $5,000 in purses, and then they will move out of the spotlight to make room for the begoggled space eaters and their glittering distance consumers from all over the land, headed by some of the greatest speed stars that ever trod on the throttle of a high-powered racing car.

Burr Lampkin Coming

Burr Lambkin, noted daredevil and world's short distance champion, heads the long list of pilots, and he has entered his French made Peugeot in the local events, the same car which holds the foreign car track record made on the famous Indianapolis paved course. This car won the 500-mile speed classic in 1919 from perhaps the greatest field of speedway drivers that were ever assembled together in a single meet. Lampkin will make an attempt to lower his own speed record on the local oval. He will also make a try at the world's record, which is at the present time held by little Sig Haughahl, the Norwegian pilot, with his three-miles a minute world's wonder car.

Ray Claypool, gray-haired youngster and veteran dirt track driver, will also be in the line at the wheel of a De Lage. He hails from Kansas City, where they start them young and teach them to drive fast. and if dope is right, he should prove a strong contender when the points are counted at the end of the Ottawa sweepstakes, the big event on the program.

Fred Lecklider, a newcomer from Toledo, Ohio, and San Diego, California, is also in the heavy car diision, and because of wins in the Southwest last year, he is thought to have a good chance at the big event with his Earl Special.

"Pop" Daily, another veteran, is also a newcomer in Eastern Canada, and he will be seen at the wheel of a Deusenberg. This is the same make of machine which formerly held the world's mile record, and Daily will try to uphold on the dirt tracks the reputation that this make of machine has gained on the beach courses and on the speedways.

Cleo Sarles, famous Ford driver, and Jack Petticord, of Essex fame, are the strong contenders in the light car classes, and they are batting about even with race fans who claim to know what they are talking about.

GREECE PROPOSES PLAN FOR LEAGUE AS MEDIUM TO SATISFY THE ITALIANS

Keen Debate and High Drama Marked Hurried Session of League of Nations Council.

MEETING ADJOURNED

GENEVA, Sept. 5:—A high political drama was played at Geneva yesday when Greece appeared before a hurriedly called public session of the Council of the League and announced new terms for a settlement with Italy.

The Greek proposals were as follows: — "The Greek Government suggests, firstly, that the Council should appoint one or more neutral representatives, (a) to superintend in Greece the judicial inquiry which the Greek authorities have already begun and also the trial of those responsible for the Janina murders; (b) assist in the work of the commission which Greece has proposed through the Council of Ambassadors for investigating in Albania and Greece the circumstances which preceded and accompanied the crime.

"Secondly, that the Council should instruct a commission composed of three high judicial authorities, Greek, Italian and neutral—for example — the President of the Swiss Federal Tribunal, or the President of the Permanent Court of International Justice— to meet as soon as possible at Geneva to settle the amount of indemnities which is just that we should pay the families of the victims.

"Thirdly, that the Council should agree that the Greek Government forthwith deposit in a bank in Switzerland fifty million lire as a guarantee for the immediate payment of whatever indemnity may be decided upon."

Italy Must Choose.

Those who slucceeded in entering the Council Chamber witnessed a courteous but wordy clash between Signor Salandra and M. Politis, Italian and Greek delegates respectively, an amicable tossing of oil on the troubled waters by Lord Robert Cecil, and witnessed also proceedings which puts up to Italy for the second time the question as to whether she will accept in any form whatsoever the assistance of the League in regulating her difference with Greece.

M. Politis, who was born and reared in Corfu, speaking in Greek with a pronounced Corfiot accent, played his second stroke yesterdnor with a fine Grecian touch but Signor Salandra, always jolly and smiling, in keeping with the League atmosphere of conciliation and good humor, won his point in insisting that in presenting his new proposals M. Politis should not indulge in the forensics of Demothenes, but get down to bold facts, without attempting to argue the justice of the Grecian cause.

M. Politis then proposed the new Greek suggestion, adding that this indemnitiy was the amount Italy originally demanded.

Only Press Admitted.

During the first part of the session, which was private, Signor Salandra announced that he was awaiting instructions from Premier Mussolini on Italy's final attitude. When the attendants threw open the doors, making the meeting public, they were almost stampeded by the crowd in the corridor, many of them women. There was a hurried consulation among the officials, after which it was announced that only press representatives would be admitted. Fortunately, the disappointed League followers were at least able to see the meeting of the Council, if not hear, since on three sides great glass doors permitted a view of the proceedings.

When M. Politis arose, he said, Greece wanted a prompt settlement. After summarizing the Greek and Italian official note and indicating the points Greece was unable to see her way to accept, he remarked that Italy demanded capital punishment for the murderers and proceeded to argue that no tribunal would hesitate to meet out the most drasttic form of punishment.

But Signor Salandra interrupted with: "That is an opinion. We are here to listen to your offer, not to arguments."

Lord Robert Cecil intervened, saying that the public should know all the facts, because publicity was conducive to justice.

M. Politis remarked that he merely wanted to say what could be made a basis for an eventual arrangement Signor Salandra, however, was obdurate and insisted that M. Politis was arguing, and that he (Salandra) sould not answer because his instruction had not arrived from Rome. He then moved the sitting be adjourned.

Lord Robert Cecil again intervened, asserting that Signor Salandra was right as to arguments but that if new facts were available the world should know them as soon as possible, for the situtiom was grave.

M. Politis said: "If I get argumentative, Signor Salandra can stop me."

Put in Writing.

The Italian delegates replied: "I refuse that: I insist upon an adjournment. Let M. Politis put his proposition in writing."

There was tragedy in the air, but Lord Robert saved the situation by suggesting that the Greek leader put his plan in writing immediately. M. Politis and his colleagues retired, and returned shortly with the Greeks' new solution.

This latest project, which would mean direct negotiation with Italy, but through the medium of the Council, does not involve bringing into play the League machinery, as provided in the covenant, but if accepted by Italy would probably satisfy the League leaders, whose goal is a peaceful settlement, however, that may be attained. As the proposition involves the Council of Ambassodors, its text was telegraphed to Paris to get the ambassadorial body's view. The Italians did not disclose their view on the Greek proposals.

A public meeting of the Council will be held Wednesday morning for the presentation of the Italian reply, and interest here continues intense.

Signs of Better Business in Maritime Provinces.

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press)—Many evidences of a strong tendency towards the betterment of business and general conditions in the Maritime provinces were found by J. E. Dalrymple, vice-president in charge of traffic of the Canadian National Railways who has just returned from a tour of inspection of the Atlantic region of the system. He visited New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island and found good crops in all sections of the province and much activity being shown in the lumbering, pulp and manufacturing industries.

would comprise a vast army, yet that is the number who have replied to a questionnaire recently sent out by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. of Cobourg, Ont. Ninety-eight out of every 100 letters from these women contained positive assurances that they have been benefited or restored by taking this old-fashioned root and herb medicine. This is most remarkable evidence of its power over the ills of women. Therefore with 98 chances out of one hundred that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will overcome such ailments for you, why should you continue to go through life in pain and suffering.

It is false economy to use cheap teas, for they are invariably inferior, and yield poorly in the teapot. Use only the genuine "SALADA" to secure the maximum cups to the pound, and the real satisfaction that fine flavour gives.

STOCK AND BONDS

... there is a great boom in the mining industry. I have had many years experience in practical mining, both in Cobalt and Porcupine, and have a wide connection there. I am therefore in a position to get early and reliable information in both camps. I have made a profit for every one of my clients up to date, and shall be pleased to advise any one interested. There will be a strong market this summer and now is the time to get in.

JAPAN'S LEGIONS OF DEAD MOUNT TO AWFUL HOST IN LATEST ESTIMATE; SEISMIC FORCE CASTS NEW ISLANDS

Osaka Newspaper Makes Estimate of 320,000 and Some Figures Approach Half Million--Yokohama Utterly Destroyed--Rivers Twisted and Volcanoes Are Erupting.

MANY OF NOBILITY AMONG THE VICTIMS

OSAKA, Japan, Sept. 4.—So vast an area of Japan has been devastated by the greatest earthquake in the history of this country, that it will be a long time before the actual loss of life is known. The most reliable estimates of the dead up to the present reach as high as 300,000 to 500,000.

Tokio and Yokohama, with surrounding towns, which formed the centre of the disturbances, are almost completely in ruins. For two days Tokio was swept by flames, and apart from the loss of life caused directly through the falling of buildings, thousands must have perished in their attempts to make their way through the fire zones, and other thousands through exhaustion.

ANOTHER EARTHQUAKE.

Yokohama, Tokio's busy port, is a city destroyed. Probably more complete destruction has been wrought there than in the capital itself, for its great docks were torn asunder, its shipping wrecked, its public buildings and homes levelled to the earth.

All advices received here indicate a succession of earth disturbances in that area extending for many miles inland and to the north, and everywhere the first destructive forces were augmented by explosions, the bursting of water mains, the overflow of rivers and the terrible overpowering rush of tidal waves.

NEW ISLANDS APPEAR.

Details of geographical changes are lacking, but it is reported that new islands have been forced up from the bed of the ocean, while whole sections have disappeared. Rivers are said to have changed their courses, and volcanoes are erupting in various districts.

The disaster spared none who stood in its path. Many members of noble families have perished, but thus far the only notable foreign resident in the list of killed is the American Consul at Yokohama, Max D. Kirjassoff, who, with his wife, is believed to have been buried in the ruins of the consulate.

The American Ambassador, Cyrus E. Woods, and all the members of the Embassy at Tokio are known to be safe, but many of the diplomatic representatives of other nations have not been accounted for, nor has any word been received of their fate.

ESTIMATE 320,000 DEAD.

The newspaper, Osaka Ashahi estimates the dead at 320,000, which included 150,000 dead in Tokio, 100,000 in Yokohama and 60,000 in Yokosuku. Word is received that the fires in Tokio burned out Monday night, but at the same time couriers carry appeals for food supplies and medical supplies and assistance for the hundreds of thousands of homeless refugees, who, unless succored speedily, cannot survive.

For the moment all efforts are being directed, first to ascertaining the extent of Japan's vast losses both in citizens and foreign residents, and material damage to its cities, and secondly, to rushing all assistance in every form to the stricken district. There has been no time yet for a summing up of the terrible consequences of the earthquake, nor for the preparation of a list of the prominent dead, Japanese or foreign residents.

The warships of many foreign nations are on the seas already bringing assistance, which fact serves to give encouragement to the Government and the people in their greatest calamity.

BELIEVE WARSHIPS LOST.

MOSCOW, Sept. 4.—According to the latest information received here from Vladivostok, the belief prevails there that many vessels of the Japanese war fleet have been lost.

Although dispatches from various points have mentioned the overwhelming of Japanese naval stations by the tidal wave following the earthquake, none of them contained any reference to the loss of warships.

BRITISH COLUMBIA WILL GIVE ASSISTANCE TO JAPAN

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 4. — The British Columbia Government will do something tangible to help relieve the situation in Japan. Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, announces that in conjunction with the timber industry of the Province, it intends to offer a contribution of timber to assist in repairing the devastated sections.

At a meeting here to-day of members of the British Columbia Timber Men's Association, it was decided to co-operate with the Government in sending aid to the stricken people of Japan.

SUN LIFE CO. ANXIOUS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 4.—The Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada is feeling great anxiety as to the fate of their branch office at Tokio where about fifty persons were employed. The manager was W. D. Cameron and the secretary E. W. Lewis, had been employed at head office here up to a year ago. No information has as yet been received by the company from Tokio.

The Franciscan Brothers have a number of missions in the district of Kagoshima Iesland of Kiou-Siou, the southernmost island in the Japanese archipelago. Inquiries in this city to-day brought out that no information as to the extent to which the disaster had affected the above institution had been received.

Inestimable

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press)—Consul-General Ohta today ceived a cablegram from Consul-General Yada at Shanghai, China, through the Japanese embassy at Washington, stating that the number of casualties in Tokio and vicinity is inestimable. The cable from Shanghai quotes an official message which was sent out by the naval station at Kure, Japan, and was received yesterday. The message follows:

"Although there is no official information as to the damage done by the catastrophe at Tokio and vicinity, the number of casualties is inestimable and conflagrations which broke out in many place throughout the city has burned down the greater part of Tokio, and all traffic is entirely stopped. There is no way of communication except through the wireless station at Funa-Bashi. Yokohama and surrounding villages are almost entirely annihilated. Every possible effort is being made to rescue lives."

WAR VETERANS HAD PROVINCE WIDE MEETING

Memorial Requests the Government to Provide Education For Children of Deceased and Disabled Veterans.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press.)—Members of the G.W.V.A. Ontario Command in Provincial Convention here made several recommendations for their betterment and their election of officers for the ensuing year.

The officers elected yesterday afternoon were as follows:

President, Dr. W. D. Sharpe, Brampton; 1st Vice-President, Dr. D. A. Volume, Kingston; 2nd Vice-President, L. P. Cunningham, St. Catharines; Dominion Representative, E. G. McFeat, Ottawa; Executive, A. F. Smels, Hamilton; Reg. Rowell, St. Catharines; E. A. Habson, Kitchener; George Murrell, Toronto.

The northern representative will be selected by a mailed vote of the northern branches.

The convention authorized instructions to the Provincial executive to place before the Provincial Government a memorial asking for legislation to provide education for children of deceased and seriously disabled veterans on a basis similar to that already effective in Saskatchewan.

The Ways and Means committee's report as adopted provides for the immediate appointment of an organized field secretary whose duties will be defined by the executive; the formation of a branch to take care of men who cannot conveniently affiliate with any established branch.

The Government was formally requested to provide annual increases for temporary office holders instead of excluding a few classes affecting some 10,000 ex-service men; also that temporary and permanent civil servants be placed on an equal footing on retirement providing one year has been served.

An amendment to the Soldiers' Settlement Act was requested extending the jurisdiction to provide for the purchase or construction of suitable homes other than on farms for ex-service men.

Last night the delegates were entertained to a civic banquet by the city of St. Catharines at the Welland Inn, and will to-morrow be taken over the Welland ship canal construction.

Owen Sound and Windsor have applied for the convention next year.

Gross Earnings 7½ Per Cent. Higher Than in July, 1922.

FIGURES COMPARED.

MONTREAL, Sept. 4. — Statements of earnings and expenses of the Canadian National Railways for the month of July, 1923, was issued here to-day. Gross earnings are up $1,475,907 an increase of 7 1-2 per cent. as compared with July, 1922. After meeting operating expenses amounting to $19,530,620, there remains a net operating revenue for the month of $1,472,228.

In July 1922 the net operating revenue for these same properties was $723,004 so that the figures for 1923 represent an increase in net of $749,224 or 103.6 per cent.

For the first seven months of 1923 the net earnings of the Canadian National Railways have amounted to $2,984,460 as compared with a deficit on the same properties of $2,202,993 in the corresponding period of 1922. The improvement in the net operating results in 1923 as against the first seven months of last year, therefore amounts to $5,187,453.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT TRENT RIVER

Boy Fell From a Horse and Sustained a Fractured Skull.

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 5. —The 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall McComb (nee Nellie Keller formerly of Healy Falls), passed away Sunday evening from the results of an accident the day previous. The little lad in company with his eight-year-old brother were riding an old horse partly harnessed, to the harvest field, where the men were working. The elder brother slipped and fell unhurt, but the younger boy lost hold and also fell, his foot caught in the line. The animal became frightened and ran, dragging the little fellow some distance causing a fractured skull. Dr. W. Holdcroft of Havelock, was called, but nothing could be done the child never regained consciousness and death resulted thirty hours after. The funeral takes place this afternoon at 1 p.m. from the family residence, (opposite Pine Lodge), to the Keller family plot at Healy Falls. The parents and relatives have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

Make the Rinso liquid first

Do not put Rinso direct from the package into the tub. Mix half a package of Rinso in a little cool water until it is like cream. Then add two quarts of boiling water, and when the froth subsides, you will have a clean amber-coloured liquid. Add this liquid to the wash tub, until you get the big lasting Rinso suds. Then soak the clothes clean.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1923.

WHY NOT PETERBOROUGH?

Last year the manufacturers of Stratford decided upon the experiment of a made-in-Stratford exhibit at the Toronto Exhibition, and so widespread was the advertising accorded Stratford products and so much business developed as a result that there was no hesitation in carrying a similar demonstration this year.

Belleville also caught the infection and is represented by an exhibit that calls general attention to the manufacturing activities at Belleville.

It is splendid publicity, and both Stratford and Belleville will reap the benefit of their progressiveness and enterprise.

The Examiner last year urged a Peterborough exhibit at the Canadian National, and has several times since endeavoured to point out the advantages of such a plan.

Those who saw the Belleville and Stratford displays at Toronto will surely endorse the proposal that Peterborough should be similarly represented.

We have a wide range of manufactured goods that would make an impressive showing.

Why not get it together and put Peterborough over big at the next Canadian National Exhibition?

Let us show the world what we make.

AMALGAMATING THE VETERANS.

The Ontario Provincial command of the G.W.V.A. while deciding to be careful not to wreck what it already holds, has passed a resolution approving of efforts to bring about a Dominion-wide amalgamation of returned soldiers.

Amalgamation seems to be the only salvation for the veteran organizations, and, unfortunately, it seems to have been decided upon too late to completely save the situation.

Friends of the returned men hoped some years ago that the differences of opinion that divided them into different camps would soon disappear, and that the ex-service men would be able to present a united front.

Wrangles over the bonus question and other matters in dispute, however, not only alienated a large amount of public sympathy, but they also drove out in disgust many a returned soldier who ever since has refused to ally himself with any one of the veteran organizations.

At the present time it is safe to say that there are more ex-service men who are taking no active interest in the various associations than there are in the total combined membership of all of those organizations.

Transfusion of blood, or, in other words, amalgamation, may restore health and vigour to the movement.

One united organization may appeal to those who have been unable to decide between the various veterans' clubs which appealed for support.

The effort is worth a trial.

There should be a welcome in Canada for a real linking up of the men who fought.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

The campaign to be undertaken by the Peterborough Rotary Club on behalf of the crippled children of the city is a sincere and humanitarian effort to accomplish something that should brighten scores of young lives.

There are undoubtedly a large number of children in Peterborough who are suffering from physical defects that in their present state handicap them in life and that are likely perhaps to grow worse unless corrected.

Many of these defects would yield to treatment, in some cases completely, in others sufficiently to render them much less of a drag.

Unfortunately, in numerous instances the parents have been unable to pay the expense of the necessary treatment, with the result that the cases have been allowed to drift.

Nothing has been done and the children are doomed to grow up in a crippled condition—unless the campaign of the Rotary Club changes the outlook.

A survey is to be made of the city shortly, and the public is asked to co-operate with the canvassers by supplying the necessary information readily.

There is no idle curiousity in the survey, no desire to pry into private affairs, nothing but a genuine desire to be of service to individuals who need assistance and to the community.

Wonderful work for Peterborough can be accomplished if the campaign is endorsed and assisted by the people generally.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES.

The decision of Mr. Justice Orde that the Industrial Disputes Act is an interference with civil rights in respect to its compulsory powers, if allowed to stand, will end a piece of legislation that has achieved much in ridding Canada of strikes in public and semi-public utilities. The question of appeal will depend on the legal opinion of the Dominion Department of Justice on the prospects of obtaining a favorable judgment from higher tribunals.

Mr. Justice Orde in effect has ruled that the act is unconstitutional, that it exceeds the powers of the Dominion Parliament to enact, as established by the British North America Act. In other words, it is legislation in matters purely pertaining to the Province. The constitution provides that civil rights, of which the court holds the industrial disputes measure is an clusive powers of the provinces. The alternative plea of Dominion counsel falls to the ground. They maintained that the Industrial Disputes Act was an extension of the criminal code.

With the attempt of Hon. James Murdock to apply the act in the dispute of the Hydro-electric Commission and the electrical workers' union, which brought about the adverse decision on the law in question, the public had little sympathy. The Hydro-electric Commission as a great public utility can be trusted to deal fairly with its employes in the matter of wages. Customers of the Hydro-electric Commission, moreover, have become impatient with the union. Many persons believe, for example, that the charges for wiring houses for the installation of electric stoves ought to come down, instead of going up. The dispute between the Hydro-electric Commission and the union had hardly become so acute as to call for the interference of the Dominion Department of Labor.

The result has been the overthrow of the Industrial Disputes Act in the first encounter. This is a regrettable thing. For many years Canada has had freedom from railway strikes, even during the period when American transportation was virtually paralyzed by the trouble with the shop crafts. It was the Industrial Disputes Act that prevented the extension of the strike to this country. All told this legislation has saved the working men and employers millions of dollars. It has been of particular benefit to workingmen. It has prevented many thousands of them from striking and receiving losses in wages that would handicap them for many months. In these trying times of radicalism among the labor unions, legislation of this sort is especially necessary.

In the United States even now the Federal Government is powerless to compel the coal mine owners and the unions to negotiate their differences to a peaceful solution. Legislation like the Industrial Disputes Act in the United States would go far to prevent recurrent stoppages of the coal industry from labor disputes and the infliction of severe hardship on many innocent people.

Now, the courts are threatening the life of this Industrial Disputes Act. If the Dominion Government decides against an appeal, or its efforts are defeated, the law is perpetually shorn of its virtue in Ontario. In that event other action is imperative in order to prevent this Province from becoming a replica of several States in the American Union in the matter of labor disputes. Besides the loss in money, there is the inevitable increasing class antagonism where disputes are many and virulent between the employer and workman.

If the present Act in question is killed, the alternative is for the Ontario Legislature to enact a statute on the same principle. For if the legislation of Parliament is an encroachment on the exclusive prerogatives of the Provincial House, then it must come within the jurisdiction of that chamber. So Hon. G. H. Ferguson and the Hon. W. F. Nickle must be prepared to introduce legislation of the same type if their court proceedings have administered the knock-out blow to the Dominion anti-strike law.—Border Cities Star.

THE COAL SITUATION.

Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, has put the issue in the coal controversy squarely up to the miners and operators, and in so doing he has earned the gratitude of the public. A strike at the present time would be disastrous at best; it might easily become catastrophic. Coal is one of the basic necessities of life and of trade, and it is an economic impossibility for the industry and the union to regard the matter of a strike as one that concerns themselves alone. The public has a definite right to be considered as a third interested party, and it is upon this understanding that Governor Pinchot has proceeded.

His plan of settlement is a simple one. He has ingeniously avoided such controversial issues as are not germane to the dominant problem of better hours and higher wages. He holds the wage scale to be obsolete, and he proposes a ten per cent. increase, recognition of the eight-hour day and of the union, and, as a fourth proposal, recognition of the principle of collective bargaining. It would be too optimistic, perhaps, to say that there is nothing in these four propositions to which the operators can take exceptions founded on logical basis; but, on the other hand, it cannot be denied that the Gvernor has put forward a concrete scheme which contains the elements of an equitable agreement that will give the miners improved conditions of work, better hours, and higher pay, and will not effect this by imposing any undue sacrifice upon the operators.

The net result of the settlement, if it be adopted, will be an increase in the cost of anthracite coal of sixty cents per ton. Governor Pinchot suggests that the operators absorb ten cents of this from the outset, and that the balance be met by reduction in transportation and distribution charges. This would leave the consumer paying the same price that he pays today, but there is no guarantee that the distribution proposed by Mr. Pinchot would be effected, as it concerns the dealers. Yet this is a very important point indeed to the consumer. While everybody with any sense of justice and fairplay will be glad to see the miners receive better pay, so that they and their families may live in greater comfort, there is no general attitude of complaisance towards an increase in coal charges indicated, more particularly as the existing rates bear with unpleasant weight upon the working man and make the burden of living costs unpleasantly heavy.

Still, the basis of all effective settlements is compromise, and it would be infinitely better to avoid a strike if it is humanly possible than to involve hundreds of thousands in suffering and bring living conditions for perhaps millions down to the misery point, as a a coal strike today would undoubtedly do. A very grave responsibility rests upon the representatives of the men and the operators today. Both sides are engaged in the consideration of Governor Pinchot's proposals. The issue is a momentous one, and there is more than higher pay and shorter hours dependent upon it. If the operators adopt a recalcitrant attitude, then they will have shown precisely how much consideration they deserve, and the President will be free to step in. If the miners prove too grasping, they will demonstrate their selfishness and their disregard for their fellow-workmen in other branches of human activity. We hesitate to believe either side will be capable of such stupendous folly as the rejection of the proposals would involve. The public will await their decision with anxiety, and there will be a widespread desire that the spirit of moderation and compromise may be at work among them, to the eventual benefit of all concerned.—Mostreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A week from today the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition gets under way. Keep the last four days of next week in mind.

When it is read that Nagoya, a city larger than Toronto, was completely destroyed some idea of the extent of the Japanese disaster may be obtained.

The attendance at the Canadian National Exhibition is ahead of the best previous year. That appears to indicate that the "whisper of death" campaign is not frightening very many people.

All those American and Canadian swimmers who are attempting to swim the English Channel seem to forget that there is good bathing at home.

CHICAGO WHEAT WEAK.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.— Wheat underwent a setback in price to-day owing chiefly to lack of sustained buying. The market closed heavy, 5-8 to 1 1-8c. net lower, September $1.01 1-2 to $1.01 5-8 and December $1.05 3-4 to $1.05 7-8. Corn finished at a range varying from 5-8c. decline to 3-4c. gain, with oats 38 and 1-2c. to 5-8c. down, and provisions showing losses of 5 to 27 cents.

At first the wheat market displayed an upward tendency, helped by an advance in Liverpool quotations and by reports that France had accepted in principle German suggestions of an economic accord. Profit-taking sales developed volume on the advance, however, and purchasing power soon began to dwindle. A consequent downward swing of values was accelerated by a large increase of the United States' visible supply total and by apparent absence of export demand. Rallies which ensued were without much force, and the market was sagging again as the day drew to an end.

Bears in the wheat market put stress on the fact that the domestic visible supply had mounted to 56,541,000 bushels, and is more than 29,000,000 bushels in excess of the aggregate a year ago. In this connection it was also pointed out that Minneapolis is at present receiving upward of 1,000 carloads of wheat daily. On the other hand the accumulation of receipts here since Saturday turned out to be less than had been counted on and premiums for cash wheat here was unchanged notwithstanding that a liberal percentage of the arrivals were of low grade.

Corn and oats weakened with wheat and as a result of favorable crop reports as to corn. The September delivery of corn, however, scored an advance owing to scarcity of immediate supplies.

In the provision market, selling on the part of commission houses more than wiped out an advance due to higher hog values.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 4.—The feature of the domestic cash grain trade here to-day was the improved demand from buyers, but trade in oats was rather quiet. A fairly good business prevails in spring wheat grades of flour and the tone of the market was firm. A very firm feeling prevails in the millfeed market. Trade in rolled oats is fair. There is no change in the baled hay market. Prices for eggs were up two cents to 3 cents per dozen. Butter prices were advanced 1-2 cent per pound. A fair business was done in cheese at advanced prices.

CAVES TO TOURISTS.

MEXICO CITY, Mexico.—By Mail to United Press).—Californians are backing a project to make the famous caves at Cacahuamilpa a big tourist attraction.

A group of capitalists of that State, combined with a number of Mexicans, plan to build two large modern hotels at the caves.

Actual operation of the plan will be delayed until after recognition of Mexico by the United States. The project will call for the expenditure of approximately one million dollars.

The caves of Cacahumilpa, although practically unknown to the American tourist, are said to be the largest caves in the world.

Backers of the project to popularize the caves with the tourists, believe that when the caves become known they will attract as many tourists as at present visit pyramids of Egypt, the Grand Canyon and other places.

CANADA'S AMENDMENT CAUSES DIVERGENCE.

No Participation in War Without the Consent of Parliament.

GENEVA, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press)—The Council of the League of Nations decided at the meeting today that as there was considerable divergence of views on Canada's proposed amendment to Article X. of the covenant, relating to the preservation of the territorial integrity of member states, it was not now in a position to make a recommendation to the Assembly.

It was pointed out that in the mind of many Governments the question is connected with the problem of disarmament. The Council thought the Assembly might want to discuss the two questions together. This may mean the temporary shelving of the Canadian suggestion.

The Canadian suggestion made it clear in the article that no State would be called upon to go to war without the consent of its parliament.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, Sept. 5.—The funeral took place from the family residence, College street, on Thursday afternoon of Mrs. Gifford, widow of the late Charles Gifford, who predeceased her, passing away in 1896. Mrs. Gifford was a lady who was held in high esteem. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John C. Boswell, who resided near the Kingston crossing, just east of the town, where Mr. Boswell conducted for many years a large distillery. Mrs. Gifford was the last of the family of eight children born in this well-known and hospitable home. Five brothers, John, Charles, David, Rolland and William, predeceased her. One brother, Mr. Charles Boswell, was for some years connected with the Post Office here. Afterwards he went to Winnipeg, where he was colonel of the 90th Regiment. A sister, Mrs. Sweeney, died in San Francisco and another sister, Miss Maria Boswell, who made her home with Mrs. Gifford, passed away in January, 1916.

Mrs. Gifford was a member of St. Peter's Anglican Church. Of a genial personality, her latch-string was always out to friend and acquaintance and these social associations were very dear to her. Her early home, after her marriage, was at Beach Hill, just east of the town, and later in Cobourg.

She is survived by one son, Mr. Fox Gifford, and by a stepson, Mr. Wearman Gifford of Edmonton. Many beautiful flowers attested to the esteem and regard in which she was held by a wide circle of friends.

Bolster-Christopher.

The marriage took place at Holy Rosary Church, Toronto, of Mr. Thomas Bolster of Cleveland, formerly of Cobourg, and Miss Winnie Christopher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Christopher, Toronto. # BE CAUTIOUS OF SUBSTITUTES

There are several medicines on the Canadian market to relieve Kidney and Rheumatic Ailments, but there is one preparation that seldom fails to give quick relief and for that reason Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills are in a class by themselves.

This statement is vouched for by well known residents of this city. For instance Mr. Arthur Pinch, well known in the city, states that he was unable to work and suffered severe pains from backache, but after using three boxes of Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills, he was able to go back to work and is as well as ever.

Mr. Thos. Oldham, another well known Simcoe street resident, has no hesitation in saying that for Kidney and Rheumatic Ailments, there is no equal of Dr. Banta's Pills.

Never neglect Kidney Ailments as they are liable to lead to other complications, but always keep on hand a box of Banta's Pills. If they fail to do what we claim for them, return your box to your dealer and your money will be refunded.

Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills are sold at Lynch's Drug Store, 168 Hunter street. Mail orders attended to promptly. m.w.-84

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Members of Farmers' Clubs Attend Divine Worship — Rev. A. H. McConnachie Was the Preacher.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 5.—About fifty members of the Farmer's Clubs of South Monaghan, Millbrook, and Cavan attended divine worship at Centreville Presbyterian church on Labor Sunday, at 10.30 a.m., the annual sermon to the organization being preached by Rev. A. H. McConnachie. The centre front pews were occupied by the U.F.O. members who marched in a body from their hall to the church, the large congregation practically filling the remainder of the sacred edifice.

The Scripture lesson was read from the fifth chapter of John's gospel, the minister prefacing the reading by a brief quotation from a manifesto issued by the American Federation of Labor, and also by a few well-chosen words of welcome to the Farmer's Club. The latter, the speaker said, he could welcome as representing organized labor, "not over-organized, it is true, but with as absolute a right to unite in self-interest and justice as the capitalists or Big Interests." The first business of the country is farming, yet the farmer has been the laughing-stock of other callings for years because of failure to combine with his neighbor for protection, industrially and financially.

Previous to the sermon the choir rendered the anthem: "Let the waking world adore Him", Miss Jean Eagleson presiding at the organ, and before the concluding hymn Miss Flossie McIndoo sang very beautifully the solo, "Whosoever," to the great enjoyment of the congregation.

The text was chosen from Luke 10:7, "The laborer is worthy of his hire," and the discourse which followed brought out clearly the fact that industry is not only the instrument of improvement, but the foundation of pleasure. "From labor, health, from health contentment springs." A careful study of the New Testament shows how closely Christ Himself was in touch with toil, and with the men who worked. Our Saviour was Himself a skilled artisan, and has forever ennobled all honest labor by the fact that for years he worked at his father's carpenter bench conscientiously earning a living for Himself and the family. So the workingman has a close point of contact with the Man of Nazareth. "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work", but work to Jesus was no curse; we have stressed overmuch the fact that work, in the parable of the Garden of Eden, was the penalty of sin. On the contrary, Adam and Eve were ordered to till the ground in the Garden while it was yet uncursed, and were given the same task in the self-same words after sin's entry has made them rebels against God.

Honest toil is a means of grace; man must have occupation or be miserable for the body and the mind are improved by the toil that fatigues them; it is the indispensable condition of possessing a sound mind in a sound body. The wisest theory for the ideal state is that every one able to do so should be engaged in productive labor. Paul is right when he says: "If a man will not work, neither shall he eat."

It is a mistake to speak of "selling labor"—it is an expression of a person's soul; of a machine we may talk of selling its production, but not the labor of a man made in God's image, as if it were a mere commodity. God has made enough wealth, pleasure, and happiness to go round; upon man's shoulders rests the blame that the distribution is so unfair. We say that wages are good today, and in a sense that is true; but they are not fair as compared with the millions accumulated by the capitalists, Big Interests, and Trusts.

Mr. McConnachie addressed his concluding remarks especially to the organization before him stating that while he did not desire to stir up feelings of strife or bitterness, yet he felt contrained to ask, Does the primary industry of farming, in which more men are engaged and more capital invested than any other in Canada today, get a fair deal? Is there a fair exchange between city and country? The farmer takes his goods to town and takes what he can get for them, while the merchant charges what he likes because his prices in the city are standardised; but the individual farmer is at the mercy of the middleman. Hence industrially and every way, the farmer's salvation depends upon organization, and co-operation to the limit should be the watchword of the new generation. There must be a new order inaugurated if the young men and maidens are to remain on the farm.

If the love of God were shed abroad in the hearts of mankind it would banish social differences and selfish aspirations; serving Him wholeheartedly we would serve each other and the community as well.

"Come to my heart, O thou wonderful Love,
Come and abide, come and abide;
Lifting my life till it rises above
Falsehood, and envy, and pride.
Seeking to be, seeking to be,
Lowly and humble, a learner of Thee."

Upon returning to their club room a hearty vote of thanks to Rev. Mr. McConnachie for his excellent sermon was moved by J. C. Campbell, seconded by S. S. Staples, and carried unanimously.

BEARS ARE KILLING SHEEP IN DAYLIGHT

Apsley Residents Get a Thrill Every Day — The Big Fish — Robbed a Woman.

APSLEY, Sept. 5.—That dogs and wolves are not the only enemies that sheep have to fear was exemptified here when in broad daylight Howard Harris came upon a bear eating the carcas of a sheep that it had killed. Howard at once ran home for a rifle, but when he returned Bruin had decamped, and still remains at large. Bears are quite plentiful, several having been seen of late. A short while ago Albert Wilson shot three, a mother and her two cubs.

Good Fishing.

Fishing both in Jack's and Loon Lakes is at its very best, big catches of salmon and bass being reported. All the accommodation on Jack's Lake is taken up and parties have to resort to camping out. South Bay is the best fishing ground on Loon Lake. G. L. Spence and Miss M. Windsor on Friday in a few hours caught seven salmon there, aggregating 42 pounds, the largest tipping the scales at nine pounds. The other seven averaged five pounds.

A Mean Theft.

Mrs. F. Walker, who keeps a confectionery and ice cream parlor at Coe Hill, was the victim of a mean robbery on Sunday last. While at church her purse containing all Saturday's takings, amounting to about $50, was taken from her home. This is a very serious loss for her, and it is hoped the culprits may be discovered.

Social Function.

A very pleasant function favored by delightful weather took place on Friday at Mrs. Grant's residence, Apsley, the occasion being a garden party in honor of Mr. John B. Bonathan, who attained his majority on that day.

The invitations were restricted to the members of the congregation of St. George's Church, most of whom were able to be present. The afternoon was spent in tennis and cricket, Marjorie Spence and Charlie Smith winning the rubber of three sets in doubles, while to Mrs. James Downing went the honor of scoring most runs at cricket. Tea was served on the lawn, the centre of the main table being conspicious with a four-tier birthday cake, the work of Miss Grant. After tea dancing on the lawn was indulged in, the scene presenting a pleasing effect, being illuminated by the various colored lights of Japanese lanterns. Before dispersing the Rev. C. Spence in a short address referred to the valuable aid Mr. Bonathan had rendered to the mission during the summer, and on behalf of St. George's congregation, begged him to accept from them the gift of a pocket communion set. The gift was accompanied by a card inscribed as follows: "Presented to Mr. John B. Bonathan on his coming of age during his first appointed church work in the mission of Apsley by the congregation of St. George's Church as a token of esteem and appreciation of his services. Apsley August 31st, 1923."

Mr. Bonathan, to whom this part of the programme came as quite a surprise, in a graceful speech very feelingly acknowledged the presentation. A very pleasant time for all concerned came to a conclusion with the singing of the National Anthem.

Personals.

THE COACH'S JOB

Something of the taskmaster, the general and the diplomat, and a lot of the doctor must be hidden away in the man who would be the coach of a successful football or track team.

Emergencies of all kinds are his daily routine. A thorough knowledge of first aid is as essential as a knowledge of the game played by his men.

Bumps, bruises, strained ligaments and muscles are every day happenings, but the coach never becomes contemptuous of them. He knows that if neglected, they may result in anything.

Trainers everywhere keep Absorbine Jr. in their lockers. They use it not ony for sprains, cuts and bruises, but for the skin and blood protection of its disinfecting properties. In one convenient container it combines the functions of a number of preparations.

It is the first of all the First Aid requisite in use in all the leading athletic clubs.

And there are just as many everyday uses for Absorbine Jr. in the homes of Canada as there are in the training camps. Always keep it in the home where you can "jump to it" in case of emergency. $1.25 at your druggist.

Don't delay fighting constipation with BRAN that is ALL BRAN!

When constipation flashes its signals-of-sickness into your eyes and cheeks; into your breath, your brain and your appetite, it is absolutely necessary that you head it off! Toxic poisoning stands close by; Bright's disease and other dangerous diseases await their turn!

The remedy that nature offers is the simplest and most effective—Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, which is ALL BRAN! And it is ALL BRAN! It is ALL BRAN you need when you start to fight constipation. You can't afford to delay a minute and you can't afford to use half-way measures with foods that contain a percentage of bran! Your physician will recommend Kellogg's Bran because it is not only effective, but because it is delicious. Why—you will like its nut-like flavor, which adds so much to any food with which it is served.

Be certain to eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—at least two tablespoonfuls daily; in chronic cases with each meal. Results will prove astounding. Remember that Kellogg's Bran is nature's own regulator, which operates in nature's way—which is the best way!

Eat Kellogg's Bran as a cereal, sprinkled on other hot or cold cereals, or make it up into the best of muffins, pancakes, raisin bread, cookies, macaroons. Kellogg recipes are printed on each package. Let the children eat Kellogg's Bran. It is wonderfully beneficial. It will improve their health just as it will really and truly make over men and women. The value of Kellogg's Bran cannot be overestimated. Sold universally by grocers

LORD'S PRAYER SHORTER IN NEW CHICAGO VERSION

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Dr. Edgar G. Goodspeed, of the University of Chicago, in his up-to-the-moment translation of the New Testament has very materially condensed the Lord's Prayer. In his version it reads:

SAYS GERMANY HAS REACHED END OF TETHER

No Longer Possesses Ability to Further Finance Passive Resistance In Ruhr Area.

BELGIAN SENTIMENT

BERLIN, September 5. Canadian Press. — The current impression in banking circles here is that Germany is at the end of her tether so far as her further ability to finance passive resistance is concerned.

It is expected that in a few days Germany will take the initiative in the direction of proposing that official discussions be begun with the French and Belgain governments.

That the Ruhr and the Rhineland fight has been lost by the government and army of German resisters is now tacitly admitted in political circles, although the press has not yet discussed the situation with which the government is faced. It is believed however that German editors now have been informed by Chancellor Stressman that the government would seek to force the solution of the Ruhr conflict in the near future.

The situation in the ocupied areas also is steadily becoming worse, both in respect to economic conditions and the temper of the resisters, who no longer are able to maintain the solidity necessary for a united front.

ENGLAND WITH GERMANY.

OTTAWA, Sept. 5. — According to a British subject who was at Ypres during the war, and who has resided there afterwards, the Belgians hate the British, and this man says that he would not be surprised in the event of another war to see England and Germany lined up together, declared Rev. M. A. McLean, D.D., local Baptist pastor, during the course of an address before the Lion's Club here, when he gave his impressions of his tour through European countries.

Dr. McLean referred to conditions in Germany, where he pointed out he paid 525,000 marks for a breakfast for three, this being equal at that time to 48 cents.

"There are some things which might indicate prosperity in Germany, as for instance, excellent crops due to intensified farming," he declared. "But there is a perfect orgy of spending due to the desire of the people to get rid of the mark for something of more permanent value."

YOUNG PEOPLES' BAND AT PETERBORO FAIR

Musical Organization Under Adjt. Smith Will Parade Sept. 12,

The citizens of Peterborough, and visitors to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition on Wednesday next, September 12, will have an opportunity to see and hear for the first time, Adjt. Smith's Young People's Band, consisting of 40 Juvenile Musicians. The Band will parade to the Exhibition Grounds at 1. 15 p. m. and take care of the concert program in front of the George Street entrance until 3.30 when they will be given an opportunity to see the vaudeville performance in front of the Grand stand.

At 3.30 p. m., the Rendezvous Pavilion Orchestra will occupy the new band stand at the George st. entrance, playing until 5. 30 p.m.

Already considerable activity is seen around the Exhibition Grounds as the work of erecting the big tents for the various displays is now under way, as well as preparations for the lighting which this year will eclipse all previous efforts. This work is in charge of Mr. Harry Beatty, and his staff of electrical experts. The exhibition Grounds will be entirely enclosed with lights, to say nothing of the hundreds of additional lamps which will adorn the buildings, illuminate the roadways, etc.

Men are busily engaged putting the new performance stand in place. This will be brought up quite close to the track, and will be considerably larger than the old stand in size, measuring 40 x 60 feet.

A telegram received yesterday announced that the big Fire Works Display was shipped from the International Fire Works Co.'s plant, Jersey City, N. J., on August 30th, and a second telegram announced that the International Amusement Co., who are furnishing the Midway Attractions will arrive from Sault Ste. Marie, on Tuesday, September 11th.

That the children are considerably interested in the events for Wednesday afternoon, and that the Singing Contest is going to be a big feature was emphasized by the receipt through the mail and otherwise, entries in Singing Contest, running to the number of 11, six being received from boys and girls. The race prizes are now on exhibition in Mr. R. Denne's Window, George st.

CHURCHES HAVE NO PASTORS.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—(Associated Press.)—More than one-fifth of the 021 United Presbyterian churches in the United States are without pastors, according to statistics compiled at the Xenia Theological Seminary here.

While there are 948 ministers of the denomination in this country, 191 churches are without rectors because of the large number of clergymen needed for school and home mission activities, and work of the denominational boards and agencies, it was explained.

Bosses are people who don't know as much as you and hold their jobs by handshaking.

THE TALE OF "LARRY"

"Larry, or The Avenging Terrors," by Gordon Hill Grahame; Musson Book Company, Ltd., Toronto.

Gordon Grahame's second venture into the world of book-making concerns itself with an entirely different type of narrative from his first romantic story, "The Bond Triumphant." The tale of "Larry" and his mates is a book for boys, and is woven about the adventures of a group of youngsters attending the Grove School at Lakefield where Mr. Grahame was for some time housemaster. It contains all the elements necessary to entertain and delight the minds of boys of a certain age, from a recital of an eventful football game to the discovery of a hidden cave and the unearthing of a secret villain amongst the boys themselves.

Whether there is something about the title itself, with its rider, "The Avenging Terrors," or the lurid aspect of the binding, done in a bright blue with orange shield and lettering, that suggests a more dramatic and "Dick Turpin" style of narrative, it is hard to say, but there is nothing about the inner contents of the brightly-bound volume that could possibly be described as extreme. It is written in a mild narrative form that goes in for a good deal of explaining, in one way or another. The hero remains a hero throughout, without any deviation from a hero's part, and the villain, Meyer, is always and consistently a villain. One has no doubts whatever that when a secondary favorite, Allison, is accused of stealing the Sunday collection, that Meyer will eventually be proclaimed the thief, and this only through the detective work of Larry and his mates.

The boys who read and enjoy this story of boy life and fun will never go into deep water to reach the final chapter. It is written, not from above, but exactly on a boy's level. As the sympathetically-minded author says in boyish language, in a paragraph preceding the description of a fight, which, of course, is won by Larry, "It is the anxiety of waiting and the dread anticipation of the unknown that tells on a person."

This atmosphere of sympathy with a boy's viewpoint and a boy's way of expressing himself holds throughout, even when the author refers to the "littlest boys," and will undoubtedly make a very strong appeal to the boys who read it. The children of the Grove School are not paragons, by any means. When Dusty, who is the inventive genius of the piece, has a feed for his group, he gives the plates to Barney, the fat, brown spaniel, to lick off; when the assistant master goes into the study-room unexpectedly, he doesn't find the hero with his nose deep in a book, but, on the contrary, enjoying a ride on the gasolier, and one canny youth makes a profit out of a medicine called the Rhodes Imperial Sickness Stopper, which is combined of equal parts of pink toothwash, maple syrup, violet perfume and well water. The same young man makes money from the selling of "spares," or lines written out beforehand for impositions, and his loyal chums hasten to inoculate Larry with "leprisy" when they write to tell his sister that he is not to be blamed for any indiscretions that may be laid to his door by the faculty.

There is a good deal of incidental humor in the book. The boys are funny, whether they are engaged, as in one youth's case, in finding out how much it would take to die and be buried in formal fashion, as a means of getting even with a stern teacher, when they invite a favorite master to a "hut" supper, garnished with sausage and tea served in turn from the same stew-kettle, or when they seal a secret society pact with blood, furnished by cutting the top off of a wart with a penknife.

There is a trace of self-consciousness about the work, as if it had been penned with a constant remembrance of those who would recognize in it many familiar incidents, but it is bright, and fresh, and likeable. Written in the fashion of one who remembers that "hearts don't change much after all; men are only boys grown tall," it is distinctly a boy's story, for and about the young boy, and boys will like it immensely. The "city of Peterborough" is mentioned with great respect on several occasions.

HELLO GIRLS SUPPLY WEATHER FORECASTS

LONDON, Sept. 5.— (Associated Press.)—Pity the poor English telephone girls! They are supposed to be able to tell people what the weather will be like. In this, their newest duty, perhaps they will receive a sigh or two of sympathy from the operators of switchboards in America who for many years bore the suffering of having subscribers ring up to ask "What time is it, please? My clock has stopped."

Not long ago the Post Office, which owns all the telephones in Great Britain, arranged with the Air Ministry to supply each exchange with daily forecasts of the weather in its vicinity. The first month this information was available to subscribers 10,172 persons called up to find out if it was going to rain. Of course it usually was, the way of British weather being a wet one. In London most of the inquries were made on Fridays and Saturdays. This was taken to mean that the only time people really care about climate over here is when then are set for an outing. The rest of the time they cannot be bothered, let the fogs fall where they may.

Besides it is cheaper not to care. The Post Office is not giving away tips on the weather for the mere fun of it. Those who get such information from "Central" must pay twopence, the cost of a regular city call.

Hardly anyone troubles to ring up and find out the time. Maybe, ten minutes do not mean so much in this easy-going land as in the supposedly "snappy" United States.

ALASKA FROM THE INSIDE

By LAWRENCE MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5 (United Press).—The women of Alaska—what are they like?

If you folks in "the States" could see some of Alaska's children, you would have your answer. For the children are the rosiest, chubbiest, handsomest and altogether most vital set of youngsters you will find in any portion of Uncle Sam's bread domains. And that statement is made upon a basis of rather thorough and extensive observation.

Alaska's women are just as up-to-date and as intelligent as their sisters "outside." Their clothes are just as modish, and their homes just as tastefully arranged and furnished. They have succeeded in making a great wild country into a land of homes.

That, perhaps, is the best characterization of them that could be given. For Alaska is, for those who live in it, a home land. Nearly everybody owns his own home. In Fairbanks, today, you can buy a cozy, warm, good-looking little log house on a fair sized lot, for from $800 to $1,200. And you have electric light and power, steam heat, running water and all similar conveniences.

The women who came in after the pioneers had blazed the trail set about immediately making the austere land a comfortable place. They were facing a tremendous task, for there are many things lacking here that are to be had "outside."

Here and there you will find notably interesting individual women as, for instance, Nellie Neal, or the more recent Ruth Rheet.

Two Types of Women

Nellie Neal is an "oldtimer," and Miss Rheet is a newcomer. Both typify in their own ways the woman of Alaska.

Before she came to Alaska, Nellie Neal lived in Missouri. Pass over years spent in this camp or that, until Nellie Neal opened her eating house at Curry. Curry is a stopover point on the Alaskan railroad. Trains wait there overnight, and passengers sleep in a fine new hotel. But when Nellie Neal went to Curry, the railroad was just building, and her job was to feed the hungry empire builders who were laying the steel.

"I fed 10,000 people in this room in three months," she said as she glanced about the long, low main room of her house in Curry. It is right back of the pretentious shiny new hotel, and it is a thousand times more charming than the hotel will ever be.

"I've been all alone ever since I came here to Alaska. It has been a wonderful experience, because I feel that I have been able to help. People have to be fed if they are going to do the work those railroad makes had to do."

That's what Nellie Neal did—she fed them. In spare time she got to know a great deal about the animal life of the "inside." She has the skins and heads of many bears, caribou, moose, goats, lynx, bobcats and other animals she shot. She does a good business nowadays selling these.

Nellie Neal is like Alsaka because she has the pioneer heart, and the pioneer optimism. All the pioneers are optimists. They may have failed themselves to find the end of the rainbow, but they know Alaska as a whole is going to find it some day.

Another Type

Ruth Rheet, cultured, soft-spoken graduate of the university of Illinois, is another type entirely, yet she, too, partakes of the Alaskan spirit. She came up here a couple of years ago to see what a college woman could do in Alaska. She is part owner of a reindeer herd, now, and is one of those who are fostering this industry both as a means of greater prosperity for the territory and as a means of educating the natives and giving them a solid economic footing.

Miss Rheet wears khaki knickers, and knows her way about the country, from Cantwell to Akiak, and even over to Iditarod and Nome, as thoroughly as any oldtimer. What she typifies is the application of the new intelligence to Alaska's problems.

The women in Alaska do not smoke cigarets. They are not troubled much by "complexes," such as are fashionable among the bored young females known at home as "society women."

The Alaskan housewife in the interior has an electrical home in most cases. Waterpower development has made electricity cheap, so that many housewives not only do their laundry work, their sweeping and their sewing, but also their cooking and baking by electricity, and in many instances heat their homes the same way. In one town it costs about $18 a month to heat a six room house by electricity. This is the cost of one ton of coal. And, remember, Alaska is supposed to be a very cold place.

Alaskan flower gardens are among the most beautiful in the world. Here as everywhere the women sought beauty as soon as they had established a modicum of comfort. In the towns they have trim lawns about their houses, and wonderfully vivid and fragrant beds of flowers.

Gasoline and Newspapers

Gasoline comes high in Alaska. In Anchorage it was 40 cents a gallon. In Fairbanks it was 55. It is transported in cans, boxed in light crates. These are carried into the mining camps where gas is used, on the backs of pack mules, a mule being able to carry two ten-gallon cans comfortably over the steep passes.

The people of the "inside" have daily newspapers, which keep them in touch, though usually a day behind, with the news of the "outside." A new paper is about to be launched in Anchorage. Most of the towns used to have two dailies, but few can support more than one. By absorption or death the field has been narrowed. The newspapers of the territory are remarkably interesting and newsy, considering the difficulties encountered in keeping them going.

Their editors are nearly all picturesque oldtimers. At the head of the list stands W. F. Thompson, editor of the Fairbanks News-Miner, who has the gift of pointed writing to a remarkable degree. In his annual number, issued just as the Presidential party reached Fairbanks, Thompson told how the News-Miner had been evolved from a large number of other papers, so that it now has "a string of names as long as your arm." But most people, Thompson said, just call it "that damned sheet."

At Nenana, in the Tanana valley, where President Harding drove the golden spike cementing the two sections of the Alaskan railroad, they have a yearly "ice pool" of $10,000 which, to the people of the region, exceeds in interest and value the great sweepstakes the English have on the Derby.

The pool goes to the man who comes nearest to predicting the day, hour and minute when the ice goes out of the Tanana River. Poles are stuck into the ice, and when the poles move, the ice is said to have gone out. This spring, five men hit the exact minute and second, and split the pool, $2,000 to each.

Quarter the Smallest

In Fairbanks there is no money smaller than "two bits." They haven't heard of nickels and dimes there. A great deal of gold changes hands. Also much Canadian silver money. One and two-dollar bills are saved as curios A haircut costs $1; a shine 25 cents.

Alaska, from the "inside," is a totally different country than from the coast. For one thing, the climate is different —thank goodness. Juneau's rain and Ketchickan's sticky mists give way beyond the first divide on the coast range of mountains to warm sunshine and clear skies. It is warm, even hot in the daytime, and deliciously cool at night.

What is a "sourdough?" The Alaska party asked the question many a time, but got no fitting answer until they met up with Dan Callahan at Fairbanks. Dan is a real "oldtimer," a sourdough of sourdoughts, who wears a chain of nuggets that would make a smaller man's shoulders droop with their weight.

"A sourdough," said San, spitting ruminatively into the gutter, "is a feller who has seen the ice go out, shot three caribou a month, and drunk a quart of hard liquor a day."

He laughed.

"We had a preacher here once," he said, "who was an honest to gracious oldtimer. Some fellers were talkin' one day with him and one of 'em asked what sourdough meant. Well, I've told you. So when that definition was given, the preacher up and said, 'I haven't shot a caribou in quite a long time.' He wondered what the boys were laughing at."

The term sourdough came from the baking soda dough the oldtimers made. They would mix up a batch of it and let it stand, using it as needed. In its raw state this dough was rather sour, the chemical action of the heat in baking turning it sweet.

Scenes of Beauty

Resurrection Bay and Seward Harbor form a fitting gateway to the scenic wonders of the "inside." The harbor naval men on the Henderson said, is among the three greatest in the world studded with beautiful islands. Gibraltar is reproduced a dozen times in towering rocks, verdure clad to their summits, which stand like sentinels along the waterway. It is one of the most picturesque spots in all Alaska.

Then you enter the broad, peaceful harbor, guarded on three sides by massive, hard-looking, snow-clad peaks, and completely protected by their jagged bulk from storms. It is a perfect anchorage for ships of any size. Its sheer beauty beggars description. The somewhat somber, little town of Seward, sprawled, as all Alaskan towns seem to sprawl, at the base of a mountain, is a desecration of the place.

You don't see telegraph poles in interior Alaska. You see tripods. The reason is the tundra moss. This moss, which covers the whole country thickly is underlaid by a stratum of muck Ordinarily telegraph poles, sunk in this, are pushed clear out of the ground by the action of frost, so the railroad telegraph lines are strung on tripods, made of spruce saplings set on top of the tundra.

Sink a pick into the surface of interior Alaska, anywhere in the great sweep of the Tanana valley, you will go through yielding moss, then muck or soil, and then you will hit glare ice. The whole land is frozen. The frost line lies at varying depths beneath the surface. Some places it is two feet down; others it is 18.

Fishing is, perhaps, the principal industry of Alaska, yet there are scores of fishless streams in the interior. They come tumbling down with tremendous force from glaciers or ice caps but instead of the clear, icy water one would expect to see, there is a turgid, gray flood, so thickly impregnated with gray glacial silt that the gills of fish are clogged and they die.

Taxes, Milk and Butter

They milk cows with a can-opener in Alaska. The canned milk was one of the "hardships" the party had to endure on the railroad trip to the "inside." Some of the boys growled pretty ferociously about it, too. Which reminded Dr. Jorgensen, the agriculture department's Alaskan expert, of a little girl he knew.

"This girl was born in the 'inside' and lived there until she was about nine years old," said Dr. Jorgensen. "Away up there, where they don't get frequent shipments, the butter is usually rancid. One time this little girl's parents took her 'outside,' and they got fresh butter.

" 'Mamma,' she said, 'I don't like this butter.'

" 'Why not, child? What's the matter with it?'

" 'Why, it has no taste at all.' "

Fox farms dot the line of the Alaskan railroad. On these, foxes are raised for their pelts. The silver and black foxes are the most valuable. A raw skin of a silver fox will bring $300 in Alaska. It must be tanned, dressed and made up after that, which means that before it can be worn, it will cost the buyer at least $400. But sold at retail in the United States it would bring $600 to $700.

The black fox, which is even rarer than the silver, has no silvery streaks. It sells for $400 or more per pelt. Washington will see a good many Alaskan furs the coming winter, including a few silver fox and some very handsome cross-fox brought by members of the Presidential party.

Mink skins of the best quality, tanned, sell for from $7 to $10 each. Marten sells from $15 to $75 a skin, an orange-colored skin bringing the latter price. Weasel or ermine sell from 80 cents to $2 each. The red foxes run from $20 to $150, while the blue bring from $125 to $300.

At least two bearskins were purchased by members of the party. One of these, of a small brown bear, cost only $25. A large brown bear pelt, not of first quality, sold at $75.

SUCCUMBS TO GAS FUMES.

Roy Stinson, aged 28, of 93 West Marion Street, Toronto, was found dead in his room by his wife about 9.30 last night, he having been asphyxiated. Dr. James Duncan, Roncesvalles Avenue, who was called, is of the opinion that the turning on of the gas jet was accidental. Coroner Dr. Clendenan is investigating.

CHINESE EMBROIDERY.

The Chinese influence is showing itself even in knitted wear. Hip-length coats with long, loose sleeves high standing collars and bandings of brilliant Chinese embroidery button up close to the throat with small enamel buttons.

WRINGING CLOTHES.

In putting clothes through the wringer, fold to an even thickness exactly the breadth of the wringer rolls. Putting things through in bunches strains the springs and soon brings a wringer to the breaking point.

Eavesdropping

Men often wonder what women talk about when they're alone. We presume women have a reciprocal curiosity. Henry T. Moore decided to make a scientific investigation of "sex differences in conversation." He tells about it in the Journal of Abnormal Psychology.

Every envening for several weeks Moore walked up and down the night-life district of Broadway in New York, listening to the talk between men, between women and between mixed groups.

He discovered that, out of every 100 women conversing with women, 44 were discussing persons of the opposite sex, men. Twenty-three talked about clothing, building and interior decorations. Sixteen discussing persons of their same sex.

Where a woman was talking to a man, in 22 cases out of 100 the conversation was about men and the same number about money and business. These were the leading topics.

In the case of a man talking to a woman, the talk in 25 out of 100 cases concerned amusement. Second-choice topic was money and business, 22.

Where men were with men, no women present, the talk in 48 out of 100 cases had to do with money and business. Amusement ranked second, 14 out of 100. Third came persons of the same sex, 13 cases. And only 8 out of 100 conversations were about women.

According to Moore's eavesdropping, money and business dominate nearly a half of the conversation between men, while nearly half of the talk of woman-to-woman deals with men.

Here is a contrast of interests that might be expected as a biological matter. It strikingly emphasizes the wide gulf that separates the two sexes, as regards capacities for various kinds of enthusiasm.

Of course, Boradway is not altogether typical of life in general. It is a center of diversion and the crowds found talking there at night are light-hearted and none too serious-minded. Still, it's in our recreational moments that our real selves—our suppressed or repressed desires—rise to the surface.

Moore found that the two sexes have this in common: Their conversation is—or, at least, was on Broadway—limited almost exclusively to money and business, amusement, persons of the same sex, persons of opposite sex and clothes, buildings and interior decorations. Rather dismaying outlook for the more "serious" topics of life.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

THE MEDICINE CLOSET.

Never put a half-used prescription or a medicine of unknown ingredients in the medicine closet. Throw away any compound left over, as time frequently works dangerous changes in chemicals.

INVALID DISH.

When boiling chicken, take a pint of the broth, season, heat and pour over two eggs that have been slightly beaten. Cook in a double boiler until the mixture thickens, pour into small cups that have been rinsed with cold water and set away to chill. It makes a dish that invalids will like.

AIR THE LINENS.

In damp weather open the door to the linen closet an hour each day.

SAFEGUARDING GLASS.

Cover the shelf where expensive glassware is kept with a linen pad. cut the linen twice the shelf width, hem it all around, double it and lay a sheet of white wadding just the shelf size between.

TAKING UP CARPET.

To take up a carpet, first sweep and wipe it, then remove the tacks and fold one-half upon the other. Sweep the exposed underside with a damp broom, fold again and repeat until the whole carpet is folded into a pile handy for lifting.

IN THE SICK ROOM.

Where a patient has to be moved from one bed to another, have the bed well aired and warmed a little even in summer.

GREASE SPOTS.

If there are grease spots on the wall paper mix fuller's earth to a thin paste with ammonia and let dry over the spots. Brush off the dry paste with a clean stiff brush.

FEATHER BEDS.

Feathers in pillows and feather beds may be freshened by allowing them to get wet in a summer rain and then sunning for a week.

RUSSIA WILL HOLD AGRICULTURAL FAIR TO HELP PEASANT

Ambitious Educational Undertaking to Take Place in Moscow — Scientific Agriculture.

MOSCOW, Sept. 5 (Associated Press) —Russia's most ambitious educational and expositional undertaking since the revolution is scheduled to open the latter part of August at Moscow. It will be an exhibition of agriculture and machinery, with the participation of a number of foreign firms, principally German. Some American harvester machinery is also to be shown.

All of the buildings for the exposition have been newly constructed, their erection constituting the largest building operation in Russia since the war. Including live stock barns there are nearly one hundred structures, mostly of wood, though some are of steel and concrete. Each of the various nations making up the United States of Russia will have its separate building. Some of them, particularly the Turkestan building, a model mosque in stucco, are architectually beautiful. That of the Far East Republic starts as an Eskimo's igloo, ties itself into futuristic architectural knots, and ends up by looking like a ship, it being symbolic of various types of structures encountered from the Polar regions of Siberia to Vladivostok.

Ten thousand workmen have been engaged in the operation since spring, and the site, a splendid bit of rolling ground on the Moscow river, will be green and colorful with growing grain, to be brought to Moscow each five days from the provinces, at the government's expense, to attend the exposition. What amounts to a short course in scientific agriculture will be given these visitors. They will be shown also a new "model village," as contrasted with the old Russian village. In the old village there will be ikons and other religious symbols in the houses. In the new, no ikons, but electric lights.

For foreign visitors and exhibitors some of the downtown hotels are being taken over and remodelled. The foreign exhibits will be entirely separate from the Russian, a special section having been arranged for them.

There will be no "Streets of Cairo" or other amusement features for the visitors at the exposition grounds proper, but adjoining them there is already a large amusement park with the quaint Russian name of "Not Lonesome Gardens."

HIGHWAY PATROL TO CATCH WETS

Introduce a New Policy in Pennsylvania to Catch Bootleggers.

(By S. P. HOLLINGSWORTH)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 5 (United Press) —Failure of other elements to enforce prohibition in Pennsylvania may lead Governor Pinchot to a policy of apprehending bootleggers by means of responsibility of regulating traffic on public highways

A corps of 125 men will be placed on the roads of the state shortly to augment the limited number of state police and help relieve the burdens of law enforcement the constabulary has shouldered since Governor Pinchot assumed the reins of state government

Although the highway patrol has limited powers, as state police they might assume duties such as those of search and seizure as well as arrest

Governor Pinchot finds that the highways are the avenues of crime as well as pleasure and peaceful pursuits To catch the bootlegger, there must be an adequate force on the roads that lead in and out of the state

In the event that his law enforcement program fails because of an inadequately manned police force, it was explained, the highway patrol may assume some of the responsibility of checking the liquor traffic

Plans are being laid now by the governor and his law enforcement officers, the attorney general and the superintendent of state police, to conduct an intensive campaign against bootlegging and crime of every description

"I am pleased with the progress already made, and thoroughly convinced that the crooks and criminals we are fighting are going to lose and lose completely I would be a poor American if I doubted them," Governor Pinchot told the United Press in stating his position on enforcement

"We have made a good start and the state is moving along with us There is much ground yet to be covered, but I have three years and a half left to cover it in," he said

The effort of the governor to make Pennsylvania dry has been slow and tedious It was marked at the very beginning with reverses by the legislature and from elements opposed to drastic measures

Figures compiled by the State Police for the first five months of "dry" enforcement under the Pinchot policy show nearly 2,000 arrests Yet of this number only 241 cases reached the stage of court sentence after going through the process of action by grand juries One hundred of the 241 were fined and others given sentences averaging from two to six months

The first step in drying up the state and the abolition of the saloon obtained from the legislature upon the insistance of Governor Pinchot The boofleggers were next to be dealt with Pinchot said he would run them out of the state This he has found difficult because of the lethargic attitude of the judiciary over which he had no control a factor in encouraging bootlegging that he did not anticipate as the revocation of licenses by the courts was a sure method of control.

Cooperation of law abiding agencies was sought and the assistance of county and local authorities enlisted. The response to this request has been negligible. Support has been promised by the state W. C. T. U. in raising a $250,000 fund for the enforcement of law which was denied by the legislature.

Governor Pinchot maintains that prohibition deserves equal attention with the other laws of the commonwealth and the nation by enforcement agencies. He insisted that the money asked of the assembly for this purpose be placed to his credit for the "enforcement of all laws." He would not permit it to be earmarked for prohibition and thus his appropriation was lost.

NORWAY DISPUTES DENMARK'S CLAIM TO ARCTIC ISLAND.

Greenland Is Bone of Contention Between Two Countries About to Enter a Commercial Treaty.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 5 (Associated Press).—Denmark thought its title to Greenland was without blemish after the United States agreed to waive all claims to the Arctic island as part of the consideration in the purchase of the Danish West Indies. But the interest of Norway in the land which "Eric the Red" discovered has suddenly revided after centuries of inactivity. The controversy between the two Scandinavian countries over the ownership of the east coast of Greenland has become so acute that Denmark now has a commission, headed by former Minister Th. Zahle, traveling over the Arctic island for the purpose of making a report upon which negotiations with Norway may be based.

Many Danes think Norway is opposing Denmark merely for the purpose of holding its claims upon Greenland as a club which can be used in forcing better terms out of Denmark in a new commercial treaty which is to be negotiated in the near future. The chief argument used by Norway is that its fisheries might be affected adversely by recognizing Danish sovereignty over the eastern coast of Greenland.

Small Population

There are only about 12,000 inhabitants in Greenland, and of these only about 300 are Europeans, mostly Danes. The island is chiefly famous as a leaping off place for explorers in search of the North Pole and as the source of icebergs which imperil shipping on the North Atlantic courses. Its trade is a monopoly of the Danish state, which enforces prohibition. The total import and export trade of Greenland is only slightly more than $1,000,000 a year, and has declined since fish fats of various sorts are in less demand.

Norwegian claims upon Greenland date from the explorations of "Eric the Red" and Leif Ericsson in the eleventh century, when the latter of these intrepid Norsemen is supposed to have discovered the American mainland. In the fifteenth century Norway abandoned all communications with Greenland, and later in the eighteenth century Denmark began commercial relations with the island and established its colony there.

Denmark's colony before 1921 was only about the size of New York state, but the entire island over which it now is asserting its control is sixteen times larger The season is so short in summer that even the small amount of tillable land near the coast can produce only potatoes and other vegetables which do not require much heat.

WRIT CLAIMS DAMAGES TO EXTENT OF $150,000

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press). — An echo of recent court proceedings respecting extensive dealings in Hattie Beattie mining stocks was the issuance this morning, on behalf of J. K. Pappasimakes, of a writ claiming $150,000 damages against C. K. Dodds, broker of this city, for alleged defamation of character and conspiracy.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

Smoked and Salt Fish

During the summer months fresh meats pall if used in excess. Salted and smoked meats were prepared years ago especially for hot weather meals and meant much when other meat was not available.

Salted and smoked fish fills quite the same part in the diet, adding variety for persons not dependent on "preserved" foods.

And salted fish has a thirst provoking tang very beneficial to heated bodies.

Salt fish calls to mind salt codfish that we may "detest," or maybe salt mackerel that was so salty we thought we'd "drink the mill-pond dry" before we were over the disaster of the dinner. But in truth, all sorts of delicacies are prepared from these homely salt products. Many of the clever and intriguing hors d'oeuvres that are so expensive in fashionable restaurants gain their piquancy by means of a plebeian salted or smoked fish

Smoked Herring Canapes

Four tablespoons minced herring, 2 hard boiled eggs, 4 slices tomato, 4 round of toast, mayonnaise, parsley.

Choose the small boneless variety of herring. Pour over boiling water and let stand fifteen minutes. Drain and work smooth with a fork, adding olive oil and 2 teaspoons lemon juice to make moist enough to spread.

Cut the toast in rounds about one-fourth inch larger than the tomato slices. Spread with the herring. Cover with a slice of tomato. In the center of the tomato cut out a small place to hold half of a hard boiled egg white. Fill this with mayonnaise.

Rub yolks of eggs through a coarse sieve or ricer and sprinkle on the toast around the tomato. Sprinkle minced parsley lightly over the whole and serve on tiny paper doilies on small plates. This rule is for four canapes. The smoked herring is very piquant and will answer quite as well as much more expensive anchovy paste.

Boiled Salt Mackerel

One salt mackerel, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 lemon, paprika, parsley.

Put the fish in a large pan and cover with cold water. The more water the better. Put flesh side down and use a rack if possible to allow the salt to settle to the bottom of the pan away from the fish. Change the water frequently and let freshen for twenty-four hours. Drain and wipe dry. Oil the bars of the broiler well with oil or unsalted drippings. The salt in butter makes the fish stick.

Broil the flesh side first. Brown lightly. Turn and broil the skin side. Rinse quickly in boiling water. Put on a hot platter, spread with butter and garnish with sections of lemon and sprigs of parsley. Sprinkle with paprika after spreading with butter.

A "left-over" of broiled mackerel makes a delicious touch in a tomato salad or can be served on toast with scrambled eggs.

Smoked Whitefish on Toast

Pour boiling water over fish and let stand thirty minutes. Drain. Remove skin and bones, then flake. Put a layer of the flaked fish on triangles of toast. Add a layer of hot boiled rice and pour over the whole the following sauce:

One-half cup butter, yolks 3 eggs, ½ lemon, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon paprika, ¼ cup hot water.

Put butter in top of double boiler and beat until creamy. Add yolks of eggs, one at a time, beating each one till mixture is thick and creamy. Gradually beat in juice of lemon, salt and paprika. Put over hot water and slowly stir in hot water. Stir constantly until smooth and the consistency of thick cream. Remove from fire and beat well before serving.

This is an attractive dish for Sunday night supper or an informal luncheon.

QUIZ CORNER

CANADA'S ASSESSMENT VALUATION.

Q.—What is Canada's assessment valuation?

A.—Canada's assessment valuation in 1921 on land and buildings totalled nearly seven billions, an increase of a billion in two years. In addition, personal property represented $46,220,977, incomes $125,149,271 and other taxable valuation $204,601,721, or a grand total of $7,350,000,000.

CANADA'S API-CULTURE.

Q.—What is the value and extent of Canada's api-culture?

A.—Canada's api-culture shows progress, but as imports greatly exceed exports (or $92,543 contrasted with $12,840) it shows the opportunities in bee-keeping.

Only a Book of Travels Yet a Masterpiece

(By JAMES W. DEAN)

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.— The finest prose that has come to this reviewer's attention in several months is that contained in "Travels and Sketches," a translation from the Danish of Frederik Poulsen. The original is undoubtedly one of the masterpieces of Danish literature, for the translation must fall short of the quality of the original as all translations do.

The sketches take the reader through the domain of the author's experiences, starting with the country of his childhood, Jutland, and traversing Germany, Poland, Italy, Greece, Asia Minor and other countries and ending with an exploration of the mind and soul of his little daughter.

Poulsen has the happy faculty of visualizing places and persons without describing them: or rather, he fits his descriptions into actions.

* * *

Most interesting of Christopher Morley's sketches in "Powder of Sympathy" was the one in which he describes the wine lists at Oxford. Most interesting of Poulson's sketches is his account of student life in Germany.

Meetings of school clubs were always the occasion of extensive beer-drinking bouts, all drinking at the command of the president who whacked on a table with his saber for attention.

One evening, Poulson relates, "I had scarcely got my glass filled before the word of command sounded afresh. The Salamander, this remarkable German drinking ceremony, which one must have seen to understand its effects, now began. 'Ad exercitium salamandri estisne præparati?' (Are you ready for the exercise of the Salamander?) was the question. 'Sumus' (Yes we are), came from 50 throats. 'One, two, three, drink,' sounded again, half in German, half in Latin. The glasses were emptied in vigorous gulps. 'One, two three One, two, three One, two three' An uproar was made with empty glasses on the surface of the table."

Josephson, a law student, had furnished the Munich beer for that particular occasion. He had never taken an examination because someone had impugned his beer capacity and he had devoted his attention to kegs and steins, rather than tomes and quizzes.

He became involved in a brawl with members of another fraternal beer-drinking fraternity and received 12 challenges to duel. The successive duels and his "beer-heart" resulted in his death. The entire student body attended the funeral in full-dress uniform of their various orders.

"Probably 800 were present" Poulson writes, "and it was an imposing sight when after the funeral we assembled in the square and sang the first verse of 'Gaudeamus igitur.' Tyen in close array we marched into the Kaiserhalle to perform a mourning Salamander over our student comrade. The beer-pots stood ready crowned with foam. But it made a strange impression that the waiters demanded pay for beer and glass together. Then they retired and from the platform sounded many rapiers, which the presidents of all the clubs simultaneously clashed on the table.

"'Silence for a mourning Salaman, der' We all stood 800 young men each with his hand on the handle of the glass. Now the well-known words of command sounded and the usual ceremonies were performed in silence. But when the last command, 'One, two, three' rang out over the big room, we all lifted our empty glasses high over our heads and as if with a single motion dashed them on the floor.

"Never have I heard anything like the thunder when the 800 beer glasses were smashed. It was a salute in the spirit of the deceased."

A pretty custom, one might say, but an ancient one.ffi

In Italy Poulsen fell in with a major who had been victor in a duel occasioned by the slur of an Austrian officer and became a party to the victor's reception, being acclaimed simply because he was in the company of the hero. Almost any newspaper reporter can tell you of some similar experiences when some public gathering looked upon him as a personage of importance simply because he was traveling in the company of a president, general, baseball player or movie player. Some of those newspaper men may even tell you that they felt important because of the same circumstance.

* * *

The Italian officer talked of marriage. "There is no foundation on which to build marriage, more uncertain than love," he said.

"On what should it be built?" Poulson asked.

"On the sympathy of families. What a wretched foundation it is for a common life lasting for years to like to kiss a young girl of 18 when you are only 22 No, a strong and deep sympathy between two families who have known one another and intermarried for generations, and the mutual examination of the families to see whether the young people are suited to one another; that, look you, is something to build upon."

An Italian flapper only a few months removed from Italy would laugh at that. And so would an American grandmother.

* * *

Most interesting of all the people Poulson met in his travels was a Russian princess living in Italy. She was so big that children called after her as she drove down the street, "Look, there goes the mother of the world?"

And she acted as mother to many. She heard the confessions of women with unfaithful husbands, mothers who had lost their little ones, young blades who had lost their all in gambling. Her teas were attended by people of many nations and many ranks. She herself never tasted food or drank at these teas, The women guests brought her little bags. She confided to Poulsen that they contained hay and that she ate the hay

* * *

Poulsen addressed some postcards and took them to the post-office at Constantinople. They showed a Turk and several Turkish women in native costume. The postmaster rejected them.

"The persons represented are not Turks," he said. "They are Armenians or Jews or others of that sort. No Turk, still less any Tuskish lady, would condescend to act as models for such postcards. Nor can we therefore, permit them to be scattered over the world with the official stamp of our post."

And there's censorship for you.

* * *

And here is another form of censorship, American censorship.

Thomas Seltzer was recently indicted by a New York supreme court grand jury on a charge of circulating improper literature for publishing "A Young Girl's Diary" and "Casanova's Home coming." Both are by Arthur Schnitzler.

Of the indictment, Seltzer says, "Intolerance has scored another base hit—it doubtless will prove a foul."

He says that the Young Women's Christian Association the Camp Fire Girls, Heywood Broun and others have approved "A Young Girl's Diary."

It is hardly to be expected that Broun, in his capacity as a sport writer, will approve of anyone getting a base hit on a foul.

REST ROOM FOR WOMEN AT CAMPBELLFORD FAIR

An Improvement That Will Be Appreciated By Lady Visitors — High School Attendance Large

HELP WARKWORTH.

CAMPBELLFORD, September 5. — A number of workmen are employed at the Fair Grounds putting up a rest room for the benefit of the ladies attending the fair. The building, 24 x 16 feet in extent, is situated on the far side of the grounds from the entrance, along the race track. It will be well lighted and the occupants will have an excellent view from the windows of what is going on during the fair. It will be fitted up by the ladies interested in the fair with conveniences for the care of young children. Such a building has long been needed and it has finally been secured largely through the efforts of T. J. Hoskin, a member of the Board of Directors.

It is likely that the Baby Show, for which the Examiner offers two cash prizes of $3 and $2 each, will be held in the new rest room.

Helping Out Warkworth.

Residents of Campbelford have been generous in the matter of donating special prizes for competition at the Warkworth Fair. T. S. Baker offers $5 for the best gentleman turnout; Pat. Kelly $5 for the best herd of Ayrshires; Charles H. Davidson, $5, for the best herd of Jerseys; the Trent Valley Creamery $5 for the best dairy herd of any breed; D. W. Douglas, for the best sow and litter under 8 weeks; Linton Bros., $2, for the best pair of fowl, Asiatic class; T. S. Tait & Son $2, for the best pair of fowl of the Mediterranean class other than white Leghorns; Arnold Joyce, $2, for the best pair of White Wyandottes; A. J. Meyers, manager Cereal Co., one bag of Reindeer flour for the best display of home cooking. The Peterboro Examiner also offers a special cash prize of $5 for the best heavy draft team.

Schools Reopen.

The schools re-opened on Tuesday morning after the summer vacation, and the number of pupils enrolled at both High and Public schools was unusually heavy for the first day.

In the High School 68 new pupils were registered, these coming from Norwood, Hastings and other outside points, but it is expected that the number will be greatly increased before the end of the week, as all those who propose to attend the classes never present themselves on the opening day. The teaching staff in the High School now consists of six teachers ,the only new member being Earl Stephens himself a distinguished graduate of the institution, and who has had successful experience as a teacher in Toronto and other places . Mr. Stephens will specialize in mathematics, a department that has been the only weak point in the instruction in the past. Principal Greig believes that the teaching staff is now complete, and looks forward to a successful year's work. The only drawback is the crowded condition of the building.

There are two new teachers in the Public School, Miss Evelyn Irwin, and Miss Kathleen Connor, who will teach in the second and third grade respectively. Both young ladies secured their non-professional training in the local schools.Miss Irwin is a beginner in the profession, but Miss Connor has had experience as a teacher in other places.

Boy Breaks Arm.

Clifford, the 8 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hunt, of Bridge St., suffered a compound fracture of his right arm, when he fell from his father's wagon on Monday evening. Dr. H. B. Longmore reduced the fracture and the little fellow is now running around again with his arm in a sling.

Death of Mrs. Haig.

Mrs. Thomas Haig died at her home on Booth street, Monday, after a long illness, due to internal cancer. The husband of the deceased, who had been a helpless invalid for 21 years, passed away 9 months ago, and on the day of his funeral Mrs. Haig took to her bed. The funeral was held on Tuesday to Burnbrae. Two daughters survive, Ora, at home, and Mrs. James Walters of town.

Home from Trent Bridge.

A. H. McKeel and family returned on Monday from their summer cottage at Trent River, to their home here. Mr. McKeel says that a contract has been let to John Garneau of Trent River to dig the foundation for the ornamental iron fence to be erected around the soldier's monument recently unveiled at that place. The work of excavation has begun, and the cement foundation will soon be put in but the fence will not be put up until next spring. The plot within the enclosure will be sodded, planted with flowers and maintained by a paid caretaker as one of the beauty spots on the Trent Canal. Canal.

So much publicity has been given to this monument that almost every day since the unveiling it has been visited by one or more picnic parties. It is now proposed to erect a pavilion for the accommodation of visitors who are anxious to see what one small community has done to honour the memory of its one hero who gave his life for the Empire.

Campbellford Juvenile Athletics.

Six of Campellford's young men played with the Juvenile Lacrosse Team of Hastings this season: Jack Cowell, Jack Archer, Perry Sanders, Sam Flint, J. W. White and Victor Cochrane. It is expected that these players will now receive some recogniton for their services.

Big Shipment of Cheese.

The 740 boxes of cheese that were sold on the local board on Saturday were shipped yesterday to Belleville. This represented a total of 6,600 lbs., which at 23¼ cents, the price paid, means that the patrons of the factories interested, will receive $15,-484.50 for the output of two weeks.

The patrons of the Empire factory alone, which sold 121 boxes, will be paid $2,521.92.

PRESERVE PEACE BETWEEN NATIONS

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press.) — Addressing an assembly which included the Prime Minister of the Dominion, the members of his Cabinet and the leaders in Judiciary and the Bar of Canada, Charles Evans Hughes, United States, Secretary of State last evening outlined a plan whereby permanent international tribunal might be set up to which all matters in dispute between the United States and Canada might be referred.

Mr. Hughes stated, however, that he was not speaking officially in outlining his plan. He referred to the success which had attended work of International Waterways Commission and proposed that a tribunal composed of leading men appointed by Canada and the United States in equal numbers might be set up. To this tribunal would be automatically referred all matters in question between the two countries.

Tribute was paid to Mr. Hughes by Lord Birkenhead earlier in the day. Accepting honorary membership in the Association, His Lordship said he wished to refer to the "incomoprably valuable work which was done by Mr. Hughes when he assembled the historic conference at Washington to limit the armaments of the nations. The only hope of world peace lies in that complete revival and resuscitation of the University of International Law, without which we shall never attain permanent or real civilization."

Red Cross officials have expressed the hope that the total would be quickly subscribed, and pointed out that the need for quick relief made it impracticable to attempt collection of any but cash contributions. Meanwhile the organization has placed an advance relief fund at the immediate disposal of United States' diplomatic and consular officers in the stricken area.

Interesting Address in St. Mary's Church Last Evening — Sermon for Young People.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept 5.—"As for me and my house we will serve the Lord," was the passage of Scripture selected by Rev. Father McCandish at St. Mary's Church, last night and from this text he preached a discourse filled with counsel to the young and old, to the married and single among his hearers.

Rev. Father McCandish and O'Brien of the Redemptorist Order, are conducting a mission at this church, the special services beginning last Sunday and to continue for a week. Every evening the large edifice is filled; people of other denominations also being in attendance Both visiting clergymen are eloquent speakers and their enunciation is so clear that they have no difficulty in making themselves heard in all parts of the church .

The sermon of Rev. Father McCandish last night was an eloquent appeal for the sanctity of the home and the marriage relation, which he claimed no power, lay or clerical, on earth could dissolve, and he also advised young people contemplating matrimony to pray for Divine guidance in the choice of a life partner.

The familiar legend, "Be it ever so humble there is no place like home," which we see on the walls of so many households, may have different meanings. Some homes are so many heavens on earth, while others are the reverse. The difference was due to the fact that in the one case the husband and wife keep before their minds that they are in this life preparing for a greater union in God's Holy Church.

Home making does not begin on the marriage day, but long before that time. Unhappiness in married life dates back to the days of company keeping or courtship. Too many of our young people are not guided by prayer in the choices they make of life companions. The young man who comes to the parting of the ways, who feels himself called to the marriage state should pray that he select the companion whom the Lord has designed for him. That companion is inseparable for life, because the Catholic Church recognizes no such thing as divorce. What God has joined together, no bishop or priest, no court, no power on earth can put asunder none but God Himself can dissolve the marriage tie. The Catholic Church never has and never will sanction divorce. The church has seen whole nations robbed of the faith rather than consent to the solution of the marriage tie. The extent to which the church will go in this regard is to agree to separation and that only for certain reasons. For example, if the husband is a drunkard and the wife's life is in danger, or if husband or wife prevents the other from practising his or her religion for in some cases it is the wife who is at fault.

The speaker referred to the prevalence of divorce in the United States when 1921 out of one million marriages there were over twelve thousands dissolution or about one in eight. In some states there was one divorce for ever two marriages. In Canada last year there were 554 divorces and why one of these had been granted in Catholic Quebec.

Cause of Unhappiness

The unhappiness in some homes is caused by the manner of living which bring down God's maledictions. Sins committed in the days of company keeping are visited upon the heads of the people after their marriage. The young man looking for a wife should not be carried away by a face that is fair. A young woman should look further than the way in which a man dresses. What is desirable in a man who though poor is of noble character, who is not afraid to work and who is true to the faith. On the other hand a man should not lose his head over a coating of paint or a sprinkling of powder.

Opposed To Long Engagements.

Rev. Father McCandish is opposed to long engagements. If a young man cannot find out in six months, or in a year at most whether the young woman with whom he is keeping company is the proper mate for him, then he has not brains enough to get married. Why then prolong the courtship for two, four or five years. He has never heard of engagements that lasted 15 years, long enough to permit the parties to celebrate the crystal anniversary of courtship.

Mixed Marriages.

It is not bigotry or prejudice which causes the Catholic church to look with disfavor on mixed marriages. The reason is that the Church believer that married people of different faith cannot be truly happy. If he were addressing non-catholics he would advise his hearers not to marry outside of their religion. Marriage is a sacrament—it was raised to that status by Christ while on earth the Church has a perfect right to tell its children whom it can and cannot marry.

Parents, said the speaker, who fail to keep an eye on the conduct of their children in the days of the latter's courtship have a great deal to answer for to God.

Advice to Married People.

Husbands and wives owe each other love and affection. They should be lovers all their days. The tenderness of courtship should be continued. They should study each others charcter wants and should love each other even as Jesus Christ loved the Church. They should not be afraid to correct each other but not by nagging or fault finding. You can lead a man but you cannot drive him as most of the married women in the audience had probably found out. If however, a woman is diplomatic she can twist a man around her finger. But neither men or women are angels and husband and wives should not look for angelic virtues in each other.

Rev. Father McCullough admonished his hearers to support the separate schools so that their children might receive religious as well as secular training. The public schools, he said, have come to realize that the teaching of some form of religion to the rising generation is essential.

Personal.

Miss Ruth Terry of Tweed came to town to visit her father, Charles Terry who is employed by the Campbellford Cloth Company. She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs Jas Black and Mr. and Mrs. Davidson.

ADVENTUROUS TRIP ON LITTLE KNOWN NORTHERN RIVERS.

Local Indians Served As Guides to U. S. Visitors to Hudson Bay Country.

Mr. Alfred McCue of Chemong Indian Village, has returned after an adventurous trip of 7 weeks in the Hudson Bay country. He was principal guide for Mr. James A. Green of Cincinnati, this being his twenty sixth year with this man. The other guides were Bill Smoke and Joe Whetung, Jr., and with Mr. Green of Chicago and Prof. Joseph C. Creen of Princeton University. The party put their canoes in the waters at Ombabika on the Grand Trunk Pacific and by a four days trip reached the Ogoki River.

Only Travelled Once.

Only once before as far as in known has a white man descended the Ogoki, that when a surveyor party made the trip. The Ogoki is a wild and untamed river, full of dangerous rapids and water falls. It flows into the Albany river and there at its mouth is situated the Ogiki Post of the Hudson Bay company. From here the trip was to the forks of the Albany, then up the English river to Mama Matawa, translation in the swampy Cree language "Mother of Waters," where there are Hudson Bay and Revillon Co. Posts. The return to the rail road was up the Kenogami and Pagwa rivers, streams with very swift currents many rapids and much bad going so that up stream navigation was slow and hard work.

Many Moose.

Almost every day the party saw Moose eating the soft grass that grows on the bottom of the rivers and lakes and of course at the Posts they met the swampy Cree Indians gathered in large numbers outfitting for the fall hunt. It was a trip of excitement. The wild rapids afford thrills to last a life time and there was rain every day for the last eighteen days of the trip. But all the party reached civilization sound and well.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI FIRM IN RESOLVE

ROME, Sept. 5.— (Canadian Press.)— In an energetic statement to members of his cabinet yesterday, Premier Mussolini further emphasized the determination not to recede from his stand in the dispute with Greece. He preferred to withdraw from the League of Nations than to allow what he considered illegal interference in Italy's right to protect her honor.

He stigmatized in strong words the attitude of British newspapers which had adversely criticized his stand on the controversy.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond, (Terry) lovely and unbelievably innocent is imperson ating her beautiful half sister.

Juliet Divine, known as the Million Dollar Doll—whose sketchy career is unknown to Terry.

Miles Sheridan, Terry's 'Dream Prince' furnished the money for her convent education when she was a child. His wife is making him wretched with her infidelity and in order to facilitate her obtaining a divorce Miles offers the Million Dollar Doll $20 000 to take a yacht trip with him stipulat ing that he will not "trouble" the girl. This he knows will give his wife sufficient grounds for divorce. Juliet is unable to take the trip herself but working on her little sister's gratitude to Miles she per suades Terry to go in her place. Terry is an exquisite counterpart of her sister.

Betty Sheridan, Miles' wife is deeply in love with

Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek who does not know of Terry's relationship to quiet is in love with the younger girl.

Poor little Terry unaware of her sister's reputation and how she must ap pear in the eyes of the world starts the voyage with Miles who does not reco g nize in her the little girl he befriended so long ago. Mr. Harkness his servant is sternly disapproving of "The Million Dollar Doll."

Terry refuses the $10 000 which Miles sends her by Mrs. Harkness.

CHAPTER XXXII

Too Late For Tantrums

Mrs. Harkness hated Betty Sheridan. She would have liked to wring her neck and would stoically have gone to the chair for it.

When Mr. Miles had told her that, if she was too virtuous to take care of Miss Divine, he'd have to let her bring a strange maid on board, Harky agreed to do everything necessary with out-ward politeness and respect. It was only when she broke down and wept a little because of the trouble come upon her own dear boy, and the bitter way he was taking to end it, that he comforted her in one respect.

He hadn't, he assured her, the slight est personal interest in Miss Divine, and didn't intend to bother himself with the girl except in port, when a certain part had to be played in public, to make the whole thing worth while.

The next thing that had happened, was a call made on board "Silverwood" by Mr. Phillips of whom Mrs. Harkness secretly disapproved, regarding him as a worldly cynical man, who had no good influence over Mr. Miles.

He had come nosing around had sug gested the right cabin for Miss Divine and had brought a parcel of novels which Harky had overheard him say that "her sort was sure to like."

He had learned that she prided her self on a knowledge of French. Here was her chance to air it These books would keep the young person from being so bored that she'd get into mis chief.

Then, if not before, Harky had realiz-ed to the full, and bitterly, the sort of woman she had to "maid." A "Show Girl" who'd name herself "Divine" and wear tights on beaches and in theatres must be pretty bad but one who could only be kept out of mischief by having a lot of low French novels to read was a wicked wench.

Not that Mrs. Harkness could read a word of French herself but she hadn't lived to be sixty years old for nothing. She knew that all French people (before the war though of course not since) and all French novels before and after and forever were preculiarly debased.

Now here was the girl throwing these books on the floor disclaiming them and refusing to accept what could only be called her wages

Mrs. Harkness would have liked to say something but she didn't know what to say. She had under her sternly conscientious skin and thicker outer coverings the heart of a universal mother. She loved and yearned over lonely young creatures and could hard ly resist them when they were in sorrow.

This was a bad, very bad girl; shame less Yes that was the word to use for her but to see those slim little shoulders —shoulders of a child almost—shake with sobs and to think of the wretch's loneliness with no one to like her on board made the old woman's heart "turn in her breast."

She went out quickly lest she should be weak enough to waste some word of sympathy on the worthless one; and bursting with her news she made straight for her master's quarters—the suite on the deck above which lately he had taken for his own.

"You told me there'd be no answer at present to the message you sent Mr. Miles" the old woman reminded him when she had knocked. "But the young Madam who prefers me to call her 'Miss' wished me to wait; and there is an answer after all."

"Oh very well" returned Sheridan indifferently. "Put it on the desk Harky." He scarcely looked up for he was engaged in reading a formidable heap of letters and telegrams which had arrived for him just before "Silver wood" sailed.

When Mrs. Harkness began piling a number of French novels on his desk however his attention was attracted. "For Heaven's sake what are all those?" he wanted to know.

"The Madam said they were 'dis gusting' and threw them on the floor" Harky informed her master with relish.

He looked surprised then burst out laughing. "I daresay she's right" he said. "But I shan't be able to judge for myself for I've no intention of read ing them. Is that all the 'answer's he sent?"

"Indeed and it is not all Mr. Miles" replied the old woman. "Here is the rest." And she laid on the desk the ten one thousand dollar notes which Sheri dan had enclosed in the envelope ad dressed to Miss Divine.

"Madam sent these back. At least she throwed them on the floor with the French books. And the message was she won't take your money."

"The devil she won't" ejaculated Sheridan. He stared at the notes be wildered. "Did she say she'd expected more—or—anything of that kind?"

"Not another word did she speak at all sir. When she'd throwed the books and the money on the floor the next thing it was herself she throwed—on the bed and with that she burst out cry ing."

"Doesn't like her quarters perhaps" mumbled Sheridan. "Or she's annoyed because she doesn't find a noisy lot of people to jazz with. All the same she ought to have understood what she was in for.

"Well it's too late for tantrums now We're off and away. But I sup pose I must write to her again sooner or later—or see her dashed bore"

THE DOLL HOUSE

LONDON, Sept. 5. — (Canadian Press).—Very little has appeared in the newspapers about the doll's house which is to be a gift to Queen Mary, and which is to be shown at the British Empire exhibition at Wembley next year. The idea of the doll's house was conceived by Sir Edwin Lutyens, noted architect and artist, who designed the house and whose fertile brain has devised thee many groups of bright ideas which have taken shape in it. The Princess Marie Louise has devoted herself to the correspondence and organization by which the furnishing of the doll's house has been completed.

It is a real gift house. Everything from the tiny wine bottles in the cellars to the wonderful guides up which the walls of the house slide into space leaving all the rooms free for inspection, is given free by the expert manufactur-ers, by artists, authors, artificers and craftsmen of all kinds. It is intended to preserve for posterity in a delightful form the domestic life of the present period in its most finished manifestation and great care and thought and inven-tion have been lavished upon it. It is become the peculiar interest of certain members of the royal family, and it has been more talked of in these circles than any event except a coronation.

The queen's doll's house is a building fashioned in scale of an inch to the foot, and all its contents are worked exactly to that ratio. Its height is a little over eight feet, and beneath it is a base co structed with four drawers holding:

A garden with flowers and shrubs exquisitely made in metal and other material;

A garage holding a number of motor cars;

Dolls exactly in scale with the build-ing and dressed in appropriate clothes so that they can be placed at once in the particular room in the particular atti-tudes desired; and

A wine cellar stooked with wine, the champagne bottles being about half an inch in length.

The walls of the house have been devised and fitted on a system which allows them to be instantly raised to the roof and put back again. The building is a modern renaissance structure of the refined country house type that Sir Edward Lutyens has brought into country life. The ceilings, fireplaces, doors, windows, and panelling are all delicately designed in Sir Edwin's famous manner.

The lower rooms and staircase have ceilings painted by William Nicholson, painter. The ceilings of the other floors are painted by Charles Sims, Edward Dulac, William Walcott, archi-tect, painter and etcher, and other artists. The grand staircase is a precious work in jade and other rare materials. Sir John Lavery has painted miniature full-lengths of King Edward and Queen Alexandra which, with frame, are about eight inches high. A large number of artists have contributed pictures and other decorations, most of the academy and many of the independents being represented by their very smallest works.

Etchings the size of a postage stamp are preserved in the library in little folios. Everything one could think of and many one could not can be found in these wonderful rooms. Electric fittings, fires, fans, telephones, typewriters, pi-anos, playing cards—but the list is end-less. There are two bathrooms, the king's being decorated with political cartoons. All the taps and everything work as in a real palace. Electric light, telephones and water are all laid on.

Then the library rejoices in books by famous authors that can be seen no-where else. E. V. Lucas, editor of Punch, has written a book on the whole duty of dolls, with a word on each page, and Sir James Barrie, and many other notable writers have not thought it un-just to themselves to write special books for this Lilliputian library. The kitchen rivals the library in its variety and novelty, and a whole dinner could be cooked in its delicate vessels for a doll's party of twenty or so.

Perhaps the most impressive thing of all is the thoroughness shown in all the minute details of the house, particu-larly in the escutcheons, and keys and metal fittings, which are of a workman-ship that Solomon might have envied. It is impossible to compute the value of Queen Mary's doll's house, which is to be shown for charity at the Imperial Exhibition, and will probably bring in harvests for charities for generations to come. But at the lowest possible figure £50,000 might be taken as a minimum.

One of the pictures which is to grace the doll's house is a portrait of little Doris Hyde, of Toronto, who, in a Toronto newspaper competition in 1922, with several thousand other Canadian children, was adjudged Canada's love-liest child.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

THE BATH.

Bathing is the one wet agent not liable to prosecution at present. It is the best preventive medicine, with sunlight and pure air close seconds.

The primary value of exercise is not to build muscle, to become a Samson or a Sullivan. Its value lies in the fact that it produces an healthy sweat that opens the pores and ducts, cleanses the covering of our body of dust and possible germs and gives the glow of health, prior to the bath.

Don't think that bathing every day is a summer affair. It should be a part of your daily program the year round. In fact, the bath does more good during the winter months than any other season. Severe cold and chafing heavy garments frequently cause irritations and rashes of the skin. Daily baths and simple lotion applications will make your skin be-have under these trying conditions.

A cold spray or shower, alterna-ting with hot water, is an excellent tonic to provide what are called gymnastics of the skin.

For those who have strong con-stitutions and vigorous health, the morning cold plunge is advocated. In taking a very hot bath, to relieve fatigue, do not have it last for more than two or three minutes. Hot foot baths also afford great relief to tired feet after a hard day. Relaxation that comes with the neutral bath has a good sleep-producing effect. This neutral bath should be about 97 or 98 degrees in temperature, about body heat. Do not remain in the bath longer than 10 or 15 min-utes to get the best results.

SELLS OIL STOCKS INVITES WOMEN IN

No Reason Why Finan-ciers Should Be All Men, Pioneer Woman Says.

By MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK, Sept. 5. —Instead of succumbing to the chatter of the oil stock salesmen, why not take their line from them and sell stock yourself?

Lillian Foley, formerly of Kansas City, Mo., thought this over, with the result that she is perhaps the first oil stock saleswoman in the coun-try. Not only that, as representative for the New York Petroleum Exchange, she's trying to interest her own sex in the thrill of owning seats on the ex-change, in the joy of being oil brokers and the glittering opportunity of earn-ing a million, rather than inheriting or marrying it.

"My favorite thoroughfare is Wall Street," she confesses, "and my favorite topic of conversation is finance." Then she added some of her own ideas on women in business.

"I believe the reason most women don't hitch their wagons high enough in the business world is because they have not sufficient vision," she opines.

Not Housekeeping

"Too many women think of business just as housekeeping on a big scale, or an institution where the big plums go to men because of some peculiar fitness on their part.

"It's true the financiers and big business heads of this day are men, but there's no reason why it should be so, except that women have thought in terms of salaries instead of millions."

Miss Foley is disarmingly pretty and intensely feminine in appearance, but on the subject of oil you forget these at-tributes and marvel at the number of facts she has collected and the research she has done.

"Oil stock will be as safe as any stock when all are listed on the exchange," she prophesies.

Women and Money

"Women are supposed to be nat-urally conservative about spending money, to be bad gamblers and poor losers," she admits. "This is natural enough when you consider they have always been dependent upon some man for their money.

"But, today, particularly in the large cities, women have been handling their own purses for a generation or more, and have become financially in-dependent—they make the best type of investors, for they know what they are doing."

"Come on in, the water's fine," she advises all women who feel the Wall Street urge.

HORSE LORE.

What we call a "nightmare" got its name because our ancestors believed it was a visit from the Saxon demon, Mare, a vampire supposed to sit on the chest of its sleeping victim, half strangl-ing him and causing him fearful visions.

This bit of information is from a new book, "The Horse in Magic and Myth." M. Oldfield Howey wrote it.

In 1923 we know that a nightmare is a psychic-nervous condition, its cause ranging all the way from excessive glandular activity by eating combina-tions like oranges and buttermilk.

Superstition dies hard. But it is dying.

The reason Anglo-Saxons rarely eat horse flesh is because this article of diet originally was forbidden by their re-ligion, according to Howey. The horse was especially protected on account of its value in battle.

The theory or system apparently must have been to eat only the animals that could not be rushed away from an oncoming invader, and to keep the horse for flight or pursuit, for there is no logical reason why we shouldn't eat horse flesh as much as bee f or lamb or pork—except for the taste.

Food prejudices are queer. Only an epicure or an oriental can eat snails or grasshoppers without shuddering.

The wooden hobby-horse, delight of many generations of children, was used a lot for sport by grown-ups in the Middle Ages, Howey says. Then the Puritans—blue law enforcers of their day—condemned the hobby-horse as "dangerous to the soul." It came back into favor later, but only for children.

Times are changing, and Willie is de-veloping an early tendency to snort when Santa Claus brings him a hobby-horse instead of a child-size auto.

An editor can't help but feel friendly toward the horse. An auto is an unro-mantic contraption and rarely does any-thing unusual enough to entitle it to a display in the day's news. The auto drivers and passengers furnish plenty o gossip, but not in their iron steed.

The horse, however, can always be counted on to perform in a newsy fashion at some or other in his life. Why, just the other day, a Lousiana woman complained to the district attorney that a horse had looked so attractive to her husband, he'd traded their 14-month-old son for the nag.

Gray squirrel is to be used with mole skin on many of the new fall coats and this contrast of soft shad-ings is bound to be becoming to those who prefer the softening in-fluence of furs.

FISH HISTORY

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—(By Canadian Press).—Records of the life history of fish by their scales kept in the fisheries branch of the Department of Marine and Fisheries have now been supple-mented by records secured through the aid of silver tags attached to certain numbers of the fish upon their release after their eggs have been taken at the hatcheries. The expert can not only tell the age of a salmon by its scales, but the markings reveal the number of times it has spawned and at what period; how long it remained in fresh water before first going to sea, and the length of the subsequent periods spent in salt and in fresh water.

After the salmon have been taken and had their eggs extracted, the depart-ment, inquisitive as to their further journeyings, attach a silver tag to the dorsal fin of a certain proportion, before releasing them. Another scheme is to remove the adipose fin. This is ap-parently of little value to the fish, and its removal causes it very little discom-fort. Whenever such a fish is caught the department rewards the fisherman by the payment of $1 for the return of the tag or of the scar and some of the fish's scales with information as to where caught, its weight and condition. The object is to obtain definite information as to frequency in spawning, and also, of course, to find out the salmon's favored haunts.

A marked salmon released in the Restigouche river in May, 1921, weigh-ed 21½ lbs.; caught re-ascending the river in June of the next year, it weighed 12 lbs.

Another increased from 14 lbs. to 30 lbs. between the time of its release in October, in the Kedgwick river, New Brunswick, and its being caught at Deeside on the Restigouche, the follow-ing June.

Between September and October of the following year a salmon increased its weight from 8 to 16 lbs., in wanderings between its release in the York river, Gaspe, and its recapture in the harbor the following July.

One tagged at Tadousac in Novem-ber, weighing 11 lbs turned up at Grand Anse the following June having increased to 23 lbs

A marked salmon in the Kedgwick river has been taken in Placentia Bay, Newfoundland, and one released at South Esk in the Miramichi river was captured at Bonne Espe-rance New-foundland. Captures have also been made of marked salmon in Stephenville, Newfoundland, which had been released in the Margaree river.

FASCINATING WORK

Ottawa Sept. 5.— (By Canadian Press).—The continued exploration of Nakimu caves, situated in the Glacier Canadian National Park, British Colum-bia, is one of the fascinating activities of the Dominion Parks branch this sum-mer. New caves are being discovered, and increased facilities evolved for tourists to examine them. Although the caves were discovered in 1904 by Charles H. Deutschman of Revel-stoke it is within the next few years that these awesome, or as they have even been described, gruesome wonders, wrought during a succession of glacial periods, assisted perhaps by seismic dis-turbance will come to be known to any large number of tourists. A train jour-ney has to be made, succeeded by a seven-mile hike on foot or by pony in order to "take in" the Nakimu caves.

Although ladders have been set for scaling precipitous descents, and ropes are arranged to aid the traveller to fol-low the guide, the tour of the caverns remains a most thrilling adventure. There is almost continuous darkness and the vibrating roar of subterranean waterfalls to keep the adventurer's nerves at a tension. One dimly sees the masses of water hurtling between the black walls while overhead the marble is carved into a variety of fantastic shapes. A. O. Wheeler, secretary of the Canadian Alpine Club, said after a descent into these shadowy regions that the effect was so eerie as to make it easy to imagine Dante seated upon one of the spurs of rock deriving impressions for his inferno.

At other points in the vast series of caverns there are gleaming ice forma tions, and there is also the "Dropping Cave" where water drops upon one from all points of the roof. "The Witches' Ballroom," the "Terror," the "Marble-way," the "Pit," the "Art Gallery," the "Turbine," the "Old Mill," the 'Gimlet," and the 'Judgment Hall," are other significant names bestowed upon lofty halls and long passages, places dangerous or delightful varying from the grotesque and awe-inspiring to the artistically pleasing. The interior of the Judgment Hall, for example, is described by Mr Wheeler as being covered in many places by white calcite, presenting most attractive patterns and beds of florescent formations. There is a "White Grotto" whose corbonate decorations are said to be of great beauty and delicacy; and there is the "Bridal Chamber," so called because of the purity of its lime draperies and the general beauty of its floral decorations. And, in the opinion of parks branch officials, much is yet to be discovered.

Save the mosquito netting. Veils will be worn this fall.

There will be many new dance steps this fall. Only a few will be steps in the right direction.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

MISTER GALLOP.

"I hope you'll like the West," said Mister Gallop.

"Well, well, well! I'm glad to see you," said Mister Gallop, stepping out of his cave in the Red Rock.

"And we're glad to see you, too!" said Nancy and Nick, climbing down off their ponies and shaking hands with the cowboy fairy.

"I hope you'll like the west," said Mister Gallop.

"Why, we love it already," de-clared Nick, looking around. The ponies had brought the Twins up a mountain path no wider than a din-ner plate to Mister Gallop's cave. And from where they were standing they could look straight down, miles below, it seemed, where the prairie spread out in a great flat ocean of land.

"My, oh, my, but the world's big!" sighed Nancy.

"Yes, 'tis," agreed Mister Gallop, "but not big enough for some folks. That's my job out here, a sort of warden or ranger, or whatever you call people who keep order."

"There can't be many people liv-ing here!" remarked Nick in sur-prise. "I don't see a house."

"Sh!" Mister Gallop put his fin-ger over his lips. "Right over there," he whispered, pointing to a sharp rock with a dark place un-derneath, "lives Mrs. Bear and her two children. Right beyond those pine trees live Mr. and Mrs. Ante-lope. Up on top of that bald place in the cliff lives old Granddaddy Golden Eagle. And down on the prairie live so many people I can't tell you! Why, all those lumpy places are prairie-dog houses. They've got a whole town laid out, but the silly things have their front doors on top. And jack rabbits grow so big out here they look like dogs. Mister Ky-ote (coyote) thinks he owns the whole place and lives anywhere he feels like. He's a mean one and makes a meal of any one who happens to be handy. That's part of my job to watch that gen-tleman. Of course, he doesn't come up into the mountain much, but he does enough damage where he is.

"What do you do when anyone's bad?" asked Nancy.

"I lasso them with my lasso," said Mister Gallop, pointing proudly to a coil of rope lying near.

Leon Trotzky Foremost Figure in Soviet Govt,

MOSCOW, (Sept. 6 Associated Press) —Since Premier Lenin became seriously ill, Leon Trotzky, Soviet Russia's War Commissar, has become the foremost figure in the Soviet Government. He has no working day. Every workman, laborer, or employee in Soviet Russia has an 8 hour working day conspicuous ly looked after by the Trade Union Council and guarded by the Labor Code. But Trotzky has none. His working day is much over 8 hours and as regards time, day and night are treated alike.

Trotzky begins his day with the newspapers. They serve him as a means of every day human connection and business information. He reads them just as he would listen to a re port by one of his officers and very often the newspaper information is followed by quick interpretations and action.

Very often a news telegram, a re porter's item, or a quite uninteresting interview paves the road for an im portant decision. Then at various times during the day and night, Trotzky reads and dictates.

He always reads with a pencil in hand, which he holds like a surgeon holds his instrument. He underlines, annotates, numbers the author's thoughts, associates them, makes po lemical notes—and the book returns from his anatomical desk like an em balmed corpse.

He dictates queries, resolutions, de partmental instructions and advices orders, articles, pamphlets, brochures, friendly and sarcastic letters, replies, reminiscences—short and long ones, dry and fierce, always bright and sty, lishly polished. Everything clear, exact and business like.

A detachment of cyclists and motor cyclists, day and night, carry all over Moscow with war time speed this state business literature of the War Com missar.

During the day, the quiet of his cabinet is beseiged by telephone calls. In this way which Trotzky values as an economic means of communication, he disposes of half his work.

In his work, Trotzky does only what he himself must and can do, everything else being completed by other—his as sistants. He writes an article, others—librarians—will find for him the neces sary quotations from Marx or any other writer, as the case may be.

Trotzky's office is a combination of simple but mighty things; stenogra phers, telephone switchboards and a good automobile—everything which cur tails movement and serves to econo mize energy. He rests by passing from one work to another or indulging in sports, when feeling very tired. His favorite sports are hunting, fishing, croquet and chess.

DEPOSED NOBILITY CAUSE DISTURBANCE

Refuse to Join Union Of Bon-Bon Makers And Throw Out Delegate.

SAALFELD, Saxe Meiningen, Sept. 5.— (Associated Press).—Needy countesses and baronesses who work in a large chocolate factory here caused a brief outlaw strike the other day by re using to join the Socialist bon-bon makers' union.

The demand that they take out mem-bership cards had been made to the wo-men out of working hours several times previously, but always rejected. Finally a walking delegate sought out one of the titled ladies at her work-bench. Her indignant refusal to join the union caused such a commotion in the plant that the delegate was thrown out, a workers' mass meeting was held, and a strike proclaimed. Later the laborers tried to return to work, but found them-selves locked out. A settlement was reached, however, after a few hours.

Most of the titled employees, and a number of ladies of the former royal court who also work for the firm, come from the neighboring town of Rudol-stadt, capital of what was once the principality of Schwartzburg-Rudolstadt The factory's distinguished pay-roll in-cludes also the widow of a former cabinet minister

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

TRIP TO THE WEST.

I got on board the Stoney Lake 'bus at Lakefield on Monday, Aug. 13, en route for the N.W.T., taking the C.P.R. at 9.35, and on we went, coming to the rocks on the evening of the first day. On the second day the scenery was varied, the train running along by a beautiful lake on one side, with a mountain on the other that you could scarcely see to the top of. And then night came on, and, of course, I did not know much until morning, when we had different scenery altogether, the country being more level and cov-ered with small timber. We finally landed in Winnipeg at 12.30 a.m.

After a little time I found a place to stay for the balance of the night, and at 8.30 a.m. I again boarded the train. I had not got far into Manitoba when I learned that it was a busy place. The first scene was two women on a load of grain and two men pitching on, while a short distance away there was a small threshing outfit, appar-ently threshing their own grain as they drew it in. And then we saw a poor cow tied by the roadside, try-ing to get enough food to sustain life, and to keep from being eat up by the flies at the same time.

As we proceeded on our way, sometimes one would see a field of wheat as far as the eye could reach, the straw looking bright and giving promise of an abundant yield; the next field one would think was cut last summer, it looking black with rust, and then a field, partly cut, and one could not tell whether it was sow thistle or wheat. Then as far as we could see was a field of sow thistle, standing about two feet high, thick as it could grow, and as yellow as could be painted. This weed seems to flourish in Manitoba.

On we went, everything going fine until we came to a certain station, when I remarked to a bystander the number of men on the platform. He looked at me with a twinkle in his eye, and said: "Half of those are men, and if you do not mind I will give you a few pointers" (which I need not explain), and I thanked him for his information, feeling a little embarrassed, but resolved not to make the same mistake again.

Finally I landed at my destination a little before sundown, and after answering a number of questions about the uncles and aunts of twenty years ago, and the cousins of the present, I asked permission to retire.

I can assure you, Mr. Editor, that I will appreciate a letter from any one who feels like writing to a lonely boy in the West. I remain, yours sincerely,

Stephen Harrison,

PUZZLING PLAYS

THE PLAY

There is a runner on third base and two men are out. The batsman hits the ball, which strikes about 10 feet foul down the third base line. The umpire immediately called foul ball.

The runner from third had started home and the batsman to first when the ball was hit. The moment the umpire yelled foul, both runners stopped. The runner on third, who was well on his way to the plate, turned and started back to that base. The batsman started to return to the batter's box.

Just as the umpire yelled foul, the ball struck some obstruction, and from a position in foul territory englished into fair territory. It finaly came to rest on fair territory. The third baseman dashed in, recovered the ball, and threw to first.

Unquestionably, the ball was fair. The team in the field contended the side was retired. In such a case what should the umpire do?

THE INTERPRETATION

The umpire erred in calling the play too quickly. In calling the ball foul he stopped the progress of the runners, who immediately pulled up when he rendered such a ruling.

While the umpire erred in calling the ball foul, there was nothing for him to do but ride through with the decision, even though everyone in the park knew that the ball was fair.

It would be decidely unfair to make the team at bat suffer by allowing the out, after the umpire had ruled the hit foul. Such a decision would be very unjust, since the base runners in stopping at the call of foul merely obeyed the ruling of the umpire.

The umpire had no way out of it except to stick to his original ruling, foul ball.

FORTUNE AN AID OF TRIPLE PLAY

Line Drive Is Usually Necessary to Make Move Possible.

Much fuss is made when a team makes a triple play. Certainly it is a rare occurrence and a facer to the opposition, for with heavy scoring in sight three men are blotted out in an eye wink.

When a spectator sees a triple killing, it will burn long in his memory. He is very likely to talk about it for a week. The Athletics made one against Detroit recently.

Runners were on second and first and of course nobobdy out. Cobb was at bat. He lashed a terrific liner down to Galloway, who made a clean catch and threw to Scheer, getting another Tiger. Scheer whipped the ball to first before the other runner could return there and Detroit was out.

That was a remarkable achievement, for with nobody out, runners on bases and a man of Cobb's power at the bat, heavy scoring was presaged.

Yet when you analyze a triple play, it is almost an accident. In the first place, the opposing side must have nobody out. Nine out of every ten triple plays are on line drives, which are comparatively easy to handle, certainly not as diffcult to gather in as a ground ball.

Sometimes a triple play is the result of a very hard jumping catch on a liner, but not always. As a rule, they travel straight to an opposing infielder and are known as "duck soup."

When a triple play is made on a ground ball, it is nearly always a negative achievement, for some bad base running on the part of the opposition was needed to make it possible.

Therfore, often a triple play, while spectacular and unusual does not require nearly the skill of a double play on a ground ball. Then the infielder must make a clean stop, often a difficult chance, and then get the ball very rapidly and accurately to the other infielder.

Then the second player receiving the ball must make a long and hard throw to first base ahead of a runner who is only a few steps away from the bag.

Contrast this to the triple play. Both players are Both runners in motion at the pitch, a soft catch and plenty of time to throw to the bases before they can return.

In other words, it takes more skill in the majority of cases to make a double play than a triple play but there is no chance of players ever being hissed by a crowd when they retire three opponents on one batted ball.

SAM JONES OF YANKEES PITCHED FIRST NO-HIT NO-RUN GAME OF SEASON

Athletics His Victims in a Spectacular Fielding Game—Had No Strike-Outs.

29 FACED HIM.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5. — Samuel Jones, of the New York Americans, pitched the first no-hit, no-run game of the season in the major leagues to-day, blanking the Athletics 2 to 0. Jones was in great form, only twenty-nine men faced him, of whom three reached first base. Galloway received a base on balls in the first inning. In the eighth, Welch reached first on Scott's fumble of his grounder and Dykes got on when he forced Welch at second.

Jones had no strike-outs. The Yankees gave him wonderful support and many of the stops and throws were of a spectacular nature There were nine outfield outs and eighteen in the infield, two of the latter being fouls to the catcher.

The real fielding feature was made by a memebr of the home team when Welch leaned against the right field wall and pulled down a drive from Ward's bat in the ninth that looked like a certain homer.

There was much cheering among the fans when Pitcher Jones went to the mound in the ninth. Many in the crowd wanted to see him get a no-hit game. With two out Galloway tried hard to reach first on a bunt but as beaten by a step by the ball.

Hasty pitched good enough ball for the Athletics to win any ordinary game. He allowed only seven hits and walked only one man. Score

New York ....002 000 000—2 7 1
Philadelphia .. 000 000 000—0 0 1

Washington... 102 000 000—3 5 0

Dominion Soccer Body Bans Games on Sunday.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Sept. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—The committee on constitution of the Dominion Football Association sat late last night and as a consequence the regular sessions did not begin until eleven this morning. Before lunch two amendments had been discusstd and passed. One was that no member of an organized team might play football on Sunday in any game under the auspices of the D.F.A. The other entitles players to only two transfers during a single season and neither of these transfers is to include a transfer back to the original team. This is to prevent a player transferring to another club for a single match and then resuming his original membership. The sessions were resumed this afternoon and the business will likely be wound up by noon tomorrow.

EXPECT JOHNSTON AND TILDEN TO MEET AGAIN

If Bill Tilden and Bill Johnston do not rush through the early rounds of the American tennis tournament at Philadelphia next week and meet in the finals for the championship, it will be more of a surprise than if some unknown came through and worked his way up to the final round.

Critics are unanimous in expecting another Tilden-Johnston fight for the title and, as usual, sentiment is divided on the outcome.

In any sport, a player of the ability of Tilden would be considered a heavy favorite. Disregarding the known ability of Johnston, Tilden has beaten him so many times when something of importance was at stake that he has almost proved his superiority.

Johnston, however, is considered each year to have improved the very small degree that marks the difference in his game and that of the champion. Each summer the legions of Johnston admirers hope that it is his year and, this summer again, there are many who believe that Bill is going to beat the great Tilden.

HOME RUN WINS FOR THE GIANTS

Broke Up Pitchers' Battle in Game With Boston.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5. — Kelly's home run in the seventh inning scoring Young and Meusel ahead of him broke up a pitchers' battle between Scott and Cooney here to-day and enabled the New York Nationals to defeat Boston in the last game of the series, 3 to 0.

Scott yielded only four hits, while only two Boston runners reached second. Cooney was equally effective with the exception of the seventh inning. Score:

Cooney and O'Neill, E. Smith; Scott and Snyder.

Chicago 3; St Louis 2

Chicago, Sept. 5.—Bill Doak weakened in the seventh inning and was driven off the mound by Chicago, the locals defeating St. Louis 3 to 2, in the final game of the series The visitors took a two-run lead on Aldrige in the first inning, but thereafter were not dangerous, the support behind the Chicago twirler being perfect. He would not say, however, that it was definitely decided as yet.

BULLETINS FROM MAULERS' CAMPS

Dempsey Takes Day Off—Firpo Cuts Loose.

ARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press)—After enjoying a day of complete rest, Jack Dempsey will swing back into his training grind tomorrow to continue work, without further layoffs, until the finish of his campaign a week later.

The champion suspended work today on the advice of Manager Jack Kearns, who desired to guard against the danger of having Dempsey too finely drawn.

Kearns announced the champion was in superb condition, without a worry on his mind, and would start tomorrow to develop speed. Dempsey, according to Kearns, weighs 193 pounds at present.

Dempsey did nothing more strenuous today than to take a five mile walk over the billy roads surrounding Saratoga Lake.

Fripo Draws Blood.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. Sept 5. —(Canadian Press)—A little more speed, a little more power in the punches and a little less mercy on the sparring partners was noticeable today in the first of Luis Angel Firpo's heavy workouts for his battle with Jack Dempsey, September 14.

Stocky Joe McCann was unusually lively. He made Firpo dance a bit in their two rounds. Firpo slammed his right in McCann's ribs and had the big fellow puffing at the end of the first round. In the second McCann was clipped on the jaw with a left hook and as he fell, into a clinch with the crouching South American their heads met. Firpo suffered a slight cut in the corner of his right eye, then sent left straight to McCann's mouth, bringing blood, and time was called. The cut was trivial and is expected to heal overnight.

Jeff Clarke, the Joplin Ghost, bobbed around for one round and pushed his face into a countless number of straight lefts.

Frank Koebele, the light heavyweight, suffered most at the fists of Firpo. In the second half of their session, the Argentina caught the Brookly youngster in the ribs and Frank doubled up like a pocket knife Firpo waited for a moment or two and Koebele was able to resume with vigor. Natta Pera took an unusual heavy mauling and was hanging on when time was called.

OMEMEE VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

Villagers Justly Proud of Their High School — Unique Social Event of Interest.

OMEMEE, Sept. 5 —Vacation days are over and the dong of the old school-bell has awakened to the call of duty the many school teachers, who have spent a pleasant holiday among their old school-mates and friends of other days. Omemee is justly proud of her High School and the thought that some of its citizens would gladly change to a continuation school arouses the wrath of older residents. Among the teachers, who have secured their certificates at Omemee to go out from here on Monday were Miss Jennie Smyth to Deloro, Miss Grace Laidley to Birch Cliff, Miss Verna Windrim to Marysville, Miss Marion Carey, Orange Corners, Miss Carrie Stinson to Lindsay, Miss Myrtle Weir to Bobcaygeon, Miss Mabel Weir to Warkworth, Miss Mina Balfour Seagrave, Miss Marjorie Adams to Orono; Ruth Corneil to Fenelon Falls, Mr. Hillier Williamson, Toronto Mr. Fred Bowker, Burlington Mr. Ephriam Pogue Walkerville, Mr. Ormond Poast to Montreal.

Social Event

A unique social event of interest was given last week when Mrs. Cecil Corneil entertained a number of friends to a dinner party followed by a towel and recipe shower in honor of Miss Marjorie Finnie, a former teacher, who is to be one of this week's brides. The shower was a complete surprise to the popular young lady who was a week-end visitor to the village, and after the variety of beautiful towels and varied recipes had come tumbling from an umbrella accompanied by many merry comments, the blushing bride-to-be replied, thanking in a few well chosen words, her friends for their thoughtful kindness on her behalf.

News Paragraphs

Harvesting is almost completed in the vicinity and already many farmers are preparing the soil for the fall wheat.

Messrs. Cornwall Callander and Leonard Sandy, a former Omemee boy, all of Astabula, arrived in town on Tuesday and will spend some time duck shooting in this vicinity.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Sept. 5.—Four Austrians who are trying to cross from Hamburg to New York in a 42-foot ketch have just put into this port. The distance is 3588 miles. Horseshoes worked into the boat are expected to bring good luck.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORT

Representatives of Intermediate and Junior clubs in the City Baseball League came across in fine style at a meeting of the City League last evening when they transferred a balance of $16.85 to the credit of the Juvenile section which closed the league season with a deficit of $19.37. Lew LeBarr, Sr., promptly offered to wipe out the difference, and protests were unavailing. All of which goes to show that baseball moguls in this city are pretty decent chaps.

"Bill" Kay was appointed chairman of a committee, made up of representatives from the runners-up in the several series, to arrange for a baseball night at the close of the season, when the Ontario championships are handed out. Peterbrough looms big on the baseball map, and Peterborough ball players are going to share in the Provincial honors.

"Curly" LeBarr's fine work as umpire during a long and trying season, Jimmy McMartin's assistance in the handling of the games, and the work of lesser lights brought forth some nice compliments. Somebody has figured out that in a comparatively short time, Umpire LeBarr should be able to retire and live well on the savings on meals he missed while "calling them" for City League teams.

Alex. Kay was an absentee. Having a night off, the leader of the Midget champions took his team to see Red Newman & Co., went to sleep, and awoke, declaring a runner out at the plate. The Curlers go to Lindsay to-morrow afternoon for the first game of the series with Classics of Ford Moynes' town, playing back here next Tuesday.

C. G. E. Intermediates left by motors for Orillia this morning. The Electricians play the second game here on Saturday, and it will be a howling shame if the fans fail to turn out.

Maple Leafs go to Cobourg on Saturday, and as it will be the first league game away from home for the Leafs, the contest will serve to show how the Juvenile champs can stand up against a hostile crowd. Several car owners have offered their motors for the journey.

COLONIALS DEFEAT THE DELAVAL TEAM

Colonials won a fast soft ball game from the De Laval girls last night with a score of 12 to 4. The game was snappy throughout, Mrs. Lee pitching an exceptionally good game for the Colonials. It was the first game for the De Laval aggregation this month, and it is expected that it warmed them up for their meeting with the C.G.E. on Thrusday. Fielding last night was replete with thrills.

The Soft ball schedule for the weeks is as follows:

Wednesday—Quakers and C.G.E.
Thursday—De Laval and C.G.E.
Friday—Colonials and Quakers.
Saturday, 5 p.m.—DeLaval and Quakers.
Saturday, 6.30 p.m—De Laval and Tigers.
Monday—Colonials and De Laval.

Two games will be played at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition on September 13 and 14. Colonials will meet C.G.E. and De Laval and Woollens will clash.

Reconstruction of France

I have just returned from a visit to Lille, the capital of the industrial north, and its environs, and have been greatly impressed with the remarkable progress that has been made in the restoration of those regions. The place is a humming hive of labor. Men and machines appear to be striving to catch up with the lost years of the war, writes the Paris correspondent of The Times.

Nevertheless, it would appear that reconstruction in the ravaged regions has now passed its maximum rate of progress and is inevitably slowing down. This is partly because so much has already been done, and partly because political and financial considerations must tend to check further development for the moment. The simple truth is that the Ministry of Finance, thwarted in its hopes of German payments, has found it necessary to put restrictions on the grants of money which have hitherto been made in respect of war damages. Two of the measures recently adopted are of outstanding importance. One is the decision to limit the advances in cash exclusively to building operations and to make the advances for all other reconstruction purposes in National Defence Bonds or in other State bonds. The effect of this change of procedure is obvious in a case where ready money is so great a necessity. The other check imposed by the Ministry of Finance is the cutting down of the sum allocated this year for the payments to war victims made on the annuity system. Under this system the State gives a bond by which the total amount due is spread in annual payments over thirty years. In practice, the manufacturers have either sold these bonds or borrowed money on them, and this is one of the main methods by which industrial reconstruction has been accomplished. Last year foul milliards were devoted to such payments, but this year the issue of new thirty-year bonds is to be limited to such a degree that the State will only be called upon to pay 1¾ milliards.

A definite break has thus occurred in the sweeping movement of industrial reconstruction. The movement is suitable for a brief survey of the vast work of repairs which has gone quietly behind the noise of the reparations controversy. The main work in the Nord department—which includes Lille, Roubaix, Tourcoing, and Armentieres—has been done. Nearly all the large industrial concerns are set on their feet again. Of 3,147 works which were either altogether destroyed or seriously damaged 3,055 (or 97 per cent.) are now working, partially or completely. In these works, which include all those employing ten persons or more, there are now 298,120 work people engaged as compared with 369,748 in 1914. There is little unemployment, and, indeed, there is an actual lack of certain classes of skilled labor.

Government's Guarantee

This great achievement has been accomplished by a piece of well-directed "hustle," which it would be hard to match in history. Government, manufacturers, banks, and the investing public have all co-operated in a credit operation which could only be carried out by a universal energy and confidence. The first essential step was taken by the French Parliament in the law of April 17, 1919, by which the Government accepted full liability for all war damages, whether Germany paid or not. Under the shelter of this guarantee the manufacturers pledged their credit, banks opened liberal accounts, and there was a ready market for the thirty-year bonds. Much of this original impulse was due to M. Loucheur, who steadily pressed for industrial reconstruction as the first necessity—a fact which may yet have significant political consequences.

The fruitfulness of the Government guarantee is shown by the fact that of the total sum spent on industrial reconstruction only about half came from the State and the other half from private enterprise. In many cases manufacturers have gone far beyond mere reliance on what was due to them. Two instances may be mentioned. The flax-spinning works of the century-old firm of Agache Fils at Perenchies, near Lille, were reduced to a heap of ruins during the war. New works have been built, the village of 4,207 inhabitants—not one of whom remained at the Armistice—has been almost entirely reconstructed, and over eight hundred workmen's houses have been built by the firm. Altogether nearly four thousand persons are now employed at these works and at other branches in the Lille district, and the present capital of the firm is 30,000,000 f. The works of Cousin Freres at Wervicq-Sud were dismantled by the Germans during the war, and the machinery was either destroyed or taken away. Out of this ruin new works have arisen covering 13 hectares, and 1,500 workpeople are now employed. These are two large examples, but scores of others could be found.

Although industrial reconstruction took first place in the plans of development, the manufacturers themselves were compelled by the drift of events to tackle the housing problem. This has been one of the most interesting of the unforeseen developments. The case of Agache Fils has been mentioned; they could not wait for a State housing program if they were to have workpeople available. A similar need has compelled the French Northern Railway to build a whole series of garden cities, the most notable of which is the admirably named "Lille-Delivrance," near Lomme, on the outskirts of Lille, where 840 houses have been completed. During the last two years industrial concerns and the railway company have together restored 9,391 damaged houses and have built 2,758 in place of those completely destroyed.

Another movement which has sprung up in the last two years is that of the co-operative societies, chiefly composed of persons of small means, who have already built 6,500 new houses and restored 21,500 damaged ones. On the whole, 14,556 houses have been built in the Nord department in replacement of 53,000 completely destroyed, and of the 210,000 damaged houses 147,671 have been repaired. The present intention of the Ministry of Liberated Regions is understood to concentrate for this year on the putting up of buildings, and for this purpose cash advances are to be maintained.

Wheat is low because there is too much. There is too much gas.

BROADWAY'S PRETTIEST.

You have the recorded word of Broadway's show girls that Shirley Vernon, shown here, is that famous thoroughfare's prettiest girl. She's in the Follies, as her mother, Margaret Vernon, was 14 years before her. And we'll say Broadway show girls can pick the good lookers too.

GOOD CROPS MEAN GOOD EXHIBITIONS.

Year May Be Banner One For Fairs Throughout Country.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27 (Associate Press).—This year promises to be a banner one for fairs throughout the country. More persons are seeking space to display their merchandise than for years and this is a good omen, say fair managers. August is the month in which fairs really get under way. State fairs open in this month, and hold sway till the middle of November. Furthermore, a thousand other smaller fairs, in the form of county exhibitions, are also held from July till November. Farm reports from all over the states indicate good crops, and this is expected to result in farmers exhibiting excellent displays of vegetables, fruit and grain.

Among the earliest of state fairs are those of Missouri and Delaware. The former is scheduled August 18 25 and the latter the last week in August. Des Moines will stage the Iowa state show August 22 31.

September is the big month for the state expositions. Fairs are listed at New Jersey, New York, Kansas, Oregon, Montana, Kentucky, Illinois, California and Maine. California's big exposition at Sacramento, September 1 9, is enlisting attention throughout the country. Cantaloupes are sure to attract and hold interest, for that industry this year, it is estimated, has yielded farmers well over $7,000,000.

In the wheat belt Kansas will show its bountiful crops September 15 21 at Hutchinson during the Great West State Fair. In the mining region, Montana will hold its annual exposition at Helena, September 25 29.

State fairs in the cotton belt are regarded as among the year's biggest festivals. Nashville is the scene of the Tennessee fair, September 17 22; Macon will see Georgia's exposition, October 17 27, while at Jackson the Mississippi fair will hold forth October 15 20.

Detroit will be the mecca for exhibitors at the Michigan state fair, August 31 September 9.

In the Grand Canyon section of the country, Phoenix will show the Arizona state prize goods November 12 17.

GERMANY NOT HURT BY CURRENCY FALL.

Can Be Stabilized Any Time the Government Desires, Says Mason.

(By J. W. T. MASON)

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (United Press)—Industrial collapse in Germany is not imminent, nor has the real economic strength of the German people been weakened by the fall of the mark. Despite the fantastic imitation of the collapse of Russian rubles by Germany's paper currency, there is no reason to anticipate that in other respects Germany will go the way of Russia.

Russia's currency degeneracy was coincident with nation wide starvation and cessation of industry. There is no unemployment in Germany and though many classes have been made the victims of food profiteers, there is ample food in the country for all. Expansion of German industry has not suffered because of the fall in the exchange rate.

German shipbuilding is second only to Great Britain's. Construction of new buildings is proceeding in the principal German centers at a good rate. The industrialists of Germany are improving their plants and putting in more modern machinery. Everywhere Germans are keeping apace with progress in other countries.

No Letup in Production

The decline in the value of the mark has not been caused by any real letup in production. The German people have the goods with which to pay the government's expenses if the Government would only assess taxes on a proper basis. This would automatically stabilize the mark.... The artificiality of Germany's depressed currency is demonstrated by the fact that the actual wealth in goods of the German people has been constantly increasing while the mark falls.

There has been no loss in wealth whatever to the German nation through the decline of the mark. Wealth has changed hands inside Germany, but the German nation as a whole has gained enormously because marks purchased abroad will never be redeemed at anything like the purchase price. Americans in large numbers bought marks as a speculation when marks were selling at from one to four for a cent. The drop from that price to forty thousand for a cent means the hundreds of millions of American dollars used for speculating in German currency have gone forever. Gone, that is to say, out of American pockets to pay for raw materials which are providing a considerable part of the basis of Germany's present prosperity.

Will Never Come Back

Marks will never come back. There is no record in history of a currency depreciated far less destructively than Germany's ever being restored to parity. To do so would be too costly for the industrialists and financiers who have made so much by the mark's decline. Germany will fix a new rate for the mark, whenever the time seems appropriate to those in charge of German world policy. That rate, whatever it is, will not harm the money kings.

Stabilization in Germany is a mechanical matter of making taxes equal expenses. The German government can do this any time it desires, because of the real prosperity of the country. It will make no difference for the future on what basis the mark is stabilized. It can be done at a million marks for a dollar or ten million. Whenever a stabilization level is reached and is maintained, prices in Germany will quickly adjust themselves to the new base. Thereafter, world price levels will be reached and the German people can resume saving, knowing that marks will purchase approximately the same one week as the next.

MOVIE CENSOR WILL PASS IN FUTURE YEARS

Directors Wish to Please the Public and Clean Pictures Will Follow Popular Demand.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5 (Associated Press—Another ten years will see the passing of the movie censor, declares Mrs. A. L. Adams, chairman of the Chicago board of motion picture censorship, who says the present day picture director and the present day star need little supervision in their art.

"It will not be long until such supervision is entirely superfluous," Mrs. Adams asserts. "Directors do not want to offend the public, and they have learned that the public wants clean pictures. Censors, however, can make few hard and fast rules. They have to judge each picture individually.

"Censorship, like the movies themselves, is undergoing an evolution. But it cannot be abolished for some time yet because people sometimes read into a picture what is not there."

Keep Beauties In Place

There are some rules, Mrs. Adams says, which she always observes. In a fistic encounter, hitting a man when he is down is taboo because it is unsportsmanlike. A crook cannot shoot at an officer pursuing him, lest that encourage lawlessness. Single piece bathing suits are all right, but a bathing beauty is not permitted to parade across many feet of screen.

"Virtue does not need to triumph over all difficulties, but pictures glorifying unscrupulous dealings are cut," Mrs. Adams continues. "Shooting, too, is censored closely. In this respect it is believed that the movie director is improving.

"We cannot make hard and fast rules about very many things because a great deal depends on how the subject is handled," adds Mrs. Adams, "and because public morals also undergo changes. Every day we get objections from somebody who has been scandalized by a picture. Generally, however, we find on examination that these people have read something into the picture that is not there."

MORE PAVING

the machines in passing stalled in heavy sand.

Council was asked to give this matter immediate attention. This went to the Legal Committee.

Mrs. Kirk, who sustained injury by falling on an icy sidewalk during the winter, applied for financial consideration from the city. In this connection Dr. J. A. Morgan communicated to Council that in the accident Mrs. Kirk broke her thigh, and subsequently suffered from both pneumonia and flu. His bill for attendance was $135. This matter went to the Legal Committee.

Jessie N. Perrin applied for a sidewalk on McDonnel Street, from the crossing at Meldrum's to the applicant's new house on lot 45, plan 132. Referred to the Board of Works.

Storage Siding.

The Board of Railway Commissioners notified Council that the Canadian General Electric Company and other industries have been authorized to construct a storage siding upon and across Rink Street. Referred to the Railway Committee.

On motion by Ald. Maher, a communication from Niagara Falls Chamber of Commerce, asking the Council to approve of the principle of taxing all public utilities the same as if they were privately owned was simply received.

More Pavement.

On motion by Ald. Fife and the Mayor, Council will give notice of its intention to pave George Street South, from Romaine Street to Lansdowne Avenue.

AT THE ROYAL.

"THE SPORTING EARL" MAKING NEW RECORDS AT THE ROYAL

If crowds mean anything, "The Sporting Earl," now playing at the Royal, is one of the most popular productions seen recently at that playhouse. The story is interesting and decidedly different from the American made photoplays, while the racing scenes are as thrilling as any ever seen by this reviewer. The orchestra is also a decided improvement and helps materially in rounding out a pleasant evening's entertainment. This attraction will be held for four days, ending its local run on Thursday night.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

"CINDERELLA."

Everybody loves a fairy tale. Young and old enjoy them, the former long after they have graduated from the nursery, and the latter because in the familiar old stories they renew their youth. All nations and all ages have been rich in fairy lore, and there is no nursery in the land that does not boast its store of phantasies.

"Cinderella" is known in many countries, in different forms, under numerous guises. It has always been one of the most popular stories among children who speak the English tongue, and no matter what form it is presented, it always seems new, and it always holds a fascination of its own.

As a musical phantasy, "Cinderella" will shortly be presented on the stage here. An all-Canadian undertaking from beginning to end, it will be shown with every elaborate endowment of scenery, costume, stage effects and special lighting essential to reveal its charming romance and its romantic lesson.

No effort has been spared to lend to every incident in the famous Old story of nursery days a definite significance and a pictorial value that shall enhance its interest to all classes and ages. An elaborate mechanical and lighting equipment will enable it to be presented with complete lighting effects on any stage, while the numerous changes in scene—nineteen in all—are effected almost instantaneously by clever stage mechanism.

The book and libretto, from the pen of Forrest Audubon Rucker, contain the story entire, and in addition much dialogue in true fairy tale style and language, while the score and the lyrics, by Stanley T. Vermilyea, afford a delightful melodious setting for the whole, the picture being completed by elaborate and colorful costumes for all the characters.

The role of Cinderella will be portrayed by Theo Macfarlane, a young and gifted Montreal artiste who possesses all the requisite qualifications of youth, daintiness, and charm. "Cinderella" will be seen here Friday and Saturday, September 7-8 with special matinee Saturday.

Capitol Entertainment

MAD COURT RIOT IN "THE CHEAT" QUITE DRAMATIC

Trouble Precipitated When Pola Negri Shows Brand of Fake Hindu Prince.

Presenting one of the most realistic riots in a court room ever seen on the screen, Pola Negri's new Paramount star vehicle, 'The Cheat,' will be shown at the Capitol theatre for three days, beginning to-morrow. The scene is a fitting climax to a highly dramatic picture story, but the ending is a happy one and sends spectators home highly delighted with the entertainment.

Here are some of the minor casualties that attended the filming of this tremendous scene in the Paramount studio at Hollywood, Calif.:

Sixteen coats ripped up the back.

Thirty-two collars ripped open and torn.

Seventy-three buttons pulled off.

Chairs and tables, desk furnishings, etc., broken and scratched — to many to count.

Numerous slight abrasions and barked shins.

It was an amazing scene. The episode shows the effect on a crowded courtroom of a dramatic situation, wherein a beautiful woman (Pola Negri), stripping from her ivory shoulders the black gown she wears, discloses a ruddy scar, branded there by a crook parading as an East Indian prince, to mark her as his property. She confesses that she shot him—a crime her husband, played by Jack Holt, has taken upon his own shoulders. The crowd surges forward to mob the false Prince (Charles de Roche) and the judge shouts vainly for order. Police finally quell the riot but everyone gets badly battered in the melee.

The action was staged with much realism. The minor players forgot they were actors for the nonce, and sailed in, determined to reach de Roche or break something trying!

"We got some corking shots," said George Fitzmaurice, the director with a satisfied smile as the surveyed the wreckage.

And that's all that matters!

WEDDING BELLS

FALLEN—ARMSTRONG

The marriage took place quietly at nine o'clock this morning, at St. Andrew's Manse, of Mary Louise, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Armstrong of Otonabee to Gordon J. Fallen of Peterboro.

Rev. Mr. Rollins performed the ceremony.

The bride was stylishly attired in a gown of toast-colored canton crepe with hat, shoes and stocking to match, and navy wrap. Her bouquet was of ophelia roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Fallen who were unattended, left on the 9.35 C.P.R. train for a honeymoon trip to Muskoka. On their return they will reside in Peterboro.

The bridal couple were recipients of many useful and beautiful gifts from a large circle of friends, the list including a mission oak table from the employees of the Peterboro Milk Products, where the bride was a member of the office staff, and a cut-glass fruit set from the fellow-employees of the bridegroom at the Post Office.

BULLER—BROUGHTON

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 5.—Prettiest of the early September weddings, the marriage of Mabel Pearl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Broughton, Piccadilly street, to Errol Firth Buller, of this city, formerly of Brantford youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Buller of Peterboro, took place Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents Rev. H. J. Uren, pastor of the Colborne Street Methodist church, officiating.

Golden sunshine and the glow of many lovely autumn flowers made a pretty setting for the girl-bride and her attendants. The house was charmingly arranged with white and pastel-tinted gladioli, against a background of palms and ferns, with an arch in the living room, where the ceremony took place, wound with white and banked with snowy asters.

Wedding Music

Miss Mildred Richards of Toronto played the bridal music, wearing a pretty frock of pale pink satin, with overdress of flowered pink georgette. Miss Beatrice Brown of Kingsville also wearing a smart gown and hat, sang during the service in delightful voice "O Perfect Love" and later was heard in "Because."

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a lovely gown of white silk net, in many tiers giving a bouffant effect. From the long waist line hung fluffy side panels frilled in net, tiny whorls of white corded ribbon on bodice and cap sleeves, forming the only trimming. A girdle of corded ribbon was worn and the bridal veil of white net was hemmed in seed pearls and inset at the corners with exquisite medallions of Venetian lace. Arranged in cap fashion on the bride's prettily dressed hair the veil was banded in orange blossoms and the bride carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and valley lilies.

The grooms' gift, a handsome cinnamon fur, was later donned with the smart travelling suit of navy blue with which the bride wore a chic small hat of brown, with coque feather draping the brim, and falling to the shoulder.

The bridesmaid Miss Hazel Buller of Peterboro, wore a charming sleeveless gown of pale yellow pleated georgette and black picture hat. She carried a shower of creamy tea roses and wore the groom's gift, a white gold wrist watch.

The Flower Girls

Little Daintry Collins and Betty Spettigue, nieces of the bride, were adorable flower maidens, the former in a crisp little frock of maize taffeta daintily frilled, with shoes and stockings to match, and full bloomers also of taffeta. Miss Betty wore a similar gown in peach tint and both little attendants carried baskets of sweet peas and sweetheart roses in pastel shades and wore big hair bows to match their gown. The groom's gifts were sterling silver pendants.

To Howard Broughton brother of the bride, who acted as best man, the groom presented a diamond tiepin.

Thirty-five guests were present for the reception, which followed the ceremony. Mrs. Broughton received in a handsome draped gown of black silk velvet with steel ornament at the girdle and corsage of red roses. Mrs. Buller the groom's mother, was also in black, a satin and radium lace gown, with draped girdle of periwinkle blue.

Mrs. Claude Collins, the brid's sister wore a smart gown of gray canton crepe, with gray hat and Miss Lillian Spettigue, a niece was prettily frocked in navy crepe. Mrs. Blythe Burns of Peterboro, sister of the groom, was gowned in lavender canton with pearl embroideries.

Buffet refreshments were served in the dining- room, where the table was centered with a huge basket of deep pink roses and lighted by many rose-shaded candles. In the early evening Mr. and Mrs. Buller left on their honeymoon, which will include a boat trip to Montreal. They will live in London.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Jock Giffeord of Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Buller and Miss Dorothy Buller Miss Fern Thompson, Miss Ethel McIntyre and Charles Young all of Brantford Mr and Mrs. W. H. Buller, Mrs. B. Burns and Miss Hazel Buller of Peterboro.

ONTARIO COMPANY REQUIRES LABOR FROM UNITED STATES

An indication of the scarcity of labor in Ontario is provided in a request made by a company at Penetanguishene to the Immigration Deparment at Ottawa for permission to bring two hundred men from the United States. The application was passed on by Ottawa to Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey as Minister of Labor, for verification. Hon. Dr. Godfrey would only reply that it was impossible to obtain the men in Ontario, and it is expected that the request will be granted. The company needing the labor is engaged in the manufacture of shooks and other supplies.

IMPRESSIONS OF TRIP TO SEATTLE

Pacific Coast Cities Endeavour to Attract and Please Tourists.

Having just returned from a four and a half months stay in Seattle and Tacoma, United States, I have been requested to give some idea of the impressions which I got there and which might be of value to Peterborough.

The best of highways are found throughout the district, hundreds of miles of brick roads, but I was informed that different forms of road construction had been tried and they were satisfied now to use cement and gravel.

These cities are doing all in their power to develop the tourist traffic as they claim that each tourist leaves Five Dollars a day in the city. There is a large corner of Woodland Park in Seattle set aside as a camping ground for motor tourists. It is fitted up with the necessary equipment for a stop-over.

Wooden tables and seats are scattered throughout the park, and there is a combination of four stoves constructed in the form of a cross with a chimney in the centre for cooking purposes. Fuel is supplied free of charge. Water is available right on Lake, a beautiful spot. If the necessary equipment could be placed there Inverlea Park by the Otonabee River would be an excellent camping site and also be of great benefit to all picnickers. There is no charge made for camping motorists.

Each visiting tourist is given a nice card to stick on the windshield which denotes that he is a visitor to Seattle from such and such a place.

Seattle is wonderfully well lit up. The business section has cluster lights of five, the business people paying for three and the city two. The clusters are about 30 feet apart.

Another thing which I thought was good was that the mail carriers collected the mails.

When the fire alarm rings the traffic is all stopped in the section where the fire is, so that the way is clear for the fire apparatus.

There are lots of things which could be improved in our city with little expense. Why, our streets are a disgrace. They are worse than country roads.

The people over there are great boosters for their city. They are always at it.

Signed,
C. J. Searight,
City.

France is Getting a Real Negro Problem.

By JOHN O'BRIEN.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—(United Press). — Although France has no negro problem in the sense in which it is understood in the United States, the frequent clashes between colored people and American visitors to cafes and restaurants, especially in Montmartre, is very likely to create one.

The Paris newspapers have recently shown unwonted acerbity towards Americans on account of the forcible expulsion from a dance place of the two sons of the ex-King of Dahomey, Prince Kajo Touvalon and Prince Marc, the former a lawyer, and both holders of distinguished war records.

"France cannot forget," says Paris-Midi in a bitter article, "that she is at the head of a vast colonial empire where colored people dominate, and that these citizens demonstrated their loyalty and their courage in the hours of France's need. Americans in their own country pursue the negro with a deadly hate, and even the fraternity of arms has not changed their way of thinking. But in France they have no right to do so. Here we have no color line."

Parliament to Discuss.

It was the second time that Prince Kajo Touvalon had been the central figure in an incident resulting from his presence in a place frequented by Americans. Owing to his prestige much worry was caused in high places in the Government and the Minister of the Interior ordered an inquiry. Deputy Barthelemy has announced that he will bring the affair before the Chamber when Parliament is re-opened. It is understood that the Minister of the Interior's inquiry was ordered merely to placate the influential colonial negroes, and nothing is likely to result from it.

What has aroused so much anger in the press and a certain amount of concern in Government circles is the fact that the Princes of Dahomey wore in their lapels the ribbons indicating that they had fought for France and had been wounded in action. This goes to the root of the whole question. As the Paris-Midi points out, France has a great colonial domain, where blacks predominate. These blacks number perhaps sixty millions, and France has to depend on them for a large contribution in wartime. Even in the peace-time forces they number about 160,000 men, or a quarter of the army. Moreover, they have to be kept contented because "enemy" agents are always on the lookout to make trouble for France in her colonial possessions.

Therefore, the rulers of these far-away states are treated as great Potentates when they visit France, and the French negroes cannot understand why they themselves should be subjected to annoyance because of their color.

VETS IN REUNION

SAN JAUN, Porto Rico, Sept. 5. —Members of the 4th Ohio Volunteer Infantry organization, who participated in the occupation of Guayama during the Spanish-American war, gathered amid scenes of old-time battle there, recently on the occasion of the organization's twenty fifth annual re-union.

The members believe they are the first veterans ever to stage a reunion in the country where they fought. Former soldiers from all states attended. Col. G. B. Donavin, of Columus, O., was re-elected president of the organization.

HIS HOBBY.

Charlie Chaplin, the movie mirth provoker, likes to get away from the glare of studio lights now and then and go fishing. The monster in the photo laughed so hard at Charlie's antics, fishermen near Los Angeles say, that it proved easto to capture. We doubt that.

PUPILS TROOPED BACK TO SCHOOL

First Day Attendance Slightly Below Last Year's Record.

Peterboorugh schools opened their doors yesterday to willing congregations of pupils. One cynic who watched the children troop towards the Collegiate remarked that it was the only day in the year when they go willingly.

The combined enrollment at Public schools and Collegiate was 3,289 on the opening day. The enrollment at Public schools was sixty less than on opening day last year, and the Collegiate Institute was 14 less. These figures will swell as the week progresses, and there is small doubt that the closing total in the Public schools, 2,973, will be passed by Monday.

New teachers on the staffs of the Public schools are: Mr. Langford, Vice-Principal of King Edward school; Miss McNeavan, Queen Mary; Miss Buckham, King Edward; Miss Huffman, Prince of Wales and Miss Nelson, Central.

GETTING GOOD PRICES FOR CHEESE, BELLEVILLE

As a large percentage of the cheese factories in Peterboro County have been selling their cheese this year at the cooperative sales in Belleville, the patrons of these factories have been interested to find from week to week what the prices realized at these sales amounted to as compared with prices paid on the cheese boards. Of late the public sales at Beleville conducted by the cooperative company have been discontinued, and the information relative to the prices has not been readily available. The Examiner learned to-day that the Cooperative Company is exporting its cheese from the Central Ontario district direct to Great Britain. The prices being realized are very satisfactory.

A week ago last Saturday, the Cooperative Company realized 24 1-8c a lb. for Specials, and 24 1-16c a lb. for Firsts, and has settled with the Peterboro County factories on that basis. This was 1-8c higher than the Belleville Board and from 2 to 32-3c higher than most of the cheese boards of the province for the same week. Last Saturday the Cooperative cheese at Belleville was sold for 23 5-8c for specials and 23 9-16c for firsts. This again is higher than any other cheese board in this part of the province. The factories that are selling cooperatively this year are reported to be much pleased with the new arrangement, and the prices they are receiving.

U. S. HAS ENOUGH COAL TO LAST TILL FEBRUARY

ANGLICAN MISSIONER CABLES HE IS "SAFE"

TORONTO, September 5. Canadian Press. — The headquarters here of the Church of England Mission in Japan to-day received from Right Rev. H. J. Hamilton, the head of the mission, the reassuring cablegram, "Safe."

DOG IN CURL PAPERS.

A novelty at the Dog Show at Toronto Exhibition was a Yorkshire Toy Terrier with its long, straight hair done up in curl-papers. It was "Little Briton" of Hamilton, a winner of many prizes, a handsome stylish miniature terrier weighing four and a half pounds. One of the strong points in his favor is his long dense coat, entirely free from waviness, but his owner had to resort to the use of curl-papers for a different purpose. They protect his beautiful coat and kept it clean as it is so long that it touches the ground.

LOCAL MISSIONARY TAUGHT IN TOKIO

It is Believed Miss Rorke Was on Holiday When Disaster Overtook District.

That a missionary from this district was in the part of Japan visited by the earthquake on Saturday last was learned to-day from her father, Rev. S. G. Rorke, 23 Cricket Place.

Miss Luella M. Rorke is a graduate of Queen's University. She went to Japan four years ago under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist church, and is expected home on furlough next year. While engaged as teacher in the girls' school in Tokio, Miss Rorke studied the language of the country, and she was this year sent through the country on evangelistic work. Her last work of this kind was in Nagano.

A despatch from the scene of the disaster states that the Methodist missionaries in Tokio School are believed to have escaped, and Mr. Rorke believes his daughter was removed some distance from the scene of the disturbance. In the last letter from her he was informed that she would spend her holidays at Karnizawa, and it is thought that she was there when the catastrophe overtook Tokio.

Formerly of Cavan.

Rev. S. G. Rorke retired from active ministry work this summer after a faithful period of service in Cavan circuit. He was well known and respected in this district, and has received many expressions of hope that his daughter came through the trying ordeal safely.

A MEATLESS LUNCHEON.

The following tested recipes solve the problem of a tasty luncheon without meat:

Tomato Chowder.

2 cupfuls Borden's St. Charles milk.
1 pint hot water.
2½ cupfuls canned tomatoes,
1 medium-sized onion sliced thin.
1 tablespoonful butter or butter substitute.
4 tablespoonfuls flour.
2 teaspoonfuls sugar.
3 teaspoonfuls salt.
¼ teaspoonful pepper.
¼ teaspoonful soda.
6 water crackers split.

Melt the butter in the top part of the double boiler, add the onion, and cook it gently till yellowed, about five to eight minutes. Pour in the milk and water, set over the lower part of the double boiler and scald. Mix the flour, salt and pepper with enough cold water to make a smooth cream; stir it into the milk and cook about fifteen minutes, stirring occasionally. Heat the tomato with the sugar; when boiling, add the soda and combine it with the thickened milk. For serving put a split cracker which has been dipped in warm water in each plate.

Escalloped Macaroni with Cheese.

1½ cupfuls Borden's St. Charles milk.
3 cupfuls cooked, drained macaroni cut in two-inch lengths.
1¼ cupfuls grated American cheese.
1½ tablespoonfuls flour.
1½ tablespoonfuls butter or butter substitute.
½ teaspoonful salt, scant.
⅛ teaspoonful pepper.
Few grains paprika.

Make a white sauce of the flour, butter, seasonings and the milk undiluted. Stir in the macaroni. Thoroughly oil a rather shallow baking dish, put in a layer of the macaroni, then one of the cheese, continuing in this way until all is used and making the last layer one of cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until browned, about thirty-five minutes.

Spanish Cream.

1¼ cupfuls Borden's St. Charles milk diluted with 1¼ cupfuls water.
¼ teaspoonful salt.
½ cupful sugar.
3 eggs.
1½ tablespoonfuls granulated gelatine.
1 tablespoonful vanilla.

Let the gelatine stand in the milk for five minutes, then scald the mixture. Combine the egg-yolks, sugar and salt with the scalded milk, and cook until slightly thickened like a custard. Then stir the mixture into the egg whites beaten stiff; add the vanilla. Turn into individual moulds which have been dipped in cold water and when set unmould and serve with light cream, or any preserved fruit.

THE RIDING HORSE IS RAPIDLY PASSING NOW

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(United Press).—The riding horse is fast disappearing from the country, according to a report issued by the Remount Service and the American Remount Association.

Breeding of light horses has decreased to such an extent that riding horses of good type are almost impossible to obtain in any numbers, the report stated.

The remount service of the Quartermaster Corps and the American Remount Association issued the joint report to describe the results of the distribution of the 285 stallions that belong to the army. More than 6,000 mares were bred to these stallions during 1922 as a result of the co-operation of farmers and breeders with the army.

"Due to unscientific and indiscriminate methods of breeding, the first useful type of riding horse has almost disappeared from the country," the report said.

"The government has charged the remount service with the all-important work of eliminating the worthless scrub and supplanting him by a useful type.

"To those persons who had given the growing scarcity of riding horses any serious thought this situation became plainly apparent more than a quarter of a century ago. The World War with its immense toll of horseflesh, and the difficulty experienced in securing riding horses of even a mediocre type, brought home fully the seriousness of the situation."

While the production of more and better riding animals is the main object of the remount breeding plan, second to it only in importance is the elimination of worthless scrubs.

"There are powerful combinations whose interests are inimical to those of the horse," the report warned, "and which at times foster legislation that spells disaster for all horse breeding activities."

BELIEVED CASUALTIES IN MOUNTAIN DISTRICTS OF JAPAN VERY LARGE

No Accurate Information Yet Available Concerning What Occurred in These Interior Districts —Summer Resorts Extensively Patronized by Foreigners.

SHOCKS CONTINUE

PEKING, Sept. 6, 1.30 p.m. — (Special).—Efforts to get into wireless communication with the Mitsui radio station failed to-day, due perhaps to further earthquakes in Japan or to severe static.

The American Legation is making efforts to establish radio connection with the American destroyers, which are being placed at regular intervals to make a wireless bridge between China and Japan.

Sporadic radio despatches from Osaka gave word of the sufferings of the survivors of the great disaster. Food is very scarce, and the spread of disease is feared, as the survivors in many areas are forced to dwell among the corpses of people killed five days ago.

It is believed that casualties in the mountain districts, where many summer resorts are located, may have been very high. No accurate information is yet available concerning what occurred in these interior communities, as the severance of communication isolated them.

These resorts were extensively patronized by American and Europeans. A million and a half persons, it is estimated, were homeless in Tokio and Yokohama, and many foreigners may be among these.

Prince Hiroko Dead.

Prince Hiroko, brother of the Mikado, is among the dead.

Seventy foreigners are dead in Yokohama, while all the foreigners in Tokio escaped death, according to a wireless message from the British cruiser Despatch.

SHOCKS CONTINUE.

Earthquake shocks are still continuing in Tokio. Rain has stopped the great conflagration which swept the capital, unchecked, for 72 hours.

Yokohama is utterly annihilated. Most of the foreigners are dead. Six million people are homeless in the devastated area. The losses will mount into billions of dollars, while the dead and wounded will total thousands.

Charred ruins and fragments of houses cover the cities of the once thriving cities and towns in the quake zone, which presents a scene of utter desolation.

NOTABLES SUFFER.

Prince Hircotia of the House of Kwacho was killed in a train tunnel near Yokohama during a cave-in caused by the earthquake, according to despatches received here. It is also reported that Dowager Princess Kaya was burned to death at Kamakura and that Princess Hircotia was crushed to death in the family villa at Odawara. It was stated that Prince Kanin, who was also at Odawara, is missing.

Reports also confirmed the death of Prince Tabashige Shimasu, head of Sathuma, who was crushed to death in his villa at Oiso. Also of Prince Mathukata, one of the principal statesmen of the Empire.

BRITISH SEND SUPPLIES.

London reports that the British Foreign Office has instructed the admiral commanding the China squadron to buy foodstuffs and supplies locally and proceed to Japan. He has been ordered to place these supplies at the disposal of the Japanese Government on arrival there.

REFUGEES OPTIMISTIC.

Refugees are reaching Kobe, and are optimistic as to the fate of foreigners in the earthquake ravaged regions of Japan, according to a cable from the British Consul received to day. It is believed the British Embassy and Consulate at Tokio and Yokohama have escaped destruction.

CHEERING MESSAGE.

Damage caused by earth shocks and fires in the business and official districts of Tokio is smaller than at first reported, according to British refugees reaching Kobe, whose stories were cabled London by the British Consul. The Foreign Office, the Admiralty and the Department of Justice all are intact, according to the British version.

NEWS STILL VAGUE.

A more encouraging outlook on the situation in Japan was received to-day at the Foreign Office from the British Consul at Kobe, who said the Japanese War Office, Department of Justice, Foreign Office and the Admiralty were declared by local authorities to be intact. Previous reports were to the effect that the Government Buildings suffered severely from the earthquake. The Consul's message adds that two persons who had walked from Tokio to Yokohama confirmed the reports of the enormous destruction in the latter city, but their account of the situation in regard to foreigners in Tokio was encouraging.

British eye-witnesses state that the damage to the central and official business districts in Tokio is not so great as was at first believed, and it now seems possible that the British Embassy Building and Consulates in the capital city may have been spared.

BRITISH DRAFT NOTE TO STATES

Document Deals With Twelve Mile Limit Problem — May Delay Delivery for Weeks.

LONDON, Sept. 6. — (Special).— It is learned that the British Foreign Office has prepared a draft note to the United States on the question of the twelve-mile limit.

This note is now being circulated to all Government departments which are searching it for possible loop holes. The next step is its return to the Foreign Office with the attached suggestions of the various departments.

Matter of Weeks.

It is still a matter of weeks before the note is to be despatched. Officials are reticent as to its contents, but it is hinted that it stresses the possibility of domestic legislation in the British Dominions to prevent liquor leaving the United States.

There is also a possibility that the liquor supplies of the Bahamas may be rationed. The impression is growing here that this is the logical solution of the problem, particularly in view of recent stories from the United States regarding the probable difficulty of patrolling the twelve-mile limit.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 6. — (Canadian Press).—Anthracite mine operators and officers of Miners' Union, who to-day resumed conferences with Governor Pinchot for discussion of possible terms of settlement of differences which caused suspension of operations in hard coal fields September first, reported little change in the situation this afternoon.

Justice Fisher Made Further Adjournment This Afternoon on Petitions of Hawken and Others

CURATOR TO REPORT

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Further adjournment for two weeks was made by Justice Fisher this afternoon on the petitions of Arthur Hawken and others for the winding up of the suspended Home Bank of Canada.

Incidentally, His Lordship said there was the question whether the Court had any power to grant a motion for winding up within ninety days of suspension, which was on August 17.

An order was given for the examination of Arthur Hawken, the petitioner, by the counsel for Curator A. B. Barker.

On the other hand, the Court declined to order an examination of the Curator until the expiration of the ninety days in which he is allowed to make his report to the Minister of Finance at Ottawa.

TO NEGOTIATE WITH INDIANS

Inquiry Into Title of Ten Thousand Square Miles of Lands in Ontario Province.

OTTAWA, Sept. 6.—An inquiry into the title of over ten thousand square miles of lands in the Province of Ontario has been authorized by Order-in-Council. The inquiry is the result of a claim by Indians of the Chippewa and Mississauga tribes that the Indian title to these lands has never been transferred to the Crown The lands involved in the claim are situated in the northern portions of the counties of Renfrew Hastings, Haliburton, Muskoka Parry Sound and Nipissing, and the area is placed in the Order-in-Council at 10,719 square miles.

The commission appointed to conduct the investigation consists of three members, two appointed by the Minister of Lands and Forests of Ontario and one by the Government of Canada. The two Ontario representatives are R. V. Sinclair, K.C. of Ottawa, and Uriah McFadden, K. C., Sult Ste. Marie; while the Dominon representatve, who is also chairman, is A. A. Williams, Departmental Solicitor of the Federal Department of Indian Affairs.

The Order-in-Council, appointing the commission states that a departmental inquiry indicated that the claim of the Indians was prima facie well founded. It authorizes the commissioners, provided they find that the claim is valid, to negotiate a treaty with the Indian claimants for the surrender of the lands on the payment of such compensation as may be fixed by the treaty. The Indian title to lands on the borders of the district now claimed by the Indians was extinguished at dates varying from 1815 to 1850.

FISHING LODGE WILL BE BUILT

Hundreds of American Visitors A t tracted to this District by Burleigh Club.

One of the largest and finest fishing lodges in this part of the country is proposed by the Burleigh Falls Club and will be erected on the south shore of Lovesick Lake, quarter of a mile from Burleigh.

The lodge will have accomodation for 150 guests.

Modern equipment will be installed such as an electric lighting system run from a plant at the lodge. Private road rights have been obtained so that in the future guests who motor to the club may drive directly into the reserve, where a large garage will be erected, capable of accomodating thirty cars.

The young men who organized the Club have distributed 50,000 circulars throughout the United States and Canada, they say. Not many Canadians have taken advantage of the facilities offered by the Club, but 400 Americans have registered up to date and many are booked for this month. The club is open from June 16 to October 1.

"THIS POVERTY STUFF AND BLUE RUIN WAIL INCITE TO VIOLENCE"

Charles D. Cook, Advertising Manager of De Laval Company, Demands Open Season on Pessimists —Canada is Here to Stay, and Displays a Mighty Queer Kind of Poverty

WHERE DO YOU GET THIS POVERTY STUFF? The way some anaemic pessimisst, with jelly fish spines, stand by the wayside and howl blue ruin, is enough to make any sane man with red blood in his veins, want to take a club and commit wholesale manslaughter. It must be a mighty queer kind of poverty, when a country with about eight millions of population has nearly two billions of dollars invested in Canadian Government Bonds. Ten years ago only a small percentage of the Canadian Bonds were held in this country; to-day over two-thirds of them are owed by Canadians. It's the same kind of poverty too that shows a good Billion of Dollars and some over in Savings Banks. This wealth all belongs to the Canadian people, it's wealth they've made, and wealth they've saved, right here in Canada. It's a part of the individual wealth of the nation. This doesn't include the money invested in factories and manufacturing plants; it doesn't represent farm lands, houses and buildings; it doesn't represent the amount of money tied up in motor cars, not at all. If these amounts were added they would more than double the total. And just put another thing under your hat, statistics show that a large part of this wealth belongs to the farmer.

When the United States put the Fordney tariff into operation, these pallid pessimists howled more blue ruin, and said Canada's export trade was doomed. Maybe it was, but in the last year our export trade was just fifty per cent. more than it was in 1914, and that was the best we ever had before the war. There isn't much blue ruin about a fifty per cent. increase in the very face of the Fordney tariff. The crops throughout Canada are above the average, with indications of better than an average price. Butter, Cheese and Dairy Products have commanded good prices throughout the entire season; that spells blooming prosperity instead of blue ruin. Canada has some debts, she owes some money; certainly, every business concern owes money, if they don't they're doing a mighty small business. But get this, Canada owes only about one-third the amount per capita that England does, and you haven't seen England lie down and whine. We talk about doing things quicker and better over here, having more hustle and better business methods than the "Old Country," and some of these so-called hustlers seem to be scared stiff because a Canadian owes one-third as much as an Englishman. Some are talking of returning to the old land; it might be a good idea, when they get there they can take up the other two-thirds of the burden they didn't have to carry while here. We may be in debt for some railroads; that's all right, we have the roads. When you buy a suit of clothes for a growing boy do you buy one just big enough, or do you buy one a trifle loose, and let him growup to it. What we have to do now is to stop howling and help the country grow up to the railroads. There's one thing certain, the roads couldn't be built to-day at present prices as cheaply as they were some years ago. When you talk of buying power, the crops that are being harvested right now certainly represent millions of dollars worth of buying power. Every man that wants to work has a job, there are no idle men, and that means buying power. In the past year the Savings Bank Deposits have been increased by the immense sum of over Thirty Million Dollars, and that means buying power. All told there are very few countries in the world that are as well off, or in as good condition to-day as Canada. There is no country that has as much wealth in natural resources, woods, mines, water power and farm lands. What this country needs more than anything else is an open season on pessimism. Kill it wherever you find it. Canada is here to stay. If you want to enjoy future prosperity, stay with it.

FREE DISTRIBUTION OF INSULIN HERE

Peterboro Provincial Laboratory One of Distributing Centres in Ontario.

Insulin for free distribution to needy patients has arrived at the Peterborough office of the Provincial Laboratory, Dr. A. Y. McNair informed the Examiner to-day. This city will be one of the distributing centres in Ontario, and several requests for supplies have already been received. All that is necessary, Dr. McNair said, in order that a needy patient may obtain the insulin, is a certificate from the sufferer's physician.

This insulin is made by the Connaught Laboratories in Toronto and is supplied free to the distributing points by the Provincial Board of Health.

How Remedy Prepared.

It is interesting to note how Dr. F. G. Banting's remedy is prepared. Insulin is made from beef pancreas only, although it is believed that it can be made from the pancreas of any animal and from the related glands of fish. The fresh pancreas are obtained from the abattoirs in Toronto and conveyed direct to the laboratory. They are then minced by means of a large meat grinder and alcohol is added. The insulin dissolves in the alcohol.

The insoluble constituents of the glands are separated from the valuable alcoholic solutions by allowing the latter to drain through paper filters. The liquid which drains through is reduced to a small volume by evaporation of the alcohol and water in a vacuum still. The material remaining in the still after the alcohol has been boiled off contains the insulin. This solution is purified by chemical procedures known as "fractional purification." The purified insulin is sterilized, standardized and filled into vials, which are distributed to the physicians or patients.

What Insulin Is.

Insulin is a substance formed in the pancreas of normal animals to be carried by the blood to the tissues. The presence of insulin is absolutely necessary for the proper burning of sugars and fats in the animal body. When the supply of insulin is deficient the incomplete burning of the sugars results in loss to the body of one of the great natural sources of energy, while the improper burning of the fats results in the production of certain poisonous substances. Diabetes Mellitus is the name given to the disease, which is caused by this lack of insulin.

PETERBORO VISITED BY MANY PHYSICIANS FOR CLINICAL EVENT

A Bobcaygeon Man Says There's Gold At Sturgeon Lake

TORONTO, Sept 6—(Canadian Press).—The claim of Sidney Cluxton of Bobcaygeon, that he found traces of gold in stones he was breaking for the purposes of building a fire place in his home at that place has not aroused the enthusiasm of the Ontario Department of Mines. Mr. Cluxton is of the opinion that the stones were washed from Sturgeon Lake into the creek on the shores of which he found the stones.

"All I can say is gold is where you find it," stated Hon. Charles McCrae, Minister of Mines. "I hope it is true."

The government will analize the rock, if they are forwarded to the mining branch.

MARKET FREE AND BUOYANT

Steel Enhanced by Demand From Japan Active Stocks Strong.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(Special). —Wednesday's special rally having given expression to the best financial opinion that the earthquake in Japan would have no deleterious effects on American business, stocks were free in the early dealings to reflect favorable developments in the home trade situation.

Another record high for carloadings in the week ended August 25 conclusively demonstrated that industrial and mercantile activities were holding up in remarkable style, and active stocks displayed a strong tone at the start of trading.

Buoyancy was especially marked in pool issues, and specialties of the calibre of Davison Chemical, Loose Wiles Biscuit, Willy Overland Pref., Gulf States Steel and the Alton issues, suggesting that confidence had been restored regarding the underlying position of the speculative structure. Trading broadened among the industrials in the first hour but little activity occurred in the railroad section aside from the Alton issues. Gulf State Steel advanced into new high ground on the movement at 90¼ in the wake of a bullish demonstration in the steel group, based on the orders coming in for emergency building in Japan. Gulf State's principal products, wire nails, iron age, reported that inquiries have already been received from Japanese exporters in this country for 1,000,000 kegs of the latter product. This is equivalent of approximately 100,000 tons. Later advices show the inquiries have swollen 10,000 tons. Biscuit stocks continued to be favorites of the specialty list.

National reached a further new high for the year at 48½. Loose Wiles' move to 58¾ against Wednesday's low of 52½ appeared largely sympathetic. New leaders were found in the late morning when some of the first hour favorites hesitated. Locomotive issues developed special strength in response to the continuance of freight traffic at record levels.

Baldwin made a new high for the week at 125½, and American went within a fraction of the year's high when it advanced to 74 7-8.

The Canadian stocks were particularly active. Continental Can. reaching new high ground for the year at 51.

Opening prices included Studebaker, 106 7-8; Marine Pfd. 27 3-4, up ½; Southern Railway 32 3-8; Westinghouse 59 5-8, up ¼; United States Steel 89 3-4, up 1-8; American Woollen 88 3-8, up 7-8; Davison Chemical 50, up 1; General Motors 15½, off 1-8; Baldwin 124 5-8, up 1-8; Bethlehem B 54 3-4, up 1; Continental Can. 50¼; Maltinson 30 7-8, up 1 1-8; New Haven 13¾, off 1-8; Chicago and Alton 3½ Pfd. 8¼, up ¼; Amer. Can. 99 1-8, up 3-8.

Doctors in Attendance From Near and Far, Including Pittsburg and New York—Interesting Papers Discussed at Morning Session.

LUNCHEON AT NOON

The clinical day, under the auspices of the Peterboro Medical Association, opened this morning at ten o'clock at St. Joseph's Hospital, with an attendance of nearly one hundred physicians, including the local members of the profession, doctors from the district and from points as far distant as Rochester, Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and Saranac Lake, New York.

This morning's session, devoted to surgical work, was featured by addresses by visiting physicians. Dr. J. C. Masson, of the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., gave a paper on "Uterine Prolapse," illustrated by lantern slides; Dr. C. B. Keenan, of Montreal, spoke on "Treatment of Fractures of Long Bones in the Royal Victoria Hospital," and Dr. J. R. Fraesr, of Montreal, gave an address of "Gynaecological Emergencies in General Practice, Their Diagnosis and Treatment." The morning sessions were held in the reception room of the hospital, decorated with asters and overhead bunting streamers of white and gold. A large "Welcome" sign outside the building waved a cheerful greeting to the visitors, whose motors formed a long waiting line.

Papers Discussed.

The three papers were interesting and received the closest attention from their audience. Dr. Masson's address was discussed by Doctors T. N. Greer, A. Moir and F. P. McNulty, of Peterboro. Dr. McNulty acted as chairman of the morning session, and opened the meeting with a few welcoming remarks, followed by a brief announcement by Dr. H. M. Yelland.

Dr. J. R. Fraser's paper was discussed by Doctors G. S. Cameron and H. M. Yelland, of Peterboro, and Dr. G. H. Stobie, of Belleville.

Bone Fractures.

Dr. C. B. Keenan, of Montreal, gave a closely-followed talk on "Treatment of Bone Fractures." Devoid of difficult technical terms, the speaker's ideas were presented in a clear and simple manner that might have been followed with ease by a layman as well as by the group of physicians who listened to him. Considering the three aspects of fractures, the non-union, the disability, and the defect, the speaker gave a general idea of the latest methods followed in bone surgery. His theories appeared to be characterized by simplicity, and he did not stress to any great extent the value of massage in bone work. The T splint, the ambulatory splint for clavicle fractures, the banjo splint for hand work, and the Thomas splint for leg breaks were advised. The doctor referred to some of the splint forms used in the late war as inadvisable for ordinary practice, but recommended, however, the Thomas splint for leg work as having been used generally in the Civil War, and of just as much use at the present time.

For fracture of both bones in the lower leg, Dr. Keenan illustrated, using Dr. J. M. McCulloch as a model, the application of a new and very simple form of bandage, which may be applied without assistance and also without using an anaesthetic. A mechanical extension, supplied by a little sling for the ankle and carefully-applied weights, gives the reduction in a spontaneous manner, without excessive pain to the patient.

The discussion following this address was led by Dr. Jno. McCulloch of Lindsay, followed by Dr. Faulkner, of Belleville, who regarded the T splint as uncomfortable, and recommended the use of an anaesthetic. Dr. N. H. Sutton, of Peterboro, also considered massage as of great value, not the 'thumping type,' but the light stroking 'caress' movement.

Dr. Keenan advocated the use of anaesthetic or of massage, wherever considered necessary, and said, "We are getting away too quickly from the ideas of physio-therapy that we were taught in the war."

Luncheon at Noon.

The morning session concluded with a luncheon served by the Board of Management of St. Joseph's Hospital, on the roof garden at the top of the building, where the tables, under white awnings, were laid in hollow square formation, prettily decorated with large vases of gladioli and asters.

Those Who Registered.

Among those who registered this morning were the following doctors: E. J. Free, Campbellford; A. S. Thompson, Havelock; J. Chant, Belleville; L. S. Sheir, Lindsay; J. S. Farncomb, Trenton; W. J. Johnston, Trenton; F. L. Kerr, Trenton;

FINANCIAL CIRCLES EXPECT SETTLEMENT

BERLIN, September 6. Canadian Press. — While Chancellor Stresmann is still awaiting French reaction to his speech at Stuttgart last Sunday, there is a strong belief in the Bourse and financial circles that the Ruhr conflict is facing an early and enforced termination.

Whatever effect the Chancellor's pronounced shift in the direction of French reapproachment may have had on Premier Poincare there is a growing conviction that Germany is no longer capable of paying the terrific price involved in maintaining her passive resistance.

BOTH SIDES IN MINING STRIKE MODIFY CLAIMS

Concessions By Operators and Union Heads Materially Change Position.

Accept Wage Increase.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press)—Representatives of anthracite mine operators and officers of the miners' union today agreed in conference with Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania to material changes in positions which they have hitherto held, and which have resulted in suspension of mining. The employers' group tentatively abandoned its demand for arbitration, which the union unyieldingly opposed.

Miners' union officials definitely accepted the ten per cent. wage increase which Governor Pinchot tendered in an effort to compromise the dispute, but asked more than that increase for day laborer employed in and about the mines. They did, however, promise to modify for a "check-off" of union dues by limiting the amount which could be collected by it from individual miners.

WEATHER WITH WEST FARMERS

Showers Scattered and Light—Threshing Well Under Way.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 5.—The weather during the past week throughout western Canada has been mostly fine and warm with cool nights, according to the weekly crop report of the Canadian National Railways. A few scattered showers are reported at various places in the three provinces. Threshing operations have been in full swing in southern and middle Manitoba while in the northern parts cutting is in progress. Cutting of all grains is general in Saskatchewan with some threshing in the southern part of the province. The crop in Alberta which is very late, is rapidly ripening, but owing to the showery weather, cutting has been somewhat delayed.

In the southern part of Manitoba threshing has been in full swing for the past ten days. Yields of wheat vary according to districts from 8 to 15 bushels per acre and is grading very poor. Barley has been from 20 to 25 bushels to the acre and oats from 35 to 45. Threshing should be general about Sept. 10.

In the southern part of Saskatchewan the finest harvest weather has prevailed and wheat cutting is nearly completed. Threshing operations are in full swing in a few places. The yield of wheat is estimated at from 15 to 22 bushels per acre with a great deal grading No. 2 and three. In the middle portions of the province it is estimated that from 45 to 75 per cent. of the wheat is cut. In the northern part of Saskatchewan weather conditions have been very favorable. From 25 to 50 per cent. of the wheat has been cut and late crops are ripening very fast.

In the southern parts of Alberta from 40 to 60 per cent. of the wheat has been cut. Showery weather has delayed operations. Oats that were ripe early are being cut while later crops are turning very fast. Threshing should be general about Sept. 10. In the northern part of this province cutting has been general with about 25 per cent. of the wheat cut.

Rye and barley is nearly all cut. The oats are turning very fast and heavy yields are expected. Threshing should be general from the 10th to the 15th of September.

REJECTED PLEA OF ELEVATOR OWNERS

Grain Commissioners Refused to Permit Increased Charges.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 5.— Applications of elevator owners for increases in the tariff charges on grain have been refused by the Board of Grain Commissioners it was announced today by Chief Commissioner Leslie J. Baird. Terminal elevator owners had made applictaion for an increase of half a cent per 100 pounds for handling mixed grains and country elevators asked the right to charge half a cent per bushel for cleaning wheat.

A minor change in the regulations permits terminal elevators to deliver screenings of an average quality as taken "from time to time as may be deemed necessary by the inspection department."

Previous regulations provided for "the same quality of screenings as taken from the car, as shown by the grain inspector's test," and the owners decided it was impossible to comply with this provision.

RUHR MINERS RESUME WORK

ESSEN, Sept. 6. — (Canadian Press)—Mining difficulties in the Ruhr apparently have been settled without the necessity of intervention by the Government. Work has been resumed in all mines in Essen except one, and in most of the others of the Ruhr the men are going back to work of their own accord.

URGES UNIFORMITY IN PRELIMINARY STUDIES FOR LEGAL PROFESSION

Report to Canadian Bar Association on Standard of Education Required in Various Provinces.

SOME REGARDED LOW

MONTREAL, September 5. Canadian Press. — Lack of uniformity among the provinces of the Dominion as regards preliminary education of law students was regretfully announced by D. A. MacRae, Ph.D., of Dalhousie University, Halifax, in his report as convenor of the committee on legal education submitted to members of the Canadian Bar Association at the session here to-day.

Mr. MacRae reported that the standard of preliminary education equivalent to that represented by the end of the second year in Arts at an approved university is now in effect in two provinces, Manitoba and Nova Scotia. The standard in other provinces, which, said Mr. McRae, was as follows:

In British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Alberta, junior matriculation, plus one year in Arts, Quebec and Prince Edward Island, the equivalent of junior matriculation, plus one year in Arts. In Ontario junior matriculation, plus honor matriculation in four subjects. In New Brunswick hardly the equivalent of junior matriculation.

"In New Brunswick the standard of preliminary education continues to be low," reported Dr. McRae. He added that following the amalgamation of the St. John Law School with the University of New Brunswick at Fredericton, a step now practically completed, a forward step would be taken which would bring the New Brunswick standard up to that recommended by the Law Faculty.

A report of the committee on legal ethics was presented by Angus MacMurchy K.C., chairman. A recommendation that this committee should amalgamate with the committee on legal education was defeated. Mr. MacMurchy reported that the Manitoba Law School curriculum for 1923-24 provides for a full course of 25 lectures on ethics.

Appeal to Privy Council.

Continuation of the right of citizens of this country as well as those of other British dominions to appeal to the judicial committee of the Imperial Privy Council, was advocated by the Hon. H. W. Newlands, K.C., Lieut-Governor of Saskatchewan, in an address before the association this afternoon. As to the objection that it hurt our national pride and affected our autonomy that we had not in Canada our own final court of appeal, he asked if it did either if we deliberately and of our own free will retained the Privy Council as our final court. His reasons for advocating appeal to the Privy Council council were that it was the outstanding court in the world as to the territory and populaion over which it had jurisdiction, the systems of law which it expounded, and the selection it had of judges; that it had jurisdiction over a quarter of the earth's surface and its population that it possessed a wide and distinguished circle of judges from which to select. He doubted too if means could be found for the abolition of the present system.

POWDER MANUFACTURERS TO PROTECT GAME BIRDS

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 6.—(Associated Press)—The extensive areas of unoccupied land connected with the du Pont explosives plants in the United States, amounting to 36,344 acres, are to be used as sanctuaries where game and insectivorous birds will be protected. The Sporting Powder Division of the company announced that this step was being taken in connection with its plans for the better preservation of game. Several of the plants have already been stocked and the game has multiplied and been protected to such an extent that it is said to be supplying the surrounding country.

The reservations to be used for this purpose are located in Pennsylvania, Colorado, Alabama, Washington, Iowa, West Virginia, Virginia, Minnesota, New Jersey, Missouri, Wisconsin and Montana. Many of the reservations are heavily wooded and particularly adapted for the purpose. There are 24 plants in all and the ground about them available for game preservation purposes ranges from 6,000 acres down to the average-sized farm.

'WILD' DUCK YARN

Falconry Provides a Fowl Dinner For Home - Staying Farmer.

BROCKVILLE, Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press)—Hhe first of stories peculiarly associated with the duck shooting season comes from Bishop Mills, Grenville county, where a ploughman at work in the fields noticed a hawk flying with a duck in its bill. Frightened by the sound of firing, the hawk dropped its burden which was picked up by the farmer who had roast duck for dinner without the necessity of firing a shot.

RED CROSS MAY OPEN JAP FUND

Meeting on Friday in Toronto to Consider Voluntary Relief.

OTTAWA, Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press)—Dr. J. F. Robertson, chairman of the National Executive Committee of the Red Cross Society of Canada said here tonight that he was very anxious to have supplies to send to Yokohama and to Tokio where the while poplation is dependent upon importations, particularly of milk.

The executive committee of the Canadian Red Cross Society will meet in Toronto on Friday to consider what it can and should do, as a voluntary auxiliary of the government, to render assistance to suffering Japan. A statement to this effect was made by Dr. J. W. Robertson, chairman of the executive committee of the Canadian Red Cross, this evening. Sir Robert Borden is president of the Canadian Red Cross Society. The committee said Dr. Robertson, will consider supplementing what the government proposes to do by receiving contributions throughout Canada to assist in mitigating the suffering caused by the disaster.

Dr. Robertson stated that the Japanese consul at Vancouver had informed the British Columbia division of the Canadian Red Cross that he was anxious to have supplies sent to Yokohama and Tokio without delay because the white population was dependent of imports, particularly milk. In view of this it was the intention of the Red Cross to ship by the Empress of Russia sailing tomorrow all the milk obtainable at Vancouver. The society would also send on the same boat two experienced Red Cross nurses with Red Cross forms which have been prepared for the organization and administration of emergency disaster relief.

AMBULANCE ASSOCIATION MAKES QUICK DECISION

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—The head office of the Canadian branch of the St. John Ambulance Association, today sent out the following appeal to all its provincial councils:

"The appalling calamity which has almost overwhelmed the empire of Japan, has aroused the sympathy of all Canadians in common with the entire world.

"The emergency which has arisen calls for action which speaks louder than words. In anticiptaion of a national relief movement in Canada, the advisory committee of the St. John Ambulance Association suggests that all provincial councils communicate with local centres with a view of stimulating the formation of local relief committees.

"It is also suggested that contributions be in cash, to be forwarded to the national treasurer."

KITTEN ESCAPES DOGS AND ELUDES RESCUING FIREMAN

BROCKVILLE, Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press)—Services of the combined police and fire departments were enlisted today by citizens in an effort to dislodge a kitten from the upper cross arm of an electric light pole to which it had climbed a day and a night previously in order to escape dogs which had chased it. When all attempts on the part of nearby residents had failed to give the kitten courage to make the descent, the police department was notified and then the fire department. The latter laid seige to the stronghold by rearing three ladders about the pole. As the fire fighters climbed to the rescue, the kitten took fright and jumped in safety to a verandah 20 feet below from where it disappeared.

ATTRIBUTE FATAL FATAL SLIDE OF EARTH IN NANAIMO TO QUAKE

VICTORIA, B.C., Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press)Rock slides that killed two in Nanaimo last night, may have been due to earthquake disturbances which have been sweeping areas bordering on the Pacific Ocean during the last few days and which caused the destruction of Japaneses cities, it is believed by officials of the British Columbia Mines Department here.

This belief is supported by records of the Gonzales Heights Observatory here. Instruments at the observatory last night recorded earth tremors which indicated that large areas of land are settling down after the shock last week. The settlement, it is believed, may have caused the serious rock slide that occured in Nanaimo last night.

TON WEIGHT CRUSHED SKULL OF WORKER IN ELEVATOR PIT

SASKATOON, Sask., Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press)—John Proudfoot, 45, is dying in a local hospital as a result of injuries sustained when a one-ton weight dropped on his head while he was in the elevator pit at a local cartage warehouse this morning. His skull was smashed.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS TOTTERS UNDER FIRST GREAT TEST OF ITS AUTHORITY AS MEDIATOR

Italy Claims Right to Defend National Dignity in Dispute With Greece — "Impose Peace Only By War" Is Bitter Comment of Swiss Paper—Lord Cecil Emphasizes Danger to Europe.

ANOTHER FRUITLESS ADJOURNMENT.

GENEVA, Sept. 5.—The superstructure of the League of Nations is imperilled and in the British view the very foundations of present day Europe are shaken.

Such, briefly, is a summary of the situation at Geneva to-night, because of Italy's refusal to recognize the right of the League of Nations to intervene in her dispute with Greece.

Consternation and a deal of sadness prevails everywhere, for it is generally, though reluctantly, admitted that the League has been unable to withstand the first great test of its pracical use as machinery for regulating differences between nations, as one of its leading members has declined to concede to its competence. Hence, there is a growing sentiment among the smaller countries that if the League covenant applies to them, it apparently does not bind the great Powers of Europe.

All the more do they feel convinced of this because the proportions which the Italian and Greek conflict have taken are deemed by them to be unjustified by the original cause of the controversy, serious and regrettable as was the murder of the Ita lian officers.

But hope is not abandoned; there are stout hearts among the statesmen of the half hundred countries represented in Geneva, who, believers in the League and in the ideal of conciliation and arbitration which the League voices, refuse to accept that action of any member, powerful or weak, can succeed in ruining the League as a power for good.

ITALY'S CONTENTION.

Senor Salandra's entire argument to-day was that the questions arising from the assassination of the Italian mission should be settled by the Council of Ambassadors, and not by the League, because it was the Ambassadorial body which had appointed the mission to fix the frontier between Albania and Greece. That body was the living organism of the great peace conference and was empowered with the execution of the terms of the treaties.

The head of the Italian delegation accused Greece of cleverly seeking to escape from her responsibiilties and of diverting world attention from the murder of the Italian officers to Italy's seizure of Corfu, by denouncing this seizure as an act of dangerous aggression.

It was not Signor Salandra, but Mussolini, who seemed to be addressing the Council of the League to-day at its dramatic session.

VOICE OF MUSSOLINI.

As the good-natured-appearing former premier read his fateful message, the crowded Council chamber thought to hear in fancy, not the voice of Salandra, but that of his Fascist chief and leader, who has suddenly loomed up on the stage of Europe. No State would wish to belong to the League, read Signor Salandra, f membership meant renunciation of the right to defnd its national dignity. Italy had not menaced world peace and there was not sufficient reason for the application of the articles of the covenant cited by Greece, which were founded on the supposition that danger of war existed. Until the ambassadorial body announced decision, he contended, any action by the League was out of place, because of the League's complete incompetency.

THE GREEK ATTITUDE.

M. Politis remarked that the Greek Government repudiated energetically any allegation that it was morally or materially responsible for the odious crime committed on its territory. Greece, he declared, did not wish to evade the prerogatives of the Council of Ambassadors, but on the contrary, had asked that the Council pursue an investigation. Italy, however, in bombarding Corfu had created a situation which justified Greece in appealing to the League.

M. Politis insisted that his suggestion of yesterday that the League Council appoint a neutral commission to inquire into the crime, Greece was using common sense and trying to be fair all around, for his proposed League commission could proceed with its work in conjunction with the Ambassadors' Council. Not only Greece, but Italy, was bound under the circumstances to refer the dispute to the League of Nations; both in letter and spirit the covenant of the League demanded it.

If the Council of the League accepted the Italian point of view, then, said M. Politis, it was tantamount to ruin of the pact of the League.

NATIONS RUSH RELIEF TO STRICKEN JAPANESE

BRITISH FLEET HELP

News of the Disaster Still Fragmentary and Conflicting—Japan Uses Reserve Fund For Sufferers

RESTORING ORDER.

LONDON, Sept 5.— News of the earthquake reaching London from Japan continues scarce, piecemeal and conflicting and it still is impossible to form any idea of the real extent of the disaster. It would seem that whatever sources of communication are available probably are being monopolized by the Japanese Government and the authorities for humanitarian purposes—securing the most effective aid in the terrible circumstances.

All of the countries of Europe are volunteering all possible assistance. They are raising funds, sending war ships, and arranging to provide food, medicament and other necessaries for the stricken people. The columns of the British newspapers are much occupied by reports from commercial firms having relations with Japan concerning the safety of their representatives but in these circles it is difficult to ascertain anything with certainty, and it is believed, it will be a long time before the details of the catastrophe are fully known, for even the European Governments are finding it almost impossible to learn the fate of their own representatives.

Royal Family Decimated

The Central News reports that its Tokio correspondent escaped from the capital Saturday and after many hardships, arrived in Kobe with other refugees. He sends the following:

"Early estimates of the loss of life and damage to property will be found to be much too low. It is now known that the dead number 200,000 while the financial loss is as much as five billion yen—($2,500,000,000).

"Although the Emperor and Empress and the Regent escaped with their lives there has been a heavy toll among the other members of the Royal Family. The Government is facing the situation with great gallantry. Premier Yamamoto and Home Secretary Goto have taken up on themselves the work of supervising the temporary relief bureau at Tokio and are using, 9,500,000 yen of the Government reserve for that purpose. The Cabinet ordered the mobilization of the Navy and the first and second squadrons received orders to rush food supplies to the stricken districts and to prepare to transport refugees.

Speculators Curbed

"At Osaka and Kobe speculation has begun in food-stuffs, and the Government has come down on profiteers with a firm hand. Holders of building materials also raised their prices but they also were drastically handled and compelled to sell supplies at the cost price.

"It is estimated that 500 foreign-

QUAKE LEFT GREAT GAPS IN PAVEMENTS

Yokohama Is a Charnel House—Bury Bodies at Sea.

TOKIO, Sept. 6. — (Canadian Press)—Yokohama is a charnel house, the canals and waterfront are filled with dead and the stench from decomposing bodies is unbearable, according to refugees arriving from the stricken city today. It is estimated that more than 200 foreigners lost their lives there.

Most of the dead and injured among the Yokohama foreigners were those who were caught by the earthquake and fire while shopping in the downtown district. Thousands of the terror-stricken natives drowned in the canals when seeking safety from the raging inferno which followed the temblor. The earthquake left great gaps in the pavements and wrecked most of the buildings. Fire, which started in numerous place at once, completed the destruction.

The British and American residents of Yokohama who escaped the disaster are gathering the bodies of foreign victims for burial at sea.

The remnants of the Chinese population of the ruined city are gathered under the bluffs without food and shelter. Their condition is pitiable.

ADJOINING FARMERS LOSE SEASON'S CROPS.

Fire Broke Out While the Insurance Agent Called With Contract.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 5. — Ross Cannon and Geo. Mattice, two farmers whose farms adjoin each other about two miles northwest of Portland on the Newboro road, suffered severe loss to-day, when most of their property and live stock was destroyed by fire. The former lost this year's crop, barns, silos, 32 head of cattle, saving only two horses. The loss will be over $5,000, with about $1,200 insurance. The loss on the Mattice property is in the neighborhood of $12,000, uninsured, Mr. Mattice was away at the time and when the fire broke out insurance agents were there awaiting the owner's return for the purpose of drawing up an insurance contract.

RECORD CROP IN WEST FORECAST BY MOTHERWELL

Minister of Agriculture Expects 400,000,000 Bushels If Frost Holds Off.

WEEK WILL DECIDE.

"If the frost keeps off another week the west will have the greatest crop in its history. Don't be surprised if it reaches 400,0000,00 bushels. It will go a long way in putting that great part of Canada back on its feet.

This was the opinion expressed by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture in the federal government here yesterday.

Hon. Mr. Motherwell remarked that the meaning of so great a crop was almost beyond the imagination in its effect on the general welfare of the country.

"It seems almost like a romance," he declared when discussing the subject. "Just recall that it is thirty-five or forty years since the west began to produce grain, and yet last year Canada became the greatest exporter of wheat in the world. This year, unless some very untoward incident occurs we will exceed any other country in grain exports by upwards of 100,000,000 bushels. It is a story which is almost beyond one's imagination."

Speaking of the crop in a more specific way, the minister said that Alberta this year was almost free from rust, and would perhaps exceed all its records in volume. Rust was damaging some other parts particularly in Manitoba, and also here and there in Saskatchewan, but despite this the total result of the harvesting would be marvelous.

"When the full significance of a crop such as this is considered," he said, "surely the west is no place to run away from. The money that will flow in from upwards of 400,000,000 bushels, even if the price is low, will be millions, and those millions will pay debts and help to rehabilitate the whole western area. Not only that, but the money that will be put in circulation means a great deal for more than the farmer.

"The railways, the millers, the cities, towns, businesses of all kinds, everyone who deals with the west will be benefited directly or indirectly by it and, and yet——" he paused to emphasize the point, "not half the possibilities of that country have been reached. There are great areas still almost untouched such as the Peace River district. Canadians should think these things over and take new courage. They have a wonderful future before them."

SHOULD BE STOPPED.

Another automobile racer has met death in his hazardous occupation, slaughtered to make a Roman holiday.

Travelling at frightful speed, his car skidded, overturned and he was picked up with his neck broken.

There is no useful purpose served by these speed contests; they draw crowds merely because of that strange fascination the spectacle of a number of men risking their lives has for the majority of people.

It is the knowledge that at any moment one of those helmeted drivers may be hurled into eternity that gives the real thrill to the automobile racing game.

Human life should be too precious to be sacrificed to gratify the mob's desire for a thrill.

Driving cars at a high speed means nothing important nowadays when on every road in the country motorists are proving that automobiles of almost every type can be operated at a rate that is much too fast for safety.

Motor car racing is not much of an improvement over bull fighting, and it is time that the authorities recognized the folly of permitting contests that depend for their popularity merits upon the amount of risk for the participants that is involved.

The law tries to prevent people from committing suicide with poison or firearms. Why not with motor cars as well?

SPECIAL EXHIBITS.

The announcement that the space for special exhibits at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition is rapidly being taken is gratifying in the evidence it affords of the fact that manufacturers and merchants have learned to appreciate the value of the Exhibition as a means of placing their products before the public.

Many thousands will visit Peterborough's big Fair next week, and the opportunity of bringing such masses of people into touch with the goods that are made or sold in this city is too great to be missed.

In this way the Exhibition adds to its advertising value, for it not only impresses visitors with its own progress and growth, but it also demonstrates the fact that Peterborough is a most important manufacturing centre, and that the city possesses business houses which can stand comparison with those of any other centre in Canada.

The growth in the special exhibit department is therefore welcome on its own account, and doubly so because it proves that the Peterborough Industrial is making rapid headway towards the mark the directors have set for themselves.

Peterborough visitors should not lose this chance of getting acquainted with the city's industries as revealed by the special exhibits on view.

THE COAL SITUATION.

The Minister of Mines has issued a statement setting forth the Ontario Government's views in regard to the coal situation.

There is little new in Mr. McCrea's resume—it, as is customary with Governments nowadays, seeks to throw most of the responsibility upon the municipalities, at the same time taking an optimistic view of the situation.

The delivery of coal into Ontario during the summer months, it is pointed out, has been heavier than usual, and at the present time many householders have a full supply of fuel for the winter, assuring a smaller demand when the cold weather comes.

Nevertheless, the Minister feels constrained to urge upon municipalities—and this advice should not be lost sight of in Peterborough where there has been considerable official apathy on this point—that they should be prepared to take aggressive action in the matter of finding substitutes for anthracite, in which task they will have the co-operation of the Provincial Fuel Controller.

Especially important is the concluding paragraph of the statement, which is commended to the attention of the City Council.

"A survey of the situation in each municipality should be made at once by local authorities with a view to ascertaining its requirements."

That is a preliminary step that will be of value no matter how the situation may develop, and it should be taken without delay.

It would be of decided advantage to know just how much coal will be required to meet Peterborough's needs and to have some idea of where substitutes can be obtained in the event of a shortage.

DARE THE LEAGUE ACT?

The League of Nations faces the supreme crisis of its existence, for it must either interfere swiftly and effectively in the Greco-Italian dispute or it must acknowledge its incompetence to perform the very task for which it was created, says the Montreal Star. If the league stands idly by while Mussolini cracks his whip over Greece the only page of its history that will remain to be written is the story of its final disintegration and the dissolving of the dream of the latest Utopia.

Article Ten of the Covenant is at least clear on this point:

"The members of the league undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the league. In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat of danger of aggression the Council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled."

It cannot be disputed that the seizure of the Island of Corfu by Italy is "an act of aggression against the territorial integrity" of Greece. If the League of Nations had any inkling that such seizure was contemplated, then it was its patent duty to take steps to stop such a move. It might be difficult to argue that there was no "threat or danger" of such aggressive action when Mussolini presented his exorbitant and harsh demands to Greece with a twenty-four-hour ultimatum for acceptance or rejection.

What will Poland and Portugal, Rumania and Ecuador, Czecho-Slovakia and the other small nations think since they have not only subscribed their names to the league, but have paid large sums for the maintenance of its extravagant machinery, if Italy, which is a powerful nation, if not one of the great powers, can flout the authority of the league in this fashion. It is for protection against just such violent aggression as this that the smaller nations are paying heavy charges to Geneva.

A FOUR-HOUR DAY.

"O Dream of Rapture-" sing the lovers in "Tristan und Isolde." But without either their impulse or their ecstacy we can sing the same words with equal enthusiasm—if Dr. Charles B. Steinmetz is correct in his recent little message to the world, says the Montreal Star. Dr. Steinmetz is an electrical expert of international renown. He believes the time is coming very shortly when there will be no long, backbreaking drudgery, and when no body will work more than four hours a day. Electricity will do the rest.

It is a great and glorious prospect, and it causes a great and glorious feeling to creep over us and make our blood go singing merrily through our veins. No longer shall we have to labor at that which wearies without satisfying. For instance, furniture will be shifted by merely connecting up electric furniture mover with the nearest socket. The dishes will wash themselves up in automatically rotating dishpans heated by wire coils. Floors will clean themselves when the violet rays are turned upon them, and similar treatment will remove all footprints from Persian rugs. Potatoes will rub their skins off through rubbing against each other in an electric rocking bath. Cabbage will shake its own leaves loose. Beds will revert to their overnight condition of inviting and immaculate smoothness, and pyjamas will fold themselves up, when the radio ironer sends invisible waves of electricity through the bedroom air from the wall socket.

But will it be entirely an unmixed blessing, this relief from all work that wearies? Will automatically cooked meals taste just as nice as those prepared by some devoted housewife? Will a room set to rights by the manipulation of self-regulating wave-measures from an electric straightener leave the same impression of an artist's hand, the same evidence of the deft, artistic touch, that marks the perfect housekeeper? Will a drive in an automatically driven automobile be as pleasurable or as comfortable or as free from nerve-strain as one in which the knight of the road labors strenuously at the wheel?

We fear lest there be an embarrassment of relief from labor.

THE COST OF GOVERNMENT.

Studying the cost of government in Canada the Citizens' Research Institute has issued a bulletin, just received by The Examiner, which takes up the question of the expense of Provincial governments.

It is pointed out that Provincial Governments are necessary, and probably always will be necessary, although the number might be cut down by amalgamating contiguous provinces with similar local interests.

This, the Institute declares, is not likely to happen in the near future, so that the only remedy for the situation is to improve the administration for the existing provinces.

That such improvement is necessary is only too evident from the figures quoted in the latest bulletin.

Ontario, for example, had the following per capita expenditure during 1921

Debt charges, (sinking and interest fund,) $1.46.
Education, $2.32.
Legislation and general government, $1.52.
Administration of Justice, $0.64.
Agriculture, $0.47.
Public welfare institutions, etc., $1.90.
Highways, bridges, etc., $0.68.

Total per capita expenditure for 1921, $8.99, as compared with $8.08 in 1920, $6.97 in 1919, and $5.73 in 1918, an increase of 56.9 per cent. in the per capita expenditure in four years.

In general, throughout Canada, it is found that provincial expenditures are increasing, except in one province, more rapidly than population.

It may be said that the increase in the earlier years at least was due to the increased cost of living, and the increased prices that governments have to pay for everything that they buy.

But this is beside the mark, unless it can be shown that citizens who also suffer from the higher cost of living have larger incomes from which to support the burden of taxation which directly or indirectly falls upon them.

If increased costs force individuals to retrench, it should logically follow that the same causes should force Governments to retrench.

And most certainly it is time for both individuals and governments to cut down expenditures.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.— Despite announcement of suspension of business by a grain company here, the wheat market to-day showed firmness, helped by export buying of 1,000,000 bushels of wheat and of 250,000 bushels of rye. Wheat closed steady at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-4c. off, September $1.01 3-8 and December at $1.05 5-8 to $1.05 3-4. Corn finished 1-4 to 12c. down; oats unchanged to 3-8c. lower and provisions at 2c. to 10c. decline.

Word that Greece had purchased 20,000 tons of Durum and Hard Winter wheat for September shipment from the United States gave an upward swing to wheat prices at the outset and firmness of Liverpool quotations in the face of yesterday's decline here counted as an additional bullish influence. On the advance in price, however, offerings increased, and the fact that one grain company was in financial difficulties acted as a check on buyers. Nevertheless, good support for values was forthcoming on all declines.

Predictions of rain in Canada likely to delay the crop movement were of considerable effect as a prop to the wheat market during the last part of the day, and so, too, was evidence that export demand for Greece was being supplemented by purchasing for other European countries. Moreover, gossip was current that Russia had decided to prohibit grain exports. The gossip as to such action on the part of Russia, though, was unconfirmed. On the other hand, it was announced just before the close that 50,000 bushels of new Canadian wheat, duty paid, had been imported for use at Minneapolis and Duluth.

Corn and oats were depressed at times by the closing out of trades by an embarrassed grain company. Something of an offset, however, resulted from reports that two or three weeks of favorable weather was yet needed to mature the corn crop in some sections.

Provisions were weak in sympathy with the hog market.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press)—The tone of the market for spot supplies of oats was steady here today. There is a good enquiry for flour. Prices for all lines of millfeed are firmly maintained. Demand for rolled oats is steady with prices unchanged. A fairly large business is passing in baled hay. There was no further change in the egg situation. The feeling in butter is firm. Trade in cheese was quiet but the impression among buyers is that prices are likely to go higher if English importers come in for supplies liberally.

WALLPAPER MUSEUM NOW OPENED

CASSEL, Germany, Sept. 6.—(Associated Press).—Wallpapers and wallcoverings of all nations and of all periods are shown in the new wallpaper museum recently opened here.

French wallpaper of the period immediately following the Napoleonic era is of especial interest and attracts much attention. Terror made its way into the French wall decorations to an amazing degree. Paper of that period is more bizarre than many of the modern expressionistic wallpapers, and shows amazing combinations of colors. There is an extensive display of American wallpaper from early colonial days down to the present, showing both the hand-made and machine-made products.

BUSINESS SLUMPS IN JAPAN.

TOKIO, Sept. 5. — (Associated Press.)—Each month since January has shown an increasing business depression in Japan, although early in the year it seemed business was improving. As a result there has been a marked increase in unemployment and labor troubles.

During June approximately 25,000 men were involved in strikes. These strikes were due in a large measure to the discharge of workmen by the larger factories, the men retained striking as a protest against the discharge allowances given their fellow workmen whose services had been dispensed with.

Their Future

Your Boy, For Instance

Your boy can be interested in his own future.

His ideas will be "steadied" by the knowledge of your plans for him.

His "preparation" expenses are provided for "no matter what happens."

Later on his training helps to win confidence.

Leading to his ultimate success, and your deep satisfaction.

If your boy or girl could speak now with the wisdom of later years, they would ask, above all else, for education, training for business,—a real start in life.

Every parent knows that the boy who has training is selected for a good position; and the girl who has the right start can make a place for herself in the world, and always be sure of independence and happiness.

You want your children to be equipped for the battle of life, as others are.

Make Your Plans Secure

Why not provide, as many parents are now doing, that "no matter what may happen" your boy or girl will have the advantage of a good start in life?

In these times they need training and the help you can give as never before.

See what the Canada Life can do with the new Educational Policy

It will provide immediately, if you should die, an educational fund, to be held in trust at interest for your child's training.

This fund cannot be touched by the child until the date set by you has been reached.

It will then be paid in eight separate payments, six months apart, to cover the four vital years of training.

If you should live, the cash value of the contract, with dividends, will be available at any time to carry out any of your plans.

Nothing could be more simple—the funds provided—your plans made definite and secure—whether you live or die.

You have probably thought this matter over many times. Here is a chance to do something—tangible, immediate, yet quite easy.

Why not find out now what the educational policy will do for your child? This will not put you under any obligation.

Re-iterates That His Previous Statements About U. S. Are Quite Correct

MONTREAL, September 6. Canadian Press. — Speaking a second time at the eighth annual dinner last night, Lord Birkenhead, referring to the statement of Martin Conboy, representing the American Bar Association, that the United States was satisfied to live its own life and not meddle in European troubles, declared that when he had said in 1918 that the United States would remain exclusive, he was attacked on all sides.

"Now it appears, after all this time that I was quite right," he added.

Pausing for a moment, he said: "I am a bit late, you know, we were very stupid when the peace conference was on at Verseilles. If we had only then realized that the United States intended to live their own lives, we should have been much ahead. If we had known that the United States was to remain out many matter which have caused endless trouble in the world might have been spared. We should have known and been prepared, for what the United States did with Armenia, what happened in Greece, and in that case the Ruhr crisis might have been avoided."

Lord Birkenhead said he would not recall one particle from what he had said on the peace conference.

WARM TRIBUTE FROM REFUGEES

Officers and Men of Canadian Pacific Doing Splendid Relief Work in Japan.

LATE DESPATCHES

LONDON, Sept. 6. — (Canadian Press).—A Globe despatch to-day, dated Wednesday, says that refugees reaching there pay a warm tribute to the splendid work of the Canadian Pacific officers and men at Yokohama. They organized rescue parties on Saturday night and saved women and children, regardless of nationality.

The steamship Empress of Canada arrived at Kobe Wednesday with 1,400 refugees, many of them severely injured.

The steamer Empress of Australia is still at Yokohama, serving as a home for refugees.

AID FROM CANADA.

OTTAWA, Sept. 6.—Canada feels deeply for Japan, and abundant aid will go to the distressed people in that stricken empire. Following an emergency meeting of the Federal Cabinet yesterday afternoon, the Prime Minister announced that steps have been taken to despatch the first instalment of supplies on the steamer Empress of Russia, which sails this evening from Vancouver for Japan. The supplies will include malted milk and flour, two foodstuffs most urgently needed now, first for the children, and as much lumber for building purposes as can be given space on the steamer. Hon. Thomas A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, has been given charge of the purchasing of food and building supplies.

OFFICIAL NEWS.

Official information of the disaster in Japan is beginning to come from the stricken area over the cables. One such message was received yesterday in London and was relayed to New York. As yet, this sourse of news is necessarily scant, but it is promised that in a few days the world will know authoritatively the full measure of the catastrophe free from exaggeration. The estimate placed upon deaths in the cities of Tokio and Yokohama indicates that they were not as numerous as had been supposed. According to the Government office in Japan, the mortality toll in Tokio is placed at 100,000, while in Yokohama it is given at 110,000. Other estimates from reliable individuals in the Japanese capital are far under this. U. S. Ambassador Cyrus E. Woods computes the death toll in Tokio of 10,000. Roderick Matheson, of the New York Tribune, places it at 25,000.

DAMAGE ENORMOUS.

In any event, the disaster is an appalling one, and damage to property almost beyond calculation. Not only Tokio and Yokohama, but many other populous cities have been completely or almost completely destroyed, and over a million people are homeless and lacking food.

Conditions created are such as to call for the speediest and fullest measures of relief for the distressed population.

This Leaves the Arms Free from Hairy Growths

(Toilet Talks)

A simple method for completely removing every trace of hair or fuzz is here given. This is painless and usually a single treatment will banish even stubborn growths. To remove hairs, make a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This method will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be certain you get delatone.

NON-STOP PASSENGER TRAINS IN ENGLAND

LONDON (By Mail to United Press).—Noisless non-stop passenger trains are in operation over 600 yards of track at Southend, England.

A revolving, endless screw laid the length of the track meshes with fixed cogs beneath the cars. At stations the worm revolves as rapidly as elsewhere on the line, but the meshing ridge is altered in the same way that a long curled shaving from a hand plane changes when it is stretched.

This reduces the speed of the train to about that of an escalator and passengers may step off with safety.

Away from stations the speed of the trains is twenty-four miles per hour.

RAW SILK MARKET IS DEMORALIZED.

Effect of Japanese Disaster—Loss of Stock Unknown.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Complete demoralization of the local raw silk market was the immediate effect of the news of the Japanese disaster, according to the Journal of Commerce. Importers of raw silk and brokers refused to make quotations yesterday when the market re-opened after being closed since last Friday. Nearly every raw silk house was flooded with inquiries from throwsters and manufacturers as soon as the first clerk opened the offices.

Aside from the stocks believed to have been stored in warehouses in Yokohama, variously estimated at from 30,000 to 40,000 bales, much concern was felt regarding the probable damage that has been done to the filatures. One importer said damage to filatures and cocoons might add another 50,000 bales of silk to the loss of reeled silk in the warehouses ready for shipment.

The immediate effect of the disaster on the Italian market was withdrawal of prices on cable advices from Milan to the leading Italian silk importing houses here. The Italian crop was reported to be about 10 per cent above last year, and it was said in one quarter that shipments would be available in a very short time.

SAYS TURKS WILL JEER THEIR FIRST WOMAN M. P.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 6.—(Associated Press)—"Does a round of eager applause await Mme. Mustapha Kemal, who has just been elected to the Turkish parliament, when she takes her seat in that body?" is a question asked recenty by N. Batsaria a Roumanian diplomat, who was formerly a member of the Ottoman senate.

"What I predict is that she will be greeted with grittings of teeth and with dark looks of resentment," he went on, replying to his own question. "The young woman who has been chosen by a Turkish electorate to defend its interest will have a hard road to travel. In the national assembly at Angora there are many hodjas—teachers and interpreters of Islamic law—who will regard the advent of a woman into the assembly as a blow at the sacred institutions of their religion.

They will curse Mustapha Kemal under their breath for imposing the society of a woman upon them as an equal. For Mme. Kemal they will adopt a thousand and one ways of indicating to her personally their intense disapproval of her course.

"Lady Astor's first appearance on the floor of the House of Commons was an event pleasant in its associations, because the west has a proregard for women as a thing of both beauty and usefulness But the young Turkish woman will receive from her colleagues no such tribute of appreciation. The Turk never associates with a female on any basis approaching equality."

CUBAN DELEGATION HOSTS AT BANQUET.

Entertained Lieutenant-Governor and Other Representatives Ontario Province.

TORONTO, Sept. 6. —(Canadian Press). — Representatives of Cuba, Mexico, Spain and Venezuela last night fraternized with local government, civic and commercial dignitaries at a banquet tendered by the Cuban Government delegation now in Toronto to the province and civic officials, directors of the C. N. E. and Commander and officers of the cruiser Patria.

Lieut-Governor Cockshutt, Premier Ferguson and civic and C.N.E. officials were among the guests.

Hosts of guests alike looked forward to the day when trade relawould assume the magnitude warranted by the needs and interchangeable resources of their respective countries.

So far as the status of the C. N. E. was concerned, a most significant promise was made by Premier Ferguson, who, while he was careful not to commit his government to any definite policy assured President Miller that the Exhibition had reached such proportions that the Province could no longer avoid shouldering her share of responsibility.

THIRD ATTEMPT TO EXTRADITE BANKER

BISMARCK. N.D., Sept. 6. (United Press).—A third attempt by authorities of Warrick County, Ind., to send Jourgen Olson, Minot, N.D., banker, back to Newburgh, Ind., on a county grand jury indictment, will be made tomorrow, when the extradition hearings open. Governor Nestos for the third time has honored an extradition request of Governor McCray of Indiana, which Olson is opposing. The first two requests were withdrawn because of alleged defects.

Olson, together with Arthur Halvorson and John C. Effinger, was indicted by a Warrick County, Ind., Grand Jury, November, 1920, on charges of conspiracy to obtain money under false pretenses and grand larceny in connection with the closing of a State bank at Newburgh, Ind. The amount involved was about $80,000.

E. R. Sinkler, attorney for Olson, contends that some of the charges are as of Nov. 1, 1917, and outlawed by the statute of limitations. He further contends that Indiana should not take Olson back to and coerce him to settle "because under the Indiana law stockholders are liable for the full amount of the bank's losses and the depositors cannot lose."

QUAINTEST TOWN IN AMERICA

OCRACOKE, N. C., Sept. 6.—(United Press).—In Ocracoke:

There is no crime and no peace officers; lodging costs ten cents a night; supper of fish, chicken, oysters, cakes and figs, costs 80 cents.

Thousands of chickens roam as community property;

Cats have destroyed all mice, rats and snakes;

Mustangs rove the mountains back of the village and wild cattle graze along the beach in front; the shimmy and tango are unknown; instead of "Yes, We Got No Bananas" the popular song is "Pop Goes the Weasel."

Oil lamps are used for illumination and the one negro in the town is considered indispensible.

Ocracoke, a throwback to the days of the English explorers and a queer mixture of the romance of the South Seas, the religion of the Puritans and the civilization of the Nineteenth Century, is the quaintest little town in America.

The eight hundred inhabitants, who have spent their lives here, following in the footsteps of their fathers and grandfathers, live from the fish in the sea at their doors and the figs as fine as Smyrna's, which grow wild in the sand mountains in their backyards.

The main street of Oracoke is a creek. The town has no streets or roads, only little footpaths running down to the beach, or connecting the rear door of one dweller with that of another. There is not an officer of the law in town and although some of the doors have locks, relics of bygone days, the keys long have been lost and forgotten.

The town is on an island by the same name, fifteen miles in length barel ya mile wide and five hours' journey by boat from the mainland. The island of Ocracoke is within sight of the graveyard of the Atlantic, Hatteras' wretched shoals, and occasionally at dawn the natives have arisen to find an ocean steamer stranded almost in their yards.

Horses run wild outside this little town, as do the mustangs in isolated sections of the Western plains. Cattle, as wild as on the pampas of Argentina, rove the ocean beach to the northward. There are no dogs on the island, but cats have multiplied until there are hundreds. Having rid the village of mice and rats, the felines have almosth eradicated the many snakes which once thrived in Ocracoke.

There are thousands of chickens about the place but they are community property and no fences to restrict them are in evidence anywhere. Tame geese brants and ducks also are numerous. They are used to decoy the millions of Labrador wild fowls which swarm in the marshes of Ocracoke and Currituck to feed.

Old Fashioned Dancer

The people are just as unusual as the town itself. They dance almost nightly, but their dances are the ones introduced by their grandfathers and the shimmy, tango and fox trot are as strange here as crime. A favorite melody of the island orchestra is "Pop Goes the Weasel." Lamp light is the only illumination after dark.

The great lighthouse of the village sheds its beams over Ocracoke as it flashes far out to sea to warn away navigators. Meals in the town cost eighty cents and lodging can be procured for ten cents. Hosts usually are angry if their guest does not eat heartiy of the supper, which ordinarily consists of fresh fried fish, fried chicken, fried ham, stewed oysters, clam chowder, baked potatoes, rice, hot cakes, coffee, and fig preserves.

The race line is rigidly drawn in Ocracoke but there is one negro permitted to reside here and he is regarded as indispensible. He is the island sexton

There are two churches, both Methodist. The natives tell a simple story o the division in the church. The original church was the Southern Methodist. An elder wanted an organ and anothe said the idea was preposterous, insistin musical instruments had no place in houses of worship. When the progressives rolled the organ into the building he secured a missionary and established the Northern church. The congregations now are about equally divided and equally strange is the fact that although in the heart of the "Democratic youth," most of the men of the Northern church are Democrats are those of the Southern branch are republicans.

Ocracoke is without a peace officer as there is no crime. A magistrate gave up his commission last year after holding office eight years without trying a case. Tragedy has stalked through the little community, but that was when seafaring residents battled with the elements and lost. The islanders are as expert boatsmen as the Kanakas of the Pacific and they ride outriggers to ballast their tiny fishing crafts.

While most of the men have journeyed from home, visiting port towns, few of the women have been farther away than the little settlement on the mainland, where the Ocracokers go on occasions to attend the theatre or visit a doctor. The villagers are a big suntanned lot, running to blue eyes and freckles.

The town is one of the historic spots in the Southland. The first English-speaking colonists to arrive in the Western world landed first at Ocracoke. They were the lost colonists of Virginia Dare, who went to Roanoke Island and vanished.

Elward Teach, the pirate "Blackbeard," caroused here, gave the place its name and met his death, according to legend. He was killed when a British naval expedition attacked his two ships. Teach, confident of victory, longed for daybreak, the villagers say, and cried "O, crow cock," and from that phrase with alternations came the name Ocracoke.

MEXICO'S "BURBANK" SAYS CORN WILL SOLVE REPUBLIC'S PROBLEMS

(By FREDERICK G. NEUMEIER)

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Sept. 6 (United Press).—Mexico's "Burbank" is inaugurating the greatest program of education on the growing of corn in the history of this country.

He plans that the average yield of corn per acre in this country shall climb from seven bushels, the present average, to sixty-five bushels.

He is Dr. Zeferino Dominguez, a Mexican, who got his inspiration at the World's Exposition in Chicago in 1893. Since that time he has been experimenting until he has now made clear in motion pictures the manner in which the Mexican farmer and peon can grow more and better corn.

Dr. Dominguez's campaign will consist of sending to each state in Mexico motion pictures and lecturers on how the corn seeds should be tested and how the land should be prepared.

He outlined his plans to the United Press and next year's crop, it is expected will show the results of his many years of labor.

The Staff of Life

"Corn in Mexico is the staff of life of ninety percent of the native Mexican people," Dr. Dominguez told the United Press. "In this crop all the problems of Mexico are involved, the political, the economic and the ethological problems.

"The scarcity of corn is one of the causes, if not the only cause of the frequent conflicts of the Mexican people.

"Corn is grown in every state of the Republic of Mexico, but due to the old methods of farming the natives use, the crop as a rule is not enough to supply the needs of the country.

"While corn is grown in every state in the Republic, there are only eight states that grow wheat, two cotton, on fibre such as henequin, two sugar and three fruits.

"Mexico is beginning a vigorous campaign for the betterment of agriculture and I hope that will end the turbulent conditions in Mexico."

In 1893 Dr. Dominguez decided to go to the United States after working for several years in a bank here and seeing how the corn crop effected the conditions in Mexico.

In Chicago he became inspired by the exhibition of corn, farms in miniature, etc. So he decided that a study of corn would be of big benefit to his land.

Went to U. S. Universities

He went to the universities of Illinois, Ames, Nebraska, Wisconsin and others on a visit to see their experiments.

Then he went to California and met Luther Burbank and the inspiration having gotten a strong foothold, came back to Mexico to experiment.

Motion pictures that he has prepared show the Mexican farmer, many who are unable to read, how to pick seed corn, tests to be made, and also how to prepare the soil and use modern American farm machinery.

State governments as well as the federal government are backing his campaign.

NO OPERATION FOR HER

She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Escaped the Operation Doctor Advised

Louisville, Ky.—"I wish to thank you for what your medicine has done for me. I was in bed for eight or nine days every month and had a great deal of pain. The doctor said my only relief was an operation. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines and tried the Vegetable Compound and the Sanative Wash, and they surely did wonders for me. I feel fine all the time now, also am picking up in weight. I will tell any one that your medicines are wonderful, and you may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. ED. BOEHNLEIN, 1130 Ash St., Louisville, Ky.

Backache, nervousness, painful times, irregularity, tired and run-down feelings, are symptoms of female troubles. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken whenever there is reason to fear such troubles. It contains nothing that can injure, and tends to tone up and strengthen the organs concerned, so that they may work in a healthy, normal manner. Let it help you as it has thousands of others. It is now selling almost all over the world.

FINDS BUSINESS DEAD IN SOUTHERN RUSSIA

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(Associated Press).—South Russia at present offers no golden opportunities for American business men, according to John H. Lang, of Seattle, who recently passed through this city on his way home after 18 months in Odessa and other Black Sea ports, where he was in charge of port operations for the American Relief Administration.

"There is practically no trade on the Black Sea," said Mr. Lang. "Even Greek and Rrmenian traders have given up in despair, and everyone who knows the Black Sea realizes that when these traders find insurmountable obstacles to commerce, there must be something serious the matter.

"The new economic policy of the Soviet was heralded as a long expected loosening of Government control, and when it was inaugurated more than a year ago the people had great hopes that a new era was dawning in communistic Russia But such hopes were soon dashed.

"After shopkeepers had opened their stores with what little stocks they could get, they found that the Government officials were waiting only for trade to be resumed to impose ruinous taxes. These taxes made business impossible for shopkeepers, for importers and exporters alike."

Harvest prospects in South Russia are excellent, according to Mr. Lang, who said that nobody in Russia should go hungry this winter.

Infant Mortality High in Japanese Cities.

TOKYO, Sept. 6 — (Canadian Press).—The high infant mortality of Japanese cities is causing grave alarm. Lack of sanitation in the slum districts is held responsible for this condition, and strenuous efforts to improve the situation are being put forward by various benevolent organizations in co-operation with the municipal authorities.

"The infant mortality rate in the six largest cities of Japan is staggeringly the civilized western countries," declared Eimatsu Okazaki, head of the child welfare department of the Tokio Bureau of Social Welfare. "Although we have been successful in minimizing the death rate of infants, it is not yet anywhere near the mark set by cities of other countries. In addition to this, the death rate of grown children in Tokio has been increasing in spite of desperate efforts made by the city authorities to prevent it."

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppresive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness, or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments, and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antiacid, such as Bisurated Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestents. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

VOLCANO BELCHES LAVA.

HILO, T.H., Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press)—The Kilauea Volcano resumed activity today with molten lava bursting forth with loud reports, according to messages received here late today from Thomas Boles, Superintendent of the Kilauea National Park. The lava, according to the message was hurled from 100 to 150 feet into the air and streamed down the sides of the volcano.

SAYS OLD VIOLINS NOT SUPERIOR TO NEW ONES

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 6.—(United Press).—In an old shanty, around which his pet terrier and his chickens run loose, Frank Albert Sennet, Dallas violin maker, toils all day long turning out violins of remarkable worth.

Sennet has been making violins for more than twenty years, more because of a passionate devotion to music than for any other reason.

Humming a little German folklore song, Sennet patiently carves, fits and fastens. Around him, on the wall, hang hundreds of parts of instruments-to-be and finished violins. Slabs of maple and spruce wood, imported from the Alps, from Germany, Austria and Italy are scattered about.

Sennet uses only a few native-grown woods—wood from foreign countries being better adapted for his purposes, he says.

In this room, Mischa Elman and Albert Spalding have played on violins of Sennet's making. On the walls are copies of letters of these and other artists written in praise of his excellent workmanship.

Sennet scoffs at the idea that ancient violins produce better tones than modern ones. Tone depends on workmanship and the wood that is put into the violin, he maintains.

Glycerine Mixture for Gas on Stomach

Simple glycerine, buckthorn bark etc., as mixed in Adlerika, helps any case gas on the stomach in TEN minutes. Miss Boissineau Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"About three years ago I was bothered with pimples on my face. The pimples were hard and small and festered, and my face was disfigured for a while. They oftentimes caused me to lie awake hours at a time as the irritation was so great.

"I tried different remedies but without any relief. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after the first application I could see an improvement. I continued using them and was completely healed after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Miss Rose Boissineau, 12 Bellevue Ave., Saulte Ste. ## ABSOLUTELY INCONCEIVABLE.

The late Paul Armstrong used to love to tell the story of the deaf man who was presented to the beautiful and charming Miss Heffeldinger.

"Mr. So-an-So," said the mutual friend, "I want you to meet Miss Heffeldinger."

"Mr. So-an-So's eyes widened in admiration for the gorgeous creature facing him.

"I'm awfully glad to meet you, Miss—Miss—" he began.

"MISS HEFELDINGER," voice slightly.

"I'm awfully sorry to be such a nuisance," said the deaf man, "but, as the young lady can see for herself, I'm rather hard of hearing. Would you mind repeating the name just once more?" And he cupped his hand behind his ear.

"HEFELDINGER!" shouted the introducer.

The afflicted one shook his head sadly.

"It's no use," he lamented, "I can't make it out at all. Why, it sounds like Heffeldinger, to me!"

NOVA SCOTIA.

Q—What does Nova Scotia embrace?

A—Nova Scotia consists of a peninsula and the island of Cape Breton, and except for the isthmus, 13 miles wide, connecting with the South Eastern part of New Brunswick, it is surrounded on all sides by salt water consisting of the Bay of Fundy, The Atlantic Ocean, The Gulf of St. Lawrence, and Northumberland Strait. The peninsula is 350 miles long with a breadth varying from 50 to 100 miles. Halifax is the capital city. The climate is temperate, the sea modifying the temperature both of summer and winter. Lack of extremes of heat and cold tend to rapid growth of vegetation.

Cover Pretty Knees in the Winter Time.

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—No matter how pretty and dimpled and pink little Hildegarde's knees are, cover them up with stout, warm stockings during the coming nippy school days. Our climate's too changeable for children to wear socks, warns Dr. M. Alice Asserson in a series of timely admonitions to mothers.

"It's true socks are worn by some children in England and France during the winter," she says, "but there the weather's less variable. A child, particularly a very little one, should be kept warm from neck to his toes."

Dr. Asserson is director of children's work for the New York Tuberculosis Association, which co-operates in the health program of the New York Federation of Women's Clubs.

"Dress children in wool, or silk and wool undergarments, or in cotton, if very far south," she advises, "but never put dark woollen dresses on them. Dark wool isn't easily cleaned and too often such dresses are worn uncleaned from one season to the next. Dress the child in ginghams and prints that may be washed weekly.

"Many country schools now prohibit woollen frocks. They insist on washable garments. Some schools have for a uniform pleated woollen skirts, with cotton blouses. Health authorities say that the all-cotton frock, suit or uniform is better. In childhood, diseases are more easily contracted, hence the need for the utmost care.

"The wise mother will select gay ginghams and quaint prints for her little girl.

"A little girl's school dress forming the principal feature of a Fifth avenue window display recently was of red and white check gingham, with a front panel extending from the neck to the hem of the little skirt, and this panel was outlined with a row of simple fresh-water pearl buttons. These buttons are inexpensive, strong and washable, making them suitable for the small frock that must go to the tub again and again.

"Dress the child warmly and simply, in clothing that can be kept clean," Dr. Asserson concludes.

CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6.—(Associated Press)—When Dr. William G. Elliott, founder of what later became Washington University of this city, left Boston on his westward journey more than four score years ago to "found a school in a district not yet wholly civilized," he considered his destination reached on his arrival here, so the story goes, as he saw men carrying mail in animal skin pouches. He immediately established the Mission Free School, a non-sectarian institution which recently celebrated its 82nd anniversary.

The institution is unique, and has educated thousands of children without cost. Children from 3 to 14 years are provided for, the capacity of the institution being 50. A matron, two teachers, a physician, two nurses and a recreational director composes the staff. A feature is that domestic science is taught boys as well as girls.

PHILANTHROPIC ACTIVITIES.

OMAHA, Sept. 6.— (Associated Press)—Expansion of the philanthropic activities of the Woodmen of the World through the establishment of an old people's home for members of the order near San Antonio, Texas, has been announced by W. A. Fraser, sovereign commander of the society.

The new home will be located, it is believed, close to the Woodmen of the World War memorial sanitorium recenily erected near San Antonio for members of the fraternal organization afflicted with tuberculosis.

"The new home," said Mr. Fraser, "will be built as soon as suitable plans can be drawn up. Old men of the society whose families have died, married, moved away or lost interest in them will be cared for in the home. Every state in which the Woodmen have members will endow and maintain a certain number of rooms in the home and these suites will be named after the states. The old men will spend their last days in the most pleasant surroundings in a homey atmosphere."

ECZEMA—CA USE—EFFECT

Eczema is a common disease of the epidermis, or outer skin. It is not contagious, but troublesome and oftimes prolonged. It may be acute or chronic, which means a difference in the inflammation's intensity, not length of time.

The real causes are rather uncertain. It may result from inherited causes, or from disease of the stomach, kidneys, uterus and abdominal organs. There are other microbic cases but the micro-organisms cannot produce the lesion—that is, change in the function or structure of an organ or tissue, unless the soil is suitable.

At first the cuticle or outer skin is partially and sometimes entirely covered with an erythematous blush, in which form large numbers of tiny vesicles. There is heat, some swelling and redness. The patient must scratch, in spite of himself. This bursts the vesicles which exude a clear, sticky fluid. There is a scale formation and scabs under which new skin forms. Nervousness and loss of sleep are frequent. There is not much real constitutional change, however, except in aggravated prolonged attacks.

Treatment: Nature will help. Give special attention to diet. Eat only plain, nourishing food, avoid sour or acid fruits, special sweets or irritating food. Get the blood in normal condition so all organs may function properly. Do not use lotions or washes on parts affected. Use a salve or ointment to overcome irritation and inflammation. In extreme cases it may be well to use a bandage to protect from the air or any microbic infection. Your physician should be consulted.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond, (Terry) lovely and unbelievably innocent is imperson ating her beautiful half sister.

Juliet Divine, known as the Million Dollar Doll—whose sketchy career is unknown to Terry.

Miles Sheridan, Terry's 'Dream Prince' furnished the money for her convent education when she was a child. His wife is making him wretched with her infidelity and in order to facilitate her obtaining a divorce Miles offers the Million Dollar Doll $20 000 to take a yacht trip with him stipulating that he will not "trouble" the girl. This he knows will give his wife sufficient grounds for divorce. Juliet is unable to take the trip herself but working on her little sister's gratitude to Miles she per suades Terry to go in her place. Terry is an exquisite counterpart of her sister.

Betty Sheridan, Miles' wife is deeply in love with

Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek who does not know of Terry's relationship to quiet is in love with the younger girl.

Poor little Terry unaware of her sister's reputation and how she must ap pear in the eyes of the world starts the voyage with Miles who does not reco g nize in her the little girl he befriended sc long ago. Mr. Harkness his servant is sternly disapproving of "The Million Dollar Doll."

Terry refuses the $10 000 which Miles sends her by Mrs. Harkness.

Miles is surprised at the "Million Dollar Doll's" refusal of his money.

CHAPTER XXXIII

A Fleeting Memory

That night there was a moon. After her lonely dinner (which she would have refused to eat if that wouldn't have seemed like childish spite) Terry thought she would try another stroll on deck.

She could not live forever below. She'd stifle And perhaps Mr. Sheridan's curtains might be closed. She determined to risk it.

But there was no quick beating of the heart now in the prospect of a wonderful adventure. There was a weight in her breast heavy to carry about as a load of lead.

The light of the moon was so brilliant that it seemed to dissolve the stars; and as the long waves rose they dug round their own silver hills deep valleys of black shadow.

Terry swaying like a blown reed to the motion of the yacht passed the danger zone of lighted windows swiftly and made for the bow. It was there she came upon Sheridan face to face.

He had been leaning on the rail smoking a cigarette and staring down at the great diamond plume of spray pinned to the bowsprit. The faint tap of heels brought him back from many miles away.

He straightened up saw the girl realized that it was too late to escape with decent dignity, and stood still, as a soldier would stand to be shot.

She saw him as he moved and stop ped. She would have wheeled instantly and taken herself out of his way but the moonlight shone on his face and carved it in ivory. Hers was in shadow yet she seemed to look into his eyes and they held her for an instant.

Often she had wondered about her fairy Prince of kindness. Was he still the same or had he grown older? Oh she hoped not fat.

He was not fat. Far from it. He was slim and straight just as he had been those years ago; rather tall yet not so many inches taller perhaps than he had grown to be.

Moonlight accentuated the line of his straight black brows and made the eyes which she remembered as grey look dark. Maybe the face once brown as a gypsy's was still brown but it was pale under the moon.

The eyes seemed deep set; the clear line of the nose was haughty and hard; lips and jaw had hardened too as men's lips and jaws had been hardened in the war. All the boyish eagerness the gay brave look of rushing forward to meet life was gone.

Terry remembered his smile as he said "Hello are you Cinderella?" You couldn't easily picture that face smiling now as it had smiled then.

"Don't go away Miss Divine" he said tossing his cigarette overboard.

Terry wavered; and one cannot waver safely on a yacht in motion be fore one has thoroughly got one's sea legs. A heave of the deck caught her unawares and she would have fallen against the rail if Sheridan hadn't moved quickly to steady her.

"Thank you" she stammered. "I—I thought that here I shouldn't disturb —anyone."

"You're not disturbing me as it hap pens" Sheridan said with some slight stiffness as if not wanting the girl to make too much of his words. "I should like to speak to you. If you don't mind it might as well be now. If we go amidship there'll be deck chairs and you can sit down. There's a bit of a roll on tonight."

Terry didn't answer. She felt com pletely tongue tied as she had felt sometimes at the convent when the "Etiquette Sister" suddenly bade her imagine herself at a dinner party and "make pleasant conversation."

She walked beside Sheridan to a sheltered spot where several long chairs were placed. He indicated one and she sat down but he did not follow suit.

He stood with his back against the rail his arms folded. Now the moon touched her face and left his in shadow.

It was the first real chance he had had of seeing his guest really. Not that he wanted such a chance. Indeed the last thing he wished was to see the girl; and when she passed his windows while he lunched he had not turned his head for the fraction of a glance.

But it was impossible to stand squarely and open eyed in front of a person talking without observing that person's face; and Sheridan couldn't avoid being struck by Juliet's appear ance of extreme youth.

Only an appearance it was of course No frequenting her world he had never met the woman and so far as he re membered had never seen one of the revues in which she occasionally figured as a Show Girl. Still he had heard of her at various times.

He recalled the furore she had made years ago as "The Million Dollar Doll" in some roof garden extravagance or other; and that was so long ago that she must be well over twenty five.

After years of knocking about New York she ought to look as hard as nails or anyhow as hard as the porcelain of which dolls are formed. Instead the small lifted face with its delicately pointed chin was pure and wistfully sweet as a child's.

It even reminded him somewhat of a child's face which he had seen only once but had never quite forgotten; the face of a child would be—oh sixteen or seventeen now perhaps if she were alive. He hadn't thought of her for years and felt it a sort of insult to the charming baby thing that he should lik en her to this—this professional "vamp."

FROM BED TO WORK IN THREE WEEKS

Dreco helps put Wm. Walker on his feet and enables him to return to work.

"For the past year my husband has been a sufferer from ulcers on the stomach," says Mrs. William Walker, of 158 Eileen Ave., Toronto, Ont. "His food lay in his stomach and would not digest and he frequently had severe vomiting spells. He was on a diet most of the time. This resulted in his entire system becoming run-down. He had chronic constipation and was very restless and nervous.

"About three and a half weeks ago I brought him home a bottle of Dreco. He tried it and said that the first dose seemed to give him relief and eased his stomach of the terrible pains that gripped him. His bowels became more regular.

"We are both greatly pleased with the benefits Dreco has already produced. My husband's system is improving generally and after the se vere trouble he has just passed through, he was able to return to work in three weeks' time.

"Mr. Walker is feeling very much stronger and I want him to continue this good medicine, as it is the first medicine we have found that goes right to the root of his troubles."

Dreco's beneficial action on the organs of digestion is remarkably quick and thorough. No matter how severe the case or how long standing, Dreco will help. This remedy contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs. It is made solely from herbs, roots, bark and leaves and has established an enviable reputation, earned only by genuine merit.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold in Lakefield by E. H. Northey, and by a good druggist everywhere.

GERMANY IN POSITION TO RESUME NORMAL CONDITIONS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Germany is today better prepared to "come back" than is Great Britain, and if allied occupation were eliminated Germany would be in better position to develop and resume normal condition of industry than any other great country in Europe, according to a comprehensive report on the Ruhr economic situation prepared by Basil Miles, made public today by the American Section of the International Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Miles, who was in the American diplomatic service for several years, was secretary for the special Root mission to Russia in the summer of 1917, and acted in a similar capacity for the American delegation to Washington arms conference in 1921. It was not originally intended for publication and was received as a confidential document, but the turn the Ruhr situation has taken and other considerations have impelled the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce at Paris to make it public through the medium of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which has its national headquarters in Washington.

The report reads in part:

"It is practically seven months since the French and Belgians occupied the Ruhr. Although the fundamental elements of the situation remain unchanged, surface conditions are different. As the result of German passive resistance, the Ruhr may be regarded today, in many aspects, as an industrial district on strike. The strikers are the industrialists and the workmen temporarily combined—a novel alliance in modern industry. The union which supplies most of the strike funds is the German Government. The French and Belgians are very much in the position of employers, even to the extent of using strikebreakers—French railway operatives, telegraphists, telephonists and others.

"The evidence of French occupation is everywhere. Nevertheless, the surface friction and nervous tension which were such striking features of the early days of the occupation are now conspicuous by their absence.

"The two Governments (French and Belgian) began with what may be called the policy of the 'twelve customs officials and the forty engineers,' with only such military guards as were necessary for individual safety.

Passive Resistance Inaugurated

"This policy proved abortive through the development of passive resistance. This passive resistance has to be regarded in three aspects. To the world at large it became conspicuous when the powerful group of mine owners, known as the coal syndicate, moved their headquarters and their archives bodily to Hamburg. Well informed business men state that this move was taken primarily upon the insistance of Hugo Stinnes.

"The second element of the passive resistance seems to have become manifest about the same time, in reports that the workmen had begun to strike when orders were given them by the French.

"The third element was the appeal of the Cuno Government to the whole nation to adopt a definite policy of passive resistance to what Germans consider a gross breach of the terms of the Treaty of Versailles and an unwarranted military aggression against a defeated nation bled white by an exhausting war.

"The purpose of the Commission of Allied Engineers, customs officials and forest service agents—the 'twelve customs officials and forty engineers'—was to control coal and coke production for reparations payments, to collect certain taxes to be devoted to reparations, and to exploit the State forests for the same purpose. In other words, the commission was to secure in fact 'productive guarantees.'

"But the industrials refused to confer with the commission, to answer their questions, to satisfy their demands, and even to open the doors of their factories to them. The employees of the postal, telegraph and telephone services refused to transmit mail, sell stamps, forward messages or make connections for French and Belgians. Railway employes refused to run trains for Franco-Belgian authorities and to accommodate French and Belgian officials in the stations.

"German officials generally undertook to ignore the French and Belgians and refused to give any attention whatever to their instructions or demands. Moreover, newspapers refused to publish anything emanating from French or Belgian sources, including official proclamations to the population. Finally, the German Government fixed severe and specific penalties for failure on the part of Germans to co-operate in resistance against the French and Belgians.

Allies Retaliate in Kind

"The French and Belgians have responded in kind. Whenever the Germans refused co-operation the French preceded without them, and at the same time retaliated by measures established under martial law.

The German officials who have refused to carry out instructions have been expelled, fined or imprisoned. The postal employes and telephone and telegraph operators who refused to co-operate have been removed and replaced by French and Belgians. The German population has been deprived of all telegraph and telephone service in consequence.

"As the Reichsbank refused to continue to furnish the currency necessary for the maintenance of the occupying forces, the French and Belgians have entered branches of the Reichsbank by force, where necessary, and seized such money as was due and have even stopped trucks and other conveyances bringing money into the district. The sums so seized have been credited to German reparation payments.

"In other words, the French and Belgians have persistently and firmly retaliated in kind to every German move. The customs cordon has become an important lever by which economic pressure is exerted, and there is no question as to its being enforced.

Policy Not Designed to Cripple Ruhr

"French policy is not designed to cripple the Ruhr industries by denying them raw materials nor to curtail the food supply and consequently the health of the population. The depression of industry and of production generally is due to the state of moral welfare between the French and the Germans, generally in the Ruhr, and not to the inaccessibility of supplies or damage to industrial property.

"A feature of the German Government policy has been an organized subvention of industry. The workmen are being subsidized by the Government, with supplementary contributions from the unions and syndicates of mine owners and industrialists. The workmen check in, full force, every day and are paid their regular wages. Most of them find little to do.

"The natural reaction on the part of the owners has been to employ the men in non-productive work which will be useful for the future. Accordingly, the factories and plants are being carefully overhauled, new veins of coal are being opened, factory extensions are being pushed forward, and housing schemes for workmen enlarged. A particularly striking example of new development on a large scale is the enormous 1,100 foot lock in the Dortmund-Herne canal at Ruhort to cost, it is said, 300, 00,000 gold marks.

Ruhrort and elsewhere, together with all their modern labor-saving devices, are intact. The complicated network of canals and contributing lines of railway track remain in good condition. The rolling stock is still available, if not in the Ruhr itself, then in unoccupied Germany. Cheap and quick transport was apparently a basic factor in the successful development and maintenance of the Ruhr; its elements are still available and intact.

Facilities Better Than Before War

"The net result is that with six months of freedom from allied control, the Ruhr could probably get into greater production than ever before; certainly within a year its present capacity could be organized to a production very much in excess of any prewar year. This has been also facili ated by the fact that in the two years following the armistice, the Ruhr industries were successfully transferred from war work to peace production.

"Accordingly, without considering the numerous causes which have been at play or the variously estimated expense which has been entailed, the Ruhr, instead of deteriorating, has improved physically. This is a net asset to the Germans.

"What profit can be shown in the French side? The facts are extremely simple. In general terms, the French are getting only about one-third as much coal and coke out of the Ruhr as they previously got from the regular reparations deliveries. The result has been that the French have either had to economize or else purchase these raw materials elsewhere.

"On this basis, particularly when taking into account the increased expenditures involved in the military occupation, the French side of the balance sheet shows a decreased return. Moreover, there would seem to be a definite term even to these reduced returns. As the Ruhr is not producing, the French supply comes only from accumulated stocks. It is expected such stocks may last four or five months, but after that time a new problem will be presented as to further supplies. The idea that the French themselves can produce Ruhr coal, coke and steel without the co-operation of German labor and management is fantastic under any conditions approximating those which exist at present.

"On the other hand, France is primarily an agricultural country, whereas Germany is primarily an industrial country. The Ruhr has been termed the economic heart of Germany. That heart has now stopped beating, and it remains to be seen how long the body, namely, the unoccupied parts of Germany, can remain animate without it. At present it would seem as thought the country were resorting to artificial reparation; that is, by forcing production at home and taking up the remaining slack by purchases of raw material abroad—coal from England and Czechoslovakia, steel from Polish Upper Silesia, iron ore from Sweden, Spain and even Canada, and so forth.

Germany Well Able to Recover

"A sound forecast of how long this can continue cannot be made, especially in view of the recent collapse of the German mark to figures reminiscent of the Russian ruble. Germany's financial problem consequently is not only one of prime importance, but apparently has no parallel.

"Fundamentally, the mere physical wealth of the country has not been touched. In the first place, Germany has no devastated area, either in material wealth, as in the case of France, or in unemployment, as in the case of England. In the second place, German energy, organization, thrift and industry have continued production and even increased its possibilities for the future. It is true that the class living on fixed incomes has practically been submerged. Others, however, have risen in their place and there is no question but that the country as a whole, although now in dire straits, still has capacity to recover its former industrial position.

"Furthermore, it is claimed that the depreciation of the mark has practically eliminated the burden of Germany's internal debt. Germany has no foreign debt except payments for reparations. Critics of Germany's policy point out that even this gigantic debt of 132,000,000,000 gold marks is not greater than the national debt of Great Britain.

"As the population of Germany is nearly a third greater than that of the British Isles, it is claimed that Germany in fact is today better prepared to come back than is Great Britain, that if pressure of Allied occupation were eliminated, Germany would be in a better position to develop and resume general conditions of industry than any other great country in Europe.

Difficulties of the Government

"The financial and other difficulties of the German Government, on the other hand, would seem enormous. It is a fact, however, that as long as faith in the Government is sufficient to enable paper money to circulate as a medium of exchange, regardless of the purchasing power of the mark, the Government can carry on. It does not matter whether a piece of paper reads one mark or 1 million marks, provided that a certain number of such pieces of paper will buy a pair of shoes or a coat or a meal and at the same time all have some reasonable relation to wages.

"On this account it is necessary to distinguish very clearly from disorders in the Ruhr which occur as the result of passive resistance and those which are due to the precipitate fall of the mark causing an inequitable spread between the cost of living and the rate of wages. Recently the depreciation has been so rapid that prices have readjusted more quickly than it has been possible to readjust wages. In the last week of July wages, readjusted at the beginning of the week, lost one-half to two-thirds of their purchasing power by the time pay day came around at the end of the week.

"Social disorders which may easily result from a continuation of this condition may equally possibly take a political complexion. German employers and capitalists talk freely of a possible revolution. Some of them adopt a despairing tone and appear convinced that for the next thirty years Germany will be the football of the Allies and will be kicked about from pillar to post. As a matter of fact there is no parallel in history which can serve as a yardstick by which existing conditions can be measured. The largest factor will no doubt be the human equation, yet it is this very factor which is the most unmeasurable of all."

On the side of the German Industrialists the plan makes the appeal that it would be the State which would be appropriating its railroad system—in other words, the country would pay—while they would be able to obtain a certain control over the system when it had passed into the hands of the international group on which they would be represented.

Some of them are anticipating that such disposal of the State railroad property would be only the beginning of similar deals, and it will be remembered that quite recently Hugo Stinnes among others advocated transference of the railroad systems from the State to private companies.

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of returns made by the Agriculture Repre sentatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture: —

Pastures in practically every part of the Province have been improved greatly by the recent rains, with the result that beef cattle are again putting on flesh, and dairy cows have been stimulated to a more generous milk flow.

A considerable acreage of fall wheat has been planted already in order to avoid injury from the Hessian fly. The acreage is likely to be less than that of last year.

Middlesex: Apples have made great growth in the last few weeks and will possibly be an average size. They are also colouring well.

Brant: Apple buyers are in the the neighborhood now and while none have been bought, yet prices point upward and growers are expecting a very fair price this year. In this vicinity spies are a big crop and are very free from fungus.

Welland: The wind storm of last week did a little damage to fruit, but in some cases where apples were a heavy crop it did some very necessary thinning, and the remaining apples no doubt, will be a little better in size. Very little damage was done ot peaches or pears in this section.

Halton: Heavy damage was caused to the fruit men by high winds and rains, in the past two weeks. Melons are an excellent crop and selling at $1 per large basket. Reds and green peppers are rather scarce Many fruit men are enquiring where to procure disease-free raspberry stock for commencing new plantations, as most of the canes in the county are diseased with mosaic and leaf curl.

Peel: According to report some Clarkson growers find that melons have been struck by a blight and that 75% of them are dead. The potatoes and tomato plants in this district are both looking thrifty, and indications point to a good crop.

Elgin says that a number of beef farmers are considering going into dairy business.

Grey: Hogs are again commanding respect, owing to the increase in value. Uncastrated lambs are being rushed to market to clear them out before the discrimination in prices occurs.

South Simoe: A number of medium to good springers were sold at from $70 to $50 per head. From a number of the shipping points much above the average number of hogs were shipped this week the top price bein paid was $10.25 per cwt. on the thick smooth basis. Lambs were a very light shipment, for which as high as $12 per cwt was paid.

Bruce says that marketing has been confined chiefly to sale of grass cattle which are being sent out in large numbers.

The Thunder Bay representative is of the opinion that there will not be any increase in the number of dairy cattle wintered.

Kenora reports a few cows chang ing hands at around $85.

Manitoulin: A considerable number of cattle are being picked up throughout this district, but as prices are low and cattle rather thin, business has not been very brisk. However, there are a large number likely to start moving in the near future. Some of these are not quite fit for market but could make good stockers and farmers are trying to find a market, for such cattle at eastern points.

Grey reports that a large number of little pigs four to six weeks old are being offered to buyers at from $4 to $6 each, as owing to the short crops farmers are disposing of them. In Bran, little pigs are going at from $9 to $10 a pair.

Kenora: Sunflowers have again every appearance of beng a satisfactory crop. This is the fourth year that they have been grown as a farm crop in this district In no case have they been a failure and every year has seen an increase in acreage if this crop.

A DRY COCKTAIL.

LONDON (United Press).—The chief steward of the Cunard liner Mauretania claims to have achieved an extraordinarily successful "dry" cocktail. He gave the following recipe: One quart of clam juice, a breakfast cup of tomato sauce, lemon juice, ten dashes of tobasco sauce, a pinch of celery salt on the top According to the steward the tobasco lingers in the mouth long enough to convince the drinker that he has stuff with a "real kick" in it.

COLLEGE SWEATER.

The Wellesley is the name given to a practical sweater designed for wear in the class room and on the campus. It is of brushed wool and is accompanied by linen collar and cuffs.

AFTER MRS. BROWN BEAR

"Nick, you watch by that big rock."

"Would you like to go with me?" asked Mister Gallop, the cowboy fairy. "I am just starting off on a trip."

"May we take our ponies?" asked Nick, patting Blackie on his soft, glossy neck.

"Certainly," nodded Mister Gallop. "That's what they're for. Jump on, both of you, for I'm in a hurry. I can tell you all about my errand while we are riding."

Nancy scrambled up on Snow, Nick jumped on Blackie, and Mister Gallop swung himself on his own brown and white pony like a circus rider.

"Come on," he called, "follow me. The path is narrow so we can't ride side by side. But I can talk to you anyway over my shoulder."

So off they started up the steep little mountain path that seemed to get narrower and steeper every minute.

"I got word this morning," Mister Gallop called back, "that Mrs. Bear and her two sons, Buter and Bunch, has been trout-fishing. Now Tommy Trout and Timmy Trout and all their relatives are great friends of mine and I promised to help them. That's where we are going now. To see if it is true."

"Has Mrs. Bear a fishing line?" asked Nancy.

"The very best kind," answered Mister Gallop. "Her own paw. "It's all fixed with five sharp hooks and can't get tangled in the bushes. Once she gets ahold of a trout-fish it's goodby Mister Trout. Sh! We're coming to the creek now. We'll tie our horses and tiptoe the rest of the way. It's not so steep here."

Down slid the Twins and followed the fairy. By and by he stopped. "Nick, you watch by that big rock; Nancy, sit quietly under that pine-tree and I'll go on a bit. Here is a whistle for each of you. If you see Buster Bear or Bunchy Bear or Mrs. Bear, blow as hard as you can. I'll come at once.

Voiles and dimities will appear much more like new material if rinsed in borax water instead of starch water.

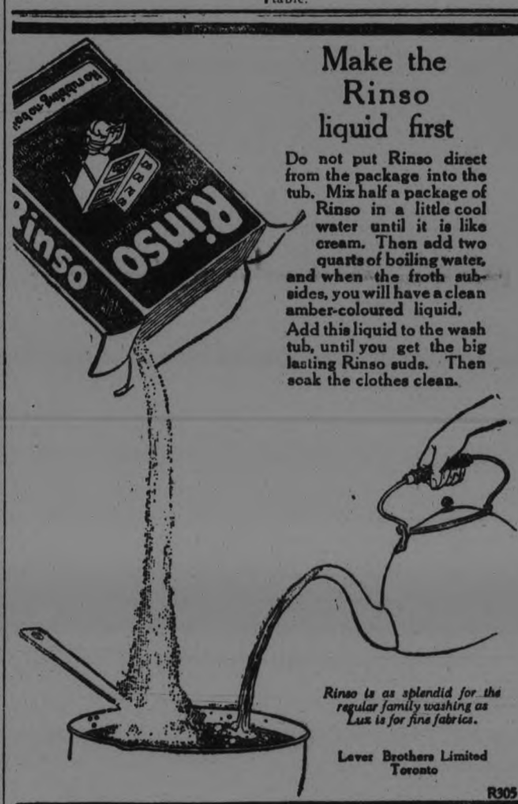
If you have a large kitchen, divide it by an imaginary line into a work part and a rest part. In the work part group stove, kitchen, sink. In the rest part put the stewing machine, an easy chair and a small table.



Make the Rinso liquid first

Do not put Rinso direct from the package into the tub. Mix half a package of Rinso in a little cool water until it is like cream. Then add two quarts of boiling water, and when the froth subsides, you will have a clean amber-coloured liquid. Add this liquid to the wash tub, until you get the big lasting Rinso suds. Then soak the clothes clean.

How the Earth Keeps in a Perfect Balance

Cross-Section of Northern Hemisphere at Lat. 40°-50° N. (Left), and Southern Hemisphere at Lat. 10°-20° S. (Right) Illustrating How the Earth Is Made up to 93 Per Cent Solid Substance and 7 Per Cent Water. The Heights and Depths Are Exaggerated on Account of the Small Scale.

WHAT keeps the earth in a perfect balance as it goes speeding through space and revolving around its axis in twenty-four hours? Its movements are so regular, its revolutions so nicely balanced that no one knows that he is moving around and around until he begins to apply science. This perpetual motion knows of no shocks nor halts nor of variations in speed. It is no wonder that the ancients used the earth as the very example of stability.

It seems most obvious that the earth's revolutions are so smooth and shockless from the fact that its form is a sphere, or nearly so, and therefore in perfect balance at all times. How a closer examination makes this nice balance less obvious is explained in The Illustrated World by Marinus Cook as follows:

You can make a smooth, round apple revolve very easily around a piece of wire that you have run through its core, but it is impossible to do this with an apple from which you have taken several bites, because of the irregular shape. You know that this apple will jerk, halt and fall over; that it will revolve in a very irregular way.

Now, such is the shape of the earth—an apple from which several bites have been taken. It is only the water on the earth's surface that gives our earth its globelike form, in the same way that a certain quantity of water, falling down, assumes this same form.

Everybody knows that a large percentage of the earth's surface consists of water—more than half of it. But when we consider the entire mass of the earth, we find that only 7 per cent of this volume is water and the rest, 93 per cent, solid substance. Of this solid substance about 95 per cent is igneous rock, hard and solid and much heavier than water. Compared with this enormous mass of rock the quantity of water is negligible.

Therefore, eliminating this 7 per cent of water, which is the cause of the spherical form of the earth, we have a heavy body of rock, very irregular in shape.

If we were able to take a cross section of the earth along a belt running between latitude 40 degrees and 50 degrees north we would gain a very adequate impression of the irregular shape of the solid part of the earth. Beginning a journey around the earth at the Pacific Coast we would ascend gradually across California, reaching the highlands of Nevada and Utah, and climb the pinnacles of Colorado; then drop through Kansas to the level of Lake Superior, the Ozark mountains alone standing out as an elevation. (Remember we are traveling through a broad belt of ten degrees.) From this Lake Superior region we would rise through the Kentucky mountains to the Appalachians, then descend to New England and drop to about 18,000 feet below sea level to the floor of the Atlantic Ocean. Coming up on the other side in green Erin, we would cross England, the gentle slopes of France and Germany to rise suddenly to the summits of the Alps, 5,000 feet. From there we would go down through Austria and the plains of southern Russia, then climb the Ural mountains to the highland of central Asia, the "roof of the world," 18,000 feet high. Going farther east we would reach the plains and valleys of China, cross over to Japan and drop to the deep floor of the Pacific 16,000 feet below sea level.

A look at the first illustration will give an idea how extremely irregular the shape of the earth is. It is a cross section of the northern hemisphere taken along the belt between latitude 40 degrees and 50 degrees, and seen by an imaginary person standing exactly on the north pole, looking southward in every direction.

The second illustration represents a cross section of the southern hemisphere taken along a belt running between latitude 10 degrees and 20 degrees south and seen by a person standing at the south pole, looking north in every direction.

If from these cross sections you can imagine a body, you will find it of an exceedingly irregular shape, and you will also clearly understand that such a body provided with an axis running from pole to pole will not swing around its axis very smoothly and evenly, but will behave just like the apple from which you took several bites.

How, then, does the earth keep balance if the form is so irregular?

Here is where the density of the rocks comes in. Some rocks are heavier than others, that is, their density is greater, and now it has been discovered that the density of the igneous rocks underlying the different regions already mentioned are in reverse relation to their elevation. The more a region is elevated the less the density of its rocks, that is, the lighter its rocks are. And on the other hand we find the heaviest rocks in the lowest depressions.

Where the greatest bite has been taken out of the apple the substance weighs heaviest. Where there is an elevation is where the lightest material is found. What the earth in some places lacks in quantity is sufficiently made up in weight, and in this way the balance is nicely preserved. That man does not have to hold on to this irregular earth for dear life, every time it spins around its axis, is due to the fact that the rocks which form the ocean's floor are heavier than those on the mountain tops.

This condition is explained by the theory of isostasy, the theory of the stability of the earth's crust. According to this theory the interior of the earth is in a semiliquid condition, resembling syrup. Into this substance the heavier rocks naturally sink down and, by their weight press the lighter rocks upward. Hence the occurrence of the heavier rocks in the depressions and the lighter rocks on the elevation. This accounts for the nice balance of the earth.

Will the Radio Solve the Secret of Communicating with the Dead?

WILL the radio solve the mysteries of the spirit world by establishing beyond all dispute the fact that communication can be had with the dead? Howard Thurston, the internationally known magician who created a sensation by openly stating that he had been converted into a Spiritualist, recently delivered a lecture, "Spiritualism," over the radio.

In an interview in the Radio Digest, Mr. Thurston is quoted as saying:

"For the past ten years I have been carrying on experiments, in all parts of the world, which have firmly convinced me that there is something very definite back of this belief in spiritualistic communication. It actually has a tangible foundation, in spite of the fact that about ninety-five per cent of the professional mediums are frauds of the most contemptible type, who should be suppressed without delay. I know that such a statement from me sounds paradoxical, but, nevertheless, I mean every word of it.

"I was the first magician to make use of Radio as you may know, and I have employed it for fifteen reasons. I have recently convinced myself, almost against my will, that there is a definite connection between Radio and the so-called 'occult forces' and I think the coming attempts to communicate with Mars and other planets by Radio, will be the cause of extraordinary revelations which will make dyed-in-the-wool Spiritualists of a new variety out of all of us. I want this strange assertion to go down on record right here and now. I, the most pronounced anti-psychic imaginable, wish to state that I actually believe that it is possible for us to communicate with unearthly forces which, for want of a better name, I will call spirits."

"Extraordinary psychic discoveries will be made during the next five years, unless I am badly mistaken, and I think I will eventually be given credit for one or two of them.

"However, I wish to stress the fact that I have not been converted to the spiritualistic beliefs professed by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and Sir Oliver Lodge. I still disagree with them in almost every respect. But I do believe that we are continually surrounded by unearthly forces, which may or may not be the spirits of our departed, who are trying to communicate with us. I am also of the opinion that these forces, whatever they may be, will soon succeed in getting in touch with us, without the aid of professional mediums with their crude magical apparatus.

"Of course, I will have to admit that these unearthly forces may simply be the inhabitants of other planets trying to radio to us."

How TALCUM POWDER Is MADE

OF all the millions of people who use talcum powder, there are a very few, indeed, who know just what talc is and how talcum powder is made. But talc has other uses than for the facial toilet. For example, more talc, according to the Scientific American, is used in filling the pores of print paper. Talc is also used as a filler for paint. Its discovery for that use was hardly accidental, yet it was not originally added with the intention of improving the paint, but for adulterating it. Later on, strange to say, paint chemists found it improved the paints for some purposes. Guilty consciences had been aching in vain, but now ached because a higher price had not been charged for the improved paint.

Talc is not at all rare. It occurs in many places, and the chief item that goes to make up the sales cost is caused by the preparation and marketing of the commodity. Found in its natural state it is a rock. Its chief physical characteristic is its soapy feeling, like graphite. The mineralogist calls it steatite, and it is a hydrous magnesium silicate. About 65 per cent of the world's talc is produced in the United States, the largest supply being in Vermont, which is so close to the centers of the paper industry that talc from other regions cannot compete.

The best grade of talc is used for talcum powder, which must be white—except in the case of talcum for men, which has a flesh color. There is nothing in talcum powder that is directly harmful. If earth is comminuted rock, and if talc is a kind of rock, then talcum is only a kind of clean earth, to which boric acid is usually added to give soothing effect. It is interesting to note how many kinds of rock, when broken up and crushed to the finest kind of powder, have the general semblance of talcum powder, although not the actual characteristics which are so necessary.

Not more than a generation ago, when the use of talcum powders became very general, it was said the skins of the growing generation would be ruined by its use. Yet the evidences of the eye say otherwise. The processes the natural product go through before it is passed over the druggist's counter insure that it is the cleanest of all dirt.

Why SAND Is One of Nature's MARVELOUS Products

THE sand upon which you bask at the seashore is not a ready-made article, nor does it find its way to the beach in a haphazard way. Sand is one of Nature's most finished products. It is the result of countless thousands of years of ceaseless work and a wondrous compound of a myriad ingredients.

The microscope reveals to the scientist that no two sands are quite alike, though they may look and feel much the same as you walk over them. Take a handful of that which surrounds you, and spread it out and examine carefully the tiny particles of which it consists. Many will be little stones; others are fragments of shells; and if you have sharp eyes you may find among them numbers of beautiful unbroken shells, varying in size from that of the smallest pin's head to that of a pea.

The smallest shells must be seen under a magnifying glass before their full beauty can be appreciated. They are the discarded homes of tiny creatures who formed them into perfect cups and twists and spirals and had the skill, even in the small space available, to introduce a wondrous scheme of gay colors.

The stones are infinite in their variety. As the sun falls upon them they glitter and flash like so many jewels. Many of them are jewels—little chips of the less precious stones such as cornelian and the different agates. Others are quartz, flint or granite. But you will notice one thing about all of them—their edges are beautifully smooth. That is why it is so pleasant to ramble barefoot over the shore, for the tiny rounded grains feel as soft as a carpet.

What is Nature's method of making this mixture? Briefly geology explains it as follows: She hurls the waters of the sea at the feet of the great cliffs which guard the land. The force of tides and storms is so irresistible that as attack follows attack the stoutest rocks are chipped and cracked.

To aid the waters she makes use of boring shellfish, whose file-like tongues weaken the stones by eating tunnels into them. As the centuries pass—and time to Nature is a thing that does not matter—fragments large and small are torn from the rocks and fall to the beach below.

Here they are rolled and ground and rattled against each other by the tides, being split gradually into smaller pieces, and having all their edges worn smooth by their constant movement. Once a few chips have been wrenched from the cliffs the work of the tides becomes easier; the water picks up these fragments and hurls them like battering-rams at the rocks.

And now Nature begins to sort out her ingredients and arrange the stones so that they are graduated in order of size. You will find close to the cliffs a coarse gravel composed of stones as big as oranges. Nearer the water's edge they grow less and less in size. Coarse gravel is followed by fine; fine gravel by sand.

As the stones are split and torn the larger fragments resist the pull of the water and therefore remain close to the cliffs; the smaller ones roll farther and farther out with receding tides. During a storm the waters of a sandy bay may look like pea soup owing to the tiny fragments they are carrying.

In some places the tides pick up the sand and remove it as fast as it is made, carrying it away to deposit it on other beaches. That is why some shores are sandy while others are not. And when Nature lays down her carpet of sand she mingles with it the shells great and small for which her tiny creatures have no further use.

How Skyscrapers Produce Wind Storms

MODERN skyscrapers create a variety of artificial wind storms which are often of considerable violence. The great flat walls rising hundreds of feet in the air play curious tricks with the air currents. Anyone passing through streets lined with tall buildings, even on a day of comparative quiet, is often surprised to have his hat blow off unexpectedly, and go flying down the sidewalk.

If you will trace the sudden wind storm it will be found that the tall buildings and the narrow streets are at the bottom of the trouble. The same thing goes on among high mountains, and since they are so much larger, the wind storms they create are correspondingly of greater violence.

The Atmosphere Is Set in Motion by the Sun Shining Upon the Walls of a Skyscraper Which Heats the Air and Causes It to Rise in a Strong Current.

A tall building or steep wall of rock will often create a curious wind storm even on the quietest days. There may not be a breath of air stirring, but if the sun shines and the weather is hot, the air currents will soon be in motion, and once started, may make no end of trouble. The explanation is very simple. When the sun beats upon a great verticle surface such as the wall of a skyscraper or a precipitous cliff, it soon heats the wall of the rock to a high temperature. Although there is no air stirring at the time the atmosphere is thus heated. This air in turn soon begins to rise. At first it floats slowly upward. One often sees the hot air rising from heated pavements. If the walls of the buildings are very high the air continues to rise and gains momentum in the process. By the time it has risen to a height of several hundred feet it is going upward at a great rate. Now as the air rises it creates a partial vacuum, and colder air rushes in at the base of the building to replace it. A continuous stream of air is thus set in motion up the wall of the building. It is this curious wind storm, set in motion on the quietest days, which often blows off your hat and carries it high in the air. It will frequently be strong enough on city streets to carry pages of newspapers to the upper stories of tall buildings.

When this air reaches the top of the building or the rock face, as the case may be, it tends to flow over the topmost edge, and descends on the other side. On a perfectly quiet day in city streets one may be surprised by an unexpected current of air suddenly beating down upon one's head. These wind storms are, of course, very local and will not be felt many feet from the vicinity of the tall buildings which start them.

This particular form of artificial wind storm is found working at its best among the high walls of great mountains. In some parts of the Rockies, for instance, where the stone faces are several thousand feet in height, the air currents set up by the sun beating on the rocks, often develop into storms of considerable force. Long before the coming of white settlers, the Indians were much mystified by the air currents which flew down the side of the mountains on hot, quiet days and attributed them to evil spirits.

Just How Boys and Girls All Over the World Go to School

THROUGHOUT various parts of the world boys and girls are flocking back to school this month after enjoying their summer months of vacation. In this connection the National Geographic Society calls attention to the variety of school methods in different countries.

All the little Moorish boy has to do when he has finished reciting his lesson is to efface his textbook from his mind by dragging his brown foot over the imprint of his lessons in the desert sand.

The Chinese schoolboy looks like a small edition of his august father in his cotton breeches and long gown reaching nearly to his feet. He makes a great deal of noise in pursuit of his education. Only boys are allowed in his school, because girls must stay at home and help their mothers keep house. The Chinese teacher has the idea that a boy cannot be doing his duty by his books if he is not yelling out his lessons at the top of his lungs.

So when Johnny Chinaman has yelled to his satisfaction he marches up to teacher, hands her his book (which to our eyes looks like parallel tracks of a chicken) and tells the whole class everything he knows about his lesson. His arithmetic he learns by using a frame containing movable balls—just like the counting balls your Chinese laundryman uses to add up your bill, and not unlike the colored balls and frame used in the modern American kindergarten. Johnny Chinaman has no pens or pencils, and draws his hundreds of characters with a small brush dipped in ink, which he makes himself by breaking up a cake of India ink in water.

Though the Japanese boy goes to well-organized schools like ours, he, too, has his difficulties. He must learn the forty-seven letters in the Japanese alphabet instead of twenty-six in the English language. He also takes off his shoes before he enters the schoolhouse, and when teacher comes in he must bow his head nearly down to the ground and draw in his breath. This is little Yoshi-san's way of saying, "Good morning, teacher!" and the teacher bows in response to the greeting. Then Yoshi-san sits on the floor and uses his knees as a writing desk. In writing he makes his letters with a little brush very much like his Chinese cousin; he writes them from the top to the bottom of the page instead of across the paper as we do.

In Arabia and northern Africa the little boys sit cross-legged on the sand around a turbaned teacher, who pounds the earth with a long stick to make the pupils keep time as they recite in unison their verses from the Koran. The Koran, the religious book that is their Bible, is the only textbook used, and they learn it bit by bit and recite it together in sing-song fashion, swaying their bodies in accompaniment. Often the teacher is blind, but his unfailing ear enables him to tell just when a boy is not keeping up with the others and to give him the benefit of a stout rod. All the rest of the knowledge the desert boys get they must learn at home. Their fathers must teach them to ride their ponies and to shoot straight.

Persian boys learn the Koran, too, as about 98 per cent of the people of that country are Mohammedans. Often a class can be seen sitting on the floor of the porch of some building hundreds of years old, droning out their lessons. About 95 per cent of the Persian women are illiterate; it is only within recent years that they have been allowed to attend school at all.

Parents of children of India do not have to worry much about them after they have become of school age. Classes begin at six in the morning. At nine o'clock there is an hour for breakfast and at two o'clock an hour for dinner. Then the pupils go back to school until evening. Very often they have no desks or pencils or paper. The teachers write the letters in the sand on the floor and each boy copies the letters on the sand before him. There are some large schools in India, particularly in Kashmir, where boys are trained in athletics and ethics as well as in ordinary academic work. The 600 pairs of shoes piled before the doorway of the school at Srinagar bear witness to the number of barefooted lads inside the building.

The Various Sleep Habits of Animals

A STUDY of the sleeping habits of animals tends to show that in a wild state they lie down to sleep, but in captivity or domestication some prefer to sleep on their feet. Elephants are given as an example of this. In the jungle they lie down to sleep, while circus men relate that captive elephants sleep on their four legs. The same two observations are true of the rhinoceros.

Observation of sleeping horses shows that they rest one leg at a time, supporting the weight on the other three. Not all stabled horses refrain from lying down to rest, but 40 per cent do; and of those tied up, 90 per cent remain on their patient feet, whereas a horse running free in pasture lies down to sleep, and also to rest and to play and to enjoy his unwonted intimacy with the night, the rain, the crickets and the buttercups.

A bird doesn't sleep on its legs—it sleeps on one leg. The other leg it curls up out of the way. That it should throw all the burden on one leg when it has two perfectly good ones is one of those illogical performances so rife among birds. When the bird is asleep its clutch on the perch is automatic and as tight as a vise.

Savages, rustics and vacationists lie down on the earth to rest a great deal. Creative people, like authors, say that ten minutes stretched out on a couch or lawn revives their mental powers in moments of exhaustion.

How Colored Mail Causes Severe Eye Strain

AN investigation of the causes of eyestrain among postal employes, has developed the fact that the different color combinations on envelopes from foreign countries is largely responsible for the influence upon the vision of the employes. Black on blue, brown on buff, purple on violet and red on red do not give sufficient contrast, so that the eye strain is severe. The blue and red cards and blanks used in the money order and registry departments are also said to be difficult to read and tiring to the eyes.

An effort will be made to have these changed to colors demanding less concentration of vision.

The investigation also has led to a recommendation that the present illumination be changed and that a yearly examination of the eyes of employes be made.

RULINGS ARE GIVEN BY FOOTBALL ASSN.

Dominion Body Closed Sessions Wednesday — Presentation to the Vice-President.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Sept. 6—The session of the Dominion Football Association closed shortly after one o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The Ontario Football Association asked for a ruling on the following point:

Where a league is composed of clubs holding membership in separate associations and it is desired to organize a charity competition, what is the correst procedure to adopt in seeking permission to conduct the proposed occupation?

The ruling was given yesterday morning by a special committee consisting of the presidents and two vice-presidents and was passed by the association without comment. The ruling was as follows:

Application should be made through the respective district associations and when same is sanctioned, should be handed to a commission for control and, in the event of a refusal appeals should be made to the provincial association.

A resolution is the same connection was made that the president of the D.F.A. be authorized as a commission to investigate and try to sooth the difficulties that have arisen in the Toronto district with the distinct understanding from the Toronto representative present at the convention that the decision arrived at by the President would be locally abided by.

Another resolution setting the dates for the football season reads as follows:

"Any player who signs on the D. F. A. register form in the province of British Columbia and who wishes to move to any other province during the season for which he is registered, must be transferred in the usual manner and any player, arriving in the province of British Columbia after August 15, and wish ing to play in that province must be registered in the usual manner."

John Russell, vice-president of the D.F.A., was presented with a club bag on the occasion of his recent marriage by the officers, council members and delegates at the convention.

Dominion of Canada Football Association medals were presented to H. J. N. Couch and H. J. Scrymgeour for services rendered to the association.

Secretary Davidon for his services was granted an honorarium of $500.

SARNIA, Ont., Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press)—The Sarnia Intermediate lacrosse club held the touring Oxford-Cambridge ten to a 12-12 tie in an exhibition game here this afternoon. There was plenty of action in the affray which drew a crowd of 2500 and no penalties were handed out.

JAIL DELIVERY STIRS SOFIA.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 6.—(Associated Press).—One of the most sensational jail deliveries in the history of Balkan politics came to light here in the announcement by the Director of Public Safety that two prisoners, taken during the seizure of all Stamboulisky henchmen, had escaped.

Director Natcheff said two civilians went to the jail where Krum Popoff, former Mayor of Sofia, and Stoyan Kalucheff, private secretary to the late Premier Stamboulisky, were prisoners. What appeared to be regular documents were shown and the pair were released, supposedly for examination.

All search has failed to locate either the escorts or the former prisoners.

LACROSSE REVIVAL SHOWN BY CROWDS

Hamilton and Toronto Games Have Been Largely Attended.

Lacrosse has made great strides in Toronto and places west during the past season. In fact it is now rivalling baseball. While the Leafs and Rochester performed before nearly vacant stands last Monday, Maitlands and Weston (of the Senior O.A.L.A.) were playing before a crowd estimated at easily five thousand at Scarboro Beach. At the end of the third period rain began to fall in torrents, but even this did not dampen the spirit of the fans and none left the game although Maitlands already had a comfortable lead and were apparently already victors and only half the stand is covered. This game it may be stated had no material bearing on team standings in the league as Weston and Brampton have already clinched the right to play off.

Its a pleasure to watch these teams in action. They seem to have regained most of the skill and speed of those old teams of yore. Every move around the nets seemed to have been planned. The Weston team used fine boring in tactics, circling the nets until an opening was forced, keeping the ball in motion in the process.

It would gladden the heart of an old fan of the national game to see how the youths of Toronto have taken to lacrosse. Between periods the field is overrun with youngsters handling their sticks with skill and promising no end of material in the future.

The spectators at these games are not all males either, over twenty-five percent being of the fair sex. All these facts point the strength of lacrosse at present and the promise of a rosy future.

Crowd at Hamilton.

Lacrosse which has been snubbed and sneered at by fickle fandom for a long while back came into its own with a triumphant bump yesterday, says the Hamilton Spectator referring to their Labor Day game with Leaside intermediates from whom they won their round in the O.A.L.A. semi-finals in a clean cut, decisive manner.

Despite the fact that the weather conditions were anything but promising, the fans, both male and female turned out in force to pack the large grandstand from end to end, and cause the bleachers to groan under their weight. The scene, both while it was on, was reminiscent of October rugby, when the grid-iron warriors hold sway. It was estimated by the ticket-sellers that approximately two thousand passed through the turnstile during the afternoon. The crowd was by no means a half-hearted, listless one, either. At times when play became exceptionally fast around one or other nets the stand rose as an individual and shrieked and yelled its satisfaction or its displeasure. The harder the checking became the more the fans applauded and whenever a stray hay maker was landed out in a mistake they went wild. There were not many stages in the combat where they had a real kick however, for although the checking was of the merciless type, very few intentional fouls were handed out by either team.

PAPYRUS FACES "DRY" HANDICAP

Will Bring Own Food and Water to U.S.A. But No Beer.

LONDON, Sept. 5. — Papyrus, this year's Derby winner ,will go to the United States to race the best three year old on the other side of the Atlantic if Uncle Sam will let him bring his own food with him.

Everything else was settled to-day at a conference between Ben Irish, owner of the horse, and C. J. Fitzgerald, agent of August Belmont, who is acting for the jockey club. Before they sign an agreement, however, permission has to be obtained from Washington for the bar against imported fodder to be lifted high enough to allow a few weeks rations for the Derby winner to slip through.

Papyrus may bring his own drinking water as well as fodder, but how he is going to satisfy his thirst for beer in the prohibition paddocks of Long Island, nobody knows. Mr. Irish doesn't say much about this. He just smiles and intimates his pet throughbred probably could get along wtihout beer somehow.

After a conference, Mr. Fitzgerald told Mr. Irish about an old time horse named Robin Hood, who wouldn't un a step until after he had a good glass of foaming ale.

"Papyrus hasn't got the habit that bad," said Mr. Irish . But everybody in racing circles in Great Britain knows that Papyrus likes a good drink of something other than water once in a while.

There are a few little details rare not settled, but the only hitch in the negotiations is over fodder importation. The jockey who will race Papyrus at Belmont Park has not been selected. Mr. Irish would like to have Steve Donoghue, leading rider of the English turf, in the saddle that day, but he and the jockey haven't reached a final agreement. It is understood that Donoghue wants $15,000 to make the trip.

DEMPSEY CUT UP HIS ASSISTANTS

Jack McAuliffe Leaves the Training Camp With Black Eyes.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 5—Displaying astonishing speed and ring cunning, Jack Dempsey today started his final week of training in preparation for the defense of his title against Luis Angel Firpo. He engaged in six furious rounds of boxing, in addition to tugging at the chest weights, shadow-boxing and peppering the punching bags for four rounds. The chamuion, refreshed from his lay-off yesterday, was eager for work,and his trio of sparring partners suffered a severe pummelling.

Farmer Lodge, the 235 pound Minnesotan, who faced Dempsey for the first two rounds, bore the brunt of the champion's attack. In the first round, one of Dempsey's left hooks cut Lodge's right eye and when he finished the second, he was bleeding at the nose.

While boxing Newman, Dempsey remained on the defensive except for landing an occasional short right hook to the body as they came into close quarters.

Godfrey, with respect for the champion's accuracy and punching prowess, danced away from the fast moving Dempsey during their two rounds trying to keep him at a safe distance with a long left jab. In the second round, Dempsey shot a short right to the negro's head, forcing him to fall into a clinch.

The champion's sparring staff was reduced to-day with the departure of Jack McAuliffe, Detroit heavyweight, who spent a week in camp and was severely punished every time he faced the champion. McAuliffe left with two discolored eyes as evidence of his rough sessions with the champion.

JOHNNY DUNDEE LOSES BOUT IN BOARD ROOM

Protested Against Postponement of Match With Benny Leonard Before Athletic Committee.

MAY ABANDON IT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.— Johnny Dundee, feather-weight champion, and light-weight championship aspirant, fought and lost one battle to-day, but it was not before Benny Leonard.

Before a special meeting of the New York Athletic State Committee to-day Dundee protested vigorously against the postponement by promotor Jimmy Johnston of the Italian's scheduled match to-night at the Yankee Stadium with the light-weight champion, but after hearing all the evidence in the situation, the boxing solons upheld Johnston and sanctioned the cancellation.

The commission ruled that Johnston was within his rights in taking advantage of a clause in the fight contract permitting its abrogation in the event either of the principals was defeated in any other engagement before the title match. Dundee left this loophole open to the promotor as a result of his recent defeat in a bout with Eddie (Kid) Wagner in Philadelphia.

Dundee' attitude, meanwhile, may result in abandonment of the match altogether. After Johnston's proposal to stage the bout at the stadium on September 28, Dundee told the Commission he would give his answer on Friday, but to newspaper men later he flatly declared he would NOT go through with the match at all. Billy Gibson, Leonard's manager, however, agreed to the postponement.

Dundee manifested keen resentment against Johnston's statement yesterday that the postponement was a result of the challenger's alleged poor physical condition. Insisting that he be examined and weighed in as he would have been if the bout was not called off, the feather-weight champion declared he was never in better shape. Over-ruled in this request, Dundee declared he would claim Leonard's title and the weight forfeit of $5,000 posted by the latter, but the Commission advised him it was understood, that her had NO ground upon which to base such action.

Dundee reiterated his charge that the postponement also was influenced by Leonard's inability to make the light-weight of 135 pounds.

SOX OF 1919 GREATEST TEAM

"Kid" Gleason Sorrowfully Comments on Club Wrecked By Scandal.

BY BILLY EVANS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—The baseball scandal of 1919 will ever remain with "Kid" Gleason.

The failure of the White Sox of 1923 no doubt has caused the "Kid" to do some reminiscing.

Unquestionably the White Sox of this year are the disappointment of the American League race. The Sox are a good ball club, a first division team, yet during the greater part of the campaign Gleason's men have been floundering around in the second division, getting nowhere.

Early in the spring while working in New York I bumped into Catcher Frank Snyder and Pitcher Jack Bentley, star performers of the New York Giants. McGraw's team had just finished a long spring series with the Sox, in which the world champions had been pushed to the limit to get the edge.

"Chicago has a mighty good club and should be up there," was the opinion expressed by the two Giants. What I had seen of the Sox during spring training in the south caused me to entertain a similar opinion. Gleason had a club that would make trouble.

How Collins Views It.

Only the other day while talking to Eddie Collins as to the failure of the Sox to be up there, he remarked:

"We have been off on the wrong foot from the very start and have never hit our stride. I am convinced that if we had won the ball games that we deserved to in that first series with Cleveland at the opening of the season it would have made a lot of difference with our club. All year it has been a case of no pitching when we hit the ball, and when we got the pitching we failed to hit. That is the answer to all our troubles."

Getting back to Gleason and the scandal of 1919. Recently I had the seat adjoining "Kid's" on a trip from Boston to New York. The Sox had been roughly treated by the tail-enders. We had just finished talking about Chicago's failure to win, when Gleason with a tone of sorrow in his voice that clearly showed how he felt, remarked:

"If I still had that old gang together we would be winning pennants as easily as we did in 1919. That was a great ball club.

"In my time I have seen a lot of famous teams, the old Baltimore Orioles, the pennant-winning New York Giants, the Chicago Cubs of 1906 to 1910, and Connie Mack's great club of 10 years back, but I will take the White Sox of 1919 in preference to any of them.

"There never was a better fielder than Felsh, and I am not excepting Speaker or any of the other famous guardians of the middle pasture. He could do everything, hit, field, run and throw.

Many a Heartache.

"And what a greate hitter, Joe Jackson was. The big fellow was one of those natural batsmen who could hit anything and was always a threat at the plate.

"Talk about great left-handed pitchers, I never saw a better one than "Lefty" Williams. He knew how to pitch and no left-hander ever had more marvelous control.

"Buck Weaver at third was a wonder. He could make seemingly impossible plays look easy, a natural ball player.

"Eddie Cicotte was the master pitcher who put some thought back of every ball pitched. At first Gandil could do everything well and Risberg at short, while erratic at times, could be just as brilliant.

"Add to these stars Eddie Collins (never was there a better second sacker); Ray Chalk, incomparable as a catcher, and 'Red' Faber, one of the game's best pitchers, and you have the nucleus for a fairly good ball club."

And having thus spoke, the "Kid" took out a black cigar from his vest pocket, bit off the end and started for the smoker. The expression that played over his face made it apparent that the scandal of 1919 had caused him many a heartache and still rankled within him.

ARGONAUTS WILL NOT OPERATE O.H.A. TEAMS

Changes in Sport Activities Decided on By Committee.

TORONTO, September 6. Canadian Press. — The Argonauts have decided that hencef rth they will be represented on the rowing and football field and that such sports as tennis, bowling and hockey must be shelved by the double blue.

This means that the oarsmen will drop out of the O.H.A. Senior and Junior series, and that some capable players will be found with other clubs.

This decision was reached by the Argo. Comittee after officials had discussed the rowing record of the past season, when a poor showing was made.

The big club house will be closed until such time as it is found necessary to reopen it, and the oarsmen will confine their activities to the boat house and to football. It is planned to hold only one or two dances each year.

Oarsmen have been represented in hockey for many years, but an officer of the club stated yesterday that it is far from likely that the club will operate teams in the O.H.A. next winter.

ST. PATS EASY FOR BELLEVILLE IN SECOND GAME

Williams Held Ottawa Crew to Six Scattered Hits While Clark is Hit Hard in First Frame.

BROWNIE'S HOMER

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 6. — (Special.— The Grand Trunk baseball team stepped up one more rung in the ladder, which terminates at the provincial championship, when they eliminated the Ottawa St. Patrick team without any difficulty. The score here yesterday was 6 to 1, and at Ottawa last Saturday it was 8 to 4 for the Trunks, so they put the Irishmen out in two straights. Contrary to their usual principles, the Moguls tore into the visitors in the initial frame and got four runs. From that time until the ninth the game was never once in doubt. The Trunks got number five in the third and number six in the fifth. St. Pats squeezed one over in the fifth.

It was a battle of southpaws, Clarke against Williams, but Williams had it on Clarke a mile. He struck out nine to Clarke's four. Clarke passed none, as the Moguls plastered everything he put over. The Trunks nicked nine safeties off him, Brownscombe pounding out a home in the third and a two bagger in the first. Ross also hit him for a pair of bases. Miller, for the visitors, got a two-bagger in the fourth.

The Irishmen played an errorless game in the field, and with a stronger heaver would have made the Trunks scratch for honors. Particularly brilliant was the work of Lesage, the visitors' shortstop, in the field. He pulled two sensational catches, galloping to the outfield with his back to the plate to gather in the ball. The Trunks had but two unfortunate and costless errors, and also played a snappy, brainy fielding game. The cause of the defeat of the visitors was their weak pitcher and their erratic batters, who were featherweights against the wily Williams.

A record crowd attended and the weather was ideal.

BRIGHTON OUTBATS COLBORNE BY 10-6

Won First of Series Played at Colborne—Game Was Interesting.

COLBORNE, Sept. 6.—The first of the Brighton-Colborne series was played in the latter town yesterday afternoon and the visiting Brighton team were victors by 10 to 6 after an interesting game. The score creates an odd concidence. In the Northumberland League schedule Brighton won ten games and lost six, and Colborne won six and lost ten. In this game each team scored a run for every league victory and surrendered a run for every league defeat.

Benny Way the Orland pitching ace, was on the mound for Brighton and he won a decisive victory over Archie Zufelt, premier slab artist of the Northumberland League. Zufelt struck out eight to Way's four, but the Brighton sluggers combed his offerings for thirteen hits, while Way yielded only five. The score was the only inning in which Way had any trouble, but Brighton started after Zufelt in the first, scoring three runs and always had the lead.

Fax Strong was leading batter, having three singles to his credit. Two hits each were registered by Halliday, Frise, McKee King and Gibson. A double by Frise was the only extra base knock.

The line up follows:

Brighton—Halliday 2b; Frisc c; Strong 3b; Roblin 1b; McKee ss; Solomon m; Bick m; King rf; Walt lf; Way p.

Colborne— Hawkins m; Wilson lf Mulhall ss; C. Zufelt 1b; Eckstein 1b; Clitheroe 3b; Thompson rf; Barfett rf 3b; Gibson c; A. Zufelt p.

C. G. E. BEAT ORILLIA IN O. B. A. A. SERIES FINAL SCORE WAS 13-1

Frost's Good Pitching and Hitting of Dugan, McPherson and Rose Features Victory.

The Canadian General Electric team got away to a great start in their O.B.A.A. campaign yesterday when they invaded Orillia and defeated the champions of the Tri-County League 13 runs to 1. The second game will be played at Riverside Park on Saturday, and although Orillia supporters claim their team was off colors yesterday, and will do much better in the game here, the Electricians should cop the second fixture as well and get into the next round.

"Bun" Frost pitched excellent ball for last year's Intermediate champs, and would have had a shut-out had it not been for a couple of errors in the seventh. He struck out ten of the Orillia crew and kept their seven singles well scattered.

Cloutier,who started for the losers, was wild and, in addition, was hit hard, Ray Rose's home run in the sixth driving him out of the game. Cuppage finished out the game, but failed to check the C. G. E. crew. Orillia too were guilty of some very loose fielding, some of their misplays being decidedly costly.

Dugan, McPherson and Rose led the C.G.E. attack, the first two with four singles in five times up, while Rose walked two, was hit twice and came through with a double and a homer. The showing of Scotty McPherson and Jimmy Hall, the two recruits from the Junior League, was decidedly pleasing.

C.G.E. scored one in the first on hits by Dugan and McPherson and Hall's sacrifice fly to right field.

They came back with two more in the third on a pass to Jackson, an error by Cloutier, Rose's double and a single by Dugan.

The fourth was a blank, but the Electricians had a field day in the fifth, when hits by McCarney and McPherson, a dead ball on Rose, a pass to Dugan and an error by Hammond sent three runs in.

They repeated the dose in the sixth, on Hall's single, McCarney's double and Rose's home run, which saw the finish of Cloutier. Cuppage stopped the fun for that inning, but they nicked the new pitcher for a counter in the seventh on hits by Dugan and McPherson and an error by Robbins.

In the eighth a flock of errors and hits by Dugan and McPherson gave the winners three more unnecessary runs.

Orillia's solitary counter was scored in the seventh on a hit by Ryan and errors by Ross and Jackson.

ORILLIA TEAM HERE SATURDAY

Will Meet C. G. E. in the Intermediate O.B.A.A. Series.

Although C. G. E. got the guns on Orillia yesterday beating them on their own grounds the Northerners are confident that they can reverse the decision when the two teams meet here on Saturday in the second game of the intermediate O.B.A.A. series. Cloutier the St. Michael's College Star left-hander who was in the slab for Orillia yesterday had a very bad day off but it is claimed that if he gets going in his usual style on Saturday the Electricians will have their hands full. It should be a rattling good ball game and the fans should be out to give last year's champs a warm welcome in the first home O. B.A.A. game of the season. The game is called for 3 o'clock and Bill Skitch of Cobourg and Burns of Beaverton will umpire.

GOLF NOTES

One of the best final trophy matches played on the local links for some time, was that played yesterday, when after weeks of elimination the above players emerged as finalists.

The match which consisted of 18 holes, match play handicap, Bond conceding McPherson 3 strokes, was close from the start, neither player being more than two holes up at any stage of the game.

The first round found McPherson one up. At the end of the 15th hole Bond was two up and three to go, but had to concede a stroke on the 16th and one on the 17th. By getting a par 5 to Bond's Birdie 4 on the 16th, McPherson got a half, and on the 17th they both got par fives, which gave McPherson the hole, and the doctor squared the match in the final.

The play off holes were very interesting. McPherson got off to a splendid drive and placed his second well on the green, six feet from the pin. Bond topped his drive, but recovered well with a long iron shot which trickled over the green, and pitched him third to the pin. McPherson made a stab to settle the match but missed by an inch and the hole was halved in four. On the 20th both players got off badly but made good irons caught the green with their thirds, and holed out easily in fives.

The 21st was a heart-breaker for Bond but sweet meat for the doctor. The drives found Bond well on the green with an easy par 3 in sight, while McPherson pulled his tee shot and caught the rough south of the second bunker, and in a very bad hide. He got away with his 2nd shot but was still away and it looked to be all over for the McPherson clan, and Bond's match, but the doctor had still a good shot left and proceeded to hole a three from almost the edge of the green. Bond had a 12 foot put for a two but fell short and had to be satisfied with another half.

On the 22nd and what proved to be the final hole the strain of the match began to show on both players.

McPherson got away badly on his drive but recovered well with a long low iron shot. Bond's drive was well away but he half topped brassie and both players were on even terms. Both mashied to the green and clipped to about 5 feet from the hole, with McPherson slightly away, but he had his putting togs on and holed his put which Bond just missed, giving the doctor the match and the R. R. Hall trophy for 1923.

WILL PUT EINSTEIN'S THEORY TO THE TEST

Other Problems of Importance to Scientists Are Involved in Observations—Popular Interest Is Strong.

By ROBERT A. DONALDSON.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6—(United Press). — Whether a ray of light, travelling some 186,000 miles a second, having no known weight or substance, can be bent out of its true course by the action of gravity, just as a string or a willow might be bent.

What substance the sun is composed of; what substance the corona of the sun, a tremendous flaring halo of spurting light, is composed of.

These are only two of the problems that hundreds of scientists gathered in Southern California from all parts of the world will try to prove in 3 minutes and 34 seconds next Monday, September 10, when the sun goes A. W. O. L., and is blotted out of the sky by the moon in midday.

A total eclipse gives unparalleled opportunities to scientists to study the sun from actual photographic documents. Ordinarily the sun's rays are so terrifice that it is impossible to obtain photographs of the more delicate phenomena of its aura.

Most Powerful Cameras.

But, as the sun slides behind the moon, astronomers will proceed to photograph it with the most delicate plates known to the photographic world, and with cameras so powerful that they can catch stellar bodies down to the last detail.

The rim of the sun, and the great spurting masses of flame constantly hurled up to heights greater than the earth's diameter along its flaming surface, will be photographed just as the sun shields its glare behind the moon. Otherwise it is impossible to photograph these molten masses which create the heat and light for the earth and the other planets.

Instruments so refined that they measure the diameter of a spider's thread as easily as if it were a steel girder, and photograph the delicate Fraunhofer lines in the lines of our own and thousands of other suns, are set up and ready in Lower California. They will see, measure, photograph and analyze by spectroscope, and measure the light by the world's most delicate spectrophotometers and test by sensitive polariscopes the supernal in beauty — the corona of the sun.

Other instruments will test the tremendously intricate theory of Einstein, who startled science when he informed it that the belief that a ray of light was, under all conditions, an absolute straight line, was a mistake, and that a ray of light can be bent by gravity.

A large group of cameras will be set up to photograph a group of "Einstein stars," that is, stars which at the hour and minute of the eclipse are close to the sun, and whose rays, if Einstein is right, will be curved slightly toward the sun when shown on the photographic plates.

Thousands to Witness.

The principal spectacle of the eclipse will, as far as immediate results are concerned, be of a more popular nature. Thousands of people have come to Southern California to witness the strange phenomena of night during the day.

As the sun goes behind the moon the light will fade from the sky, and twilight and then a sort of dusk.

Chickens, if they follow the proverbial custom, will cackle in indignation, and go up on the roosts, as they think, for the night.

In the heavens the great silhouette of the sun will be blotted out by the circular form of the moon, but around the moon's rim, during the totality of the eclipse, will appear the light from the sun's giant corona cast thousands upon thousands of miles beyond the sun's actual surface.

People who possess an ordinary mariner's telescope may easily see the beauties of the sun's corona, and watch the fiery masses of molten surface from the sun hurled in spouting geyser-like fashion thousands of miles into the ether of space. Many of these small pin-head eruptions of flames on the sun's surface are larger than the earth itself.

After 3 minutes and 34 seconds the sun will emerge slowly, and at 2.10 p.m. normalcy will again rest on the face of Southern California for more than 100 years, for the next total eclipse of the sun visible from this part of the world will not occur until 2046 A.D.

BELIEVED CASUALTIES

A despatch received here from a British naval officer in Yokohama states that all foreign residents in Tokio escaped, but that seventy are killed in Yokohama.

It is still impossible to estimate accurately the loss of life, and the figures will be incomplete for a few days, and perhaps weeks, but reports received here indicate that the greatest losses were in the poorer districts of Tokio and Yokohama.

A courier, returning to-day from Tokio, described the disaster there as unspeakable. The city, he said, was three-fourths burned.

On the ponds in the parks he found charred, unidentified bodies floating, like fishes.

Sufferers were gathered in the public squares and parks, lying under sheets on mats, living on scanty food supplied by the authorities. The army was restoring means of communication.

Damage southwest of Tokio is summed up by reports to-day as follows: Yokohama wiped out. Yokosuka twelve miles across the sea from Yokohama, damaged greatly to an extent unknown. Population 100,000 or more.

Kamakura, thirty miles from Tokio, collapsed mostly burned. All villas about, Hayama bathing resort lost.

Hiratsuka and Oiso, small sea towns, 38 mile, from Tokio respectively destroyed.

Kozu, Way Station, for tourists, spared.

Donations received up to noon today by New York chapter of Japanese relief committee of red cross had reached one million dollars according to unofficial estimates from authorities.

Message from Governor of Osaka made public here to-day at Japanese consultate general estimates total casualties in Yokohama and Tokio at from three hundred and ten thousand to three hundred and twenty thousand. Two hundred thousand houses were burned in Tokio said statement.

BIG EXTENSION TO DE LAVAL FACTORY

Indicates Increased Demand Knocking at the Door of Local Branch.

That a large extension is being built to the factory for the purpose of supplying construction material to the assembling division of the plant indicates that prosperity in the way of increased demand has knocked at the door of the Peterborough branch of the De Laval Company, Limited.

The new building, of yellow stone and tile construction to harmonize with the several factory buildings now standing, will be 114 feet in length and 41 feet in width. It will be divided in two, one division to be used as a pickling room and the second as a tinning room. The former is for the acid pickling of metals in preparation for tinning, and the prepared metal will pass through swing doors to the second division, which will be fitted with the latest type of tin pots with down draft. All fumes will be sucked down by induced draft into tunnels which run along both sides of the building. Large fans suck the fumes into these tunnels, and a chimney, 80 feet high and weighing 75 tons, with another fan, carries off the fumes.

In addition to the tunnel and chimney system there will be included a modern ventilating system in the roof. The interior of the building will be finished in long leaf yellow pine, the best known acid-resisting wood.

Increased Demand.

In describing the new building, which is already under way, W. R. Breyfogle, general manager of the plant, said it is the intention to make it as nearly a model factory as scientific engineering and careful planning can accomplish. The addition is being made, he said, to meet the increased demand for plating parts and to supply the demand for equipment for retinning. This part of the business is growing steadily.

CONFESSES THEFT REGISTERED MAIL

Mail Sack Disappeared Two Years Ago at Amhurstburg.

EVERETT, Washington, Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Frank Snyder, of Gainsville, Mich., aged 27, was arrested here last night on a charge of stealing from the mails at Amhurstburg, Ontario, two years ago.

It is said that he made full confession which stated that a conductor named Cook kicked the mail sack off a car on the Hydro-Electric railway near Amhurstburg Sept. 27th, 1921, and a bank clerk from Amhurstburg took the sack from under a culvert and hid it in a hay stack. This sack contained between five and sevent thousand dollars, it was related and three men visited the hay stack from time to time, taking money from the sack, after which Waldie and Snyder weighted and threw it into the river with the rest of the mail still in it.

PLANT REGISTRATION BUREAU ORGANIZED

Record New Varieties of Plants With Canadian Horticultural Council.

For many years plant breeders, both professional and amateur, have dreamed of the day when they would be placed on a plane with other inventors and their new creations recognized as capable of receiving the protection of patents. As a preliminary step towards this final objective a number of the foremost horticulturists in Canada have recently through the Canadian Horticultural Council, established a system of plant recording and registration.

Previous to the organization of the plant registration bureau of the council, the proposed system was discussed in detail with, and heartily endorsed by the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Dominion Minister of Agriculture. The possibility of securing legislation covering the patenting of plants was taken up and it was the desire of the Council to first adopt the propsed scheme on a voluntary basis with a view to definitely determining, through experience, the nature of the legislation which would be necessary. The council was assured that when their recommendations for plant patent legislation were made they would receive the utmost support.

The Plant Registration Bureau is now functioned and is ready to receive applications for recording and registration of new varieties, hybrids and species of plants, trees, shrubs, or vines which are propagated vegetatively.

Arrangements have been made of Professional Horticulturists — an organization of the recordings and registrations of the council. These will therefore be published in the in both Canada and Europe and the ownership of the new creations thereby established. The small charge for accepted recordings is to cover the cost of the publications.

Provincial Representations.

AUTHOR FINDS REFUGE IN BARREN CRIMEA

SIMFEROPOL, Crimea, Sept. 5.—(Associated Press.)—In a little hut high up in the mountains some 50 miles from Simferopol, S. Sergeyeff Zensky, one of Russia's most widely known authors, is to-day living the life of a hermit.

To an Associated Press correspondent Zensky related recently the difficulties of being a hermit during a revolution, and spoke of his adventures during the numerous changes of regimes and the famine year in the Crimea.

"The famine here was very acute," he said. "The land had been devastated by civil war and numerous risings. It completed the ruination, and carried away a large portion of the population which was already depleted by the upheaval and by terror.

"I lived here quite happily from 1913 until the beginning of 1918. Then the Germans raided my little farm, and later the Bolshevists. I had to take refuge in town, where I lived in hiding for a couple of months until I was able to secure from the authorities a 'guarantee of safety' paper. My live stock and cattle, which were confiscated during the period of my absence, were given back to me on my return, but they were unfit for work. Other changes of regimes, coupled with innumerable Tartar risings, have each had their interests, and now the result is quite evident."

Pointing to a pile of timber and short beams in a corner of the room, Zensky said: "That, together with this little hut and one cow, is all that remains of my farm; all I have to leave to my family."

"Please tell the American people," continued Zensky, "that the Crimean population greatly admires the disinterested and self-sacrificing work of the American Relief Administration, as well as the humanitarian feelings of the American people. We are indeed grateful."

S. Segeyeff Zensky is one of the few Russian writers who stayed in Russia all through the years of revolution and civil war. He lives to-day the hard life of a poor man, and is cut off from the world of culture. He writes a great deal, and has just completed a romance entitled "Transfiguration," which deals with the development of Russia.

If you are suddenly attacked with diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cramps or pains in the stomach or any looseness of the bowels do not waste valuable time, but at once procure a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and see how quickly it will relieve you.

Mr. Ernest Morris, 3 Webb St., London, Ont., writes:—"I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for what it has done for me.

Some time ago I took an awful violent headache, then started to vomit and felt so sick I could hardly stand it all day; towards evening intense pains came in my bowels and I was just doubled up the pains were so bad; the perspiration stood out like beads on my forehead; then the diarrhoea started and I really thought I was going to die.

My husband went to the drug store and got a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry; he gave me four doses at intervals, and by noon next day the diarrhoea had stopped and the pain was all gone too.

Now I will never be without 'Dr. Fowler's' in the house."

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

"CINDERELLA"

A theatrical attraction of quite unusual interest will be seen here when "Cinderella" is presented at the Grand Opera House, September 7-8, Friday and Saturday, with special matinee Saturday. This is a new version of the famous old fairy tale, in musical phantasy form, with brilliant costumes, special scenery, and gorgeous lighting effects. It is neither a pantomine nor a musical comedy nor a burlesque, but a genuine phantasy. The idea of giving the public an elaborate setting of a nursery tale has been amply justified in the past by such triumps as "Peter Pan". Nothing clings so tenaciously to memory as the stories heard in earliest childhood, and old people enjoy them as much as young folk, while those of middle age find them ever-new.

An all-Canadian company in an all-Canadian production does not mean a second-class road company. In this particular instance, especial care has been taken to give the production a cast that will stand comparison with the best standard of road shows. Theo Macfarlane, a dainty little Montreal artiste, will play the title-role, and is well qualified from the standpoint of personal charm and artistic ability to do so. All the supporting roles are in thoroughly competent hands.

The book and libretto of this "Cinderella" are from the pen of Forrest Audubon Rucker, and the score and lyrics by Stanley T. Vermilyea. In the libretto the author has adhered strictly to fairy story language, and the dialogues will be found immensely diverting. The lyrics are in true nursery rhyme style, and the music has abundant lilting melody throughout.

In order to ensure an efficient production, the company carry their own lighting equipment, and this, together with ingenious stage mechanism, will enable them to guarantee the same quality of performance in every theatre, with brilliant lighting and color effects. All the dominating characteristics of the old fairy tale have been effectively preserved in this phantastic version.

FOR C. DE ROCHE YET

Player in "The Cheat" Denies Reports of His Engagement

"Engaged ( Not until I win thees present fight! One fight ees enough at one time!"

Thus does Charles de Roche, French actor and war hero appearing in Paramount pictures, deny the rumor of his engagement to wed that have been flying thick and fast of late. For some reason Dame Rumor has picked one the dashing Frenchman and has had him engaged in turn to three different young women.

Mr. de Roche's emphatic denial was made in halting English, for he has not yet mastered that language

"I now have one great beeg fight,' he said. "I have done well in my country, but when I came to America I knew I must fight hard to win the approval and favor of theez Americans.

"If I win in thees fight, then I may think of becoming engaged to some charming young woman.

"But one hard fight at one time ees enough and love ees a big fight I cannot serve at one time two masters. My art and my career in thees country I first serve. Then, maybee, I serve Love."

In "The Cheat," which comes to the Capitol theatre to-night. Pola Negri plays the role of a Latin-American girl, who marries a young American and becomes involved in a series of dramatic incidents which come to a climax, when she attempts to get out of a bargain she has made with an infatuated art swindler parading as a Hindu Prince who brands her with his seal as a cheat.

Jack Holt plays the young husband, who risks prison to assume his wife's responsibilities. Charles de Roche, is seen as the false prince. Hector Turnbull wrote the story.

NEARLY ELECTROCUTED TURNING ON TAP

LINDSAY, Sept. 6—Miss M. Wray, one of the nurses at the Ross Memorial Hospital, was nearly electrocuted yesterday afternoon. Miss Wray had an electric light extension cord in one hand, and with the other started to turn a tap. So powerful was the current that she was unable to drop the wire. Her predicament was noticed by a Peterborough doctor, who happened to be near. He immediately turned the current off and saved Miss Wray from serious injury.

CHINESE RESIDENTS MUST REGISTER HERE

Leave Names and Data With Postmaster Before July Next.

Chinese residents in Peterborough must register with the postmaster before June 30, 1924, according to a notice printed in Chinese and English displayed in the Post Office this week.

The notice calls on all of Chinese origin or descent in Canada, irrespective of allegiance or citizenship to register, and failure to comply will render the offender liable to a fine of $500 or 12 month's imprisonment. Three copies of the applicant's photograph must be produced, and these must measure 1¼ inches from top of the head to the point of the chin without head covering, full front view showing both ears.

It is expected that this move will provide the government with a complete census of all Chinese in this country.

Only one man had enquired at the post office up to noon to-day and he did not register. There are between 45 and 50 Chinese in Peterborough, it is believed.

A MORATORIUM IS PROCLAIMED IN QUAKE ZONE

Persons Profiteering in Necessaries for Life Will Be Liable to Long Imprisonment.

BANKS REOPENED

OSAKA, Sept. 7. — (Canadian Press). —The Japanese government has proclaimed a thirty-day moratorium for payments falling due from September 10 to 30. It is applicable only in the zone of disaster.

Persons profiteering in necessaries for life are liable to imprisonment for 3 years or a fine of three thousand yen while any one found guilty of spreading rumors with the object of encouraging rioting, damaging property of disturbing the peace may be imprisoned for ten years or fined three thousand yens.

Loss Exaggerated

All to-day's reports from Japan indicate that the first estimates of loss of life and damage by earthquakes fire and tidal wave was much exaggerated.

An Associated Press. radio-gram intercepted at Shanghai estimated casualties in Yokohama at fifty thousand. An Eastern News telegram said thirty thousand already has been accounted for west of Tokio.

A Reuters report stated that all banks were reported. The Bank of Japan as intact, according to despatches.

Vice-Consul Dead

The British Vice-Consul Haigh at Yokohama was killed in the earthquake, says a British naval wireless received at Shanghai. The wife of Surgeon-Commander William Kingston, who was in charge of the Yokohama naval hospital also was killed but the remainder of his staff and their families escaped.

The Swiss minister and personnel of the legation are safe. German Consul-General Herr Thiel and his family, German Ambassador Solf and his family; the Belgian Ambassador and French Ambassalor, Paul Claudet and his wife are reported to have escaped.

SCHOOL CHILDREN'S BIG RACING EVENTS

Open at Peterborough Fair to Rural as Well as City Pupils.

The idea seems to prevail that the races for children at the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition on Wednesday next, September 12th, are for children of the city schools only. This is not the case as children from the rural districts are eligible in all the events. Those who intend entering will please send in their entry to G. H. Roper, care of Y.M.C.A., city. All that is necessary is that you give your name and the race or races you intend to contest, which are as follows:

Boys' Races.

Start at 2 p.m., sharp so be on hand.
Sack race, under 12 years.
Wheelbarrow race, under 14 years.
75 yard dash, under 16 years.
½ mile race, under 18 years.
½ mile relay, 4 boys, open to teams from all schools.

Girls' Races.

Potato race, under 12 years.
50 yards, under 14 years.
75 yards, under 16 years.

The entry list is still open for children's singing contest on Wednesday afternoon.

The drawing contest for heavy and light horses will take place in front of the grand stand at 3.30 p.m. Saturday afternoon, September 15th.

This contest created considerable excitement last year, and owing to the number of entries, both classes will be hotly contested this year.

A tug of war will also take place in front of the grand stand Saturday afternoon, and the Canadian General Team, who won last year, will find that they will have unexpected competition this year.

It is a well known fact that the anchor man on one of the teams entered in this contest, has been sticking exclusively to a heavy diet and it is said that eggs and beef have been going into his home in huge quantities.

A meeting of the Board was held at the exhibition grounds last evening at 7 p.m., and all the details were completed the new poultry barn and band stand inspected so that everything is now set for the biggest and best exhibition ever held in Peterborough.

All entries positively close Saturday night September 8th at 9 p.m.

KIWANIS CLUB TO VISIT THE BIG FAIR HERE

Weekly Luncheon Will Be Held on the Grounds Next Friday--Good Addresses Today.

BUILDING PROBLEMS

That the Peterboro Kiwanis Club is interested in the success of the Peterborough Exhibition was manifest at the club luncheon to-day, when Kiwanian Hamish MacKintosh moved that the regular luncheon on Friday next be held at the Exhibition grounds. This was unanimously endorsed and a committee was named to complete arrangements with the Exhibition Board. The directors of the Exhibition will be invited to attend.

The speakers to-day were Kiwanian Harry Huffman and Kiwanian Alec Dick. Building problems were discussed in an interesting way by Mr. Huffman Building, said the speaker, is one of the oldest trades known. Contractors are divided into many classes, but the speaker said he belonged to the class who build anything from a garage to a factory. When a contract states that "the lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted," it means that the man who will do the work cheaper than the other fellow will be the successful bidder.

Formerly advantage was taken of this clause to consider the ability of the bidders, also their financial standing, as that is the only guarantee the job will ever be completed.

Of late years the clause is generally disregarded and the job let invariably to the lowest tender, irrespective of the chance that he may never complete it.

Profits Visionary.

The business of a building contractor is one in which the profits are visionary until some time after the work is completed.

Even with an elaborate system of costs, which a contractor of twenty-five years ago never dreamt of, the whole thing is in doubt till you receive your final check. Especially so on a building job.

This kind of work is much better handled by selecting a competent firm and leaving the job to them. If they intend to stay in the business in the city it is quite necessary for them to give satisfaction.

Some few years ago it was a simple thing to estimate a job of any kind. Material and labor had been on an even keel for a number of years and any contractor could guess very closely to a job. To-day this is not so. Our cost system must be kept an in estimating a job the cost of former jobs can only be used on certain things.

The apprentice question is one that is now in the light in view of the scarcity of skilled workmen. The Rotary Club have taken some action and the Provincial Building Association in conjunction with the Assocaition of the Canadian Building Industries, and a committee of the government are trying to worry out a solution.

We have one apprentice fifteen months on the work, and he is paid more than a mechanic received in 1916, said Mr. Huffmar. If there is ever going to be a reduction in the cost of building it will have to come after the labor market is easier than it has been since the war. Cheap houses cannot be obtained, even in Peterboro, when a bricklayer, plasterer, carpenter, etc., can get from $8.00 to $10.00 a day within 100 miles radius of the city at any time.

Lumber Industry.

Kiwanian Alec Dick described some of the high spots connected with the production of lumber from the time the timber cruiser goes into the woods until the lumber is ready for the market over a year later. Once the camps have been located and measures taken to provision the men the work of opening up the roads starts. The matter of keeping the roads in good condition constitutes an ever present problem until the last log is in the stream or lake and on its way to the mill. In the depth of winter roads often have to be tramped down by men equipped with snowshoes and then watered. The water freezes and forms a hard surface on which to haul logs to the dump. In January the log haul starts and this is a problem in itself, where anywhere from eighty to one hundred thousand logs have to be placed on the bank of the river or lake by March 20th. Later the river drivers come upon the scene and the drive to the mill begins. Logs are collected in large booms and towed until a dam is reached when they are released and again col-

LEAGUE STANDS WITH BACK TO WALL IN CRISIS

Its Work Paralyzed Today, Pending Outcome of Council's Test of Strength.

FIGHT FOR EXISTENCE

GENEVA, September 7. (Special.) —All work of the League of Nations was temporarily paralyzed today pending the outcome of the council's test of strength with Mussolini. Both sides in the dispute over League Council's competency to interfere with the Greeco-Italian quarrel rested on their positions, awaiting word from Rome.

Premier Mussolini has been advised of the action taken yesterday when the council made recommendations to the council of Ambassadors at Paris regarding a proposed investigating in the Janina assassinations and payment of reparations therefore by Greece.

The Council left as an open issue the question of its own competency, and the delegates agreed that the situation — pending a reply from Mussolini was too tense for this to be discussed.

No one doubts but that the league has its back to the wall fighting for its very existence.

Marking Time.

The assembly marks time and it cannot proceed with other business until it learns whether the council is to survive the attack of the Fascisti Premier, who has boldly declared it incompetent to adjudicate the present dispute, in which Italy's dignity and honor, Mussolini says, are involved.

If Italy permits the recommendations of the ambassadors to be acted upon—something which the late advices from Rome indicted she might not do—the situation may yet result in a peaceful settlement of the dispute that threatens the life of the League.

Premier Musolini of Italy states that if it is established that the Albanians were the culprits in the murder of General Tellini and others, parts of his ultimatum to Greece would be modified. In the event the ambassador's conference found that not Greeks but Greek officials,

TARVIA ROADS ARE PROPOSED

Two Miles Will Be Constructed in Peterboro as Experiment — Suitable for Residential Streets

Tarvia as a road material was examined by members of the city council who motored to Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls for that purpose yesterday. Seven city officials took part in the inspecion and all were favorably impressed with the possibilities of this paving substance.

Tarvia has very strong bonding properties and is used a great deal in road building where a permanent road for light traffic is required. Peterboro macadam roads form an excellent base for tarvia paving, it is claimed; fully equal to a concrete base. While it is felt that all leading roads should be of concrete concrete construction, it is believed that the residental streets and less travelled roads could be economically and satisfactorily constructed of tarvia.

It was decided by the city council committee to put down 3,500 yards of tarvia next year as an experiment, and if this proves satisfactory more will be undertaken.

Those who made the inspection tour yesterday were Mayor W. H. Taylor, Alderman W. T. Holloway, W. Stocker, J. O. Fife, M. J. Maher, M. McIntyre and Street Commissioner Harry Evans.

DISTURBING FACTORS IN WORLD

Happenings of the Week in Japan, Italy, Greece, Ruhr, and Coal Diggers' Strike, Threaten More War and Universal Hardship

By CHARLES P. STEWART.

In loss of life the Japanese earthquake seems likely to prove the most appalling disaster in history. The swarming populations of oriental countries lend themselves to almost incredible numbers in such cases. As for property loss, figures are deceptive. Except for a comparatively few fine buildings, Japanese structures are mere lath, paper and straw bandboxes, worth little more than so many tents and affording about the same shelter. Reconstruction will be rapid.

Italy and Greece.

Among the boundaries the World War left unsettled was the Greek-Albanian.

An international board was chosen to fix it. Italy had five members. Autoing through the disputed district, they were killed from ambush. It's one of the most lawless, banditinfested regions on earth. The murderers may have been common brigands—not Greek brigands, either.

But Premier Mussolini of Italy decided to blame Greece. He said the Italians opposed the boundary Greece wanted, so he argued that Greeks must have killed them.

He made demands on Greece that all diplomats agree she couldn't have granted without losing every atom of self-respect. Greece demurred. Italy almost instantly seized several Greek islands, bombarding one of them, thus getting control of the Adriatic Sea, which she's long wanted to make an Italian lake of.

League of Nations.

Greece appealed to the League of Nations.

Under League rules, a member committing an act of war against another member, in defiance of the rest of the membership, thereby commits an act of war against all of them.

Italy denies she's committed an act of war, but everybody knows better.

But the League's two big members are England and France. They disagree over France's Ruhr policy. Each wants Italy to side with her on this question. Query: will either dare to risk angering Italy by defending Greece?

True, the League has other members, but it's unlikely the smaller ones can do much if England and France fear to act.

NEW MINISTER WAS INDUCTED LAST EVENING

Rev. M. C. Mackinnon Assumes the Pastorate of Knox Church--Warkworth Man Officiates.

DUTIES EXPLAINED

Presbyterian Church congregation was well represented last evening on the occasion of the induction to the pastorate of the new minister, Rev. M. C. Makinnon, M.A., recently of Hallville, in the Brockville Presbytery, who enters on his second charge in assuming the pastor's duties at Knox Church.

The order of service of induction under the Presbyterian form was followed in an impressive ceremonial which was preceded by an organ voluntary by the church's organist, J. A. Jeffreys, and attended by a full-robed choir. According to precedent, the last minister to be inducted into the presbytery, Rev. George S. Hammond of Warkworth, who took over his new charge on August 2nd of this year, conducted the services and preached the sermon. At the close of the public worship session, the moderator of the Presbytery, Rev. P. L. Jull of Lakefield, took charge of the induction ceremonial. The interim moderator of Knox Church, Rev. R. Pogue of St. Paul's church, explained the steps leading up to the call, Rev. Mr. Jull put the prescribed questions to the young minister and to the congregation, then inducted him by prayer, members of the presbytery extended to him the right hand of fellowship, and the service concluded with an address to the young minister, made by Rev. Mr. Jull, and an address to the congregation, made by Rev. Mr. Pogue.

Rev. Mr. Hammond took his text from the 19th chapter of Acts, from the 13th to the 16th verses: "Then certain of the vagabond Jews, exorcists, took upon them to call over them which had evil spirits the name of the Lord Jesus, saying, We adjure you by Jesus whom Paul preacheth. And there were seven sons of one Sceva, a Jew and chief of the priests which did so. And the evil spirit was leaped on them, and overcame them, and prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked and wounded.

Mr. Hammond, in an earnest and thoughtful sermon, emphasized the necessity of making the religion of Jesus Christ a personal and real thing. 'If you use religion in a second-handed way it means defeat." Down through the ages, from the time of Moses and Abraham and Elijah, the right sort of religion had been a real and personal thing, deeply seated in the heart of men who loved and served the Master. Queen Victoria, praying on the day of her coronation for strength to bear her great responsibilities, George Washington kneeling at Valley Forge and asking God for help, were examples of real type of religion.

Not alone for the minister, but also for each individual member of the congregation, to bring peace to the church and success to the upbuilding of the Kingdom, must religion be first-handed, and of the true type of faith that goes hand in hand with good works.

Following the narration by Rev. Mr. Pogue, the solemn response of the young minister to the prescribed questions from the Book of Forms, put to him by the moderator of the presbytery, Rev. P. L. Jull of Lakefield, and the assent of the congregation to a general inquiry, the right hand of fellowship was extended the young man by Rev. Mr. Jull, Rev. Mr. Pogue, Rev. Mr. Hammond, Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, clerk of the presbytery, Rev. Jas. Rollins of St. Andrew's church and by four men representing different sections of the presbytery; J. Smyth of Knox church, Andrew Fairbairn of Lakefield, T. W. Wesley of Norwood and J. A. Black of Omemee.

Rev. Mr. Jull, in a clear-cut sincere and impressive address to the young minister congratulated him on his induction at Knox church and his new charge over a congregation "with a great, loving heart." "The minister," said the speaker, "has many demands made upon him. He is expected to be a business manager who is able to extract a great deal of money painlessly, and give wise advice as to its expenditure; he must inject spirit of 'pep' into various church organizations and keep things going smoothly; he must act as a cog or a belt or a wheel wherever it is necessary to mend the church's machinery; he is expected to be a

WILL SEIZE ALL FOREIGN MONEY

German Dictatorship Determines on This Action Where Currency is Not Productively Employed

BERLIN, Sept. 7. — (Canadian Press).—Chancellor Stresmann told Reichstag members from the occupied territory, Wednesday, that the Government is prepared to seek an early understanding with France, even under heavy sacrifices. The Minister of Economy Raumer has announced a "Valuta (Foreign Exchange) dictatorship."

The Dictatorship will seize all Foreign currencies in Germany, which are not being productively employed The German mark touched a new low of 40 million to the dollar Thursday in Post Bourse quotations.

Essen Demonstrations

Minor demonstrations are reported from Essen, where several persons were wounded as the police drove unemployed demonstrators away from the city hall. A portion of the railway, near the West Station of Essen, was bombed on Thursday, and a second bomb was discovered near the former coal syndicate building, now used for French headquarters. The French have levied a fine of 37,000 francs indemnity on Essen.

The Mark Quotation

Fifty-seven million marks to the dollar, or a million marks for one and three quarter cents, was the New York Exchange quotation here, to-day for German money, whose value in the United States has practically vanished.

Before the war, German marks here, were worth 28 cents each.

HOPEFUL FOR END MINES SUSPENSION

Possibility of Early Settlement Believed by Officials at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7. — Officials here to-day felt more hopeful than for some days previous about the possibility of a settlement of the coal strike. They feel that the fact that the operators have decided to accept Governor Pinchots plan, the miners will not hold out long against settlement, even though they may not consent to one at this afternoon's conference with the Governor.

X-RAY THERAPY AND DIAGNOSIS WERE SUBJECTS

Clinical Day of Peterborough Medical Association Closed With Technical Discourse.

SOCIAL GATHERING

The evening session of the clinical day under the auspices of the Peterborough Medical Association consisted of a dinner served at the Empress Hotel, followed by a lecture in the Peterborough Club by Dr. G. E. Richards of Toronto, treating of X-ray diagnosis and treatment.

Dr. Maxwell Yelland, President of the Peterborough Medical Association, presided at the dinner, and G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, welcomed the visiting members of the profession. "There is no profession that has done so much for humanity," he said, "as the medical fraternity."

Mr. Gordon referred in eulogistic terms to the movement towards school medical and dental inspections, which, he said, are of great benefit to fathers and mothers through calling to their attention irregularities in the children which, being revealed at that time, may be treated with greater hope of success than could be assured later in life.

"Let me suggest that it would be well if men and women had an annual stock-taking, an examination to disclose whether they have those diseases which may develop suddenly. I believe that every man should consult his physician at least once a year." The speaker expressed the hope that the time will never come when the people will have any less high regard than they have now for the members of the medical profession.

Dr. E. A. McQuaid, of Trenton, District Councillor of the O.M.A., congratulated the Peterborough Association on the arrangements made for the clinical day and on its great success. The programme and entertainment were creditable to Peterborough, and the committees who arranged the details were deserving of the greatest appreciation.

Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield, delighted the gathering with a splendidly rendered solo, and was recalled. He was accompanied by John Crane, secretary of Nicholls Hospital Board, to whom the chairman referred in laudatory terms. About seventy physicians attended the dinner.

Radiology Discussed.

Dr. G. E. Richards, who was introduced as the leading radiologist in Ontario, and one of the leading radiologists in Canada, illustrated his lecture with numerous slides of wonderful clearness. In introducing his subject the speaker announced he would not dwell on peculiar cases, but would confine his remarks to well known conditions. In many cases he discoursed on the individual peculiarities of the cases illustrated, giving an added interest to his descriptions of the conditions pictured in the reproductions from X-ray plates.

Discussing the stomach and other organs and localities, the speaker said the old classifications of disease appear to the X-ray specialist to require revision. As an example he declared there is no type of stomach into which all can be grouped. One slide illustrated an elongated stomach which Dr. Richards said conformed to the individual type of the person. It is not proper to group the stomach of a person weighing 210 pounds with that of a person weighing only 110 pounds and say they

AUTHOR LOSES PRESTIGE BY KILLING CHARACTERS

By JAMES W. DEAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. — Gene Stratton-Porter in "The White Flag" is guilty of characticide. After various characters of the book have served her plot purposes she ruthlessly slays them. Thus she zealously takes care of her hero and heroine that in the end they may live happily ever after without the least fear that one of the sinister figures of the earlier chapters will again molest them.

An author may murder as many fiction characters as he desires without fear of prosecution. There is no law against it, in so far as I know, yet it seems to me to be the part of cowardice to involve even a creature of type in such a hopeless tangle of circumstances and consequences that it must be slain.

* * *

Mahala Spellman is the heroine of "The White Flag." Her father is the leading merchant of Ashwater, a Main Street town. She loved Jason Peters and Jason loved her. Junior Moreland loved Mahala, but Mahala didn't love him.

Junior's father was the town banker. It was due to his influence that Jason was compelled to leave high school. Jason had hit Junior with a brick when Junior kissed Mahala. Junior's father went to Jason's home to whip him. Jason struck him over the head with a chair.

For that Moreland banished Marcia Peters, generally supposed to be Jason's mother, to another town. Jason went to work in a grocery and became a partner in it.

After high school graduation Mahala refused to marry Junior, so he had his father ruin Mahala's father's business and Mahala's father dropped dead. On the day of his death a foreclosure notice was placed above the funeral wreath on the Spellman store.

Then Mahala began to suffer. My, how she did suffer! She and her mother moved into the shack of their negro servant. Mahala became a seamstress. Then the Morelands involved her in a theft scandal and Mrs. Spellman dropped dead. Mahala contracted typhoid fever while she was in the calaboose. She was taken to a farm that the Morelands didn't know her father had owned. Jason intended to farm it on shares with her.

But something happened to make Jason believe that Mahala had really stolen money from the Morelands, so he married another girl. Junior's wife (he had married another girl for her money) fell and killed herself. Crazy Becky, who went around the town with a white flag bidding the ungodly walk under it, fell and mortally injured herself. efore she died she regained her senses, cleared Mahala of the suspicion of theft and established Jason as the son of herself and Moreland. Junior killed himself and the elder Moreland, now a pauper and insane, took up Becky's white flag and lived as she had lived.

A son had been born to Jason and his wife, but after everything else had been cleared up, the author found that she still had Jason and Mahala in love with each other. So she sent a bolt of lightning tearing through the last chapter of the book in time to kill off Jason's now totally unnecessary wife. That was murder in the first degree.

Mrs. Porter in the past has written some excellent stories for adolescent minds. She dedicates "The White Flag" to "boys and girls 'grown taller,'" but the book seems to be suitable neither for adolescents nor adults. Ugliness of detail makes it unsuitable for youngsters. The ugliness is too artificial, too far removed from life, to impress older readers. "The White Flag" seems considerably under the standard of her former books. Perhaps this judgment may be due to the changing standards of this reviewer.

Here's a new way to get a raise from the boss, or to land a better job. Walk into his office and roar at him. Roar at him like thunder. That certainly ought to get a raise from him.

That is the procedure recommended in "Thunderbolt," by Clyde Perrin. Barnaby Lamb, humble clerk in an advertising agency, is fired and rejected by his girl. He turns into a lion and roars and obtains a $5,000 job. Some bosses this reviewer knows would readily give a bellowing clerk a raise—with his foot.

Many an honest working man has been tempted to make a little easy money through the gentle art of bootlegging, but because of his conscience and his ignorance of the ways of bootleggery has hesitated. He may now obtain a little light on the subject of conscience and profits by reading "The Real Story of a Bootlegger," a recent anonymous book.

Several years ago Mr. Francis Mandell-Essington, after delighting readers with escapades in the printed pages of "A Lunatic at Large," was captured and taken to Dr. Jenkinson's retreat. The book was closed and he seemed shut off from the public. He has escaped and may now be followed through "A Lunatic at Large Again." In his latter book, by J. Storer Clouston, the lunatic is still at large in the closing chapter and it is to be hoped that we shall hear from him again.

X-RAY THERAPY

should be of the same formation. For this reason an elognated stomach should not be described as abnormal.

In dealing at length with ulcers, the speaker gave clinical histories of illustrated cases to indicate how indefinite clinical diagnosis may be. Nervous indigestion, known only to Dr. Richards through the use of the term and never encountered by him, is applied to cases of indefinite irritation.

Fruitful Field.

One of the most fruitful fields for investigation by X-ray methods is the chest. The X-ray clears up many of the difficulties which offer in a clinical diagnosis of tuberculosis. Incorrect diagnosis of complaints had led to wrong treatment, sometimes for years, and an X-ray examination located the true cause and thereby brought about a cure.

Dr. Richards pointed out the necessity for routine examination of the spine in complaints of aching backs. Unrecognized fractures of the spine, he said, were common. Last year in the practice of one surgeon 47 fractures were found, 40 of which had not previously been discovered, but had been dismissed as sprains. One individual was caught in a fire, and in jumping from a window he "strained his back." He walked around for a week and then, coming to Toronto from Detroit, he had an X-ray examination which revealed a fracture of the spinal column. "Every person who has anything approaching a real injury to the spine is entitled to every possible examination, including X-ray," the speaker declared.

Unexpected Results.

During routine X-ray investigations following complaints of pain in the back, the seat of trouble, was often removed from the spinal column. In some cases the kidney is revealed filled with abcess pockets. In others, stones in the kidney are shown on the plate. A lesson in these discoveries is to use large plates in routine investigations.

Discussing fractures, the speaker said when pain is present at a joint after an injury, an X-ray examination is advisable. A case was cited where a fracture was treated without X-ray examination and the doctor felt he had secured adequate reduction of the fracture but pain continued with limited movement of the joint. Three months later an X-ray examination revealed an oblique fracture, unsuspected before, which had resulted in a dropping of the foot. It had been overlooked by lack of complete examination.

X-Ray Treatment.

The final series of slides illustrated the successful treatment of tumors by high-voltage X-ray therapy.

Dr. Richards referred to many conditions in which X-ray treatment had proven efficacious, and also told of those mal-conditions to which X-ray treatment had not yet been adapted.

Dr. E. H. Wood and Dr. G. L. Macdougall moved and seconded a vote of thanks to the distinguished speaker, which was enthusiastically tendered.

DISTURBING FACTORS

Greece, she almost automatically involves Jugoslavia (Greater Serbia) and then Turkey, Bulgaria, Roumania, Hungary and maybe Russia. After that, nobody can tell where trouble will stop.

Bid For Popularity.

Italy not only wants to control the Adriatic.

She wants territory on the Adriatic's eastern shore, too. It was what she went into the World War for. The peace treaty euchred her out of it. By beating Greece (which will be easy for her if others don't interfere) she may get it yet.

Premier Mussolini may have a personal stake, also. When a near-revolution made him virtual dictator he was very popular. There are signs that lately he's been losing much of this popularity. Jingoism may restore it.

In the Ruhr.

A story's current that Chancellor Stresemann has decided to cease "passive resistance" in the Ruhr and is negotiating secretly, with a good prospect of ending Franco-German difficulties. This story's denied, too. It's too soon to guess who's telling the truth.

Coal Miners' Strike.

The hard coal miners finally struck, despite President Coolidge's efforts, through Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, to prevent it. It's promised there'll be plenty of soft coal but most people will be surprised if it isn't mightly expensive.

FOR STREET WEAR.

Beltless coat dresses, with loose plain backs and long, tightly fitted sleeves, promise to be the popular street dress for autumn.

CREDITORS OF FARMERS SEEK CROP REVENUE

Appoint a Committee to Consider Scheme For the Share of Harvest Proceeds.

MANITOBA DEBTS.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 6.— Represen tatives of loan and mortgage companies, banks, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Retail Merchants' Association, met to-day with members of the provincial government and officials to consider the credit situation in Rural Manitoba. Plans were outlined by Hon. D. L. McLeod, provincial secretary for the formation of a debt adjustment bureau for equitable distribution of the farmers' crop proceeds among their creditors, and a committee was appointed to consider the scheme.

Premier Bracken and Attorney-General Craig made it clear that if the farming community were pressed too strongly for payment of debts, which they were unable to meet without being forced off the land, the government would bring down legislation at the next session for farmers' relief. The crop in southern Manitoba would produce five to ten bushels per acre of low grade grain and the proceeds, said the Premier, would not meet the expense of putting in the crop. Mr. Bracken said he would think about calling a special session of the legislature to let the farmers and the bankers debate the subject.

C. W. Rowley of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, declared that merchants and others also had to be considered. Mr. Rowley said he had just returned from Europe and he had heard more "calamity howling" in three days in Winnipeg than in six months in Europe. There was nothing the matter with the country but the people wanted to be spoonfed.

T .A. Burrowes, a lumber dealer declared that many farmers had been wiped out by rural credit societies. He declared the farmers were suffering from an abundance of credit facilities rather than a lack of credit.

FINAL MEETING OF FAIR BOARD

Inspected the Grounds and the New Work That Has Just Been Completed — Only Weather Uncertain.

The dress rehearsal of the Exhibition Board Thursday evening brought together virtually all the directors on the grounds for a final review of the work that was planned.

Everything that had been laid out was found completed, even the new bandstand north of the merchants' building. It has been painted and is ready for the first concerts on Children's Day. The directors were satisfied that everything within the limits of their present means had been done, and it was firmly believed that if the weather is favorable Peterboro's Exhibition will draw the biggest crowds in its history. The buildings are all in fine condition. Accomodation for the poultry, swine and sheep exhibits has been enlarged and their are all the appearances of efficiency and preparedness about the Park which in its general appearance never looked better.

OBSTACLES TO COAL STRIKE SETTLEMENT REDUCED TO TWO

HARRISBURG, Pa., September 6. —All of the principal barriers to a settlement of the controversy which has shut down the hard coal mines have been set aside by an agreement by the miners and operators, Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, announced to-night, with the exception of the Union demand for an increase in pay greater than ten per cent. for day workers in the field, and the further Union demand for the check off system of collecting Union dues.

AMERICAN SETTLERS ARRIVE IN WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, September 6.—Eighty prospective land buyers and settlers brought into Eastern Canada from Iowa, Illinois and Indiana through the agency of the Canada Colonization Association to-day were travling to various points in Alberta and Saskatchewan to inspect recommended farms. Twenty of them entered through Winnipeg and sixty through North Portal. Since June the Association has brought 200 United States farmers into the prairies on tours of inspection.

LITTLE NATIONS FEAR END OF OWN SECURITY UNLESS ITALY SUBMITS

Precious Guarantees By League of Nations Would Cease to Exist If Italy Defies the Covenant.

SEEKING COMPROMISE

GENEVA, Sept. 6.— The storm over Italy's refusal to recognize the authority of the League of Nations to regulate her dispute with Greece gives no indication of diminishing. On the contrary it shows signs of developing into a political typhoon of the first degree. Representatives of world states like Belgium, Sweden and Uruguay went on record to-day as insisting upon respect for the League covenant and as being unqualifiedly convinced that Italy should submit the controversy to the League for settlement.

The cause of world peace demanded it; the very life of the League itself was at stake, several of the statesmen declared before the Council's session; if the covenant was defied precious guarantees for the smaller nations of the earth would cease to exist.

Seeking Compromise.

The Council again avoided taking direct League action on the Italian attitude towards the League, but endeavored to advance a compromise plan calculated to hasten solution of the Greco-Italian crisis through the collaboration of the League of Nations and the Council of Ambassadors.

This plan was put forward by the Spanish member of the Council, Count Guinones de Leon. It was not adopted, but the Council agreed that the minutes of to-day's session should be forwarded to the Paris body (Council of Ambassadors) for its enlightenment.

Italy's Objections.

Signor Salandra, head of the Italian delegation, absolutely refused to accept all parts of the resolution presented, which engaged that Italy recognize the competence of the League to intervene, and even questioned the right of the Council of Ambassadors to settle the question of general reparations, which Italy has demanded of Greece because of the murder of the Italian officers.

Among the suggestions made in the Spanish proposal was that League representatives should assist in the official inquiry into the assassination and that the Permanent Court of International Justice should decide the indemnity Greece must pay Italy.

Those in the crowded Council Chamber to-day witnessed a meeting which lacked nothing as regarded dramatic incidents.

Great Britain's View.

Lord Robert Cecil gave warning again that the competency of the League to intervene was, in Great Britain's view, certain and he indicated very strongly that "something more would be done about it." The clear voice of Paul Hymans, the Belgian leader, rang through the chamber with the words that the issue involved was exceedingly grave for the future of the League. He was convinced that the covenant applied to the Greco-Italian dispute, and he added: "The pact forms a precious guarantee for the lesser states and application of its stipulations is essential to the maintenance of the new order of things in the world, in which all countries have placed supreme hope."

Hjalmar Branting, of Sweden, subscribed to the Belgian view. The Uruguayan delegate, Dr. Alberto Guani, declared that the competency of the League in such international questions, which affected the peace of the world, could not be disputed.

Antagonists Clash.

A clash occurred between Signor Salandra and M. Politis in the course of the debate. Salandra had related how Italy sacrificed 600,000 lives of her soldiers in the world war, had emphasized that the question at issue involved Italian national dignity and prestige, and declared that was why Italy could not accept any decision by the League. He then added that M. Hymans and M. Branting represented countries where, happily, assassination was not resorted to as a political means to an end.

This brought M. Politis to his feet in a vigorous protest. He repudiated any accusation that Greece was guilty of such methods. He remarked that assassinations had occurred in the world's most civilized countries.

Indefinite Adjournment.

The Council adjourned without fixing a time for the next meeting. The chairman, Viscount Ishii, said: "There remains the question of the competency of the Council and the League. It is a judicial question and a grave one. I suggest that we go into that at a later session."

The resolution presented to-day will be forwarded to all the interested governments. It is reported that Constantine Skirmunt has telegraphed his home government, recommending that Poland stand for applictaion of the convenant to Italy. The official view of France has not yet been disclosed.

Text of Resolution.

Following is the text of the resolution presented to the Council of the League by the Spanish member, Guinones de Leon:

"The Council acknowledges the communication from the Council of Ambassadors, and, adhering to the principle of international law that States are responsible for crimes and political assassinations committed in their territories, expresses its intention to follow, in accord with the ambassadorial body, a study of the best means for holding an inquiry into the murder of the Italian mission."

The resolution continued by saying that it was desired to offer suggestions which possibly might prove satisfactory in meeting the situation. The suggestions were as follows:

First—Regret to be expressed by

WEST MAY HAVE NO WHEAT POOL

Necessary Acreage Not Signed Up in Saskatchewan Director Reports.

WINNIPEG, Sept . 6.—From present indications there will be no wheat pools operating in Alberta and Saskatchewan to handle the 1923 crop, it was stated to-day by J. B. Musselman managing director of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Co., who is here with directors of the company in conference with wheat pool representatives.

Inability of the wheat pool organization in Saskatchewan to get the necessary acreage signed up is given as the reason of a probable failure of the plan this year

Failure of Saskatchewan to go ahead would make it practically impossible for Alberta alone to take action, it is said Manitoba definitely has droppel the pool idea for the present year

Latest adivecs received from Regina to-day said Saskatchewan had contracts with the farmers for 1,200,000 acres and that more than 6,000,000acres were necessary to get fifty per cent. The drive has five days to run The Alberta pool with fifty per cent of the acreage signed up would be marketing less than one per cent of the world's wheat production, it is declared.

Conferences are being held to-day between the wheat pool committee of the two Provinces, directors of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company and the United Grain Growers, Limited, and members of the Northwest Grain Dealers Association to discuss arrangements under which the elevator company would handle pool wheat. The elevator companies it is reported have been asked to finance initial payments to the farmers in the event of the pools being operated.

CONDEMN "DEATH WHISPER" STUFF"

Speaker at Bar Association Denounces Propaganda of Gloom.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 6. — (Bar Association). — Recommendations in connection with the administration of criminal justice which should they become law, will bring about a number of changes in the treatment given both convicted prisoners and those who are merely awaiting trial, were passed here to-day at the meeting of the Canadian Bar Association. They were contained in the second report of the committee appointed to study the matter. Among them were provisions for the classification of prisoners, a detention home for arrested persons awaiting trial, the establishment of industries in prisons, wages for prisoners and the imposition of indeterminate sentences with a view to reforming convicted persons.

The report was presented by Judge Emerson Coatsworth of Toronto. Charles D. Richards, vice-president for New Brunswick was in the chair.

Condemnation of efforts tending to arouse dissatisfaction with the existing order of things in Canada or of the feeling that Canada's outlook was dark, was voiced by Hon. Sr Douglas Hazen, K. C., M. C., chief justice of New Brunswick, addressing the association.

He declared that although it was true that too many railways had been built in Canada and that the debt of the Dominion was a heavy burden, yet Canada was with one exception the most prosperous country in the world. Referring to a statement in regard to the Privy Council he gave it as his opinion that the greatest safeguard of liberty and justice was the right of appeal to an outside, impartial tribunal. Every citizen, however humble shoud have the right to take his grieveances to the foot of the Throne, and he hoped as long as the British throne remained, that right would be upheld.

WORLD STILL WAITING AFTER WHOLE WEEK FOR STORY OF JAPAN'S WOE

Meagre Despatches and Private Messages Suggest Property Loss in Tokio Not So Complete as First Reported—Skyscrapers in Tokio Escaped.

JAPANESE IMPRESSED BY SYMPATHY

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(Canadian Press).—The appalling nature of the Japanese earthquake, fire and tidal wave, with the greatest loss of life and property of any similar catastrophe in modern times, continues to be told by meagre and unconnected press despatches and private messages from foreign resident and tourists who survived the holocaust. But Europe still awaits the graphic story of how the earth shook to pieces and then consumed in flames Japan's capital and scores of towns around Tokio Bay, including the great commercial port of Yokohama.

The loss of life is estimated at such varying figures, in some cases running into hundreds of thousands, that any certainty of the casualties is impossible, while communications with the devastated districts remain as they are.

News Is More Hopeful.

On the whole, the news received today is of a more hopeful nature than any since the disaster, one authoritative message from a British naval official at Yokohama placing the deaths of foreigners in that port at seventy. Even this number of dead, which is small as compared with first reports, is enormous for a foreign colony of a few thousands, and indicates that the loss of life among the native population may reach the highest reported figures.

The only official estimate is based on Home Office information from Tokio that the loss of life there was 30,000, but Yokohama is known to have suffered much more severely than the capital city, and the Home Office figures do not attempt to take into consideration the one hundred miles of coast line towns and villages, all in the path of the tidal wave.

All available information shows that Tokio and Yokohama were not totally destroyed, the foreign residential district of the port city, which is on a high bluff overlooking the bay, suffering comparatively little damage, while the residential suburban districts of Tokio also escaped. This would account for the few deaths among the foreigners there, for on Saturday afternoon few would have been in their offices.

Police officials feared that other lives have been lost.

A second explosion, which illuminated towns for miles around blew the cars to pieces and pieces were scattered for hundreds of feet, endangering the lives of all in the neighborhood. Other box cars which caught fire were hooked up to engines and rushed flaming through

THE CHEMONG ROAD.

Having regard to the excessive amount of traffic over the Chemong road, and to the fact that this artery is not only used by hundreds of tourists but daily also by numerous city motorists and by the farmers of a large section, the question of paving this six-mile strip should be brought forward and vigorously pressed.

At the present time the road is far from being in good condition.

It could hardly be expected to be in view of the volume of travel over it—more traffic than over the Provincial highway to Port Hope, in the opinion of those who are in a position to know.

Ordinary road-making and repairs cannot be counted upon to stand up under such a test, and in the long run a permanent roadway would prove decidedly more economical than the methods used at present.

That fact has been demonstrated by the experience of many districts which have been forced to adopt a more lasting surface than the ordinary macadamized road affords.

The popularity of motoring has revolutionized road-making theories—and it is time that fact was more generally appreciated.

CANADA MUST HELP.

Although later reports indicate that the loss of life in the Japan catastrophe may not be as great as was at first reported, the casualties nevertheless were shockingly large and the property damage and the distress among the refugees are as serious as can be conceived.

The Examiner is sure then that the Canadian people will approve of the steps taken by the Federal Government after an emergency Cabinet meeting to rush supplies to the stricken Japanese and will stand behind the Government in any further assistance that may be proffered.

At the present moment supplies are of more service than a mere cash donation.

There will be plenty of time for monetary aid later on, but just now every ton of foodstuffs and other necessaries that can be rushed to Japan will be invaluable.

The extent of the disaster is so great as to be inconceivable, but it does not require a vivid imagination to picture the distress that exists in Japan at the present time, or to grasp the fact that unless help is dispatched as speedily as possible starvation may be added to horrors of the earthquake and its aftermath of tidal waves, overflowing rivers and rapidly spreading fires.

Canada could not hold her head up unless in this time of trial she showed herself willing to help to the greatest extent possible.

"50,000 FOR 1923."

Year after year the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition has continued to grow, not only in the number of exhibits and special features, in the size of its prize lists and in the expense of its entertainment programmes, but also in its plant and equipment.

The change that has been effected in the Exhibition Grounds in the past decade has been a remarkable demonstration of the steady growth of the big annual event.

More than that, it is a practical demonstration of the faith placed in the people of this district by the directorate of the Fair.

The board has confidently gone ahead year after year with a programme of construction, adding new buildings to its plant, providing more grandstand accommodation, improving the grounds, making Exhibition Park one of the finest Fair grounds in the Province.

In doing so the members have been guided by the feeling that the people are behind them, ready to lend their assistance in this onward march.

There is no reason to believe that this confidence has been built up on a false foundation.

The patronage has continued to increase, and it is hoped that with good weather for the last four days of next week a new mark insofar as attendance is concerned will be reached.

The Exhibition belongs to the public; it is in the long run what the people make it, ann from present indications the whole district will rally to the support of the board next week.

A 50,000 attendance record is not too high a mark to aim at—"50,000 for 1923" should be the slogan of city and county alike.

SOCIAL STABILIZERS SPURRED BY TAXES.

A feature which marks the present social and industrial unrest is the number of men of learning, who advocate radical changes in our system of life, whether economic or political, says the Financial Post. Ministers of religion, and teachers, and college professors, can be found among the leaders of the forces of unrest, and there is a reason for their position.

Men of this kind seldom have wealth, unless they have inherited it; they belong to the salaried class, which finds it almost impossible to evade or pass on taxation; and thus—with incomes generally inadequate and a heavy load of taxes—they become disgruntled and inclined to complain, often without appreciating the real cause of their attitude.

These intellectuals, with their diversity of minds and knowledge of human nature, find it easy to sway the masses by ideas which are tinged with "morality," and much of the morality preached today simply tends to overturn the present order in the name of "justice." Propaganda from such men, who normally should be working to stabilize our social system, finds a fruitful soil in the minds of the masses, susceptible to any appeal which claims a moral basis. The mass psychology which is so successfully exploited in these days—whether in "safety first," or milk-drinking campaigns—has the great advantage of being aggressive. Once get the "moral issue" started, and anyone who opposes it is immoral; the social reformers gather virtue to themselves through opposition; they become crusaders in a holy war; and trouble is the result until they impose their will on the whole community or are themselves beaten.

Propaganda of this kind is always irritating; sometimes it is dangerous, and never more so than when eloquence and culture lend themselves to preaching that the economic, industrial and social conditions of the day are grossly unjust.

The prosperity of our time is very real, when compared with former generations. The increasing number of working people who own their own homes and automobiles; the general spread of the comforts and conveniences of civilization; the diffusion of education in arts and letters; all of these things weigh as nothing in the balance when the idea of "injustice" is hammered into the heads of the people, and it is apparent that some intellectuals have a serious responsibility in this connection.

One thought arising out of these facts is that while sound in theory the income tax is not equitable in practice. The income of salary earners is at once available. With other classes it is subject to adjustment or can be passed on.

SOLDIERS' PENSIONS.

Last session Parliament, acting on the information collected in an exhaustive enquiry made by the Ralston Commission, passed an act greatly broadening the scope of the Pension Act. When our men marched off to the war they were assured by their countrymen that for them the home fires would be kept burning, that their positions would be restored to those who returned, that those who suffered disabilities would be properly pensioned, and that the lependents of the fallen would receive ample care at the hands of our people.

We believe that all these promises were most honestly made, but all have not been so honestly kept.

The home fires were kept burning pretty brightly, but many a one was allowed to go out very soon after the soldier's return, for lack of proper assistance in setting him once more upon his feet.

The majority of returned men were given their prewar jobs back again, but there were, for all that many exceptions, some of them most scandalous in their nature—the writer knows of one case where a mining engineer not only failed to get back his old job, but actually found a man of German extraction filling it—it is no wonder that he and those of his comrades who learned the facts were bitterly indignant.

Shortly after demobilization a small but very noisy fraction of returned men made most excessive demands upon the Government of the day, thus estranging public sympathy from the whole class. Further, taxation became extremely heavy, and business depressed, with the inevitable result that human nature with its selfishness and individualism asserted itself, still further turning the tide against a generous treatment of those who had fought in the war.

But through it all there was a deep though somewhat silent sentiment in favor of carrying out to the uttermost farthing the obligations of the country to the men who had saved it from the German yoke, and when the various soldier organizations finally made out their case, Parliament was quick to act. The legislation of last session was the result, and now an appeal board has been appointed, which will hear in review those decisions of the Pension Board which were unsatisfactory to soldier applicants.

Already sharp criticism has been levelled against the personnel of the new board. Why this should be so we cannot understand. Every member of it was himself on active service, or was closely connected with war activities, so that each man holding a seat in the new organization is well qualified by experience for his position. It seems most unfortunate that the new appointees should be condemned in advance. It is intemperate conduct such as this that cools off public sympathy, and that alienates those in favor of the square deal, that is to say, the vast majority of Canadians.

And right here we may say that the members of the existing Pensions Board have had much less than fair play at the hands of their critics. They were bound by statutory enactments which have been amended by the recent Act, and in many cases where they would gladly have given relief, they simply had no power to do so. Further, their work has been enormous, and it must have been humanly impossible to give to each case complete and searching enquiry. In proof of this statement, let us quote a few official statistics. In the fiscal year 1922 the Pensions Board refused 1,764 applications, decreased 8,229 pensions, discontinued 4,276 pensions and increased 4,550 pensions. In all, at the end of the year, 19,606 pensions, payable to dependents of decreased soldiers, were in force, involving an annual liability of $12,687,237, and disability allowances were being paid in 45,133 cases, totalling $17,991,535 for the year. The total number in both classes decreased from 87,526 in 1920 to 64,739 in the fiscal year 1922, but the liability increased from $25,176,287 to $30,678,722 in the same period. The total number of persons in receipt of benefits in the fiscal year 1922 was 146,841, of whom women and children constituted the majority. With such a number of beneficiaries to look after, is it any wonder that the Pensions Board failed to give satisfaction at all, especially when we remember that their hands were tied in many instances by legislative enactments.—Canadian Military Gazette.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The call of stricken Japan will not fall upon deaf ears so far as Canada is concerned.

Upon the people of this district depends the success of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. The Fair Board has done everything possible, and the responsibility will now pass to the public.

The probabilities of Governor Pinchot's peace terms being accepted are growing less. The coal war looks like a fight to the finish.

The business section can assist in making the Exhibition week a gala event by decorating their premises. It is a community enterprise—why not get behind it?

The League of Nations may yet have to decide to put the "muss" in Mussolini.

Of all the sad words of tongue and pen, the saddest are these, "No coal in the bin."

Judging by the way some motorists drive, Ontario needs a fool controller just about as badly as she does a fuel controller.

TORONTO CATTLE.

It was a quiet market to-day, with only a few loads of worth-while stuff offering. This sold slowly, but at steady prices. For the rest of the market was cluttered up with a lot of poor common quality cattle, for which there was no further demand either for stocker or butcher purposes. The bulk of this poor quality stuff is coming in from the western provinces and there is some comment in the market on the fact that the westerners seem to be shipping the poorest of their cattle down here. Commission men were unable to clean up, and there are quite a few cattle left over.

In the small meats section lambs and calves are holding steady, lambs at $12 tops and calves $11 tops.

The hog market is easier at $10.35 fed and watered, and $9.75 f.o.b. Prospects easier for next week.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Sept .6.—Wheat prices developed a rallying power to-day after a weaker tendency early. Some enlargement of commission house buying appeared to be based in a measure on prospective demand for flour to be shipped to Japan. The close was steady at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-4c. higher, with December $1.05 3-4 to $1.05 7-8 and May $1.11 1-4 and 3-8 to $1.11 3-8. Corn finished at a range varying from 1-8c. decline to 3-4c. advance, oats 1-8 to 1-4c. up, and provisions at 5 to 20c. gain.

At first the wheat market was bearishly influenced by the fact that spring wheat is beginning to move in volume from the farms and because of predictions of increased hedging here against Canadian grain. Besides, Liverpool quotations showed a material setback. In the absence of any aggressive selling, however, buyers gathered more confidence, and quite a decided upturn in values took place at one time when the market was found to be almost bare of offerings. The advance, though, failed to hold well, bearish crop estimates from Canada acting more or less as a weight on the market.

In the late dealings talk of increased demand for flour for Japan was also somewhat offset by questions as to the disposal of 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 bushels of Pacific Coast wheat said to be owned by Japanese. The leading mills of Japan have apparently been destroyed, and although some of the wheat may be diverted to other mills, the chances were generally taken to be that Japan might have to cancel wheat purchases even while requiring greater supplies of flour.

Wet weather and unfavorable crop reports from half a dozen States, Ohio to Nebraska inclusive, gave firmness to corn and oats.

Provisions went higher in response to a large decrease shown to have taken place in western stocks of lard.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.— Cattle, receipts 10,000; beef steers and yearlings generally steady with yesterday's decline; top matured steers 12.85; best yearlings 11.50; few loads Texas steers 5.85; numerous loads of Kansas averaging around 10.50 pounds, 7.75; string of stock heifers 6.50; canners and cutters 2.50 and 3.00; heavy bologna bulls 10 to 15c. higher; others steady; bulk bologna bulls 3.75 and 4.35; lighter offerings downward to 3.00; vealers 50c. higher; bulk vealers to packers 11.00 and 11.75; few up to 12.00; stockers and feeders steady; numerous loads of fleshy feeders 7.75 and 9.25.

Hogs, receipts 32,000; mostly 15 to 20c. lower than yesterday's average. Closed dull to 25c. lower; bulk good and choice 160 to 230 pound average 9.05 and 9.25; practical top 9.25; three loads choice lights 9.35; desirable 240 to 325 pound butchers largely 8.50 and 9.00; packing sows 7.25 and 7.60; good strong weight pigs 8.25 and 8.50; estimated holdover 20,000.

Sheep, receipts 21,000; fat lambs to 15 to 25c. higher; sheep slow, steady; bulk fat western lambs 13.00 and 13.50; natives 12.25 and 12.50; top 12.75; culls 9.00 and 9.50; bulk handy weight fat ewes 6.00 and 6.50; extreme heavies around 4.00; feeding lambs, yearlings and aged wethers steady; most feeding lambs around 62 pounds, 13.25 and 13.50; good feeding yearlings 10.75; aged feeding wethers of good grade, 7.25.

BRITISH WAR SURPLUS SOLD.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(Associated Press)—In spite of alleged graft and proven theft, the British have made a profit of almost $45,000,000 on the sale of their surplus canteen supplies left by the army and navy after the war. The profits go to the relief of disabled veterans. Following many whispers of scandal, a government committee investigated the sales and found that most of the low-priced goods were sold to former officials of the sales board. Two officials o thfe board were rebuked for "failing to exercise ordinary care," in disposing of the supplies.

SITE OF NEW MILLION DOLLAR HYDRO POWER PROJECT BELOW CAMPBELLFORD CLUSTERED ABOUT BY BUSY VILLAGE

The Sinclair Construction Company of Toronto Ready to Begin Work on Another Electric Power Unit For Central Ontario System — May Employ 300 Men.

COMFORTABLE QUARTERS.

By J. A. McGREGOR.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 7.—A thriving little village has sprung up a few miles from Campbellford at Dam 8, Lock 9, on the Trent Canal, where the new Hydro power house is to be constructed. Board buildings, which include offices, dining halls and sleeping apartments, have been erected, and at present there is accommodation for over 100 men. Everything is complete and the arrangements for the care and comfort of the inhabitants are perfect. When the work is fully under way the number of men employed will be about 300, the majority of whom will be from Campbellford.

The Sinclair Construction Company of Toronto, a firm that has for years performed engineer feats in railway construction all over Canada, have the contract for making the excavation and building the tail race for the new power house, which will have a capacity of between seven and eight thousand horse power. The amount involved for this part of the work alone is in the neighborhood of $250,00. Before the plant is completed it is estimated that the expenditure will be in excess of one million dollars. Of this a large percentage will be spent in Campbellford, so that there are prosperous days in sight for the town and its workmen.

F. H. Dickenson of the Sinclair Construction Company is superintendent of the work of construction, and as he has practically spent all his life with the firm is perfectly at home in his new surroundings. His chief assistants are Capt. R. Treloar, who is timekeeper and chief clerk, and George Frisken, paymaster. Capt. Treloar is a reservist of the British Army, and during the late war saw active service on almost every front, including military duty in Jerusalem. All three officials live at the works. They have a well equipped office and comfortable living-rooms above it. A. L. Malcolm, resident engineer of the Hydro, also has an office on the grounds, a building that has been moved from the plant at Ranney Falls and enlarged since being set up here.

Henderson Bros. are in charge of the cement works.

Work Was Delayed.

The beginning of the work has been dlayed, owing to the fact that the Hydro was unable to supply the contractors with the required power. A transmission line was built from Meyersburg to the plant some time ago, but there was some delay in getting it into working order, owing to the burning out of a couple of transformers. All difficulties, however, have been overcome, and it is now expected that operations will be in full swing by Monday and that the tail race and excavation will be completed by next spring. The building of the power house and the installation of the machinery will then be proceeded with.

Pay Roll, $10,000 a Month.

There are at present about 100 men employed on the works, nearly all of them being from Campbellford, and the pay roll totals nearly $10,000 a month. About half these men live in the company's boarding house, the remainder going to Campbellford every evening and returning in the morning in their own autos.

There is a new dining hall with tables to accommodate 100 men. The sleeping quarters are in separate buildings, well lighted and ventilated and with beds supplied with good mattresses and springs. All the buildings are situated near the bank of the river and the location is ideal.

Magnitude of the Work.

It is difficult to form an idea of the magnitude of the undertaking from any description of it. First of all, it will be necessary to divert the water from the river in order to make it possible to carry on the work of excavation in the bed of the stream. When everything is ready the water will be shut off by closing the dam and turned into the canal. Bradley Bay is over a quarter of a mile below the dam, and it will be necessary to construct a temporary dam across the river at the bay to prevent a back flow. This will leave the bed of the river almost as free of water as the men would find conditions if they were working on the land.

All Solid Rock.

The power house will be put up opposite the first three openings of the dam on the left bank of the river. It will stand on an excavation that must be made 20 feet deep below the bottom of the dam, an excavation that must be blasted out of the solid rock. The tail race will extend 3,400 feet from the power house down to Bradley Bay. It will be 33 feet wide for its entire length and the depth will vary from 25 to 30 feet. This excavation, too, must be made through solid rock, and Supt. Dickenson estimates that 30 tons of dynamite will be required for the blasting operations. The excavation under the power house is for the turbine and generators.

Some of the Machinery.

The company have all the necessary equipment on the ground, and the moving of this to the scene of operations was no small task in itself. This includes an air compressor with a 200 horse power motor and a capacity of 275 feet a minute at a pressure of 100 pounds. This machine will drive the drill that bores into the rock and prepares the way for the use of the dynamite.

The remainder of the equipment includes an 80-ton steam shovel, six large derricks, railway cars and a locomotive. To operate this machinery the contractors will take 450 horse power from the Hydro.

Benefit to Campbellford.

Residents of Campbellford, other than the laborers and mechanics engaged on the work, will benefit by the vast expenditure which the building of this plant involves. The gravel used for the cement work is being taken from the pits of this town and is lightered down the canal. All of the supplies required to feed the working men are purchased in Campbellford, with the exception of groceries, which are purchased at wholesale from the Perkins Ince Co. of Peterborough, a firm that has for over 20 years supplied the Sinclair Construction Company, no matter in what part of the country the latter were operating.

Supt. Dickenson says he does not think it will be necessary to employ any foreign labor. The working men of Campbellford, whether mechanic or laborer, are used to public works, owing to the experience which they have had on the Trent Canal, and are highly efficient.

Moving the Steam Shovel.

The most difficult part of the equipment to move to the scene of operations was the 80-ton steam shovel, which was lightered from Campbellford to its present station near Bradley Bay. Two lighters were required, and the only available craft of this type were rather small for the weight, but the trip was made in safety, although there was always the risk that the shovel, worth thousands of dollars, would be sunk in the canal, in which case its recovery would have been impossible.

Cement Wall Needed.

The work before the contractors includes the building of a high cement wall along Meyer's Island. This is necessary in order to keep the water of the river in the proper channel below the dam. Excavating for the foundation of this wall is now in progress.

A Worried Cook.

A young Japanese, who is known as "Vic," has charge of the cook camp and his boarders are all ready to testify to his efficiency. Just at present "Vic" is worried by the report of the recent disaster in his native land. He had several brothers and sisters and other relatives in the city of Tokio and is naturally anxious to learn whether they are living or dead.

AIRPLANES MAY BE USED FOR MINE RESCUE WORK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(Associated Press)—The adaptability of airplanes as aids to mine rescue work is being tested by the Department of the Interior near Birmingham, Alabama, where a landing field has been located, and trial flights of ships are being made carrying trained men of the Bureau of Mines, equipped with oxygen breathing apparatus, to help in imaginary mine disasters. Otehr fields are to be located at mining towns within reasonable flying range of Birmingham, the mine rescue station.

The bureau maintains ten railway cars and seven auto trucks equipped for mine-rescue purposes, but it often requires considerable time to send these mobile units to remote mining camps where they are needed in emergencies. It is hoped to demonstrate the value of the air route in supplementing the work of these cars, especially in reaching the camps where fields are available.

SAYS GERMANY CAN PAY INDEMNITIES

R. D. Waugh, Home From Ruhr, Supports British Policy.

WINNIPEG, September 6.—"Germany can pay indemnities imposed upon her and should be made to pay," said R. D. Waugh, former British representative on the Saar Valley Commission, addressing the Winnipeg Canadian Club to-day.

Germany could not be expected to pay, Mr. Waugh added, as long as France persisted in the Ruhr policy.

Mr. Waugh said that he was thoroughly in accord with the British policy in regard to Germany, which was a policy of construction. It was the only practical policy. Eight months' ocupation of the Ruhr by France has proved, he declared that she could neither get reparations nor security through the present methods.

Mr. Waugh arrived home last night to take over the chairmanship of the Manitoba Liquor Commission which is to administer the newly adopted system of Government sale.

the heart of the city to get them away from the powder supply which had already been loaded on barges.

The entire fire department of South Amboy was rushed to the scene and calls were sent to nearby cities for additional apparatus. Just before the engines arrived several other box cars of powder exploded bringing the total number to six.

The pier and two of the barges were enveloped in flames within a few minutes of the first explosion, the cause of which has not been ascertained.

Several automobiles which had been travelling along the river road when the explosion occurred were blown completely over, and their occupants, several of whom were said to be seriously injured, thrown to the ground.

In all 20 persons were taken to the hospital. One died shortly after arrival, at least one other was expected to die within a short time, and a dozen were said to be in a dangerous condition.

Winston Taylor of Newark, the first man who lost his life, was burned to death by the first explosion. He was thought to have been standing on one of the box cars that blew up. The yards are the property of the Pensylvania Railroad.

WORLD STILL WAITS

over two-thirds of the metropolitan district of fifteen wards, with the low-lying districts completely wiped out. These include the slums of Fukagawa, the industrial section of Honjo, both on the right bank of the Sumida River;; Asakusa famous for its amusement parks; Kyobashi and Nibonbashi, which include most of modern Tokio where four or five-storied department stores and office buildings lined the principal throughfare, the Ginza. This section also includes Tsukiji, in which, before Japan was completely opened to the western nations, foreigners were compelled to reside. It has recently been occupied principally by missionaries, their schools and hospitals. During the summer most of the Taukiji residents are out of the city, but the loss of property there has been heavy.

In other sections of Tokio—Asabu, Shiba, Akasaka, Yotsuya and Ushigone—where the foreigners live in more or less isolated foreign compunds, consisting of a few western style houses built on small hills, the damage was by fire, which on account of the number of open spaces could be controlled. The foreign embassies and legations were widely scattered throughout the higher districts of Tokio, and a number of them, including the United States Embassy, have been destroyed.

The British Foreign Office tonight received its first news from its representatives in Japan in a message reporting that all the Embassy staff were safe, but that the building was uninhabitable, necessitating rebuilding.

"Skyscrapers" Escaped.

Other messages received by the London agents of Japanese companies state that Tokio's "skyscraper" district escaped destruction. It is known as Marunochi and is located between the Central Railway Station and the Imperial Palace and consisted of great blocks of reinforced concrete buildings, which at first were reported to be a mass of ruins. They withstood the shock and the extensive station plaza saved them from the flames. In the Mitsuibishi Building, which is one of the structures, is temporarily housed the famous Morrison Library, which is awaiting the completion of the permanent library building of the Imperial University.

The fire which swept the eastern and central sections of Tokio after the quake was halted at the railway yards and the outer palace moat; thus the Tokio Central Station, many Governmen buildings and the new Imperial Hotel, a low structure with architectural lines like an Oriental temple and considered to be quake-proof, escaped damage.

Encouraging Messages.

The encouraging tone of direct news from Japan contained in private messages reacted on the London Stock Exchange, where Government securities and Tokio electric stock recovered some of yesterday's losses.

With army divisions converging on the devastated districts for relief work and the entire navy engaged in relief and the transportation of material for the reconstruction of the city, the Japanese are meeting the disaster with determination and courage.

Kobe Centre of Relief.

Refugees continue to flee from the Tokio and Yokohama districts, 840 of them, mostly foreigners, arriving at Kobe on the steamer London Maru. Kobe is the centre from which world-wide foreign relief work is being directed under an international committee, and the responses for supplies are considered fully adequate to meet the needs. Africa, India, China and Russia, as well as Canada, Australia, the United States and Great Britain, have taken active measures for immediate aid. Lord Reading headed the Indian subscriptions. South Africa will despatch by the first boat 5,000 bags of maize. Hong Kong is sending ship-loads of meat and money, and even the Chinese war lord, Tsao Kun, has contributed from his chest, and also intends to aid Chinese residents and students in Japan.

Accounts appearing in the Nagasaki and Kobe newspapers of the foreign relief work have created a profound impression on the Japanese public.

COBOURG, Sept. 7.—Cobourg taxes are coming in well this season. Up to the present time about $71,00 has been collected, which compares most favorably with about $61,500 collected up to the same time last year. Quite a number of citizens have pair the entire instalment thus saving the discount.

MEXICO EXPECTS U. S. TRADE TO FLOW WITH RECOGNITION

Interests of Northern Republic in Southern Neighbor Are Already Heavy—Uncle Sam Gets Bulk of Business Now.

(By FREDERICK G. NEUMEIER)

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Sept. 7 (United Press).—Recognition and the establishment once more of friendly relations between the United States and Mexico will see a big influx of Americans to this country.

It is expected that an ever-increasing number of Americans will make their homes here. American firms doing business with this country must have representatives stationed here and these are destined to be largely Americans, because Americans naturally best know American ways of doing business.

Capitalists, promoters, manufacturers, independent American business men in all lines of endeavor are already returning in increasing numbers to the Mexican capital.

It is natural to suppose that the influx of Americans to Mexico has scarcely begun. The field of foreign endeavor here is immense and the rewards for intelligent endeavor and the careful and considerate investment of capital are enticing.

Americans are participating in almost every activity of Mexico's national life, apart from the political. Americans have built railways and harbors, vast power plants and extensive highways, telephone and telegraph lines. They have established modern plantations and irrigation plants, opened thousands of new mines and given life and renewed activity to those long established by the introduction of modern machinery and methods. American capital has been largely instrumental in the development of the vast Mexican oil fields.

U. S. Gets the Business

It might be said that the United States now has two-thirds of all the foreign business of Mexico and is moving steadily forward to the conquest of more.

Not so many years ago the American in Mexico was a being apart from the life of his own country and the intellectual movement of Mexico. He was a sort of unsettled character and few men brought their women-folk to Mexico. As in all other countries, the missionaries were the first. They established a few schools and social centers, chapels and other places for American reunions.

One of the most interesting incidents of the activities of Americans here in early days is that told about the request for property for an American cemetery. This request was made by the United States government to the Mexican authorities and was bitterly opposed in the chamber of deputies, largely on the ground that it was to be a non-Catholic cemetery, causing religious prejudice. Juan Antonio Mateos, a deputy, poet, orator and dramatist, carried the motion for the dedication of a piece of land by a humorous caricature which has become historic. He said:

"You know I'm as good a Catholic as any of you and that I hate Protestants, But, nevertheless, I'm in favor of this measure as one of necessity and utility. Americans are coming here in increasing numbers; and, unfortunately they die on our hands. There is only one of three things we can do with them. We must either burn them, eat them or bury them. The day of burning heretics is past since the inquisition went by the board; and I, for my part, even good liberal that I am, object to eating a Protestant. So I move you, gentlemen, that there is nothing left for us to do except to provide a place in which they may be buried."

American Hospital and School

Two institutions in Mexico City, which are of inestimable benefit to the American colony, are the American hospital and the American school. From a very modest beginning the hospital has steadily gone forward until it is now one of the best conducted and equipped private institutions of its class in Mexico.

Of all institutions established here, the American school easily stands first on account of the more intimate connection which it sustains not only with American families, but with those of the other English speaking colonies and Mexicans of middle and upper classes.

The first American school was founded in 1894. The school building today is 237 feet long by 66 feet wide and contains in addition to 22 full sized dormitories, laboratories, libraries, lunch rooms and other adjuncts of a modern equipped college. Seven hundred and fifty students can be accommodated. It is interesting to note in connection with this school that Mexicans constitute slightly over 51 per cent of the total attendance. This means that hundreds of Mexicans students are not only learning English and receiving an American education, but they are imbibing American ideas and forming relationships which should be mutually beneficial to Americans and Mexicans in the not-distant future.

The American Club

One of the oldest American institutions of the capital is the American Club, which, in its long history, has counted on its role practically all the Americans of note resident here, among them some who have left their names indelibly stamped upon the history of Mexican progress.

Much younger than the American Club, but not less active, is the American Chamber of Commerce which has, since its inception a few years ago, dedicated its energies to promoting international trade between Mexico and the United States.

The American Benevolent Society has had an especially heavy burden upon its shoulders for the past ten years, owing to abnormal conditions created by the revolution.

All the American Protestant denominations have churches here and each in its way is contributing to the social life of a part of the community.

Among the institutions which were primarily American are the Y. M. C. A., the University Club, and the Country Club, and though these have become international all, except the first, have still a large American membership.

The American Legion and the Boy Scouts form an active part of the life of the American community.

TANNING WAS A FINE ART IN ANCIENT EGYPT

Methods of 3,000 Years Ago Only Equalled in Recent Times

CHEMIST'S WORK

In Producing Patent Leather After Lengthy Research Worthy of Note

(By SCIENCE SERVICE)

Pictures of leather tanning in the Egyptian tombs of three thousand years ago show methods of preparing leather which the tanning chemist only succeeded in surpassing in relatively recent years, according to Prof. James S. Long, associated professor of inorganic chemistry at Lehigh University.

He has made a special study of leather and methods of preparing it, and he found that it took all the skill of the modern chemist to evolve a process better than that used by the ancient Egyptians. They tanned their leather by rubbing it with juices of astringent barks, sour milk and oils and treating it with smoke, in all probability, and these same methods were used until relatively a few years ago.

"The leather we wear today has been differently treated, however, from that used by King Tut's compatriots," Prof. Long says, "Chromium compounds have largely replaced bark extract in treating the uppers, and the chemist has worked other wonders in shoe leather. The chemist understands and controls the changes that the skin undergoes in becoming leather.

"The hair must be removed from the skin—but not by acids—it must not be injured. Indeed, a chemist wastes nothing—certainly not hair. Then the flabby skin must be changed by successive chemical baths to the product which will stand the action of bacteria, water, and city street—the product we call leather.

"Now it is considered hard to fabricate two pins alike from standardized raw materials. But how about goat-skins? Goats may all be similar to the extent of possessing a passionate taste for paper and clothes, but their skins are not similar. No two seen alike. Not only that, but the sides of the same skin are different. A chemical bath right for one skin would spoil another. The skins must therefore be sorted and restored at each step in the process, and at best only a certain proportion turns out as desired by the tanner. Further, the tanner knows that this will be the case before he puts the skins in their chemical baths.

"The product is soon given the necessary permanent chemical protection, but it must in addition be rendered suitable for modern feet. Natural oils must be worked in to make it soft. It must be colored to suit the whims of college boys or to match a fawn colored dress.

Patent Leather

"Finally, the surface must be made attractive. With some skins this is done by 'glazing' a coating of dried blood with suitable colors. Other times the leather is coated with an enamel of collodion and boiled linseed oil. We call the glossy-coated product 'patent' leather. Formerly the oil for this was cooked much as a housewife cooks jelly. When it would form "strings" or "leaves" of certain description, it was considered 'done.' But oil varies, and with this rule of thumb end-point, the product was not always the same. Patent leather used to crack. This was its most widely known characteristic. But the chemist came to the rescue. More uniform raw materials, better colors, a scientific method of determining when the batch was done—these and others were his contribution. He even did without the leather and fashioned his product on cloth instead.

"This chemical development of enameled leather and cloth is noteworthy. Patent leather shoes look continually well if rubbed off occasionally with a moist cloth. The saving in shines will pay for the uppers in a short time. The bathroom furniture escapes daubs of black so often characteristic of home efforts of economy. Time is saved in the affairs of men. Thank the chemist for it.

"But much is yet to be done in this field. The chemist does not yet know the full composition of the raw materials which he converts into leather. Of course he will take up the needed research, but much of it is not of the simple type which can be done in the tannery. We must look rather to the technical school with its more favourable environment and its wealth of knowledge of the modern sciences of physical and organic chemistry."

REFORESTATION PLAN FOR GIANT REDWOODS

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7 (Associated Press).—California's giant redwoods, some of which, still standing, were saplings when the Vikings first sighted the coast of North America, and were good-sized trees when William the Conqueror's Norman hordes landed on the shores of England a thousand years ago, will have been entirely destroyed within a short time, according to the California Redwood Association here, unless measures now being undertaken for thrir reforestation prove successful.

Nurseries for young redwoods have recently been established by two lumber companies in northern California. At Fort Bragg, Mendocino county, 800,000 young redwood trees are now growing from seed, a sufficient number to reforest 2,800 acres a year. Enough additional young trees to reforest 4,600 acres annually will be supplied by this company in the near future.

Another company, at Scotia, Humboldt county, has a redwood nursery of 500,000 trees, while a number of the twenty-two redwood companies in California have taken a practical interest in the reforestation.

Besides the nursery trees, about one-fifth additional second growth lumber is expected to sprout from the stumps of old trees.

LEARN DEFINITION OF "DIRT FARMER."

LEARNING TO BE DIRT FARMERS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—All the old stories about city boys in the country are turning up again at Edellyn Farms, the Lake Forest country place of Thomas E. Wilson, the meat packer, where 20 Chicago high school boys are being developed into practical dirt farmers.

The boys are students in Parker High School, where their work includes instruction in agriculture under Professor F. B. Post. Professor Post is spending his own summer vacation in farm work, and at the invitation of the packer, the students went to the farm for a six-weeks "laboratory course."

They receive regular wages for their work, and from Professor Post they get lectures and instruction on livestock, agriculture and farm management. Edward Wilson, a son of the packer, is sharing the life of the other boys, living with them in their tent camp and going through their schedule of work and recreation.

ARE CROMWELL'S BONES BURIED UNDER GALLOWS

Old Query in English History Rises as Result of Find By Workmen Putting in a New London Water Main.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Are the bones of Oliver Cromwell unearthed? Thoughts of Englishmen have turned to this question as a result of the finding of skeletons at the junction of Bayswater Road and Edgeware Road, where Tyburn Gallows once stood, and the discovery has recalled what is today regarded a painful incident in English history in the uncertainty as to where the remains of this national hero rest.

Like many other important London thoroughfares, part of the street in front of Marble Arch was torn up by workmen of the Metropolitan Water Board laying a new 36-inch water main. They opened up an old pit containing three complete skeletons, several skulls and a lot of other human bones. The bones were found about seven feet below the surface, and the spot where they were discovered is 12 feet north of the stone tablet which marks the place where the gibbet is supposed to have stood. The exact spot which Tyburn Gallows occupied always has been matter of speculation. The area known as Connaught Square is held by some authorities to have been the site but it is realized that as Tyburn was a place of execution from the end of the twelfth century the position of the gallows may have varied, particularly after 1759, when the movable gibbet took the place of the permanent structure.

In the shadow of Tyburn many malefactors were buried, and the bones were laid bare, over which the traffic of the great metropolis has rumbled for generations, are just as likely to be those of some low fellow as Cromwell. The impossibility of establishing identification renders the find of little moment other than historic interest, but the incident has served to remind the British that the one man who stands out in history as having done so much for the emancipation of the common people was, after death the sport of a king, victim of a depraved whim.

The circumstances of that grim second burial of Cromwell sinks deep in the minds of Englishmen who study history. Originally his remains, as well as those of Ireton and Bradshaw, were buried among the kings at Westminster, but it was Charles II. who took the peculiar revenge of consigning the headless corpse of the monarchy's greatest adversary to the place of infamy represented by the "unhallowed ground" near Tyburn. Through his instrumentality, for the first anniversary, Jan. 30, 1661, of the restoration subsequent to the execution of King Charles I., there was staged a painful episode.

The bodies of the three men were removed from King Henry VII's Chapel, in the dead of night, and removed to an inn situated at the back of Holborn, where Red Lion Square now stands. The next morning they were conveyed on sledges to Tyburn, and there, still in their shrouds, were suspended at the three corners of the gallows till sunset. The heads, at the direction of Charles II., were taken off, for exposure on pikes over Westminster Hall, and the trunks thrown into a pit dug at the foot of the gallows. It is the discovery of the three skeletons minus the skulls which has led to the deductions drawn.

Samuel Pepys, by no means a Cromwellian, protested against the spectacle of the three bodies suspended from Tyburn and the treatment meted out to the dead. He was troubled because "a man of so great courage as he was should have that dishonor done him—though otherwise he might have deserved it well enough."

The Gallows Cheated

But the burial of Cromwell was so veiled in mystery that historians have been prone to ask, "Was Charles II. and the gallows cheated?"

Again the probability is as possible as the alternative. Rumor has handed down many singular and conflicting stories. A French traveler, Sorbiere, who visited England about two years after the declared exhumation of the remains of Cromwell, is supposed to have ascertained that Cromwell during his lifetime had caused the Royal Tombs in the Abbey to be opened, and the bodies to be transposed so that his own burial place might be unknown.

Then there is another story to the effect that the remains of Cromwell never were put in Westminster, but were, in accordance with his last orders, secretly removed at night and conveyed to the battlefield of Naseby and quietly buried there, as at Naseby he achieved his greatest victory.

A close study of the life of Cromwell does not lead one to attach much faith to these stories, and it is probable that the Protector's old chaplain, Jeremiah White, was right when he declared in respect to rumour, that Cromwell "never had so poor or low a thought in him to trouble himself about it."

In the cavity beneath Tyburn since 1661, and since the removal of Tyburn in 1783, latterly with trains passing every few seconds through underground tubes a very few feet away, and with thousands of automobiles passing overhead, thus the remains of Oliver Cromwell may have laid unknown, unhonored, now to be removed by pick and shovel to make way for a new water main.

W.C.T.U. to Celebrate Anniversary in State Of its Birth—Ohio

COLUMBUS, Sept. 7 (Associated Press).—The Women's Christian Temperance Union will celebrate the fiftieth year of its existence by coming back to the state that gave it birth—Ohio—for its annual convention.

It was just about a half century ago that "Mother" Thompson at Hillsboro, Ohio, surrounded herself with a band of militant women intent upon one thing, the putting out of business of liquor selling establishments. From that informal organization grew the Women's Christian Temperance Union which now has organizations in every state of the United States and reaches into 57 foreign countries.

The "Jubilee" convention will be held here September 4 to 14. Twelve hundred delegates will attend.

Important aspects of the meeting, which will have law enforcement as its theme, will include a possible pilgrimage to Hillsboro, a street pageant, and a "march of allegiance to our flag and country," in which 5,000 women are expected to participate.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

It used to be said that a man's work was from sun to sun, which was surely bad enough, but a woman's work was never done, which was much worse. Many working girls and women often feel that this is quite true when they return home at night after a hard, tiresome day in the mill or factory. Many women in the modern industrial world are piece-workers.

The great speed, deftness and swiftness of these women workers has enabled them to almost take possession of many occupations which do not require much muscular strength. Oftimes this class of labor requires bent shoulders and a half-stooping posture together with a lowered or drooping head and bad focusing of vision.

Medical Profession Alarmed

The medical profession has for many years watched with great concern the evils and bad effects on the physique of working women in monotonous and rapid labor. The principal defects produced in this class of women workers are, under-development, abdominal diseases, tuberculosis and faulty vision. Such positions interfere with proper breathing and lack of chest development.

The ribs and enclosed organs are forced down upon the abdomen and displacement frequently occurs in the abdominal organs. Worse than this is the results such bending and posture has on digestion and partial retarding of material passing through the intestines. This brings abnormal fatigue, that weary, tired feeling, nervousness and constipation.

Other rapid work carried on by women and girls requires a side-bending position or sideway slouch. This position tends to cause bad breathing and invites tuberculosis. It is also liable to deform the shoulders and to produce uneven hip development or "high hip."

Strain Causes Deformities

In seeking a change from these conditions, wherever it is possible to do so, try a change in work. This is not always possible, but any time lost may save your health and keep you from deformity and ill health in after life. Women and girls who are compelled to sit at benches or in chairs all day are also subject to ill health and disease.

In many cases these positions have been found as bad as standing all day. Whenever possible, the feet should rest on the floor. This relieves much strain and prevents many deformities. Very few women and girls exercise as they should. In preventing these troubles you must take all the time you can in the open air for useful corrective exercise. Try to avoid getting into the habit of taking something for every imaginary ill.

Those who live in towns or cities where gymnasium classes are held should become members of these classes whenever they can, if only once or twice a week. Don't say you are too tired. The change in using a different set of muscles will act as a great aid in taking away that tired feeling of the day. The change in environment will also be of great help.

Your Words

How many words do you know the meaning of? The average person can read and understand from 8,000 to 10,000 different words. Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly makes this estimate. He's managing editor of the New Standard Dictionary.

Quite a different matter is the number of words we have at the tip of our tongues and use in talking, compared with words we grasp when we read them.

Very few of us use more than 700 words in talking, according to some authorities who have checked up.

Shakespeare's vocabulary included about 24,000 words.

Woodrow Wilson, in 75 speeches, used 6,221 words, and Dr. Vizetelly estimates that Wilson in his writings used a vocabulary of at least 60,000 words.

Words change style the same as clothes, Dr. Vizetelly comments. He illustrates by pointing out that the sport who wore a silk shirt was formerly called a dude, but the word "dude" has gone out of style, now that the rank and file of the people can afford silk shirts.

Changing word styles are more evident in slang. "Put on a little speed" changed to "Make it snappy," then to "Jazz it up." Once she was a "flirt,' now a "vamp." The "cop" of a former generation now is called a "bull."

In another century no one will be able to read one of George Ade's "Fables In Slang" and understand it without using a slang dictionary, for slang rapidly becomes obsolete and forgotten.

Most of the short stories by O. Henry are similarly handicapped.

Richard Huelot compile the first English dictionary in 1552. The supply of words has grown enormously since then. Contemplate a modern dictionary, growing rapidly to suitcase size though printed in small type on thin paper, and it is hard to believe that such a maze of words are made up of varying combinations of only 26 letters of the alphabet.

The finest shades of emotion, the infinite ramifications of human thought, as well as everything in our three dimensional material world—all these can be expressed accurately and graphically by changes in the mathematical arrangement of 26 alphabetical letters.

The simple little alphabet is right up near the head of the list of greatest inventions.

Bowling Contest Finished Last Evening -- Cricket Game Postponed.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 7. — Joe Wilkinson won the championship in the singles bowling contests that were finished last night at midnight, going from one victory to another, defeating the four other members of the club who contested for the honor. The championship trophy is a calabash pipe, valued at $10, which was donated by Charlie Nadoo.

Mr. Wilkinson's feat of skill and endurance is regarded by his fellow members as all the more remarkable when the conditions under which he played are considered. He arrived on the evening train from Toronto, where he had been since Saturday attending the Exhibition, and he went straight to the green from the depot, going the entire evening without his supper. He did not even have time to go home for his bowling shoes but won the championship wearing a pair of heavy rubber boots. At no time during the various games was he in danger, although at the outset Mayor Meyers gave him a hard run for first place. Some of the shots were so close that Dr. Watson, who acted as umpire, was called upon frequently to settle the question of distance with his tape line.

While in Toronto Mr. Wilkinson visited some of the greens and took part in more than one game, raising the reputation of his home team in this branch of athletic sports. It was simply impossible to defeat him last night and his play seemed to improve as the evening advanced.

The first game of the series was that between Mayor Meyers and Mr. Wilkinson and this resulted in a score of 10 to 9.

Mr. Wilkinson's next opponent was L. B. Glover, who went down before the conqueror by a score of 13 to 8.

Next came Dr. O. C. Watson, who at the end of the twelfth end was six points behind Mr. Wilkinson, who scored 18.

The last man to face the champion was Walter S. Wiggins, who made some of the best shots of the evening, but Mr. Wilkinson seemed in better form than at the beginning of play. The score in this game was 14 to 8, and when the last bowl was played Mr. Wilkinson was heartily congratulated on his victory.

The doubles will be played off this afternoon and evening.

Cricket Game Postponed

The cricket match scheduled for last evening, was postponed until some day next week as several of the employees of the Campbellford Cloth Company, who were to play a team of the business men of the town, were working overtime and could not get away.

At the Opera House

The musical phantasy "Cinderella" was presented at the opera house last night by a clever company of artists the title role being taken by T. The only discouraging feature of the evening was the small attendance, althought the performance had been extensively advertised.

Mr. Blake said that in every case of flogging evidence had led straight to the door step of the invisible empire.

The whole story of Tuba will never be told," he said. "Men flee from savagery and torture. The average man is pretty apt to change his address after his back has been whipped until it is raw and he is then threatened with death. That is what happened in Tuba perhaps two hundred times in a year." The wet rope is out of style. In Tuba they use leather straps with the end cat-tailed. Fifty lashes will tame the strongest man. Strong men stagger away from the whipping pasture ruined for life.

Blake mentioned the case of a man and woman who were routed out of their beds ,taken to a pasture, stripped and flogged on a charge that they had been selling beer.

STRATTON WAS A MAN MANY PARTS

Did Not Object to Have More Than One Wife--Now in the Coop.

LONDON, Sept. 7. — (Canadian Press).—A man of many love affairs is Samuel Percy Stratton, who has a Canadian and American record as well as a record in this country, and who to-day was sentenced at Old Bailey to twelve months' imprisonment at hard labor for bigamy and theft.

Police who investigated Stratton's record said he was a prisoner in Canada, where he had absconded with $1,300 belonging to an ex-soldier association. In Canada, Stratton, according to the police, lawfully married a girl 18 years of age, whom he induced to run away from her home. He left her penniless and went to the United States. In New York he married again, and later returned to Canada, where he again absconded.

Stratton then went to Liverpool, police say, and in that city he married again. Not satisfied with his numerous experiences, he sought to become engaged to another woman while his Liverpool wife was still living. However, this latest escapade was stopped by the prospective victim of his wiles refusing to marry him.

The theft charge on which Stratton was convicted and sentenced here to-day was the stealing of $100 from Lady Lucy McMillan, for whom he had acted as secretary.

FRANCISCO VILLA DIED RICH

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 7.—Had not the bullets of unknown assassins cut short the life of Francisco Villa at Parral on July 20, the former bandit leader bade fair to become one of the greatest landholders of the republic. In addition to the huge ranch at Canutillo, Durango, which the government ceded to Villa and his followers, another rich property the Pueblito hacienda, south of Ojinaga on the banks of the river Conchos in Chihuahua, had been added to his holdings by the government.

Villa was also on the point of being given control of the San Isidro ranch, situated in thes Jimenez district of Chihuahua, and the Carrtena property, in northern Durango.

OPTIMISTIC FIGURE OF WESTERN WHEAT

Crop Will Approximate 350,000,000 Bushels Says C.P.R. President.

TORONTO, September 7. Canadian Press. — "From reports so far I would estimate the western wheat crop at 350 million bushels," said E. W. Beatty, the president of the C. P. R. when here last night, on his annual tour of the system in Canada. There have been estimates made of 400 bushels," he continued, "but I think 350 million would not be too optimistic a figure to place it at." He added, "Manitoba grade so far was a little on the low side; Saskatchewan, particularly the northern section was good, and Alberta high grade in general. The Peace River grade is particularly good, and ought to be equal to the grade of 1921," he added.

"Canadian shipping, Canadian railways and Canadian manufacturers, will be more or less seriously affected by the disastrous earthquake in Japan. There may however be a recompense in the rehabitation of the devastated cities," he added, and Japan will most likely look to Canada and the United States for materials when reconstruction begins."

NATION-WIDE JAPAN RELIEF APPEAL HERE

Dominion Government Urges Canadian Red Cross to Undertake the Movement at Once.

CHOLERA REPORTED

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—(Canadian Press).—The Dominion Government has transmitted to the National Executive of the Canadian Red Cross a request that it make a nation-wide appeal on behalf of the sufferers in the recent Japanese earthquake disaster. Accordingly that subject will be the dominating topic at to-day's meeting of the National Executive of the Society here.

To-day's meeting will be conducted by Dr. Jas. W. Robertson, C.M.G., chairman of the council and executive, who has arrived from Ottawa and has had important conferences with the Government authorities on the question of relief.

CHOLERA REPORTED.

A Central News despatch from Kobe, dated yesterday, says: "It is reported here, but not confirmed, that cholera has broken out in Yokohama. It is probably true, since the people are drinking muddy water from ditches and eating foul food to stave off starvation.

"A spread of pestilence would increase the difficulties of relief work, as otherwise supplying food and shelter would be comparatively easy.

"All foreigners are believed to be out of the vicinity of Yokohama, but hundreds are still isolated in Tokio, Kamakura, Kasuizava, Nikko and other inland cities. Their condition is not known."

A new Japan, greater, stronger, and more substantial than before, will grow out of the devastation caused by the earthquake disaster, according to the belief of a Japanese representative in the United States. This view is held also by officials of the United States, and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon yesterday expressed the confident belief that Japan would have no difficulty in floating a private loan of $500,000,000 or of any other amount in the United States.

THREE MEN AND A BOY KILLED BY EXPLOSION

SOUTH AMBOY, N. J., September 7. Canadian Press. — Three men and a boy were killed and 27 persons injured, 15 probably fatally, by an explosion of thousands of cases of smokeless powder, which was being transferred from barges to freight cars on the banks of the Raritan River last night.

The explosion rocked the entire countryside, blew an automobile upside down on a road near by, and enveloped everyone within a hundred yards in a sheet of flame.

It is stated that the explosion was caused by sparks from the cooking fire in one of the barges

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir—The Town Council of Lindsay has declared a half holiday for one of the days of their Fair in order that all the townspeople may have the opportunity of attending it. In Lindsay and in other towns in this district merchants have been in favor of this half holiday which gives their employees a chance to see their Fairs during the day time. Couldn't something be done in Peterboro along those lines. I know some merchants who are willing to close up on one of the afternoons of the Peterboro Exhibition providing the others fall in line. I don't think the business men would lose much by shutting down on Thursday afternoon. All the visitors will be at the Exhibition and the up town employees would be glad of the chance of attending that day. I hope some one will start something before it is too late so that everybody will have a chance of seeing the Exhibition and helping boost it.

CLERK.

WILL PROBE CAUSE OF WA-WA HOTEL DISASTER

TORONTO, Sept. 7—(Canadian) Investigation into Wawa hotel disaster, through which nine persons lost their lives, to be conducted by Fire Marshall Heaton, will begin on Thursday next at 2 p.m. in parliament guildings. W. A. Boys, K.C., of Barrie, who examined witnesses at the coroner's inquest at Huntsville has been commissioned to represent the crown at the fire marshall's probe.

NOTED WRITERS' LOVE PACT RESULTS IN MANY SUICIDES

TOKIO, Sept. 7. — The recent double suicide of Mr. Arishima one of Japan's foremost novelists and of Akiko Hatano, a young married woman magazine writer as a result of a love affair and death pact continues to hold the attention fo the Japanese public. This is due not merely to the prominence of the pair or to their tragic deaths, for suicides of prominent persons in this country are not unusual.

It is the imitators of the famous couple that are keeping interest alive. Many couples for the most part obscure, are seeking reflected glory from the main event by imitating the writer's example.

The growth of western philosophy however, is gradually turning the public aganst suicide under any circumstances.

SCIENTISTS TRAINED FOR HIGH SPEED WORK

Will Take Advantage of Every Second While the Sun's Face Is Behind the Shadow.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7—(United Press).—One of the largest groups of scientific photographs of the total eclipse, which will occur in the extreme tip of Southern California, and in lower California, will be made by scientists from Mount Wilson Observatory, near Pasadena.

These scientists have established two camps, one on Point Loma, near San Diego, and the other at Lakeside, on the edge of the shadow.

The Point Loma group will occupy themselves with photographing the sun's corona and groups of stars whose light passes near the sun. The latter observations will be taken largely for the purpose of testing the Einstein theory. These astronomers will be in charge of Professor F. H. Seares.

The Lakeside group will especially concern itself with spectral phenomena. The photographic spectroscopes will pick out by shades of color the elemental substances that are present in the sun's gasses, determining in what proportions they are mixed, how they differ or are mixed. Each element has a different color in the spectrum.

Length of Eclipse.

On Point Loma the eclipse will be total for 3 minutes. At Ensenda, a sleepy little village on the coast of Lower California where many European scientists have established themselves, the totality will last 3 minutes 34 seconds. At San Clemente Island where a number of motion picture cameras with photographic lenses will be established, the eclipse will last 3 minutes 30 seconds; at Point Conception, 3 minutes 2 seconds; at San Diego, 2 minutes 43 seconds; at Point Loma, 3 minutes; at Santa Barbara, 5 seconds; at Catalina Island, 2 minutes 48 seconds.

At Mount Wilson the astronomers who will take part in the observations have been thoroughly drilled in the part each is to play for several weeks, and not a second of time will be wasted.

The most important observations are those during the totality, but as a matter of fact, photographs will be shot almost continuously from the time the sun starts to disappear at 11.25 a.m. coast time, until the totality, at 12.54, and from the end of the totality until the sun is again completely out from behind the moon at 2.10 p.m.

Many of the most involved 'shots' in connection with work on the spectrum will take place at Mount Wilson. These observations will not involve the totality, as the sun will only be 98 per cent. under cover as viewel from Mount Wilson.

Tons of Instruments.

Tons of heavy astronomical instruments have been especially freighted to Point Loma, and are now set up there in preparation for next Monday.

The University of Virginia has also sent a most extensive expedition. This is headed by Professor S. A. Mitchell, one of the best known American astronomers. "I expect to take enough observations to keep me busy for a year," Prof. Mitchell said.

The Virginia group, in conjunction with United States authorities, has established itself on Point Loma, near San Diego, like the Mount Wilson group.

Professors Charles Le Morvan and Marc Veillet La Valle, of Paris, have also arrived at Point Loma with several tons of instruments.

An expedition sent by the Spanish Royal Astronomical Society has established itself near Ensenada, where the eclipse will be visible the greatest length of time. Several independent expeditions are at work on San Clemente Island, 50 miles off shore.

The entire facilities of the Scripps Biological Institute at La Jolla, 16 miles from San Diego, have been placed at the disposal of the scientists. The Carnegie Institute scientists are working from Mount Wilson.

Scientists Camping Out.

Scientists from Lick Observatory, on Mount Hamilton, 50 miles from San Francisco, will take their 'shots' in Lower California, near Ensenada. On La Grulla Rancho most of the scientists at Ensenada are camping out, as the little village, cut off from practically all communications with the outside world, except by sea and one auto road, and having no telephones or telegraph, affords no habitable accommodations for any number of people.

The Lick expedition, considered one of the finest in the world, is the same which went to Wallal Beach, Australia, last year, and at that lonely spot took observations under the direction of Dr. W. W. Campbell, now head of the University of California, which confirmed the Einstein theory, in Dr. Campbell's opinion.

The Yerkes Observatory expedition, under Director E. B. Frost, is established at Catalina Island, as is a group from Washburn Observatory of Carleton College. William Wrigley, Jr., who owns Catalina Island, as well as a baseball club, has made elaborate arrangements for the distinguished visitors.

The Lowell Observatory, at Flagstaff, Ariz., has sent its expedition to Ensenada, while the University of Arizona expedition is located at Hermosillo, Mexico. Several German expeditions are in the interior of Mexico.

The Leander-McCormick Observatory will take observations from Point Loma. The Clark-Baumgardt expedition from Clark Observatory, Los Angeles, will "shoot" from San Clemente. The Students' Observatory of the University of California, Burkeley, will work at Ensenada, studying the polarization of light. The Washburn Observatory of the University of Wisconsin will measure the brightness of the corona with a photo-electric cell from a Catalina Island station.

The Prince of Wales' ranch house near High River, Alberta. As Lord Rentrew, His Royal Highness will spend a few weeks in retirement on his ranch this Fall. He is due to arrive in Quebec aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France, and after spending a night at the Chateau Frontenac, he will proceed direct by special Canadian Pacific train to his ranch.

Height of enthusiasm is applauding while reading a book.

ARE YOU THE WOMAN YOU WERE MEANT TO BE?

Every woman was meant to be healthy, happy and fill her sphere in life to the best of her ability; but, alas, how few have the health or physical endurance to live up to their ideals! Over-ambitious, many of them develop nervousness, irritability, headaches, backaches, irregularities, and often more serious ailments which retard their progress in life. Women in this condition should turn to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a root and herb medicine which had been proven to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who try it. Let Lydia E. # "HEARTBREAK HOUSE" HAS LARGE WAITING LIST NOW

There Come Youths and Girls Who Aspire To Shine On The Silver Screen.

(By ROBERT A. DONALDSON)

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7 (United Press).—It is estimated that about 500 flappers a year desert their homes in the middle west and east and come to Hollywood, fluttering like moths about a brilliant flame of movie fame.

At present about five a week apply for work at "Heartbreak House."

"Heartbreak House" is an old decayed, bare-walled structure downtown in Los Angeles, which houses the powerful Service Bureau. Practically all of the big producing companies are members of the Service Bureau, and hire their extras through it. Butterfly girls and handsome boys, who apply for work at the studio wickets, are referred to the Service Bureau.

But the Service Bureau limits the number of extras it will register. At present the limitation is 1,200, and this must include all kinds of character people and comedy freaks.

No matter how much ability a pretty girl or striking youth may have, he or she doesn't get a chance if the registration is filled up—as it usually is.

The idea of the Service Bureau, which sends extras out on calls for certain types or for certain scenes from studios, is to give a decent living to a group of established extras by providing fairly steady work. The Service Bureau does the hiring, and also does the paying, deducting a commission from the extras' pay for placing them.

Girls who come to Hollywood, hoping to win recognition, sometimes wait for months before there is an opening on the registration books of the bureau.

Work is Irregular

Wages range from $5 to $10 a day, with the average about $7.50. Some character players get as much as $15 a day. Work is very irregular. Sometimes an extra will work in half a dozen pictures a week, at as many studios, sometimes working at one studio in the daytime and at another at night. And again an extra will sometimes not get a single call for three or four weeks.

Extras must at all times be provided with a good wardrobe of street, sport, and evening clothes in good condition. Only clothes for special character parts or costume pictures are furnished by the studios. Character actors and actresses obtain steadier work than ordinary extras.

"The least-wanted type in the movies is the jazz baby," one of the hiring experts at the Service Bureau told the United Press. "There is no call for them. Bobbed-haired girls also earn a scant living in the movies. Stars are the only ones who seem to have the prerogative of bobbing their hair and getting away with it."

Leave the Movies

Some extras make a permanent profession of the work, but most of the would-be Mary Pickfords eventually think things over and in from six months to two years leave the movies for more substantial lines of work. The same is true of the handsome youths.

One of the most successful salesmen on automobile row today is a wavy-haired youth, who once aspired to be a movie hero. He half-starved as an extra for two years, and then came down to earth and got a job as an auto salesman for a sporty-looking make of car.

Using his slight speaking acquaintance with the real stars of studios, he specialized in a movie clientele and he has established a record of having sold more cars in the movie colony than any other one salesman in town.

A THOUGHT

Swear not, neither by heaven, neither by earth, neither by any other oath; but let your yea be yea; and your nay, nay; lest ye fall into condemnation.—Jas. 5: 12.

The foolish and wicked practice of profane cursing and swearing is a vice so mean and low, that every person of sense and character detests and despises it.—Washington.

ENAMELED FURNITURE

Enamel-finished furniture should be washed in clean warm water and dried with flannel cloth, rubbing it very hard.

SILK APPAREL

To wash silk stockings and underwear, first soak for ten minutes in fairly strong borax water, then wash rapidly through lukewarm water. Rince through two waters of the same temperature as the soapy water.

SOAP FOR GLASSES

Never use coarse yellow soap to wash glasses, as this will make them cloudy. Use a pure white soap.

Thought Every Minute Would Be Her Last

"I owe my present good health, if not my life, to the Tanlac treatment and will praise it as long as I live," declared Mrs. Ellen Willis, 104 Driedullard Road, Ford City, Ont.

"Eleven years of stomach trouble had carried me down until I was too weak to even walk to the post office a block away. I couldn't even eat eggs. In fact, everything hurt me until I would cry out in agony and my heart pounded so I would get ghostly pale and couldn't stand up, and I thought every minute would be my last. Many nights I never slept a wink and often thought I would never live to see daylight again.

"Since taking Tanlac I eat like a farm hand, nothing hurts me and I've actually gained fourteen pounds. I sleep all night long now and enjoy every minute of the day for I never felt better in all my life. I would go fifty miles for Tanlac if I needed it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

Gorgeous Linens are also displayed for your choosing.

Neckwear

LINGERIE frills, deep shawl like berthas of filmy net as well as the picturesque collar of Van Dyke's are more than a mere whimsy of the mode—they are one of it's dominant details and will be much worn by women of fashion.

Log cabin, a soft brown with a gray cast is a popular new hosiery shade.

Home!

Fit It Out For Fall

PUTTING on the home's fall dress may mean the hanging of cheery new draperies the addition of a comfy chair to the living room, the placing of cozy lamps in shadowy corners, or the laying of a rich new rug. Just what to do to make the home more attractive and how to do it is answered in the Exposition of Home Furnishings.

New Hats Arrive!

There it is, the long awaited news, but how much that might be told those three words left unsaid. Even here there is not space enough, but hinting at their beauties is allowed and—well a word to the wise is sufficient—peaking out from tissue wrappings are many perky bows of ribbon and ribbon streamers, moire, many of them are and seeming to prefer the back to the front of Hats. Brown in all shades are quite favorites and as to other trimmings the feather fancies have it. They have a way of winding round the quite high crowns and trailing of one shoulder. Shapes are small and often velvet—but that's enough. You must come and see the rest.

Fall Fabric Show

GOLD RUSH FILM IS SET IN WEST

Flavor of California and Mother Lode in New Picture.

By JACK JUNGMEYER

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7. — Bret Harte had a way of aging his melodrama in the pencil wood so that it came out with fine quality. Filmwrights haven't acquired that trick as yet; their product is rawer. But, taking this into consideration, there is in the Lasky production of "Salomy Jane" the substance if not the manner of Harte—a lusty, diverting screen sketch of a hectic day in the old California mother lode.

I must warn you, if you're going to take my word for the picture, that I am frankly prejudiced in its favor because it was made in a land which is my choice stamping ground.

The charm of that land graces the film. Its red rutted roads, sugar pines, blue canyon clefts, placer gashes, tumble-down saloons, weather-beaten mountain homes—Calaveras county in the foothills of the Sierra, scratched deep with the hoary hokum of the Argonauts.

* * *

"Salomy Jane," adapted from Bret Harte's tale of vigilante times by Waldemar Young and directed by George Melford, pans out heavy melodramatic color of that kind. Members of the cast, stirred by the spell and shell of a vanished day, went at their performance with zest. You will note it in the acting of Louise Dresser, the crushed mountain woman, and her renegade husband, played by Raymond Nye; in the response of Jacqueline Logan and Maurice Flynn to the incitements of "Salomy's" turbulent romance with "The Stranger"; in the deft handling of the gambler's role by William Davidson, and the horseplay of George Fawcett's "Yuba Bill" and Charles Ogle's characterization as the feudist—their fates knit together with a stage holdup and vigilante law.

Year after year, on hunting trip and fishing, I have heard the parentage of such hokum from the wrinkled pioneers of Calaveras, from Poker Flat to Angels Camp; Tales of shooting, lynchings, stage robberies, poker table drama, dance hall romances and shotgun weddings, riches won from a joke, riches lost at a stroke—all the wild improbable things the foothill folk panned out with the gold and planted with their fig tree and vine. Tales falling casually from withered old lips of women who were once "Salomys" and of old grandpas who were once handsome young "Strangers" of the diggin's.

These were the tales, when they were young, Bret Harte garnered in his literary meanderings along the Mother Lode. The savor of them and the relics of their day form the backdrop for the pictured version of "Salomy Jane."

My only excuse for this verbal rambling is the hope that I may have imaged for you a mental prologue which may add to your enjoyment of the picture. If I haven't, charge the failure to the sentimental leanings of your correspondent toward the land of Bret Harte's trails and pictures which conjure their romance.

Jacqueline Logan will hold your heart interest. Maurice Flynn, slow, quiet, slouchy, with none of the accoutrements of the usual western hero, fills his role of "The Stranger" with conchalant grace. The rest of the cast play up to them with nice adaptation.

PREHISTORIC "SKULL" IS NOTHING BUT SANDSTONE

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 7.—(Associated Press)—The opinion of Argentine scientists that the alleged tertiary human skull discovered by Dr. J. G. Wolfe in Patagonia some months ago is not a fossil, has been confirmed here by Professor Elmer S. Riggs, paleontological explorer

"That," said Professor Riggs, turning over in his hand the obloid stone object curiously impressed with human-like features, and which for the past two months has served as a paper weight on the desk of Professor de Benedetti, an archaeologist, "that, as a fossil, is certainly a piece of bunk. As a geological specimen it is a piece of solid sandstone, a natural concretion, queerly shaped but not so queer at that. I've seen others like it. It's only one of nature's little jokes."

Professor Riggs' examination ended two months' pursuit of the "skull" which began during his fossil hunting explorations in Patagonia when he received instructions from the Field Museum to investigate Wolfe's reported discovery, following the receipt by the museum of a letter from Wolfe asking employment in Patagonia as an anthropological researcher. For this, says Professor Riggs, he gave the scientific credentials which first won credence for his claim, which included letters from American, Canadian and German authorities.

MOTORISTS' CONVENTION TO DISCUSS AUTO TAXES

CLEVELAND, Sept. 7.—(Associated Press)—The Cleveland Automobile Club will be host September 14 and 15 to what is expected to be the most elaborate automobile convention held in the United States this year, according to an announcement by Fred H. Caley, secertary of the Cleveland Automobile Club and the National Motorists' Associations.

Club presidents, secretaries and other officials from all parts of the country, representing more than 400,000 motorists, are expected to attend the meeting. Every detail of automobile club work will be analyzed, from the inaugural efforts of the young organization to the finished products of the veteran club.

An important part of the program, from the standpoint of the general public, relates to traffic problems.

The attitude of organized motorists will be sought on the question of automobile taxation, and the question of financing road construction and maintenance will occupy a prominent place in the deliberations.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond, (Terry) lovely and unbelievably innocent is imperson ating her beautiful half sister.

Juliet Divine, known as the Million Dollar Doll—whose sketchy career is unknown to Terry.

Miles Sheridan, Terry's 'Dream Prince' furnished the money for her convent education when she was a child. His wife is making him wretched with her infidelity and in order to facilitate her obtaining a divorce Miles offers the Million Dollar Doll $20 000 to take a yacht trip with him stipulat ing that he will not "trouble" the girl. This he knows will give his wife sufficient grounds for divorce. Juliet is unable to take the trip herself but working on her little sister's gratitude to Miles she per suades Terry to go in her place. Terry is an exquisite counterpart of her sister.

Betty Sheridan, Miles' wife is deeply in love with

Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek who does not know of Terry's relationship to quiet is in love with the younger girl.

Poor little Terry unaware of her sister's reputation and how she must ap pear in the eyes of the world starts the voyage with Miles who does not reco g nize in her the little girl he befriended so long ago. Mr. Harkness his servant is sternly disapproving of "The Million Dollar Doll."

Terry refuses the $10 000 which Miles sends her by Mrs. Harkness.

Miles is surprised at the "Million Dollar Doll's" refusal of his money.

Miles Meets Terry on deck and is struck by her youthful charm. She reminds him of some one he knew years ago.

CHAPTER XXXIV

The Pampered Young Person

He rather expected the young woman to rush into a tactless attempt at cheap conversation. But she did not speak. She sat quite still, with a pair of dark eyes (they looked abnormally large in the moonlight) raised solemnly to his.

There was about her an air of waiting, almost of dread, suppressed by an effort of small hands clenched on the chair-arms.

"You sent me some books, by Mrs. Harkness," he said, beginning with the subject of lesser importance.

"I didn't really mean to send them to you, though I may have asked her to take them," the girl defended herself. "I only wanted them out of my room."

"You told Mrs. Harkness they were 'disgusting,' I believe."

"So they were! I'm sorry if it offends you; but I can't help it. I didn't want to keep them in my room."

"It doesn't offend me in the least," Sheridan assured her, with complete indifference. "I'm sorry that my friend Hartley Phillips miscalculated your taste. He seemed to know that you had some acquaintance with the French language. I haven't read the books myself."

"Oh, I felt sure you hadn't, for you would never—" Terry broke out, then stopped with a slight gasp.

Sheridan looked at her in surprise. It was on his lips to ask her to finish her sentence and then explain it.

But he remembered in time what Phillips had said of the game she was playing: posing as an ingenue. Evidently she was at that game still. He felt himself in no danger, however, of being taken in.

"There are plenty of novels and books of all sorts in the salon," he mentioned. "You must go there and choose what you like. The room is at your service.

"Of course I shall never trouble you there. I'm not in much of a mood for sociability myself and if I shut myself up like Diogenes, that mustn't make you feel that you're a prisoner.

"Phillips warned you no doubt that you wouldn't get any society except your own on this voyage—except when we're in port, and we have to be seen together."

"I didn't know that—that I would even have to eat separately—like a servant," Terry suddenly flared up. Her nerves had undergone a severe strain. She had been crying a good deal that afternoon, foolishly perhaps, but he had been her idol for so many years, and she meant so nobly by him that her heart was very sore.

Now his cold, restrained tone, that would have been rude, if he could have been rude to a woman, hurt her again; and the words burst forth.

"You're too sensitive," Sheridan said with something like a sneer. "Consider yourself rather a—er—queen than a servant. You have your realm on board, and I have mine that's all. One needn't interfere with the other.

"But there's a question I really want to ask you, while we're talking, Miss Divine—for we may not happen to come across each other again for some time.

"Why did you send me back the money it was agreed you should receive in bank notes, instead of a cheque, when you came on board my yacht? Did you perhaps expect the whole twenty thousand at once, or—"

"No! No!" Terry dared to break in. "I won't have any money at all. I said so from the first. I—"

"Really!" Sheridan exclaimed. "I don't understand that. Phillips told me you asked twenty thousand dollars for the—expedition; that you named the sum yourself, and that he consented after a discussion; that between you the way of payment was arranged and—"

"It's a mistake!" cried Terry. "I couldn't, couldn't take money from you." But even as she spoke, panic overwhelmed her.

She was betraying Julia. She was forgetting that she was supposed to be Julia!

"Why couldn't you take money from me?" Sheridan asked, unrelenting.

"Because—just because I couldn't," the girl said dully.

Her face showed distress, but of course he didn't believe in it as genuine emotion. Phillips knew Juliet Divine, slightly at least, and had warned him. There were many moves in the game which these dolls tried to play with men.

He didn't pretend to understand the moves, didn't want to understand, but it looked to him as if this doll were bidding for sympathy now.

He had none to give such a pampered young person. But he did wonder how she'd kept herself so virginally young!

"If you don't want money, why did you come on board my yacht for this trip, which you must have known wouldn't be amusing?" Sheridan persisted.

Terry did not answer. She bowed her head and looked at her hands—slim, girlish hands with ringless fingers.

Julia had left the little sister some rings and told her to wear them, but they seemed unlike her, somehow. She didn't feel at home with them on.

"Won't you tell me the reason?" he catechised her. "I think you'd better."

A moment for reflection; and then she answered, "No."

"You won't! That's rather peculiar. You make me a little uncomfortable, Miss Divine."

"I'm sorry. But I can't help it," the girl said. "Is there anything else you want to ask me, Mr. Sheridan, or shall I go now?"

To Bob or Not to Bob

(By Hedda Hoyt.)

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(United Press.) —Not all women look well with bobbed hair and those who have shorn their locks only to discover this fact too late, have many sources for readjusting the hair so that it will not look bobbed.

Before bobing the hair it is very wise plan to purchase one of the false "bobs" and wear it several days before cutting your own hair. This will prove to you whether or not you are the type for short hair.

Faces that are over-fat seldom look well with the bobbed head-dress, as the broad "bob" has a tendency to broaden the face. Persons with high cheekbones also find short hair unbecoming.

The best way to disguise the "bob," providing one is youthful, is to part the hair from forehead to the neckline and twist it in little knots over the ears. Braided switches held firmly to these little knots of your own hair may then be added, forming the new braided ear-bun effect. Often a fringe of bang gives a coquettish effect to this hair-do and takes away the harsh line of the centre part, which so few can wear. Those who hesitate to cut the hair in bangs can have adjustable bangs attached to ribbon head-bads. This is particularly attractive for evening wear.

New Sports Jacquettes.

Sports jacquettes have had such a run this season that the ordinary types are no longer desirable. However, the jacquette is not to be cast aside for fall wear. Little jacquettes of suede, made of mannish lines, are among the newest of fall's sports-wear. Most of these use wood shades and are unbelted, with either double-breasted or single-breasted fronts.

Again we see the sports jacquette in the heavy homespuns worked in wool cross-stitching These, of course, are more colorful than the suede effects, since they are usually embroidered in three or more colors on pockets, cuffs and collars. Straight, unbelted lines are preferable to the tie-at-the-side models, as fall predicts tailored effects. Small head-shaped hats of homespun worked in colors to correspond with the jacquette are smart.

Fall sports shoes made of crocodile leathers and lizard skins are to be seen before long. They are especially desirable for golf and country wear.

Risk Death

Montford Warshauer (top) and R. G. Conant, Milwaukee air pilots, have established a new record in flying. In a land plane they flew across Lake Michigan from Milwaukee to Holland, Mich., a distance of 85 miles, in 57 minutes. Never before has a land plane attempted the trip, for to have fallen in the water practically meant cetrain death.

DEATH SENTENCE FOR THIS MAN

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Sentence of death has been passed at the Derby Assizes upon a bully, brooding man for a murder that has something of a likeness to the notorious pit murder in New York last winter. In that case a chauffeur named Becker hammered his wife half to death and smothered her in a grave.

In the horrid crime which has culminated in the death sentence here the pit murderer of England was defended by a woman. Miss Monica Cobb—the first time in England's history a woman has been associated as counsel in a murder case.

Killed Three; Perhaps Four

The killer is a man named Albert Edward Burrows, a knotty, lumpy man, bald, swart, and with a paucity of words in his mouth. Unlike the American pit murderer this man killed his mistress, her little daughter, his illegitimate son—and is charged with having murdered another son by the woman. The four bodies, after weeks of toil and danger, were found at the bottom of a long disused mine shaft, buried 105 feet in a stagnant, poisonous grave.

Miss Cobb, who helped in the defence of this man, briefed the case for the chief counsel, T. N. Winning. She did not address the court, although she had demonstrated her ability in previous cases, and she has the distinction of being the first woman to have held a brief in the country.

Burrows stumbled into a bit of romance some years ago when he was employed as munitions maker at Nantwich. There he met Hannah Calladine, younger than he, vivacious and enjoying the "new freedom" which the war brought to women. Burrows found the attraction of the girl growing upon him and his own wife gradually became the burdensome angle of the triangle.

Two Children Born

There was clandestine wooing and suddenly the girl found herself a mother—and the sort of mother that is outlawed. Another child followed and Burrows began to take cautious soundings of the depths into which he had waded.

Hannah Calladine felt the change that slowly came over Burrows and, in desperation, she brought him to court on a paternity order. Burrows, who has grubbed away all his life a a laborer with never more than three pounds a week to his name, defaulted the order and was sent to prison. Then, in some strange manner, Hannah and her illegitimate children, went to Glossop, the home town of Burrows and moved in upon Mrs. Burrows.

Mrs. Burrows literally bounced out of the house as the other woman bounced in and began separation proceedings against her husband. Burrows, set at liberty, found himself again pressed by the strange details of the law, pulled about by bailiffs and constables and unable to see his way out except in the most primitive fashion and that way he took.

The mine pit in which Burrows finally buried human beings was in the midst of a lonely and deserted moor and it was along this stretch of wasteland that he was seen going on several occasions, through murky mornings, or driving rain. He always went with some one.—Hannah Calladine on one occasion, a child on another—and he always came back alone.

There was talk among the people about Glossop, wonderment at Hannah Calladine's disappearance, and Burrows found it necessary to explain her absence

Too Eager for Alibi

"She's gone to be a housekeeper for a widower and took the children," he kept saying.

Then like the American murderer, he persuaded a friend to forge post cards from her, which he too eagerly exhibited; proving when unaccused, that Hannah Calladine was not dead. Secret investigations began. People remembered his walks out into the moor and his returns alone. They walked out—and they came inevitably to the old mine shaft and then, after long toil and at the risk of life from the noxious gasses in the pit, they came upon the bones of Burrow's dead.

The trial was extremely short and the jury quickly found a verdict of guilt. Burrows heard the decision without a sign until he was asked if he had something to say.

"I am not afraid of death," he answered, "but I am not guilty. I loved those children and the woman too. As I hope to meet my God, I am innocent."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

A FISHING PARTY

Quick as a wink a rope . . caught Buster Bear around the neck

The Twins sat as quietly as little mice beside the creek where Mister Gallop, the fairy cowboy, had put them, Nancy under a low pine tree and Nick beside a big rock.

The fairy man was nearby but nobody could see him.

Everything was very still.

By and by there was a little scratching sound, then a rustling, and pretty soon a cracking.

It was Mrs. Brown Bear and her two boys.

"Come on, there isn't anybody here," the Twins heard her say, "This will be a fine day to fish.

"Buster, you go over by that big rock, and Bunch, you try that still place beside the pine tree. Now remember to sit very still, and don't grab until your fish gets close to the bank. They are on the lookout for silly grasshoppers that flop into the water."

Pretty soon Buster Bear came snooping over to the place where Nick was hiding and sat down on the bank, his greedily little eyes staring hungrily down at Tommy Trout.

Closer and closer came Tommy to the shore and greedier and hungrier grew Buster's eyes.

He was just about to shoot down his paw, when suddenly Nick blew his whistle.

Quick as a wink a rope flew through the air and caught Buster Bear around the neck.

And quick as another wink another rope caught Bunch, who had just reached his paw out for Tommy Trout. Mister Gallop was a fine roper and he had both of them at once.

"Oh, please let my children go!" begged Mrs. Bear. "I'll never let them fish again."

"Then trot along," said Mister Gallop, loosening the ropes. "Next time I won't be so easy!"

COOLIES FORM UNION IN SOUTHERN CHINA.

HONGKONG, Sept. 7.—(Canadian Press).—Trade unionism is rapidly spreading in southern China, and the street coolies are among the latest bodies of labor to organize. The street coolies are already said to posses a walking delegate system more powerful than ever existed in Canada or the United States.

Every important section of traffic has a "coolie prince" commanding a large following, and his word is law. He gets a certain percentage of all coolies' earnings, and he even dictates to the coolies the rates they shall charge to customers for carrying packages.

The coolie, not blessed with unusual strength, has a thin time of it in business. Besides paying the coolie prince his commission, he has to part with money to stronger coolies who literally scramble on to steamers for work, pushing the weaker ones aside, and then turn over a portion of the baggage they obtain to weaker comrades in return for a small commission.

Whaling Vessel Struck By Harpooned Whale.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 7.—(Canadian Press).—A monster sperm whale, after being harpooned, charged the whaling vessel Brown, of the Pacific Consolidated Whaling Company, and damaged both propeller and shaft forty miles out from Kyuquot whaling station, on the west coast of Vancouver Island, recently.

The Brown, commanded by Captain Martinson, had been cruising all day and had taken two whales. Another whale was sighted and a hide and seek game between the vessel and its quarry developed. After some maneuvering the harpoon was launched and found its target. The whale dove, came to the surface suddenly, and charged on the vessel. The boat was badly shaken by the inpact. The propeller blades were snapped and the huge shaft bent nearly double. Despite the bad ramming, the whale was captured. The Brown is now in drydock undergoing repairs.

LEGISLATION FOR BOARDS OF TRADE

OTTAWA, Sept. 7. — (Canadian Press).—The cancellation of the charter of the Galt Board of Trade by the government recently calls attention to legislation of long standing in the Dominion, of which comparatively little is heard by the public. The act under which the government action was taken and under which boards of trade in Canada are operating goes back to within eight years of confederation. It grants powers to the boards of trade which are capable of wide use and which relate to the settlement of disputes between traders and to the weighing and inspection of grain. By a recent amendment the powers of these bodies have been extended to cover varied problems related to social welfare.

Outstanding among the powers conferred on boards of trade by the act is the authority to appoint a board of arbitration to act in disputes referred to them by the parties. The board of arbitration consists of twelve members, three of whom may act in a particular case. The board of arbitration may act only in cases where the parties come voluntarily before it, but when once the parties have submitted their case the decision of the board of arbitration is binding upon them and upon the board. The board of arbitrators is elected at the time of the annual meeting, when the council of the board of trade is chosen.

The council of the board of trade has authority to license weighers employed in connection with grain elevators, and may appoint examiners to conduct examinations for such weighers and for inspectors of flour and meal or any other article subject to inspection.

The board of trade in the first instance were limited in their powers to matters related to trade, but in 1920 the act was amended to permit them to take up questions related to the economic and social welfare of a district. In the first instance also membership in a board of trade was limited to merchants, brokers, traders, mechanics, manufacturers, bank managers, and insurance agents, but the amendments of three years ago extended membership to all interested in economic and social welfare. Some fifteen or twenty boards have been organized under the wider powers.

The use of the powers conferred by the act varies a great deal in the different districts of the country. Boards of arbitration for example are stated to be little used except possibly in the larger cities, while the functions of the boards of trade as to appointment of weighers and inspectors have been largely superseded by municipal or other governmental officials.

There has of recent years been a movement to replace boards of trade by chambers of commerce. Most of these latter are stated to be organized on a United States model, and have no legal standing under the federal law, though there are also a few chambers of commerce incorporated under the federal law or under an act of the Ontario Legislature.

The board of trade act contemplates the formation of a Dominion Board of Trade to bring together all the local boards of trade in Canada, but this body has never materialized. There is, however, an organization of Associated Boards of Trade in Ontario, which has about forty or fifty boards affiliated with it. The Montreal board of trade has recently been advocating the formation of a Dominion body.

There are about two hundred and eighty boards of trade incorporate under the Dominion act, and in addition ten boards which have their own special charters. The Montreal and Quebec boards of trade, which have special charters, go back to the early forties of last century, while that of Toronto dates to 1845. Montreal now has four boards of trade, one being composed of Chinese traders.

STARTLING DISCLOSURE OF INCREASING CRIME

Last Year There Were 14,640 Unjustifiable Homicides, Including 8,000 Murders—Lynchings Largely Attended.

REFORMS NEEDED.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.: Sept. 7.—(The Associated Press).—Startling disclosures of the extent and rapid increase of crime in the United States were submitted before the American Bar Association by a Special Committee on Law Enforcement which urged that the whole code of criminal practice in the 48 states of the union be rewritten so that the long arm of the law might also become swift, sure, constant and, on occasion, merciful.

Data on numbers of crimes, methods of trial and treatment of prisoners in England and France were cited, in comparison with which this country showed to a decided disadvantage.

The blame was laid partly upon the structure of the law and the manner in which our courts function, but principally the increase of crimes and criminals was attributed to "the apathy and difference of the American people" toward law enforcement.

"Terrible failures of justice have occurred in all parts of the country," says the committee. Truth still clings to Chief Justice Taft's statement that "the administration of criminal law in the United States is a disgrace to civilization. The trial of a criminal seems like a game of chance with all the chances in favor of the criminal and, if he escapes, he seems to have the sympathy of a sporting public."

Charles S. Whitman, former governor of New York, is chairman of the committee, which includes Marcus Kavanagh, Charles W. Farnham, Wade H. Ellis and Annette Abbott Adams. Besides conclusions drawn from personal observation as eminent members of the American Bar, they gathered an immense amount of statistics on crime not available from the census. Three members of the committee made an exhaustive study of the criminal courts in England and France—forms of indictment, trial and sentence—sitting through whole murder trials and hearings of appeal, and inspecting penal institutions.

An astonishing laxity was discovered in the American method of recording crime statistics. Some states did not keep records of the number of persons in prison, as late as 1921. Among others where statistics were available the penal population was shown to have ranged since 1910 from a decrease of 1.2 percent in Nevada and 37.5 in South Carolina, to an increase of 1.5 percent in Kentucky and 171.3 in Rhode Island. Gains in civil population were taken into consideration.

On information furnished by police and court clerks in 48 principal cities of as many states, it was estimated that "while the general population of the country from the year 1910 until 1922 has increased 14.9 percent, the criminal population has increased 16.6 percent." It was ascertained further that "the growth of crime was steady and almost regular up to our entrance into the World War; during the war crime decreased greatly, but upon the resumption of peace criminals resumed their depredations with increased activity all over the country."

In 1921, for instance, "there were 9,500 homicides as compared with 9,000 in 1920. In no year during the last 10 did the number fall below 8,500s. In other words, since 1910 no less than 85,000 of our citizens have perished by poison, the pistol, the knife or other unlawful and deadly injury."

As compared with England and France:

In the last year for which facts were available, there were 63 murders in England and Wales; 585 in France. In the 48 American cities where live one-fifth of the populations there were 1,562 murders.

In London there were 17 murders. Only nine of these were classed as first degree. Scotland Yard ended the year with none of them "unsolved." During the same period Chicago had 137 recorded murders, and New York 260—the latter city obtaining three convictions.

The annual homicide rate per 100,000 population in Hartford, Conn., is 1.4. It is 56.8 in Memphis, Tenn.

"The largest proportionate ratio of crime is in our cities of less than 200,000 population," says the committee. "It therefore may be conservatively estimated that in this republic last year there occurred 7,850 murders. To these may be added 6,790 cases of manslaughter and other unlawful killings, totalling 14,640 unjustifiable homicides."

England is severe in punishing murderers. The death penalty often is imposed, although prison sentences usually are brief compared to ours. In France, where crime is less severely punished, murder is more frequent.

Eight states of the union have abolished capital punishment. In five others it had been outlawed, but now is reinstated. Thus there were 92 executions in this country in 1919.

"But to prove that our failure to inflict the death penalty did not proceed from an excess of tenderness," the committee points out, "we successfully put over 83 largely attended lynchings."

Jurists visiting English and French courts on behalf of the American bar reported several commendable features in each. Justice was expedited. A criminal was tried, convicted and punished while details of his crime were still fresh in the minds of the public, and the "horrible example" theory of punishment was therefore effective. This country is notorious for its long drawn out prosecutions, says the committee. Two or three years elapse between the crime and the execution, sometimes, and "a first verdict judgment forms merely the preliminary skirmish."

Discussing the prospect of speeding the trial of prisoners in the United States; of eliminating the disappearance of witnesses, falsification of defenses and loss of testimony, the committee concludes:

"The first great work to be accomplished in bringing about a better enforcement of law must be the awakening of the public to a clear sense of their responsibility for it. Improvement in our laws can accomplish little unless accompanied by a determination on the part of our citizens to have those laws enforced.

"We recommend that a permanent commission of this association be appointed to formulate a standard code of criminal procedure for the states of the union. It is of first importance that such committee be composed of men who have had large practical experience in the criminal courts, and especial care should be taken to exclude mere theorists and faddists."

Points About The Plow

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THIS BASAL AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT

Began With Sharpened Pieces of Wood —Iron Plows Used by the Romans —Introduction of the Subsoil Plow— British and American Plows the Climax in Development.

Sharpened stakes and crooked limbs of trees were the earliest substitutes for the plow in historical times, and their use has been common among the nations. The ancient Egyptian plow was but a pointed stick. The early Greeks used the trunk of a small tree with two branches opposite, one forming the share and the other the handle, while the trunk formed the pole or beam.

The Iron Plow Used by Romans.

Iron plowshares were used many centuries before the Christian era by the Romans, and the iron was used for a double purpose—for plow-points one year and for swords and spears the next, as iron was scarce in those days.

The Roman greatly improved the plow by putting on a wheel and also a coulter. Many races of people showed a widespread hostility to the use of iron in connection with agriculture, believing that iron poisoned the land.

Wooden Plows Used in America 150 Years Ago.

The people of all countries went through the early experience of finding a ways and means of tilling the soil, some slowly; some rapidly; and curiously enough the first plow of all nations were much the same in spite of the fact that some nations started thirty or forty centuries ahead of the others. The wooden plow is only a century and a half remote in American agriculture.

It is curious to trace the progress of plowmaking in Britain where Cæsar introduced the plow about 55 B.C. Those of the early cultivators were of necessity rude and imperfect, for in those days the plowman was obliged by law to make a plow before he was permitted to use one.

It is uncertain whether the early British plow had wheels, but some of those of the Saxons were furnished with them. The Norman plow was furnished with wheels, and it was usual for the plowman to carry a hatchet to break the clods.

Introduction of the Subsoil Plow.

The first attempt at the construction of a subsoil plow was made in 1677. It loosened the land up to a depth of fourteen inches. It is not necessary to do more than point to the various and numerous references which are found in early history of this valuable implement. For ages the plow was little more than a clumsy instrument, which served only to tear up the surface of the land sufficiently deep for the seeds to be buried. It was not brought to anything like a perfect tillage tool until the close of the seventeenth century. The Dutch were amongst the first who brought the plow more into shape, and soon its best features were copied and included in the Britisher's idea of a plow.

The Rotherham plow was made by J. Foljambe at Rotherham, and a patent was granted for it in 1730. It was then the most perfect in use, and is still well known after two centuries. This plow was constructed chiefly of wood, the draft iron share and coulter and the plating on the mould board and sole being the only parts made of iron. With the development of the iron industry, it was but a short time before plows made entirely of iron and steel were being made.

James Small, a Scotsman, was the first inventor and manufacturer of the cast-iron mould board. At that time (1760) the plow was generally the joint manufacture of the village wheelwright and blacksmith. Plowshares had been made of wrought iron until 1785, when a patent was granted to Robert Sansome for the making of cast-iron shares. The case hardening process as applied to cast-iron shares was the subject of a patent granted in 1803.

British Plows the Climax in Development.

The Rotherham plow, Small's chain plow, and Small's Scotch plow represented the climax in plow development previous to 1800, and the men whose ingenuity, spirit, and perseverance, brought about the development in plow making were Foljambe, Small, Wilkie, Finlayson and Ransome. The work and development of the plow during the past 125 years is too well known to all to warrant its mention here.

The old plowmen simply scratched the soil with their crude implements, going over the field time and time again, crossing and re-crossing until they had worked up a few inches into a seed bed. The Roman farms were rarely over five acres in extent, and when our forefathers in this country used the old wooden plow, the clearings among the stumps were small. The two century gap between the old rooter that scratched the soil surface and the new multiple bottom tractor plow of to-day is a long stretch for the numerous plow milestones that stand by the way to mark the progress of Agriculture.—I. Stevenson, O. A. C., Guelph.

Fall plowing is best from the standpoint of saving time, as it leaves more time for spring work and usually means earlier seeding. Spring plowing is more effective in the control of weeds, as, being turned under just before seeding they have less chance to crowd the grain.

The best time to inspect a machine for its weak parts is when you are putting it away for the season. A few notes in a memorandum book set down at the time will help you remember the new parts you should order next winter.

TRUE FLAPPER OF LATE SUMMER A DEMURE THING.

(By HEDDA HOYT)

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 7 (United Press).—Through batiks have a way with them, the flappers say "away with them."

Brilliant colored batiks, Egyptian prints and huge figured effects have no place in the wardrobe of the average flapper. Consensus of flapper opinion seems to be that blatant effects are not for youth, but for women with sufficient bulk to carry them.

Young girls between sixteen and twenty-one years of age have altered so greatly in the past year that flapper will soon become an obsolete expression. It is hardly believeable that the demure little girl one sees these days dressed in organdy frock, poke bonnet, lace mits, etc., is the same person who cavorted last year in full-fledged flapper attire—extremely short skirts, wild hair, and saucy-upturned hat, to say nothing of the rougish eye.

Girls would rather be demure than unique, it would seem, this season. They gather on the golf links and at the smart country places, where one would expect extremities in styles and color effects, in simple little sweaters with white collars and cuffs. Their colors are usuallysubdued ones, such as tans, grays, delft blues, etc. Their hats are rakish little ribbon-trimmed affairs of felt or leghorn. It is only the matrons who feel kindly disposed towards blatant effects this season.

Flapper in the Evening

Evening finds the flapper dressed in organdy, mull or French voile cut in simple manner with slender bodice and full skirt. Farish metalic and beaded effects are not for her. For dances at the country clubs she varies crisp organdies with pastel chiffons of fairy-like frills.

Even the youthful "bob" is losing its popularity—changing from the FIJI Islander effect to the center part, with buns over the ears. Those who cleave to bobbed hair wear theirs without a sign of a permanent wave but cut short in bovish fashion with straight banks over the forehead. Often the hair is cut so short that tips of the ears show.

One wonders what has taken the "flap" out of flapper. Perhaps she refused to compete with the kittenish matrons one sees in sleeveless gowns bobbed hair, sandals, etc. At any rate, she has become a cunning, girlish little thing with a decidedly feminine slant toward life and we love her for it.

Boycott By Chinese Hurting Japs' Trade.

(By CLARENCE DUBOSE)

TOKYO (By mail to United Press).—The Chinese boycott of Japanese goods is digging deeper every day.

Japan's exports to China have now slumped 70 per cent, and the slump is getting worse steadily.

Chinese in Java, Singapore and India, as well as in China proper, have quit buying Japanese goods as a protest against Japan's refusal to return to China the South Manchurian, or Kwantung leased territory, acquired under the "twenty-one demands."

Feeling against the Japanese is particularly bitter in central China and up the Uangtse river. There have been numerous fights and destruction of property in this region.

Throughout Japan chambers of Commerce and business groups of all kinds, heavily hit by the boycott, have urged the Tokyo government to do something. Tokyo has sent a stiff warning to China—but since there's no government in China it doesn't amount to much.

Officials here say that Japan will go very far in enduring indignities in China—but not too far. They say Japan genuinely wants to avoid having to use force to protect her nationals and their property in China, for fear of being accused again of trying to grab the country.

It is indicated unofficially that Japan desires to have an understanding, perhaps informal, with America and England, before she takes action in China, whatever the provocation.

APPLE BUTTER

Put sweet cider in kettle and obil until reduced one-half. Add apples. The cider must cover the fruit. The apples should be pared and quartered and covered and all bruised spots should be removed as carefully as if preparing them for sauce. Boil slowly until the apples are tender stirring frequently. Mash with a wooden potato masher and cook until thick and smooth. Stir to prevent sticking. Sweet apples are excellent for "thickening" the butter. Just before removing from the fire add 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon to each quart of butter. Pour into stone crocks and cover when cold. The cinnamon may be omitted according to taste.

SUEDE HATS.

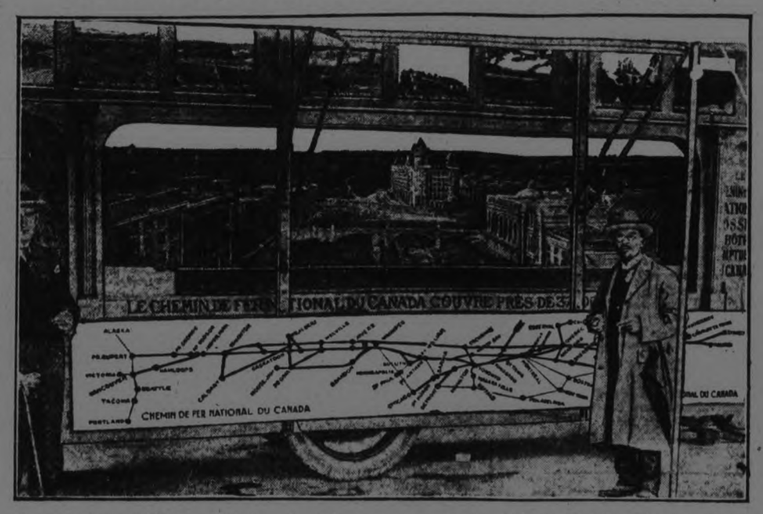
Suede hats are to be worn with slim three-quarter-length coats according to the latest note from Paris.

GIVING FRANCE A CHANCE TO KNOW THE CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS



The Canadian Exhibition Train which is now touring France is a decided success. It is visited every day by thousands of people anxious to know more about Canada, its commerce, industry and natural resources. The Canadian National Railways autocar shown here attracts much attention. This car is Number One of the train and at once catches the eye of the visitor to the exhibition with its general view of Ottawa and numerous pictures of Canadian life. When the train was officially inaugurated at Le Havre, M. Dier, Minister of Commerce and Industry of the French Republic, after a visit to the Canadian National Railways car, was much impressed and commented upon the important part such a system must play in the development of Canada.

Japan's Prince Climbs Fuji, Sacred Mount.

(By CLARENCE DUBOSE)

TOKYO (By mail to United Press).—Crown Prince Regent Hirohito and his brother Prince Chichibu are running a race for popularity and sport-leadership in Japan.

The future Emperor is in the lead. Perhaps no member of the Japanese Imperial family has ever been held in as much popular esteem as he is. His latest stunt is to climb Mount Fijis, Japan's Sacred Mountain, the ascent of which every Japanese hopes to make at some time. During the summer season, when the snow has gone and the trails are passable, thousands of pilgrims from all over the empire flock to Fuji and swarm up its sides. The pilgrims are garbed in white. They wear girdles of jingling bells. They pray at the many shrines up the mountain, and the objective of one and all is to reach the very summit in time for sunrise, and bow low and cry, "Banzai!" to the "rising sun of Japan," as it sweeps up from beyond the sea.

Well, the Prince Regent went up Fuji just like anybody else—the first of his line ever to do this thing, which means so much, sentimentally, to every Japanese. The people hailed it as just another proof that their future Emperor is a regular fellow.

Prince Chichibu, the second son of the Emperor, is known throughout Japan as "the sport Prince." He presided at the Far Eastern Olympic Games at Osaka this year. Hegs for all outdoor sports himself. He's good at tennis, baseball, polo, swimming and track stuff.

How They Paid off the Mortgage

They Made Assurance Doubly Sure

"I HAVE found a way," cried John enthusiastically. "I am going to take out an Endowment policy in the Mutual Life. In ten years we'll have three thousand dollars to pay off our mortgage, and this house will only have cost us a low rent in the shape of interest and premiums—nothing like so much as we paid for the apartment. And the best of it is I'll be insured all the time and if anything should happen to me, you would be all right."

And he went into details until Mary interrupted.

"See here," she said. "When you mentioned all that money we paid for the apartment, I had an idea. Why not take out a policy for each of us? I'm sure it would cost us no more than the apartment, and it would be a good way to save money. Then if anything happened to me—you would be all right."

"Nothing is going to happen to you," John assured her. "But," he added, "it's a good idea. We'll make assurance doubly sure."

A SESSION OF MUCH INTEREST

Three American Specialists Address Doctors Assembled in Peterborough on Clinical Day.

MEDICAL DIVISION

The afternoon session of the Clinical Day, held yesterday under the auspices of the Peterborough Medical Association, took the form of a Medical division, and was featured by three addresses from specialists of Clinics in Chicago, Rochester, Minn., and Battle Creek, Michigan. Dr. Ernest E. Irons of Chicago, spoke on "Chronic Infections which result in metastases in joints and eyes and similar lesions;" Dr. C. S. McVicar of the Mayo Clinic talked on "Sick Headaches in relation to gastro-intestinal diagnosis," and "Non tuberculous lesions of the chest," was the subject of an illustrated lecture by Dr. A. Pritchard, of the Battle Creek Sanitarium.

The afternoon session was held at Nicholls Hospital, where the rooms and halls were made very attractive by quantities of blazing red salvia, roses and geranium blooms. Dr. F. C. Neal occupied the chair.

Dr. Irons, speaking on "Chronic Infections which result in metastases in joints and eyes and similar lesions,' referred particularly to three less well known sources of infection, in probable systematic invasions of the upper respiratory tracts, the lung root tissues and gastro-intestinal disorders, which have a contributory effect on inflammatory conditions of the eyes and rheumatic joints, and serve as probable ports of entry for invading disease germs. "Disturbances of the stomach and intestines are often merely indications of infections somewhere else in the body. Germs from the nasal cavaties pass down through the intestinal tract and act as excitants. However, streptococci and colon bacilli in the intestines may be recent arrivals as well as late ones, as the fact that the intestinal tract may sometimes be the port of entry seems certain. A thorough search for all possible methods of infection should be made with every patient."

Discussion of the address brought from Dr. E. A. McQuade of Trenton the recital of an experience where an eye lesion had been directly caused by diseased teeth.

Pulmonary Cases.

The chairman called on Dr. Pritchard of Battle Creek, and Dr. B. C. Whyte of Saranac Lake, N.Y., for opinions on the effect of such infections in pulmonary cases. The former assented to the theory which involved focal infections in the upper respiratory tracts and lung roots, and referred to that type of influenza which leaves a continued after-effect of exhaustion, as often being diagnosed wrongly as tuberculosis. "In many of these cases soft shadows in and around each lung zone are shown, while bronchitis and general weakness often result from focal infections of the upper respiratory tract."

Dr. C. S. McVicar of Mayo Clinic, speaking on "Sick Headaches, in relation to gastro-intestinal diagnosis, gave an abstract from the history of nine patients suffering from migraine who had come under his observation at different times. In many of these hereditary research showed that parents of the patients had suffered from the same type of headache. Stomach and intestinal disorders were of frequent occurrence, but a common error made was the attempt to perfect a cure by the elimination of certain foods, which might only be exciting causes. "There is no reason," said the doctor, "why the diet of a migraine patient should differ from that of anyone else, beyond the old and well known fact that with certain types of food, what is one man's meat may be another man's poison."

In the discovery of contributing causes, the social and domestic history of the patient was often enlightening, as in the majority of instances, the attack became more violent when the patient was worried or excited. A farmer complained that his headaches became worse everytime he went to town, "and that was after prohibition, too." A photographic finisher, who worked very long hours, from 16 to 18 hours daily, had gone through a divorce case, been re-married, and purchased some property which was not yet paid for. The way he relieved his feelings when an attack came on was to let loose and "clean up the house." He was constantly overtired. Teeth and tonsils often needed attention, although it had not been noted that migraine often commenced in the early years when infections that developed later were not present.

In some instances, an investigation of the intestinal tract brought curative measures, in others slight operations were necessary. One man was suffering from gall-bladder trouble and a diseased appendix, and a woman who complained that her eye and stomach condition made it impossible for her to crochet any more, was found to be afflicted also with the introspective and hypochondriacal tendencies that are often associated with headaches or nervous exhaustion.

"A patient with migraine," said the speaker, "should always remember the pressure that heredity asserts upon their emotional reserve. They should guard their nervous system against preventive nervous strain, cultivate poise and turn off all possible switches. Exciting circumstances of work or play should be avoided, and an optimistic philosophy cultivated. Temperance rather than prohibition should be the watchword."

Dr. A. W. McPherson enquired of Dr. McVicar as to the beneficial effects on migraine of drugs, such as peptone and pituitrin, the pituitary gland extract. Dr. McVicar regarded both as dangerous remedies, and counselled caution in a physician's use of either. He said: "It may have no good effect on the migraine, and the after-effects are not desirable. I would prefer to let someone in a laboratory somewhere try it out well first. There are so many contributory causes to these headaches that it is hard to get a pure migraine."

Lantern Slides.

The third lecture of the afternoon, delivered with the use of many lantern slides from X-ray photographs, was given by Dr. A. Pritchard, of Battle Creek Sanitarium, on "Non-Tuberculous Lesions of the Chest." The doctor, in the course of his address, alluded several times to mistakes in diagnosis which he had made in connection with so-called tubercular cases, and recommended a thorough examination of every patient. The persistent cough and the persistent underweight often manifested might be only symptoms of bronchitis, or sometimes even of abnormalities or malignant growths. In the slides devoted to abnormalities were shown different lung sections of supposedly tubercular patients. One showed an enlarged aorta in an angina patient, another case with every symptom of lung affection had the metal top of a lead pencil embedded in the tissue, in another erosion of the vertebrae was caused by pressure pounding, still another had fluid in the pericardium, a man who had been sent to Florida and Arizona in turn by different specialists, and who declared that he had suffered enough from "specialitis," and would like to get someone who would cure his cough was found to be suffering from an entirely unrelated disease that caused a persistent cough, and another had a localized tubercular abscess. "It is the easiest thing in the world to guess tuberculosis, and the hardest thing in the world to prove. But let someone tell a patient that he has the disease and the devil himself couldn't convince that patient that he is free from it."

Rest was recommended, thorough and complete rest, the speaker referring to one peculiar case where a patient was put to bed for nearly three months. The guinea pig which had been inoculated from the patient died in three weeks, but the girl got well.

A rib pressing in somewhere around the neck had caused one man to believe he was suffering from tuberculosis, and a frequent occurrence was the type which was really Hodgkins' disease, that also showed the symptoms of cough, fever and under-weight.

Malignant Growth.

In the malignant growth section, a brakeman who had worked up to within three weeks of his arrival at the Clinic died within six weeks after. His diagnosis said tuberculosis, but an X-ray examination revealed what was thought was a cancer. It finally transpired that the proper lung was sealed over and its place taken by a large malignant growth that showed on the plate as a lung, apparently partially diseased.

Patients with lung stones, sometimes expectorating as many as 200 in a day, and other with calcification of the entire pleural cavity, were also admitted as tubercular patients.

Discussion of the paper was made by Dr. F. P. Lloyd, of Cobourg, and Dr. Proctor, of Belleville.

The chairman, Dr. F. C. Neal, presented the thanks and hearty appreciation of local physicians to the visiting speakers of the day, following a vote of thanks, moved by Dr. A. W. McPherson and seconded by Dr. J. H. Eastwood.

The afternoon session concluded with a pleasant social hour, when afternoon tea was served in delightful fashion on the lawn. The pretty table at the foot of the steps was centred by a large bowl of sweet peas, and presided over by Miss Alice Price, of the Isolation Hospital staff, and Miss Marion McCallum, of the Nicholls Hospital staff. Nurses in white uniforms served the guests, among whom were many of the wives of local and visiting physicians.

Last evening, during the men's banquet, the Peterboro Medical Association also acted as hosts to the wives of the visiting physicians. The ladies, some fifteen in all, were entertained at dinner at the Empress Hotel by the wives of local doctors, afterwards enjoying a game of bridge at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Buchanan, Water Street. In the afternoon, some of the local hostesses took the visiting ladies for a motor drive around the city. One of the guests expressed herself to a Peterboro citizen as of the opinion that "some of the Peterboro ladies are perfectly wonderful."

LOOKING FORWARD TO THE BABY SHOW

Contest at Coming Fall Fair Promises to Be Big Feature.

The Baby Show and Contest at the coming Fall Fair promises to be one of the most enjoyable features of the programme. There are already 123 infants registered for the contest, with many more expected during the Fair days from the city, district and neighboring counties. Prizes totalling nearly $200 in value will be given, to be on exhibition on Monday of next week.

A convenience afforded this year at the Fair will be the large tent for the Contest, with a screened-off portion where all appliances for first aid work in accidents will be on hand for emergency use, and a nurse will be in attendance from ten o'clock in the morning.

To avoid over-crowding, the different sections for Baby showing have been divided as follows:

On Wednesday, at 2.30 p.m., the class of under-developed children registered some time ago at the Well Babies' Clinic will be judged, also infants up to six months of age.

On Thursday at 2.30 p.m. baby girls from the ages of six to eighteen months will be judged, and at 3.30 p.m. baby boys of the same ages.

On Friday, girls and boys from eighteen months to three years of age will have separate judging, girls at 2.30 p.m., boys at 3.30 p.m.

No entry fee is required to enter a baby in the Contest.

The regular admission fee at the gate entitles the mother to all the privileges and sights of the Fair, as well as the chance of entering her baby in the Contest and receiving a substantial prize.

HEBREWS RESENT POULTRY BY-LAW

Declare Limitation of Slaughter Houses in Montreal Constitutes Monopoly.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.—A portion of the Hebrew community is up in arms against the new civic by-law limiting the number of poultry slaughtering establishments to eight for the city of Montreal and aided by a newly formed association by the name of the Montreal Poultry Dealers' Association, they have resolved to start an energetic campaign for the repeal of Article No. 29 (By-law No 828), adopted by the Executive Council on May 31 and by the City Council on August 13 last, which reads as follows:

"Not more than eight Jewish establishments for the slaughtering of poultry exclusive of those situated in public markets, shall be allowed in the city and no such establishments shall be opened and operated unless a permit to that effect be previously obtained from the city."

It is now claimed that this article is most unjust and constitutes a monopoly such as was in the minds of the legislators at Ottawa last session, when a stringent law against combines and monopolies was passed.

A committee of the Montreal Poultry Dealers' Association headed by its officers, Allan Ikeman, president; H. Vineberg, secretary; and Albert Ikeman treasurer, together with another from Hebrew consumers has been delegated to take up the matter of the repeal of the by-law in question and petitions are now being circulated to be presented to the city council and the executive board. The committee has also retained counsel and will press an aggressive campaign.

BASCOM SLEMP

New Secretary to the President is Administration Question Mark

By HARRY B. HUNT.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—A slender, sallow-skinned, long-faced man of 53, gray hairs at his temples, pouches of loose skin under his eyes, celebrates his birthday anniversary September 4 by stepping into a job that many believe may shape the political destiny of the United States for the next four years—that of secretary to the President.

"Secretary to the President" is the title Campbell Bascom Slemp will wear, officially. But people who know Slemp intimately smile at the idea of his being any kind of a secretary.

A millionaire, a keen business man, an astute politician, a giver not a taker of orders, the idea of Slemp playing a secretarial role even to a President somehow just doesn't seem to fit. Therefore, his appointment must mean more than appears on the surface, they argue. But what?

What?

A political manager? That sounds more like it! Who better than he, who as a Republican served 14 years in Congress from a Democratic southern state, could round up southern delegates behind the Coolidge candidacy in 1924?

A laison officer between the White House and Congress? His long service on the hill, his acquaintanceship with members and his knowledge of how the legislative wheels go round would make him most helpful on that job.

But, after all, what do either of these jobs mean in terms of Slemp? All who know him agree he's not taking a secretarial job just to be secretary. What has he got his eye on?

"Well," suggests an old-timer here, who has known Slemp intimately for many years, "maybe it's just Republican success next year. But even that would cover only part of it. The real explanation must be found in some answer that would touch Slemp himself, personally. That suggests a Cabinet job. Knowing Bascom as I do, and knowing that the job of secretary can interest him only as a stepping stone, here's my guess:

Cabinet Timber?

"If Slemp makes a success of the work he really is selected to perform, thereby assisting or insuring the nomination and election of Coolidge next year, you may as well put him down right now for a place in the next Cabinet.

"Postmaster - General, probably. Perhaps Secretary of Treasury or maybe of Commerce. He has qualifications for any of those three. Anyway, watch Slemp! He sees something more than being secretary in this new job."

What sort of man is this southerner, then, who becomes secretary to a Yankee President and already is talked among the wiseacres as one of the big forces in the coming political manoeuvres?

Campbell Bascom Slemp was born at Turkey Cove, Lee County, Virginia, on Sept. 4, 1870. His father was Colonel Campbell Slemp, former officer in the Confederate army and a typical southern gentleman of the old school. His grandfather was one of the famous Virginia Campbells.

Resourceful, both financially and politically, Slemp multiplied his family fortune between times and held his seat in Congress until he tired of it. He told a friend last year that he had cleaned up $500,000 the previous year alone in his coal land deals. He is reckoned safely within the millionaire class.

Hates Routine.

He has a mathematical and analytical mind which has developed in him unusual executive ability for a man long in Congress. He is a hard worker and expects his associates to work equally hard. Some who have worked with him term him a "driver." He will work night and day to put through some proposition and then take time off to rest up.

When he tackles a job he has a definite objective in mind and is inclined to be intolerant of obstacles and impatient of delays that may intervene. He hates details himself, shouldering them off onto others. He is wholly unmethodical and hates routine.

He is a fast thinker, and either when writing himself or dictating he chafes at the inability of the material record to keep up with his thoughts. He can't bear being circumscribed; he must be free, footloose, and can tolerate no situation in which he must occupy a position of subordinate.

---

Two years older than the President and far better grounded in the school of practical politics, Slemp comes to his job largely through the recommendation of Speaker Gillette and Secretary Weeks.

Slemp had an active part in the last speakership fight, in which Gillette was elevated to presiding officer of the House.

He was a Gillette lieutenant then. He turned the trick.

He is a Coolidge lieutenant now. Can he do the same this time?

That's the question.

---

Slemp plays a fair game of golf, but he's not a golf bug. He plays a better game of poker, but can play it or let it alone. He is popular with women, but is not easily impressionable.

Contrary to popular opinion he is not a bachelor. Who's Who shows him as "unmarried." However, shortly after coming to Congress he brought to Washington a Louisiana belle as his bride. She remained here only a few weeks, however, and a divorce on grounds of "incompatibility" shortly followed.

Political manager? A Cabinet job? Well, stick a pin in your calendar at March 4, 1925. By that date you will know.

MOTOR LICENSE AT THE SAME FIGURE

Minister Says No Increase in Price Contemplated by Government.

TORONTO, September 7.—(Canadian Press)—Contrary to the view expressed in news despatch from Stratford following the visit there of Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Public Works, an increase in the cost of motor licenses, is not under contemplation by the government.

This is the substance of a statement made by the Minister to-day. The matter was brought up by a member of the Chamber of Commerce, when we were discussing general road conditions," he said. It was not broached by me."

Definite changes in marker designs are being considered by government.

BUSINESS WOMEN WILL HAVE SHOW

Susie O'Grady is on the Job With a Fashion Show of Her Own.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6. — At last the business woman to have a fashion show all her own.

Style designers have known for years that it was the business woman who dominated the fashions in gowns and wraps, but when it came tohaving a style show—well, Susie O'Grady, who takes dictation six days a week, just simply couldn't find anything there that would fit her pocketbook and go well with the boss's mahogany furniture at the same time.

Now Miss O'Grady is to see a style show where she may find the very dress she needs at a price she can afford to pay. The show will be part of the second annual exhibit of women's activities which the New York League of Business and Professional Women is to put on at the Hotel Commodare Sept. 24-29.

"We have practically enough exhibitors for a complete fashion show," says Elizabeth Sears, president of the league and general manager of the exhibit.

There will be no theatrical background to blind the observer to quality. 'We will show fashions of to-day from lingerie out, against the everyday background of office equipment. They must win on their merit.

"The result is that many exclusive designers are putting much effort into special designs and business and professional women the nation over are awaiting the show as indicative of fashion's tread for the winter."

A practical model will be one of navy French jersey, with collar and cuffs of real linen. A half dozen buttons down the front and a smart leather belt are the only trimming. A small cloche hat of black felt is worn with it.

Sometimes the business woman goes directly from the office to a dinner engagement. Then she touches up her suit with a dress blouse, an a hat of black velvet, rolling gently away from the face. An ermine rosette is the one bit of trimming.

Among the women who will register interest in the exhibit are those who have been successful in piano, making, the typewriter business, bond salesmanship, banking, insurance, jewelry, medicine, beauty devices, the breeding of cats, dogs, foxes and birds, the marketing of electrical supplies, lamps and machinery, in politics and civics, the management of shopping bureaus, and in the fields of invention.

MIDGET CHAMPS AWAY TO A FLYING START IN SERIES WITH LINDSAY

Curlers Beat the Classics, Winners of the Lindsay League, By 12-9 in First of Home - and - Home Games.

HERE ON TUESDAY.

Following the lead given them by the Maple Leafs in the Juvenile, the Lakeviews in the Junior and the C.G.E. in the intermediate, Alex Kay's Curlers, midget champions of Peterboro, dropped into Lindsay yesterday and walloped the Classics, Lindsay's titleholders in the first game of the home-and-home Midget O.B.A.A. series 12 to 9 and the Peterboro kids were always in front after the second inning when they chased four runs over the plate. Lindsay, however, were so close to their heels throughout, that the game never lacked in interest, in spite of the fact that the Curlers were not headed after their batting rally in the second frame.

Carl Woods the Petes' speed ball artist although a little wilder than usual fanned eighteen of the Lindsay crew and should have escaped with a smaller score against him. Baker his catcher was greatly handicapped throughout by reason of the fact that the sun was in his eyes all the way through, and passed balls played a considerable part in the Lindsay run getting. Babcock the Lindsay catcher also found the sun a draw back.

Morin the little Lindsay pitcher whiffed fourteen of the visitors but he passed seven men and his another and the Curlers got to him for some extra base wallops that hurt. McLeish had a homer, Fraser a triple and McDuffee and Baker a double in addition to two singles each. Forbert with three hits was the most effective of the losers on the attack.

It was the first game away from home for most of the Peterboro youngsters and they performed very creditably under the circumstances. Lindsay play the return game here next Tuesday at 4.30 p.m. and the Curlers should tuck that fixture away and go into the O.B.A.A. finals against the Western representatives, although the Lindsay youngsters have not goiven up hope and are coming down determined to win the series.

An unusual feature of yesterday's game was that the Petes scored in every inning but the first while Lindsay registered in every frame except the sixth and ninth. Thus there was not an inning during the game in which at least one run was not scored.

The Peterboro youngsters were blanked in the first, McDonald striking out, Barrie rolling to Forbert and Woods fanning.

The Lindsay crew got one. Babcock first up walked and stole second, taking third on a passed ball. Fox and Coak fanned but Forbert doubled to left sending in the run. Board struck out.

The Petes went out in front in the second. McLeish first up tied the score with a mighty wallop to deep right for the circuit. Baker singled to right and McDuffee followed with another single to the same field, Baker going to third. McDuffee stole second and the bases were full when Vincent drew a pass. Ecobichon's single over first base scored Baker and McDuffee and on Ferguson's wild throw in Vincent also scored and Ecobichon reached second. Baird rolled to Board at shortstop and Ecobichon was doubled off second. McDonald drew a pass but Barrie fanned.

In Lindsay's half Morin got a life when Baker missed the third strike on him. Woods mussed up Tripp's sacrifice bunt and both runners were safe. Ferguson and Wileman fanned but Morin scored on a wild pitch. Babcock walked but was stranded when Fox fouled to Barrie.

In the third Woods strolled and stole second and third while McLeish and Baker were striking out. Woods scored when Forbert missed a throw to third. McDuffee singled past second and Vincent walked. Ecobichon's fly to Switzer in right field retired the side.

For Lindsay Cook beat out a hit to Barrie and Forbert was safe when Baker fumbled his tap in front of the plate. Board's single to centre scored Cook, and Forbert registered on a passed ball. Morin struck out. Board started to steal home and was doubled up on Tripp's fly to Baird.

Baird started the Petes off with a single, went to second on a balk and to third on a wild pitch. McDonald walked and stole second. Barrie struck out, Fox dropping the third one but the Lindsay catcher caught Baird off third and he was run down, McDonald reaching third and Barrie second on the play. Board dropped Woods' fly and the bases were full. McLeish's grounder to second forced Woods, McDonald scoring. Baker struck out.

In Lindsay's end of the frame Switzer was thrown out by Woods, Wileman fanned but the third one was a wild pitch, the runner reaching first. He stole second and went to third on a passed ball, and scored on another wild pitch. Babcock and Fox fanned.

McDuffee first up for the Curlers in the fifth walked and stole second. Vincent and Ecobichon fanned. McDuffeee counted on a wild pitch. Baird walked and worked his way around to score on McDonald's drive that was too hot for Morin to handle. Morin died stealing second.

For Lindsay, Cook grounded to McLeish. Forbert beat out a hit to McDonald and went to second on the short stop's bad throw to first. A wild pitch put Forbert on third and he scored when Board singled to short. Board was out stealing second and Woods tossed out Morin.

After Barrie had fanned in the sixth Woods started the Curlers on their way with a clean single to right. McLeish flied to Wileman and when the left fielder threw wild to first in an attempt to double Woods the latter reached second. Baker singled over second to send the run in. McDuffee fanned.

For the first time Lindsay were blanked. Tripp was safe on Barrie's errors but tried to go two bases on the play and was out at second. Switzer got a cheap hit when McDonald, Baird and Ecobichon let his high fly drop among them but was out stealing. Wileman fanned.

Fleming replacing Vincent for the Petes was hit to start the seventh and stole second. Ecobichon struck out and Baird was thrown out by Frobert. McDonald drove a fly to Tripp which the centre fielder dropped and Fleming registered.

Lindsay got two in their half. Babcock started it with a single to left and advanced on a passed ball. Fox struck out but Cook singled to left scoring Babcock. Forbert's single to short after Cook had stolen sent another run in Board forced Forbert at second and Morin struck out.

The Petes kept on scoring in the eighth. After Woods had rolled to Forber and McLeish had missed three, Baker doubled to right and scored on McDuffee's double to center. Forbert tossed out Fleming.

The Lindsay youngsters had a chance to sew the game up in their half. Tripp started by beating out a bunt and going on to second when Woods made a wild heave to first. Tripp stole third. Switzer fanned. Tripp went home on a passed ball. Wileman struck out but Babcock was hit and Fox walked and a hit would have tied the score. Wood, however, got out of the hole by striking out Cook.

Fraser batting fo Ecobichon in the Petes end of the ninth tripled to left. He remained on third while Baird flied to Wileman and then was extinguished at the plate when McDonald hit to Fox, McDonald going to second on the play. McDonald stole third and scored when Forbert dropped a throw and then made a wild peg to the plate. Barrie fanned.

Lindsay went out in order, Forbert and Board striking out while McDonald tossed out Morin.

WILLS TAKES HIS CLAIM TO COURT

Contends He Has Prior Right to Meet Dempsey.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6. — The next step in an attempt by Harry Wills, negro heavy-weight title contender, to throw legal entaglements in the path of Jack Dempsey-Luis Firpo championship match will occur tomorrow morning, when an order requring the State Athletic Commission to show cause why the bout should not be enjoined, will be returnable in Supreme Court.

Papers in the mandamus action were served today upon the Commission, according to Wills' counsel, William Klein. The Commission refused to comment on the situation, but it was indicated legal representatives would attend the court hearing to-morrow.

Wills' action is based upon his claim that, because of a formal challenge and $2,500 forfeit he posted more than a year ago with the Commission for a match with Dempsey, he has prior right to bo the titleholder.

NOTES ON THE C.G.E. ORILLIA O.B.A.A. SERIES

Orillia's crack left-hander who hails from St. Michaels College wasn't up to his usual form Wednesday and both he and the fans of Orillia think he can beat the C.G.E. here on Saturday.

The C.G.E. crew admit that they got all the breaks of the game and Orillia just couldn't hit their stride, every error being costly.

Cloutier, the Orillia pitcher made a good showing against the Hillcrests senior team of Toronto. Manager Dwan thinks that with a good senior team behind Cloutier, that he would be hard to beat.

Some of last year's faithful followers of the C.G.E. team motored to Orillia to cheer the boys along. Everybody who considers himself a baseball fan should turn out on Saturday to show their appreciation of the honor that the C.G.E. team brought to Peterboro last fall.

The same harmony that played such a big part in the landing of the Intermediate trophy in Peterboro last year is quite in evidence again in the C.G.E. camp.

The C.G.E. boys were badly beaten in Oshawa early in the season but they had the satisfaction of scoring as many runs off Dainty in six innings he worked as the hard hitting Belleville crew did in their first and last game together.

FIRPO DESCENDS FROM NOBILITY

Press Agents Think Up a New One For Argentine Challenger.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 5. —Luis Angel Firpo is a direct descendant of the Italian nobility of the twelfth century.

Shortly before he went to the dog park this afternoon for a sparring session in which he all but knocked out three of his helpmates. Luis Angel received an official-looking sheepskin, decorated with gold seals, a coat of arms and Latin writing.

The coat of arms—a shield with three inverted "V's" across it—had some latin words across it, had some latin below the shield telling about the audaciousness of the family Firpo and then in history of the family it is said that the Firpos, as far back as known were of the highest caste, owned castles and were interpid warriors.

Firpo had six rounds of sparring with Joe McGann, Frank Koebele and Natalio Pera to-day. Jeff Clarke the "Joplin Ghost," took an afternoon off. Firpo tore into the punchcatchers with all speed and some degree of power. McCann managed to stand up under the blows, buf Koebele and Pera had to be held up in the second rounds of their sessions.

After the work-out, Luis' trainers announced that the Argentine trainer would rest to-morrow. His sparring corps is all tired out and sore of body and jaw, and Luis thought that they should be shown some mercy.

BATTLE BETWEEN THE TAIL-ENDERS

Athletics Pushed Boston Deeper Into the Cellar.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6. —The Philadelphia Athletics drew first blood in the battle with Boston to keep out of the cellar, taking the first game to-day, 6 to 2. Rommel was on the mound for the locals and only in one inning did he show signs of weakening, the sixth, when the Red Sox scored two runs. Outside of this inning, Rommel was invincible. Jack Quinn, who twirlled for Boston, was hit hard in the fifth and the eighth, the Athlethic gathering enough runs to win in these two rounds. In the eighth inning Umpire Moriarity banished Picnich, the Sox catcher, Devormer, taking his place.

Score:

Boston ..... 000002000—2 7 0
Philadelphia .... 100020003x—6 10 2

Quinn and Picinich, Devormer; Rommel and Perkins.

Dempsey Declares He Will Never Give Wills a Chance

Champion Peeved By the Announcement of Legal Action to Stop Match With Firpo.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 6. — Harry Wills, negro challenger for the world's heavy-weight championship, will never have a chance to win the title while Jack Dempsey is champion.

The titleholder made this declaration to-night after receiving word that Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills, had instituted legal action in an attempt to stop the Dempsey-Firpo match at the Polo Grouds, September 14.

"This means that Wills never will get a chance at the title while I am champion." Dempsey said. "He doesn't deserve a chance after such tactics. I had intended taking him on if I stil held the title after boxing Firpo, but I wil not do it now under any consideration. There is no chance for either Mullins or Wills or their lawyers stopping my bout with Firpo I am confident of that."

Dempsey to-day started to ease up in his training, reducing his boxing to four rounds instead of the customary six or eight, and eliminated the work of attacking the heavy leather-filled swiinging dummy. The champion's work-out, aside from his usual morning run, and the boxing consisted of a round each of shadow boxing, tugging and chest weights and pounding the light punching bag.

Manager Kearns explained the reduction by saying Dempsey was ready to enter the ring to-morrow and that he did not care to risk the danger of having the champion become too firmly drawn.

Mitchell pitched his first game for Philadelphia since he injured his hand a month ago. His winning streak of six straight games was broken. Score:

PUZZLING PLAYS

THE PLAY

Please explain the difference in these two situations:

In the first play there is a runner on third and two out. With three balls and two strikes on the batsman, he swings at the next pitch which is wild. The batsman misses the ball. It likewise gets away from the catcher and rolls to the stand.

The runner from third jogged over the plate on the play, while the batsman was able to reach second before the catcher recovered the ball.

The batsman who went to second failed to touch first. The ball was thrown to the first baseman, held on that base, and the umpire ruled out the runner who failed to touch first, making the third out.

Does the run count?

In the other play there is a runner on third and two strikes on the batsman. The next pitch is wild. The umpire rules it a fourth ball, entitling the batter to first. The pitch eluded the catcher and rolled to the grandstand.

The runner on third crossed the plate on the play, while the batsman reached second. He failed to touch first. The ball is thrown there and he is declared out, retiring the side.

Does the run count?

THE INTERPRETATION

In the first play the run does not count. The batsman who struck out and reached second on the play, having failed to touch first, never became the occupant of that bag. The rules state that a man cannot score on a play in which the batsman fails to reach first for the third out. Failure of the batsman to touch first created just such a situation. Never having touched first he failed to gain title to the bag.

In the second play the run counts. The base on balls entitled the batsman to first. In failing to touch that base on his way to second he made himself liable to be put out as was the case, but his action in no way affected the scoring of the run.

ORILLIA HOPES TO WIN TOMORROW

Were Away Off Color on Wednesday But Expect a Much Better Showing Here.

The Orillia team which meets the C.G.E. team here tomorrow in the O.B.A.A. intermediate series should not be underestimated. The winners of the Tri-County League, claiming that Umpire Dick Butler was very bad on balls and strikes, point out, that Cloutier their star left-handed pitcher was greatly handicapped as a result and was miles below his usual form while his team mates were also off color. Tomorrow is another day they declare and they are determined to turn the tables on last year's champs—right here in Peterboro.

The C.G.E. camp cannot see it that way. They expect a harder battle tomorrow but they hope to wind up the series in two games and to be ready for the next round. The Electricians will have their strongest team in action tomorrow and as it is their first clash here with an outside team the fans are expected to extend them liberal patronage.

The game will be played at Riverside Park and will be called at 3 o'clock sharp. Skitch of Cobourg and Burns of Beaverton will umpire.

SPORTS IN SOUTH AMERICA

By Miles W. Vaughn

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(United Press).—Argentina isn't at all sure that her sensational heavyweight, Luis Angel Firpo "Bull of the Pampas," will be able to defeat Jack Dempsey in the bout to be held in the Polo Grounds September 14—but she hopes so.

Most of the Argentines still labor under the delusion —and it may not be so much of a delusion at that—that the United States is well nigh invincible n the field of sport and are still rubbing their eyes from surprise that Luis Angel one-time Buenos Aires street boy, has done as well as he has.

There probably will be a lot of saints the night before the battle, and a lot of prayers said in a lot of Spanish and Portuguese dialects all the way from Panama to Punta Arenas and the Amazon to Terra del Fueo, for all South America wants Luis Angel to win because it wants a world champion all its own.

And if Firpo does in the day after the battle will see a lot of celebrating in every city and village of the southern continent.

Chile claims a half interest in Firpo, for it was on the West Coast that the Argentine battler won his first fame, when Chile was about the only republic south of the equator that boosted the boxing game or knew anything about it.

The Italians—and there are a lot of them in every country in South America—claim another share in the big mauler because they say, that somewhere in his family tree he had an Italian ancestor.

Street railway employees — yes, they have street railways nearly everywhere in South America, with unions and strikes and all that—claim another portion, because they say Luis Angel once laid rails, or split ties or something, for the railways.

The politicians claim another atom because Firpo used to be handy man to wallop a political opponent when the politician himself wasn't big enough or was too dignified to under take the job.

The intellectuals hail him because he represents "the genius of the Latin race," which all South American intelleentzia like to talk about, but never can define.

All in all the "Bull of the Pampas" s quite some bull in his native pastures even if some Argentines do say the nearest Firpo ever came to the Pampas was riding across them in a Pullman coach while journeying from one boxing match to another and if he wins—well South American sports, already a husky youngster, ought to climb right into long pants and challenge the world in everything.

JACK DEMPSEY ATTENDS STRICTLY TO TRAINING

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y., Sept. 7.—(Associated Press)—Jack Dempsey's hobbies in his training camp are not so many or varied. The champion most of the time attends strictly to the business of getting himself into shape. But when he does "let go," he plays cards with his sparring partners or favored visitors, romps around the place like a school kid, plays with the many dogs he owns, or puts in his spare time attempting to train some newcomer to his menagerie.

At Great Falls, Mont., where Dempsey conditioned himself for his Shelby match with Tommy Gibbons, a wolf cub was the recipient of most of the title holder's attention. At his present training camp he is attempting to win the affection of a leopard cub that was recently sent him. His collection of dogs ranges from toy bulls to German police dogs. These canines are scattered all about the country. Many of them are in Dempsey's Los Angeles home, some are at Salt Lake City, and others on a Utah ranch the champion owns. His manager, Jack Kearns, also finds kennel space in his oakland, Calif., home for several of Dempsey's dogs.

Dempsey loves music. He carries a portable phonograph with him wherever he goes and puts it to constant use. On one of his trips to New York this year he arrived at his hotel without a hand bag, but with a phonograph in his hand. The champion's music tastes runs to "blues" and jazz numbers.

NEW MINISTER

social success to specialize in Young People's and Sunday School work, and to have the knack of supplying novelties that will build up his church he is expected to be a useful citizen and to be a member of this or that club in the community. And yet a minister has only a limited amount of time at his disposal. I think that possibly one of the most important things that a minister should know is what not to do, because there are certain things that are essential to his ministry and that should not be forgotten. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God." The minister has a three-fold aspect, that of a priest, a pastor and a prophet, and there is a danger of his priestly and most important duties being performed in a perfunctory manner."

Mr. Jull spoke of the pastor's duty as a shepherd of his flock, saying "It seems to me that, in his ministry no man has reached the highest point of effectiveness until he has established between every man, woman and child in his flock and himself, a bond of personal friendship."

"This is an age of preachers," declared Mr. Jull. "The journalist, the teacher, the politician, the merchant all are expressing opinion on many things. There are many laymen and women in our congregations who are a wonderful help to ministers in our work, but we must remember, you and I, that we alone are successors of that first Christ-trained band to whom the injunction was given to "go forth to the whole world and preach the Gospel."

"There is also a great confusion of tongues in the church to-day. There is the voice of the modernist, and the unionist, the cynic and the pessimist. It is for you and me to keep cool heads and go forward with firm steps and a great loving heart, to known the truth, and to preach it with eloquence and conviction and the tongue of love. There is no greater task in the world to-day."

Rev. Mr. Pogue, addressing the congregation on their duties toward a new pastor, gave a forceful address, touched with humorous allusions. "Prize your minister, praise your minister, pay your minister, and pray for your minister," he said.

"Your minister is God's servant and ambassador. He speaks to you the message of God. Prize your minister as one sent from God."

"A little judicious praise is a good thing, and will make your pastor walk with a lighter step and a lighter heart. He has a great weight of responsibility on his shoulders. Give him a little word of kindness now and then. Do not be like the Scotchman who answered a plea by his sister that he should tell her he loves her with the reproof, "that is a strange word to say when folks are well."

There is many a poor woman in her grave to-day that might have lived and loved life better for a little word of appreciation or a bouquet now and then. Many a Scotch tongue refuses the word that the Irish heart would have prompted. Don't make your minister's idiosyncrasies or personal characteristics the subject of unkind remarks. If he does walk with his toes out, don't say anything about it. Shut your eyes to everything but his excellencies of manner and style in preaching. The saying "like priest, like people," might well be changed to "like people, like priest."

"Pay your minister. Pay him an adequate salary. You make certain demands upon him, that he occupy a certain social position, that he furnish his house and dress himself and his family in ways that suit you. Books are as much of a necessity to him as implements are to a farmer, and books cost money. Ministers are supposed to renounce salary. They do that. If your minister had taken the same time in preparation and study to fit himself to be a lawyer or a doctor, he would have been putting himself in the way of earning in time a possible yearly salary of twenty-five or fifty thousand dollars. At least see that his needs are supplied."

Pray for your minister. Paul said to the Thessalonians; 'Brethren pray for us.' No member of a congregation has a right to say that a minister is a failure, because it is a partnership between the pastor and his people. In the induction service, the minister and the congregation both promise certain things, and no man has a right to say the pastor's ministry has failed unless that man has prayed day and night for the minister's success. And when he has spoken the word of God on Sunday, hasten to your work on Monday with the resolve to put what he has taught into practice in your daily life and work. Practice what he preaches Apply it in the kitchen. No kitchen keeps an untidy house. Apply it between husband and wife, and in relationship to your church. Practice what your pastor enjoins."

Rev. Mr. Makinnon, with Rev. Mr. Pogue and the senior elder of Knox church, J. F. Morrison, shook hands at the door with outgoing members of the congregatin. A public reception to the new minister was announced for next Tuesday evening.

were responsible, his demands would be increased, and complemented by supplementary penalties," he said.

"Nothing will make me recede from my position or accept a compromise at the expense of the nation's honour. We will not admit that the crime committed against our officers can be judged by the assembly at Geneva."

Awaits Italy's Reply.

The Interallied Council of Ambassadors, after a lengthy session this morning, adjourned until late this afternoon to await definite word whether Italy is prepared to accept mediation of the Council of the League in the present Greco Italian dispute. All further discussions, it was said, rest upon Italy's reply.

During the morning session the Ambassadors discussed the advisability of sending a commission to the scene of the massacre of the Italian boundary mission to conduct an investigation and report upon the responsibility for the crime.

The French Government favors attempting to settle the Italy - Greek question by every possible means before an appeal is made to the League of Nations, and thinks the Ambassadors' Council is the most authoritative body to deal with the crisis, it is stated in authoritative circles.

No Meeting To-day.

The Council of the League of Nations decided to hold no meeting today. It was also agreed that scheduled session of the assembly should be postponed, the controlling reason being a desire to avoid dangerous discussions at a plenary meeting of delegates until the Council has seen some light as to its duty in the Greco-Italian negotiations and is able to make some report.

Ambassadors Meet.

W. Miller reports from Paris that the Council of Ambassadors, upon whose shoulders rests responsibility for a peaceful outcome of the Italo-Greek dispute, met to-day at 11.30 a. m., under the chairmanship of M. Cambon, France, to select a committee of inquiry into the Janina murders. Prompt action by the Allied Ambassadors, it is hoped by France, may avert the necessity of a break between Italy and the League of Nations. Italy has announced she will accept the Paris Council's verdict, and it is believed that if Greece does likewise the occupation of Corfu will speedily end. Withdrawal of the Italians from Corfu would remove the necessity for a "show-down" with the League of Nations Council, since that body then would have nothing to adjudicate. Everything, consequently is up to the Ambassadors and depends upon the dispatch and success with which they push their inquiry.

To Prevent War.

The International Federation of Transport Workers moved to-day to prevent possible conflict between Italy and Greece. The Federation issued a proclamation to workers on railways and shipping ports requesting rigorous control of shipments of arms and munitions. The French workers also took up the matter with the International Syndicate Federation at Amsterdam with a view to securing world wide action to prevent war.

HEEDED MYTH ON DISASTER

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 7.—Tokio and its 2,800,000 citizens lived constantly in fear of a disaster which would mean destruction according to Dr. J. C. C. Newton, who returned to Atlanta two months ago after having served thirty-five years as a missionary in the neighborhood of the city.

"The Tokio people never ceased to believe in the old myth that a giant fish under the city some day would bring about its destruction," he said.

"Kobe, 300 miles away, is generally regarded as the safest part of Japan, so far as danger from earthquakes and tidal waves is concerned. I always felt safe there, but not in Tokio.

"A skyscraper in Japan," he remarked, "means a building four or five stories high."

Dr. Newton was President of a Methodist educational institution at Kobe, but spent much time in Tokio and Yokohama.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

"THE GIRL WHO BACK"
TO-NIGHT AT THE ROYAL

An elaborate screen version of the stage production of the same name, has its local premiere to-night. It comes highly recommended. The story involves the regeneration of a girl who efforts to clean the slate of her life, form the nucleus for much dramatic action carrying the spectator from the slums of a big eastern city to southernmost Africa. The cast is exceptional including Mariam Cooper and Kenneth Harlan.

Jack Mulhall in the social Buccaneers supplies more thrills and Baby Peggy furnishes the laughs. The above program with the addition of the Royal Orchestra should provide a satisfying evening's entertainment.

AT THE GRAND.

The fairy tales of nursery days live longest in the memory. When all else is forgotten, old folk recall the stories of their earliest childhood with vivid pleasure. And this characteristic of age reacting to early memories is not confined to any class or any nation. It is a common factor in humanity. To everybody there is one type of story that always appeals, no matter in what form it may be presented. The fairy story is ever-fresh, and its imaginative phantasies are not the least of its many charms.

Cinderella is perhaps the best known, and certainly one of the best loved figures in all the range of phantasy. The homely character of the opening setting the loveliness of the transformation, and the fascination of golden romance cling about it. The Cinderella pantomines are the most popular of all to the children of England. And not children alone find them alluring. People of all ages love to go back in thought to their nursery days when Cinderella sits by the fire and dreams of the fairy Prince.

A delightful musical phantasy based upon the legend of Cinderella will be seen here shortly. It follows the salient features of the fairy story closely, and it is further enhanced by elaborate scenery. Lovely costumes, special lighting, and an ingenious stage mechanism that enables the changes from scene to scene to be made without any waiting.

The book and libretto are from the pen of Forrest Audubon Rucker, and the score and lyrics have been written by Stanley T. Vermilyea. The former adheres strictly to fairy tale style, and the music will be found unusually melodious and lilting in character. All the salient features of the original are preserved, and the lyrics are reminiscent of the most cherished of nursery rhymes.

A dainty little Montreal artiste, Theo Macfarlane, will appear in the title role, which her personality and charm equip her perfectly to fill. The balance cast is in every sense wholly adequate. 'Cinderella' will be seen here Friday and Saturday, Sept. 7-8, with special matinee Saturday.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Pola Negri is back again at the Capitol for this week-end. The temperamental young Polish actress won quite a following when her first American picture, 'Belladonna,' was shown here. As an emotional actress, there is a fleeting resemblance in her technique to that of Theda Bara, but the younger woman is far and away ahead of her predecessor in her portrayal of dramatic emotion, and there is a reality about her acting that is absent from the more contained characterizations of other American screen stars.

In "The Cheat," the white-faced actress with her black flowing draperies essays a somewhat difficult role, one that takes the sympathy of her audience away from the character portrayed, and makes them watch the unfolding of the tale with fascinated interest in its finale rather than with admiration for its star. It is interest-holding to a degree, however, and there is a good deal of strong dramatic characterization in the roles of the foolish young wife and the Hindu Prince with whom she becomes involved.

Charles de Roche, the new man in the movies, who bids fair to eclipse Valentino himself in popular and feminine favor, has a villain's part in this picture, as the dark-skinned Prince Rao, who causes much of the trouble. The high tension that Miss Negri seems able to inject in her photodramas comes to a climax when an aroused court-room rises to its collective feet and mauls the Prince, after the lady has exposed the white shoulder which bears his flaming brand. Unlike "Belladonna," the heroine comes safely and happily through a series of adventures that are harrowing in the extreme, but make thrilly stuff for an interested and intent audience.

There is the usual run of small reels to complete a good programme and a regular "cut up" comedy, with Stan. Laurel in "The Noon Whistle."

SOCCER NOTES

The following C.P.C. team will line up at 3.30 Saturday for the game with the Thistles: Curtis, Wag Hotson, Underwood, Lasenby, H. Hotson, Follis, Bradbury, Gatfield, Shaw, Jury, Batley and Downes. Game at King Edward Park.

NOTHING POSITIVE IN FOREIGN NEWS

So New York Stocks Turned Attention to Home Trade Situation.

NEW YORK, September 6. (United Press. — Nothing positive was contained in the foreign news, so stocks turned their attention at the opening to developments in the home trade situation. Some irregularity was created in the early dealings by a sharp drop in the reserve ratio of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, which stood at 80.7 per cent against 84.7 per cent. a week ago.

However banking authorities said this loss was largely due to withdrawals for crop movement purposes. Encouragement was derived from August production figures given out by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, showing an increase of 6.70 per cent. over July.

This demonstration of continued prosperity in the face of the general belief that business had experienced substantial contraction in midsummer served to offset somewhat a relatively unfavorable bank statement and recessions among the standard stocks were mostly unimportant.

Davison Chemical had one of its characteristic plunges, dropping to 48 off 6 points from the high of the previous session. In other sections of the list however price changes were fractional.

Further selling was checked by the reappearance of special strength in a number of individual issues toward the close of the first hour. In this respect Dupont was the outstanding feature, reaching a new high on the movement at 138¼ in reports of some sort of a melon for the stockholders.

Another factor contributing to Dupont's strength was the stimulation of the artificial silk industry expected to result from the blow to the silk industry in Japan.

Independent Steel, especially Bethlehem and Republic, continued to reflect the probability of large orders from Japanese sources, and United States cast iron pipe responded to the same suggestion.

Copper issues with Utah leading, were slightly strengthened by the firmer market for the metal.

BUFFALO, N. J. H. Groth of Buffalo permorming the ceremony. The attendants were Miss Leah Kagels of Newfane, N. Y., Cousin of the bride, and Mr. Harold Schultz, of Buffalo. STEVENS—HUTCHINSON.

A very pretty wedding took place at All Saints' Anglican church on Wednesday of this week, at three o'clock, when Lily Caroline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hutchinson, 208 Perry street, became the bride of George Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stevens, Gladstone avenue. In the absence of the rector, Rev. R. B. Grobb, the ceremony was performed by Rev. W. R. Courage of St. George's church.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. W. A. Logan, was becomingly attired in ivory charmeuse satin with panels of silver lace, veil and wreatn of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of roses and asters.

The brides' attendants were two sisters of the bridegroom, the Misses Cissie and Elsie Stevens, wearing dresses of henna canton crepe, and large black picture hats and carrying pink gladioli.

The bride's sister, Doris, acted as flower girl, wearing midnight blue silk crepe de chine with trimming of silver lace and ribbon, and carrying a bouquet of pink asters.

The bridegroom was supported by his brother, William Stevens.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, and a dainty luncheon served to about thirty guests.

Later, the bridal couple left for a short honeymoon at western points, to reside in Peterborough on their return.

Many handsome and useful gifts received by the bride and bridegroom testified to their popularity with a large circle of friends.

Out of town guests at the ceremony and reception included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davey, Mr. Brockman and Mr. James McMinn, of Oshawa.

MISS LILY HUTCHINSON RECIPIENT OF PRESENTS

"It is with deepest regret that we, the employees of the Compensator and Rheostat Departments learn of your departure from our midst to embark upon the sea of matrimony. We shall sadly miss your smiling face and pleasing personality, but nevertheless, it is with pleasure, that we ask you to accept these little gifts namely: electric toaster, electric iron, butter dish, with our best wishes for a long and happy married life.

PETERBORO MALE VOICE CHOIR.

Days are shortening, the long evenings will soon be with us. The members of this organization are already feeling enthusiastic and waiting the signal for action. The past three years have been a source of great musical pleasure to its members.

The Male Voice Choir is in a sound and healthy condition and is looking forward to its best achievements during the season about to commence, 1923-24. The executive officers will meet during the coming week to put their plans into operation. The officers have the hearty support and co-operation of its members, which means so much, it makes the work a pleasure and unquestionably leads to success.

We shall see many new faces with us this year, as many have already stated they are anxious to sign up. Some of these new voices are from the Old Land and are conversant with this work, and will certainly be an acquisition to the Choir.

The Choir is non-denominational and open to all men of the city who are interested in better vocal production, as well as providing pleasure in associating week by week during the winter months.

The appreciation shown by the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs and the citizens in general during the past years have been a source of great satisfaction to the officers and lead them to greater efforts in the future.

The Executive will probably meet on Tuesday evening next and will give definite information re the opening of the musical session through the columns of the press.—Com.

NEWS BY RADIO OF EARTHQUAKE REACHING HERE

Wireless Carries Story of Dying Convulsion of Once Great Volcano---Island Submerged.

LOSS IS APPALLING

TOKIO, Sept. 8.—(By Wireless to United Press from Iwaki). — The earthquake of Saturday which shook from their foundations the cities of Tokio and Yokohama and a score of smaller cities with appalling loss of life and destruction of property was the dying convulsion of the once great volcano Oshimi lying off the coast near Yokohama.

The volcano, simultaneously with the earthquake, erupted, spreading destruction over its picturesque slopes where islanders farmed peacefully and sold their famous shell ornaments to visitors.

Island Disappeared.

Then Oshima collapsed and sank into the sea, carrying its inhabitants with it. From the spot where the volcanic isle had stood a great tidal wave rushed upon the Japanese coast, engulfing part of hapless Yokohama, while the city still trembled in the great quakes and took fire.

Meanwhile in Tokio the destruction was great. Three-fourths of the capital was destroyed. Fires followed the quakes and raged unchecked for two days and two nights.

Southward from Tokio to Yokohama, the great industrial region, was almost completely devastated. Yokohama was nearly wiped out, and the damage extended a hundred miles southward of this city. Broken communications have made it impossible as yet to determine the full extent of the damage in these regions.

The Board of Works Practice to Win the Tug o' War Trophy

The Board of Works Tug-of-War team are very enthusiastic over the prospects of winning the Cup donated by Mr. R. Denne at the contest to take place at the Fair next week, and to that end, are doing some strenuous practicing these evenings.

President H. Evans is certainly very proud of his splendid lot of men that comprise this admirable team, and feels confident that they will land the honors when the time comes

Owing to some of the former members being away and not able to attend the practices, there are vacancies on the team for a few good men and any one wishing to join this splendid organization, kindly communicate with Secretary C. S. Stapleton, giving their age, weight, and other physical qualifications, when their application will be duly considered by the Executive.

THE WEATHER.

The rainfall last night was one of the heaviest this summer. The total was .42 of an inch. Some of the warmest nights of the season have been experienced during the past week. The lowest temperature last night was 60 degrees, and the preceding night 64 degrees. Last Thursday was "gauge day," for the coming three months. If there is any truth in the theory, we should have three months of pleasant, beautiful fall weather. — W. P.

BOYS PLAY WITH REVOLVER; BAD "GUNMAN" KILLS SELF

Result of a Boy's Effort to Appear in the Roll of a Cow Boy—Died on Way to Operating Room.

DETROIT, Sept. 8.—Twirling an automatic pistol around his index finger as he had seen it done by "gun men" in the movies, Tony Scandaliato, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Silvesto Scandaliato, 723 Leib street, Detroit, met accidental death last night.

Tony was playing "cow boy" in the home of John Niceri, 3426 East Congress street, with two younger brothers and Peter Niceri, 7 years old, when the shooting occurred. The children had found a 38-calibre automatic pistol hidden away in a drawer, and proposed immediately a game of "cow boy." Tony, being the older, took possession of the gun, telling the other children that they were "too young to play with firearms."

"This," said Tony, hooking the automatic pistol with his finger, "is the way the cow boys in the movies do it." And he began to twirl the weapon around, while the younger children looked on with envy and awe.

"I can do it as well"—began Tony. Then the gun went off. The bullet struck the boy in the left eye and he sank unconscious to the floor. His brothers and the playmate, Peter, ran screaming to the street.

"Tony's shot; he's lying on the floor," they sobbed.

Neighbors went into the house and found Tony lying in blood. They picked him up, and he was taken to Receiving Hospital. He died as he was being carried into the operating room.

PLAGUE STORIES FROM JAPAN NOT CONFIRMED BY OFFICIAL REPORTS

Still Impossible to Estimate the Number of Dead in the Earthquake Zone—Six Ships Reported Missing.

REFUGEES LEAVING

(By MOTO TAKATA, Assistant Foreign Editor of the Osaka Mainichi, Written for the United Press.)

OSAKA, Sept. 8.—Japan's earthquake sufferers today number 1,356,470. An official announcement to this effect has been issued in Osaka, which with the confusion and devastation in Tokio, is rapidly becoming the centre of the Japanese business and official life. The same announcement says 316,807 houses were destroyed by Saturday's shock, the tidal wave and fires that followed.

It is stated that it is still impossible to estimate accurately the number of dead, but a few official figures indicate a loss of more than 500,000 lives in Tokio and Yokohama combined. Reports from outlying districts will be slow in coming in. Yokohama apparently has been spared the ravages of cholera, thus far at least. Alarming reports of the plague reached here yesterday, but these were not followed by any further dispatches regarding the cholera, and it is hoped the first reports were errorneous or exaggerated.

Ships Missing

Six ships are reported missing in the Pacific. One of these was twin screw motor ship Kennecott, out of San Francisco with a crew of 40. The Kennecott together with the Wawa Lona and the West Jena of Astoria were reported off Yokohama just before Saturday's quake.

None of them has been heard from It is feared they went down in a tidal wave or typhon.

Three other vessels from 90 to 100 days, overdue have been given up. Loss is not attributed to the quake but adds to the general gloom in shipping circles.

Several hundred American refugees from Japan's quake zone are on their way to the United States aboard the President Pierce. Among those who remained behind because of anxiety over the fate of relatives was Junius Wood, Chicago newspaper man, who has returned to Yokohama to seek news of his wife, who was at Kamakura when the earthquake occurred.

The Nihon Dempo Agency reports that not a single house remains in Kamakura and that all villas along coast in that territory were destroyed by tidal wave. Wave came when hundreds of bathers were in swimming. All were reported swept out to sea and drowned. Many notable temples and religious shrines were destroyed.

Two hundred foreigners were killed at Yokohama according to navy departments, first direct word from that port received to-day in two messages from Admiral Anderson Commander-in-Chief of United States Asiatic fleet. One hundred and thirty foreign refugees reported

ARAB RULER DEAD SUCCEEDED BY SON

Few People Have Heard of Sabia, Capital City of Asir.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. — The Emir of Asir is dead; has been buried in his capital at Sabia; and is now duly succeeded by his son. The Western world did not learn of the event until weeks after it happened.

The passing of the old ruler of a principate that probably not one person in a hundred could "place" on its proper continent will hardly cause a ripple on the surface of the world's affairs, but it serves excellently, says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society to show how little we know about the world we live in.

"Asir is on the Arabian shore of the same Red Sea that we are told the children of Israel traversed dryshod," says the bulletin, "and has existed there with little change probably from the time of that interesting event. Phoenicians and Venetians and Portuguese have coasted alongside its barren, hot sands. Since the Suez Canal was constructed palatial steamers with the last word in equipment and appointments have passed in a continual procession in sight of its coral reefs and beaches and mountains. And yet until 1917 practically nothing whatever was known of the region, and even now the world's knowledge of it is scant.

"As in most other parts of Arabia, the people of Asir are Mohammedans at that. Travellers are not welcome, especially are 'Christian dogs' not wanted. But the intolerance of the people of Asir is not reserved for Christians alone. The Turks who are fellow Moslems and who were in addition representatives of the Caliph, made little headway in Asir. Nominally it was a part of the Turkish Empire as was most of the remainder of Arabia; but the people never surrendered their independence. Turkish garrisons held Kanfuda and Jeizean, little ports, and Ibha, an inland station; but large districts of Asir's 30,000 or 40,000 square miles of territory were never even explored by the Turks.

Hot As Death Valley.

"Along the Red Sea is Asir is a strip of lowlands twenty to thirty miles wide, known as the 'tehama,' barren, hot and fever-ridden. In appearance it is not unlike the repellent Pacific Coast of Mexico's Lower California. Even in April the thermometer registers as high as 107 in the shade in the 'tehama,' and in midsummer it is almost as hot as in America's famous Death Valley.

"The inner edge of the 'tehama' is marked by low mountains, some 2,000 feet high. Farther inland are the country's highest peaks, rising to 6,000 and even 8,000 feet. Still

HELLENIC FLEET SALUTE COLORS THREE NATIONS

Most Other Penalties Ambassadors Would Impose are in Conformity with Italian Demands.

LOOKS LIKE PEACE

PARIS, Sept. 8.—(Special.)—Proposals contained in the note which the Inter-Allied Council of Ambassadors has sent to Greece are virtually identical to those of the original ultimatum despatched to Athens by Premier Mussolini. All the penalties the Council would impose are in conformity with Italian demands, except that the Hellenic fleet shall salute the flags of three Allied nations, instead of Italy's alone, and that the highest Greek military authority shall present his Government's regret for the Janina murders to three Allied diplomatic representatives in Athens.

Conditions in Note.

The note further asks that a funeral service be celebrated in honor of the slain Italians in the Catholic cathedral at Athens with the Greek Cabinet in attendance. That warships of Britain, France and Italy steam into Piraeus Roads the morning of the funeral service and the Greek fleet fire a salute of twenty-one guns. That military honours be rendered by a Greek military unit with the flag at Preveza, in which the bodies of the victims are covered. Also exemplary punishment of the culprits and payment of indemnity to Italy, the amount of which will be fixed by the world court at Hague.

The note concludes: "The conference, noting confirmation by the Italian Government that its undertaking at Corfu and other islands was solely for the purpose of obtaining satisfaction for demands presented to the Hellenic Government, and that such demands are now covered by the above conditions approved unanimously by conference, invites the Hellenic Government to make known simultaneously and separately to each diplomatic representative of the three Allied Powers in Athens its integral acceptance of the preceding conditions.

Italians Must Evacuate.

If Italy accepts yesterday's decision of the Inter-Allied Council of Ambassadors, Greece will view her dispute with the Italian Government as settled, and will not push her request to the League of Nations to investigate the crisis, M. Politis, Greek spokesman, told the correspondent to-day.

He said, however, that acceptance of Greece was contingent upon whether the programme of settlement reached at Paris included arrangements for Italian evacuation of Corfu and other Greek islands seized by naval forces of the Rome government. He had not been informed as to the text of the note prepared by the Ambassadors, but he understood it was virtually an incorporation of measures proposed before the Council of the League of Nations by the Spanish Ambassador to France. Therefore, he added, the Council might well say that it had effectively collaborated in solving the crisis.

ITALIAN CARABINERS ARREST GREEK SOLDIERS

CORFU, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Italian Carabiners today arrested four Greek Gendarmes caught in the act of attempting to land on the island. The Greeks declared they had deserted from their regiment at Epirus, where, they said, frequent and bloody mutinies took place. Their story is being investigated to determine if they really are deserters or spies.

TOO THICK HEADED.

LONDON, Sept. 8. — An experiment was conducted at the Zoo here to discover if the mere voice of a man could penetrate the consciousness of an elephant. By wireless an elephant was given commands by his favorite keeper, but paid no attention. When the keeper delivered the orders in person the animal obeyed without hesitation.

GOOD BUILDING PROSPECTS.

Building permits issued during the first week in September indicate that this month may be one of the busiest of the year in building circles. With a total of $3,151, the permits show an increase over most preceding months.

RISE IN BANK RATE.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The Bank of England has stimulated saving by allowing a raise in minimum rates of discount from 3 to 4 per cent. This permitted the clearing banks to increase interest allowed on deposits from 1 to 2 per cent.

UNIQUE DANCE WAS HELD FOR SHOP PATRONS

A Little Spice Added to the Life of Douro this Week—Storekeeper was the Host.

JAZZ EXCLUDED

What might be called an innovation in community life, and one that would doubtless prove exceedingly popular, if places of larger population could be induced to emulate such an example, was the customers' party and house-warming held by P. G. Towns, of Douro, on Wednesday evening of this week.

P. G. Towns, who is a well-known figure in the life of Douro and the surrounding district, conducts a general store in the township. He is also township treasurer, postmaster and manager of the telephone exchange, and when Mr. Towns decided to celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of his business life, he had a lot of people to remember. It was a party that devolved no expense on anybody but the hospitable hosts, Mr. Towns and his wife, and invitations were sent out wholesale. First the older customers were invited, and then the youth of the community. There were eighty or more men and women of mature age in the party, several over eighty years of age, and one old lady past her eighty-fifth year. The older people joined in the card-playing and the dancing with the same gusto as the younger guests, and, needless to say, there was no jazz music needed for the occasion.

Dances were of the real old-fashioned, comfortable sort, not round, but square, and at one time twenty sets were in progress on the floor at the same time. Mr. Towns' father, George Towns, in his seventy-seventh year, was there, along with some five hundred others, and the guests from outside the district included J. H. Burnham, of Peterboro; Miss Mary May, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Riley, of Cobalt, and Mrs. Thos. O'Brien, of Peterboro. Invitations were sent to Mr. Towns' customers in Douro, and Otonabee, and Dummer and Asphodel.

From half-past seven in the evening until nearly five o'clock in the morning; the jolly company danced and sang and played cards and enjoyed the bountiful refreshments provided by their hospital hosts. William Bell, of Dummer, was the genial floor-manager, and music on the fiddle, the piano and the banjo was provided by local talent. Step dances that aroused much enthusiasm were given by several of the guests, including Thomas Sullivan, Jr., of Lakefield; Michael McCann, of Douro; Kenneth Cavanagh, of Indian River, and Andy Quinlan, of Asphodel.

Mr. Towns' new house, which has not yet been divided, and his store, which has a length of fifty feet and a width of twenty feet, were thrown open for the occasion, which everyone present pronounced one of the jolliest and nicest affairs of the sort they had ever attended.

SPIRITUALISM.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Eng., Sept. 8. — In his will, Harry A. Kersey directs he be buried in "a quiet and unostentatious manner, and in accordance with the method prevailing amongst those people called Spiritualist, who are fully acquainted with the facts of the possibility of communion between the spirit world and the material world . . ."

IT PAYS TO SING.

BRISTOL, Eng., Sept. 8.—Joseph Leopold Roeckel, professor of music, composer of many songs, who died in France recently, left an estate valued at about $45,000.

MEN READY TO RESUME WORK AT EARLY DATE

But Mine Operators Are Just a Little Hesitant Of Definitely Fixing the Day.

CONFERENCE TODAY

HARRISBURG, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Governor Pinchot and the leaders of the mine operators and miners were fully confident when they went into conference at noon to-day that the end of their discussion would see a final settlement of the coal strike.

The main points in the Pinchot plan have been accepted by both parties to the dispute, but there is still the necessity of obtaining a settlement on several union demands considered of minor importance.

If these points are cleared up today it is quite probable that operations will begin in the anthracite area on Monday or early next week.

Governor Pinchot and John L. Lewis, president of the mine workers, said that instructions would be sent out to-night for the resumption of work in the mines, but the operators are just a little hesitant.

COGNAWAGAS CLUB RECEIVED TROPHY

Ed. Wright Cup in East Peterboro League Presented to Winners at Banquet.

Cognawagas were last evening presented with the E. Wright cup, emblematic of their victory in the championship series of the East Peterborough League. This is the first year the Cognawagas have played in League baseball, and an enthusiastic gathering of players and fans witnessed the presentation yesterday. About 75 were entertained at a banquet, after which over 200 gathered for the presentation.

The banquet was served by the ladies of St. James' church, and was well deserving of the vote of thanks proposed by D. Davis and G. Wager. Rev. J. D. Richardson responded on behalf of the ladies.

The programme consisted of choruses by the club, and a number of other musical items which delighted the audience.

The presentation of the cup was made by Ed. Wright, who congratulated the club on the splendid record they had made. E. Rowe, manager of the team, responded, and Barnes, Vice-President of the League, Rev. J. D. Richardson and A. E. Prest expressed their good wishes.

The team was congratulated not only on winning the cup, but on the sporting way in which they carried out the schedule.

The Programme.

Piano duet—Elmer McLouen and Sherman Rowe.
Recitation—Ashton Fife.
Cornet solo—E. Hotston.
Vocal solo—E. Rowe.
Recitation—Miss J. Hamilton.
Violin solo—C. Russan.

BOMB OUTRAGE TORONTO, TODAY

Windows of Home on Spadina Avenue Blown In, But Nobody Seriously Hurt.

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Following threatening letters received recently, demanding $1,000, the home of Gabrielle Cici, in Spadina Avenue district here, was the scene of a bomb outrage early this morning. A bomb filled with high explosives was hurled against the front of the house, blowing in the windows of the rooms in which Cici, his wife and several children, as well as a couple of lodgers, were sleeping.

The noise of the explosion awakened the neighborhood for several blocks.

Apparently nobody was seriously hurt.

SOUVENIRS.

MUNICH, Sept. 8.—During a five-day athletic festival here recently, visitors carried away with them as mementoes 5,00 beer fugs, 480 knives and forks and thousands of plates.

PLENTY OF MILK.

Each child in the family should have a quart of whole milk each day, either to drink, or used in foods.

Los Angeles Shocked by Bedroom Comedy

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—Los Angeles, capital of the screen, has been shocked by a New York bedroom farce.

Members of the cast of "Getting Gertie's Garter" and the manager of the theatre where the show is running will appear in Police Court to answer charges of City Prosecutor Jack Friedland that the show is "indecent and obscene."

The cast includes Marjorie Bennett, a sister of Enid Bennett, film star, and many other motion picture actors who work nights here on the legitimate stage.

The show had long runs in New York and other eastern cities.

GUNMEN SHOOT UP A MERCHANT

Three Women Fall Before Rain of Bullets; Victim Innocent.

DETROIT, Sept. 8.— Detroit's underworld made good its threats to "get" Isadore Cantor, 32 years old, sugar merchant, who shot and killed Frank Spede, 27 years old, an alleged memer of a gang of men extorting money from bootleggers and merchants, during a street fight. Last night, Cantor and four others, three of them woman was standing on the sidewalk in front of a restaurant at 9419 Oakland avenue when a car drove up to the curb. A leaden hail came from the car, and all were shot one being killed.

The dead man is Sol Conrad, 23 years old, who died in Receiving Hospital from loss of blood at 1:30 this morning. A bullet severed an artery in his leg. Cantor was wounded in the right leg, but managed to draw a revolver and return the fire as the assailants, one of whom, it is believed, he wounded. The three women wounded are not in a serious condition.

They are: Fray Jacobs, 18, arm grazed by three bullets; Mrs. Goldie Finkleston, 34 years old, shot in the shoulder and elbow; and Lily Parkiet, 22, shot in the left leg. Mrs. Finkleston is in Grace Hospital, the other two having been removed to their homes after treatment at Receiving Hospital.

The dead man and three women are believed to have been innocent victims of the attacks which was meant for Cantor. The assailants fled after firing nearly 100 shots, the front of the restaurant where the party was standing, being riddled with bullets.

After he killed Spede on July 11, Cantor surrendered to police and was freed when brought to trial. He and his business partner, George Golberg, received several threatening letters and were given permission to carry revolvers. Golberg had just left the group of five to enter a nearby cigar store when the shooting occurred, and believes he owes his life to that fact.

Four men were in the car, according to witnesses. Golberg told police he thought he knew the men and police are hunting for the persons whose names he gave them. No body obtained the license numebr of the auto in which the gun men fled.

LIMIT OFFICIALS' AGE.

TOKIO, Sept. 8.— (Associated Press)—The government has drafted and submitted to the throne sanction regulations concerning the age limit for government officials at large. The bill is to be offered to the Privy Council for consideration at a special session in August. The question has been discussed by several cabinets but always has been pigeonholed.

The age limit proposed by the government is 63 years, the same as that for judges and procurators, with the exception of 65 years for president and procurator-general of the supreme court. Exceptions would be made for the state ministers, the privy councillors and officials appointed personally by the emperor, all of whom are now excluded from the age limit.

Professors of imperial universities would come under the proposed age limit.

DOG AND CAT RESCUE.

LONGTON, Eng., Sept. 8.—For heroism in rescuing a dog and a cat from the bottom of a disused pit, Police Constable Pegg has been presented with the animal life-saving medal of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The officer risked his life to rescue the animals.

IN 49 YEARS.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—In all the 49 years as relieving officer to the Blofield, Norfolk, Board of Guardians, H. T. Capon didn't have a vacation, re said. Recently he retired, his first chance to get away from work.

FARM PRODUCE PLENTIFUL ON LOCAL MARKET

Popular Buying This Morning Seemed to be Corn and Apples—Grapes and Flowers.

BUTTER 36 CENTS

"Celery, cabbages and flowers" was the cry of the young lad at the foot of the stairs in the farmers' market this morning. The tune reminded one of the "ca-bbages, ca-beans and ca-rrots" song and the popular "bananas" refrain. The smell of celery and of fresh grapes pervaded the entry, the former in goodly bunches at 15 cents apiece, the latter in small baskets at 55 cents. Peaches in large baskets were $1.10 and blue plums 65 cents. The cabbages, large specimens with curling leaves, were 15 cents a head. The pound system doesn't prevail to any great extent at the farmer's market. And the flowers, cosmos of reddish mauve, were 10 cents a bunch. Every second person had a bouquet this morning; asters or gladioli or pale pink antirrhimum, the flower that children call "butter and eggs," when it is yellow, and most people know as snapdragon.

Butter Plentiful.

Butter and eggs were plentiful, and fowl fairly so. Butter opened at 40 cents a pound and dropped to 36 cents, eggs were selling from 33 to 27 cents a dozen, ducks at 30 cents a pound, hens at 25 and three months old chickens at 30 cents.

Corn and apples seemed to be popular buys this morning. Corn was 20 and 25 cents a dozen, apples 45 cents a peck for the Duchess, 50 cents for Wealthys and 60 cents for St. Lawrence.

A mixed basket of small cucumbers and gherkins for pickling was 75 cents, tomatoes were plentiful at 45 and 50 cents for a small basket, 60 and 70 for large ones, small beets were 75 cents a basket and small white pickling onions were $1.50 for a large basket.

Squash was 15 and 20 cents a head and pumpkins 10 cents apiece for small samples.

Sulphur Beans.

Yellow or sulphur beans were 15 cents a measure, and wild grapes 60 cents a basket. Green pears were 85 cents for a large basket.

Honey with the stamp of the "Beekist" brand, the circular oval enclosing a beehive that advertises the brand as having passed inspection by the Ontario Honey Producers' Co-operative Association was 85 cents and $1.60, in five and ten-pound pails. Several others dealers were selling at the same prices. Comb honey was 25 cents.

A spotless white rowboat, "The Iceland of Peterborough," was the object of much careful examination on the open market. It was mounted on a specially constructed cart with rubber-tired wheels.

Not Human.

At the curb, a thin horse, neck stretched to a tight check-rein, stood through long hours of waiting for its vehicle to be emptied, and a patient Jersey, tied to the tail of a cart, withstood the unwelcome advances of flies and small boys, evidently remembering what its owner had forgotten, that last night's milking-time was a long way off.

Entries Coming in for Exhibition Races

Entries for the races at the Exhibition next Wednesday are coming in nicely and it looks like a fine entry for every event on the programme. Most of the schools are figuring on a relay team to represent them and this should be a big event The entries close at the Y.M.C.A. on Monday evening and the Boys and Girls who have not entered are urged to enter by that time ar no entries will be received after the list closes. There is no entry fee and a splendid list of prizes are being offered. These can be seen at R. Denne's store on George street.

CAVELL'S NEPHEW.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—A nephew of Nurse Edith Cavell, killed in the late war, asked that when he died he be buried in the Atlantic Ocean. He is James Longworth Wainwright, killed by a fall. His body, wrapped in the Union Jack, was dropped in the ocean off Cornwall.

GOOD DRIVERS BECOME EXPERT THROUGH PRACTICE

The good motorists is always looking for new methods that he can apply to his own driving. He learns how to drive with safety over strange roads, how best to make both right and left turns in the country, as well as in the city, how to approach the tops of hills, how to negotiate sand and mud, how safely to pass vehicles going in the same direction and how to meet those approaching him. These are but a few of the things which a driver can do in the common way or the expert way. If he does them in the expert way he is an efficient driver. Not only is he getting the most out of his car, but he is being the easiest on his car. And at the same time he is driving safely and not endangering his life and the lives of his passengers, as well as the lives of other motorists and pedestrians.

CANADA FIRST TO MAKE IRISH POSTAL TREATY

Convention For Exchange of Money Orders Signed By Hon. Chas. Murphy.

EFFECTIVE JAN. 1ST.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7.—(Canadian Press).—To the post master general of Canada has fallen the honor of signing the first postal treaty with the Irish Free State.

After negotiations extending over several months the terms for the direct exchange of money orders, between Canada and the Irish Free State have been agreed upon, and the document has been signed on behalf of Canada by Hon. Charles Murphy, post master general. This new postal treaty will come into effect on January 1, 1924.

Although the Free State has had its own postal administration since April 1, 1922, following the date when the Irish treaty became effective, money order business between Canada and Ireland is still being carried on through the British post office. Orders drawn in Canada, payable in Ireland, were included in British lists, and settlement has been made through the British post office for the payment of orders in Ireland without extra charge for commission. On the other hand, orders issued in Ireland payable in Canada, have been treated as British orders in the settlement of money order accounts between Canada and the United Kingdom.

Method Unchanged

After the end of the present year the Canadian and Irish postal administrations will settle money order balances between themselves through accounts which will be prepared quarterly; and the conditions under which money order business is to be carried on will be practically the same as those under which money orders are now exchanged between Canada and the other important self governing dominions such as Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. There will be no change in the method of obtaining money orders that will affect the public in Canada, and the rates of commission will remain unchanged.

To Prevent Loss

It is stipulated in the convention that should it appear at any time that money orders are used by mercantile men or others in the Irish Free State or in Canada, for the transmission of large sums of money the Free State post office or the Canadian post office, as the case may be, shall have power to suspend, wholly or in part the issue of money orders. This provision is made to prevent remitters taking advantage of sudden changes in rates of exchange which might result in considerable loss to either administration before the money order rates could be adjusted to meet heavy fluctuations.

ECONOMIC BOYCOTT BE IMPOSED ON ITALY

Famous Article 16 of the League of Nations Covenant May Be Invoked.

MUSSOLINI'S VIEWS.

GENEVA, September 7. — The Council of the League of Nations decided to hold no meeting to-day. It was also agreed that the scheduled session of the assembly should be postponed, the controlling reason being a desire to avoid dangerous discussions at a plenary meeting of the delegates until the council has seen some light as to its duty in the Greco-Italian negotiations, and is able to make some report to the assembly.

GENEVA, September 7.—Many of the delegates present at the fourth assembly at the League of Nations remark that the climax to the Greco-Italion negotiations will come when the council decided or declines to apply to Italy the famous article sixteen of the League covenant, because as a member states she has defied the competency of the international forum to regulate her dispute with Greece.

The impression continues to grow that the council must act in some way, and the question is being asked whether the executive body will dare apply article sixteen, which would mean the cutting off of the financial relations of the member states with Italy and a veritable economic boycott of the Italian nation. The delegates are also speculating as to whether members of the League would obey such an injunction, if imposed.

Mussolini's Statement.

PARIS, Sept. 7. — "The ambassadors' conference can reach one of three conclusions," said Premier Mussolini in his discussion with Le Matin's foreign editor of the negotiations for a settlement of the Greco-Italian impasse.

First, the premier asserted, "It may decide that the culprits were Albanians and not Greeks. That is a pure hypothesis and very unlikely, since General Tellini is generally considered to have favored the Albanians, but I mention it to exclude no possibility however absurd. In that case certain parts of my ultimatum can be modified and Greece held responsible in a lesser degree, which the conference can exactly estimate.

"The second conclusion is that the Greeks did commit the murders. If such is the decision, there can be no doubt but that the conference would be entirely in agreement with my demands."

"The third possible conclusion is that not only Greeks but Greek officials were responsible."

In that event the premier said he supposed his demands "would be increased and completed by supplementary penalties.

"That is why," he continued, "Italy thinks the whole investigation can only be made by the great powers, conscious of their duties and acting in the full light of day, and not in interminable inconclusive discussions."

Won't Compromise.

ROME, Sept. 7. — "Nothing could make us recede or accept a compromise on this question, where our national prestige and honor is involved," Premier Mussolini, of Italy, declared in an interview to-day.

"The wrong against Italy, the crime against the Italian officers, must not be submitted to the Geneva Assembly."

ANGLO-SAXON RACE SHOULD CO-OPERATE

PERTH, Austria, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press). —Speaking here on the eve of his departure for imperial conference in London, Premier Bruce said that Anglo-Saxon and English speaking nations ought to co-operate in establishing of the League of Nations on firm business as world alliance to preserve peace. The Premier added that there should be an alliance between the United States Britain and Japan to insure peace in Pacific forever.

Mark is Nearing Vanishing Point

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.— German marks continued their rapid course toward the vanishing point in to-day's foreign exchange market, being quoted at 1 3-4 cents a million, or 57,150,000 marks to the U.S. dollar. Before the war when marks were worth 28.3 cents each, the marks that could be purchased for $1 to-day would have cost $13,601,700.

The German Reichsbank's statement, now 14 days late, showed a weekly increase in circulation of 157,503,858,807,000 marks on August 23, or more than double the outstanding note circulation just one week before.

REPUDIATED ACTION CHIEF EXECUTIVES

Secretary-Treasurer Union of Canadian Municipalities Resigns Office.

MONTREAL, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—A. D. Shibley, Secretary-Treasurer of the Union of Canadian Municipalities, has resigned that office. The following statement has been issued here last night by Mr. Shibley in an interview with the Canadian Press:

"The reason of my action was the repudiation by the convention of an agreement entered into by the President and myself in respect of the official paper of the union. This agreement was expressly authorized by last year's Winnipeg convention. The resolution repudiating it was put through in the closing hours of the recent Shawinigan meeting by a group of only nine delegates. I strongly opposed this group all through the convention and nobody was more surprised than myself when I was unanimously re-elected as Secretary-Treasurer. I neither sought nor desired the honor under the circumstances I have mentioned. Hence my resignation."

CHILDREN'S MATCHES CAUSED STABLE FIRE

LINDSAY, Sept. 8.—Thursday afternoon a stable, the property of Mrs. Joseph Henderson, of Bobcaygeon, was totally destroyed by fire. There was great danger of the fire spreading to other buildings, but the fire engine did good work in confining the flames to the burned building. Children playing with matches were responsible for the fire.

AMERICAN BOOKS SLIGHT CANADA

Used in Education Work and Are Misleading.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.— At the initial meeting for the season of the executive of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association here to-day considerable objection was raised by a member, J. J. Harpell, to the use of American text books in connection with Canadian education work, though not employed in the regular curriculum of schools and universities. They were, he claimed, being used to a considerable extent in certain parts of Canada, Mr. Harpell declared that these books were very misleading. They contained statements that the principal mineral production of the North American continent was chiefly centred in the United States, ignoring the great silver, gold and cobalt developments in Northern Ontario and Quebec, the former and latter being the greatest in the world. They said nothing of asbestos of which the Quebec mines produce about three-quarters of the world's supply.

They had little reference to the immense production of wheat in the Canadian prairie provinces.

It was decided that the matter should be further considered during the coming season by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association executive.

DROP IN GASOLINE.

No Point of Dispute Between the Operators and Men in Any Way Likely to Justify Continuation of Conflict.

GOVERNOR PRAISED.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 8. — (Canadain Press.)—Governor Pinchot's labors to bring about peace in the anthracite miners' strike were rewarded last night, when officials of the Miners' Union accepted his peace proposals.

The strike of 158,000 workers, which began Sept. 1, is virtually at an end. Work will be resumed, it is expected, in about ten days.

The miners dropped their demand for the check-off and more than 10 per cent. increase for day laborers. As soon as the contarct is ready it will be presented for formal ratification to a tri-district convention of union delegates at Scranton or Wilks-Barre. Ratification is expected. The formal order calling off the strike will ten be issued.

No Other Issues.

"There is no point of dispute remaining between the two sides which is in any way likely to justify continuation of the strike," said Governor Pinchot, in making formal announcement that the miners had followed the operators in accepting his peace plan.

John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, said that Governor Pinchot was entitled to the praise of American people "for the present happy termination of an unfortunate situation."

Mr. Lewis and his associates notified the Governor of their decision this afternoon.

Say Price of Beer Is Too High in Manitoba.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Frank W. Russell, President of the Manitoba Moderation League, secured permit No. 1 under the Manitoba Government Liquor Control Act and is legally entitled to purchase liquor under its provisions. Beer only is on sale as yet and complaints are being made to the commission that the price of $4 for two dozen pints announced by local breweries is too high.

A. McHattie, who was formerly in charge of the Government liquor dispensary under the Temperance Act, has been appointed chief advisor to the commission.

PROGRESSIVES WILL MEET IN NOVEMBER

Convention to Function on Bcsis of Mr. Drury's Broadening Out Policy.

TORONTO, Sept. 8.— (Canadian Press.)—In November a convention of "Progressives" is to be held in Toronto. It will function on the basis of ex-Premier Drury's "broadening out" policy and will have farmers and townsmen as delegates. It will decide upon the advisability of function new party in Ontario.

A committee of twelve, six elected U.F.O. members and six members of the U. F. O. met at the Parliament Buildings yesterday afternoon and decided to call the convention. Hon Manning Doherty acted as chairman at the meeting, which was attended by ex-Attorney General Raney and other delegates chosen by the respective sides.

When the convention meets, probably in November, it was said Mr. Drury will make known his decision as to accepting leadership.

Ship Drinking Water For "Papyrus" For His Race at Belmont Park.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Ben Irish's Derby winner, Papyrus, will take his own drinking water to the United States with him on his forthcoming trip to meet the best three-year-old in the United States, in a match race at Belmont Park.

This decision was reached after analysis of a sample of water brought from Belmont Park. The veterinary surgeons decided that, while it was of exceptional purity, it was sufficiently different from the water at Newmarket to make it advisable to provide Papyrus with a suitable supply of the latter. Consequently, several tanks of his usual beverage will be shipped with the thoroughbred.

PROFT FROM SURPLUS SUPPLIES OF CANTEEN

LONDON, Sept. 8. — (Canadian Press.)— In spite of alleged graft and proven theft, the British have made a profit of almost $45,000,000 on the sale of their surplus canteen supplies left by the army and navy after the war.

The profits go to the relief of disabled veterans.

FORTY BRITISH AMONG HUNDRED FOREIGNERS IN JAPAN'S DEATH ROLL

Number of Native Victims Still Unknown—Nations of the World Preparing Relief.

DISCIPLINE EXERTED.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press Cable).—With communication between the devastated earthquake districts of Tokio and the southern Japanese ports of Kobe and Osaka partially restored by airplanes and road transport along the Takaido route, and with the pick of Japan's well-trained army divisions, which have been converging on the ruined capital since Sunday, exerting discipline to restore order among the hundreds of thousands of homeless, news from Japan begins to give some definite idea of the loss of foreign life. There are approximately 100 dead or reported missing, forty of whom are British, but the Japanese Government representatives here are still uninformed as to the number of Japanese who perished through the earthquake, fire and deluge.

The Foreign Office tonight issued its first official list of the British killed and injured, the names having been cabled by the British Consul at Kobe. The list comprises thirty British subjects who are reported on good authority to have lost their lives; most of them were killed in Yokohama, which reports continue to indicate suffered more than Tokio.

List Incomplete.

The Kobe Consul explained that the list of casualties was incomplete. Besides the dead, it contains the names of a score of British missing, and also the names of four members of the British Embassy and consular staff whose whereabouts is unknown.

It seems fairly certain that the loss of life among Canadian and United States residents in Tokio and Yokohama was small, but no reports have been received concerning the fate of tourists. From 500 to 1,000 globe-trotters from America are usually to be found in Yokohama hotels any day during the summer months, waiting for homeward bound boats, or to start on tours through Japan. On Saturday afternoon the Yokohama shops remain open to accomodate curio buyers, and the hotels, clubs and the wide Bund fronting on the harbor would be crowded with visitors, who, not familiar with the narrow streets and not knowing the location of the few parks and open spaces in the city, had little chance to escape, unless after the quake they sought refuge on ships in the harbor before the fires and explosions started.

World-Wide Relief.

The world-wide nature of the unprecendented relief efforts attracts attention. Nations, from Soviet Russia to South Africa, are contributing geneously. In Japan rigid orders have been promulgated against profiteering and other exercises likely to follow such a catastrophe. The Premier has issued a public appeal to the population to exert its characteristic self-control, insisting that peaceful Koreans must be protected.

In Tokio General Fukuda has announced that even the extreme Socialists, who had been harried by the police authorities in recent year, deserve protection and assistance as fellow-countrymen. It is believed here that the reports of Korean disturbances in Tokio have been exaggerated in the accounts of armed risings are considered fantastic, for the only sort of revolt the Koreans ever started, even in their own country, have been half-hearted, non-cooperation demonstrations in Seoul.

NAGASAKI Sept 7—It is reported here that the Prince Regent is contemplating the postponement of his marriage, which was to have been celebrated in November.

JOHNSTON PAUDASH IS INTERESTED IN CLAIMS OF DISPUTED LANDS

LINDSAY, Sept. 8.—Johnston Paudash, formerly of Hiawatha, and now one of His Majesty's mail carriers in Lindsay, is greatly interested in the Federal Government's proposed inquiry into the claims of certain tribes of Indians to the wild lands in Haliburton and other adjacent counties. The Mississauga tribe, of which the Indians at Chemong, Rice and Scugog lakes are members have been interested in this claim for a great many years, and will share in portions of this land when it is apportioned. The area is placed in the Order-in-Council at 10,719 square miles.

ROGERS URGES CONVENTION OF CONSERVATIVES

Says Party of McDonald and Cartier Needed to Save Canada From Taxation.

RAPS 1917 UNION.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7. — Hon. Robert Rogers in an interview this afternoon advanced the suggestion that the Conservative party through out the Dominion should call a convention and "there and then decide how best to answer their country's call." To save Canada from the burden of taxation.

"My view that a national Conservative convention should be held as quickly as possible," said Mr. Rogers, "is already well-known." Never in the history of Canada was there such a clear call for Conservatives to rally to the service of their country as there is today. The Conservative convention that will bring together the combined wisdom of representatives properly selected from its own duly organized ranks in all the provinces of Canada. Conservatives can then and there decide the one big question of how best to answer their country's call in a way

WHY EVERYBODY IS GOING.

There are many reasons why the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition next week should be patronized by every resident of this district.

Because it is a community enterprise.

Because it advertises not only the city of Peterborough, but the farmers of the surrounding country.

Because the spirit of competition aroused by it makes for better farming, better stock, more modern methods.

Because of its educational value.

Because it is a connecting link between city and country—bringing the two into closer relationship and establishing a better understanding of each other.

Because of its recreational features. "All work and no play, etc."

Because civic pride compels one to support a community undertaking of this kind.

Because it is your Fair—you can have a hand in its success, or by your indifference help to make it a failure.

ONTARIO'S ROADS.

The announcement from the Provincial Minister of Highways that the expenditure on road-building in this Province next year will be curtailed should not cause much surprise inasmuch as one of the chief criticisms of the late Government during the campaign was the excessive cost of its road-making.

The present administration must at least endeavour to make a better showing than its predecessors—hence Hon. Mr. Henry's statement.

There seems no doubt that in several respects the methods authorized during the Biggs regime were unnecessarily costly.

It is said that the highways were built according to a theory that a permanent top could be added whenever thought necessary.

Now the opinion is advanced by some authorities that to provide a permanent surface on the present roadbeds would not be feasible.

If that be true the whole system would seem to be wrong inasmuch as it seems only a question of time until all the most heavily travelled highways will have to be paved. Only permanent surfaces will stand up to the traffic.

The Province will expect from Hon. Mr. Henry, in view of the pre-election criticisms offered by himself and his colleagues, a rigid control over highway expenditures and a more satisfactory and less expensive system of road-building.

BLUE SKY LEGISLATION.

The blue sky law passed at the last session of the Legislature and designed to protect the people of Ontario from fraudulent stock selling schemes, is not to be put into force by the Ferguson Government.

The present Premier and his associates in the House last session opposed this measure, and the decision not to enforce the regulations should not be unexpected.

Mr. Ferguson promises something more effective when the Legislature meets again.

In the meanwhile, however, this Province will remain the happy hunting grounds for the high-pressure salesmen with the dubious proposition, representatives who are barred by blue sky legislation from most of the States of the Union, and who find in Ontario a profitable field for the activities that are frowned upon by the authorities elsewhere.

Nothing, it is said, will keep a fool and his money from parting.

At the same time, however, there is much that could be done to prevent people with little knowledge of business from investing their hard-earned savings in schemes that from the outset have not a chance to succeed.

The act passed by the Legislature earlier in the year may not have been perfect, but at least it was a step towards affording some measure of protection.

Ontario's defences are now down, however, and will remain so until the "better" legislation promised by Hon. Mr. Ferguson materailizes.

ITALY AND THE WORLD.

When an Austrian archduke was assassinated in Serbia, Austria sought to inflict punishment so humiliating, unjust, and tyrannical that it provoked the war of all time and brought the Austrian Empire to dust. Premier Mussolini and his Fascisti followers are taking the path which Austria took in 1914, says the Ottawa Journal. Without investigation or pause, they are taking the assassination of Italian citizens in Albania as an excuse to make war upon Greece, thus threatening the world with another conflagration perhaps more terrible than the last. They are playing the part of the strutting, booted bully that Germany and Austria played eight years ago—at a terrible cost.

The Powers have no reason to be indulgent to Italy. She entered the war—for a price—in 1915; she had to be saved from Austria, aided by Italian incompetence and treachery, in 1917; and at Versailles she exhibited little but greedy ambition to turn the Adriatic into an Italian lake. Nor has her conduct been much better since the peace. She has intrigued against and quarrelled with the Jugo-Slavs; she encouraged her fanatic poet, D'Annunzio, in his mad seizure of Fiume; she has defied the League of Nations; she has worked to stir greed here and jealousy there to promote her own ambitions.

The world cannot tolerate another unjust war, no matter whence it comes. But least of all can it tolerate it from Italy, whose own hands are not much cleaner than the Greeks, and who is plainly taking advantage of a crippled nation to advance her own designs.

Italy should have it made plain to her that there is still enough love of justice in the world, and still enough strength to enforce it, to mete out to any swaggering bully the chastisement that was visited upon the Austro-Germans after 1914.

ALBERTA COAL.

The most significant development of the coal situation as far as Ontario is concerned is, the Examiner believes, the advertising of Alberta coal in car-load lots at $11 net f.o.b. Ontario points.

This is not, it should be understood, the trial shipment arranged for by the Alberta Government, but is coal upon which the $9 freight rate has been paid.

The fact that it is being laid down at Ontario points as a price only $2 more per ton than the freight charges shows that the operators have cut down to the bone in order to reach a price that would be attractive to the consumer.

The main object is, of course, to obtain a market for their product, even if there is no immediate profit.

According to all tests made in this Province, Alberta coal stands comparison with anthracite in almost every particular.

That being so and the price having been scaled down as low as possible, the situation offers a good test of the people of Ontario.

For years they have lamented the fact that this part of Canada has been dependent upon the United States for its coal supply.

Now when there are signs that at last that dependency can be wiped out, what will Ontario do?

Buy Alberta coal, or continue to strive for the American article?

Much depends upon the answer.

AVIATION IN PEACE AND WAR.

The Hon. Arthur Ponsonby, a member of the British House of Commons, a pacifist and a man of extreme views, has been telling the world of the new horrors of the next war, when "terror-stricken people will dive under the ground wherever they can and where they cannot they will be asphyxiated or blown to atoms." The new element of armament which is to make the radical change in warfare is the air service.

The picture which Mr. Ponsonby draws is horrifying and if it is intended to serve as propaganda to convert others to his pacifist views, it may perhaps be effective to a limited extent. If it is intended to check the war talk of violent and unbalanced scaremongers, it may serve a useful purpose. Yet the painting of the horrors of war, whether done with the skillful pen of a Wells or the lurid realism of a Ponsonby, will never prevent a single company from marching into action when the bugles blow, will never hold back the artillery when national and racial passions are aroused.

Perhaps the most disquieting event since the signing of the Armistice has been the recrudescence of the old, old armament competition in air force. Yet it must not be forgotten that flying is not exclusively and not even primarily a method of war. The development of aviation is essential to any people that would not be left behind in the advance of civilization. If in methods of warfare the air service is to take first place it is also destined to assume a more and more important place in the arts of peace. Men who are in close touch with the recent developments of aviation predict with confidence that it cannot be many years before machines of four and five thousand horsepower cross the Atlantic without fear of mishap. There is an aerodrome at Pekin; Siam and the Argentine use air machines regularly in their postal services.

A regular air service is soon to be established between London and Moscow, bringing the Russian capital within thirty-four hours of the British metropolis. The densest road traffic in the world at the "Derby" this year was again controlled from the air, while the use of airships in the patrolling of our own forests and in lessening fire loss has already proved its unquestionable value and is being rapidly increased.

Must the world stop building airships because of the havoc and damage they can do in times of war? From Moscow to Washington, from Pekin to Buenos Aires, the feeling persists that the nation that is best equipped, the country that can dominate by force, is the nation that is going to survive as a great nation. Hatred still persists in the human heart and its objective may be changed in a twinkling from one object to another and in the case of nations against one people one day and another the next morning.

It is high time that the peoples of the world sat down together again as they did at Washington to reach some agreement with regard to the limitation of military aviation. No nation should be asked to take steps to check the development of civil aviation, but an agreement could be reached on broad lines to prevent the massing of military machines, the recruiting of unnumbered air squadrons and the establishing of an air service in any nation in peace time on a basis that must cause apprehension and menace to its neighbors. Nevertheless, the dictum laid down at Washington still holds good "to limit the science of aeronautics in its present stage is to shut the door on progress."

Washington failed in its attempts to reach an agreement with regard to reduction of air armaments, but this need not close the door to further effort. A conference to decide how best this can be brought about without checking the progress of civil aviation would be of far greater value than the shriekings of pacifists about the horrors of war.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Even the League of Nations seems to be playing that world famous game, "Passing the Buck."

The town of Oshawa wants a charter as a city—and having the necessary population there is no reason why the Motor Town should not get what it wants.

Italy and Greece might find a more useful field for their activities in going to the rescue of stricken Japan.

The Hamilton city accountant has shown that road oiling is costing the Ambitious City less and less as more streets are paved—another strong argument in favour of permanent roadways.

With the closing of the Exhibition tonight many a Toronto family will be able for the first time in two weeks to call its home its own.

Keep next week open for the Peterborough Exhibition, which promises to attract record crowds from outside points. The reputation of the Peterborough Industrial is steadily being enhanced.

Fortunately for the ratepayers, when the City Council decided to inspect a new method of paving they chose Bobcaygeon. What if they had selected Vancouver as the goal for a junketing expedition?

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(Associated Press)—Canadian fishermen had better "luck" in 1922 than in 1921. The various concerns fishing the sea and inland water of the Dominion produced $42,000,000 worth of fish last year, as against $35,000,000 the year before. The salmon catch alone was sold for $13,500,000.

I had doctored for years without getting permanent relief, when I started to take your medicines." — Mrs. Goldwin Misener, Branchton, Ont.

TORONTO CATTLE MARKET

TORONTO September 8. — Heavy receipts of western cattle this week have acted as somewhat of a drag on the market. The quality of a large bulk of the western stuff has been the subject of a good deal of adverse comment among the dealers, who say that the western shippers are making a sort of dumping ground of the eastern market for their very commonest stuff.

Many of these cattle are of little use to the butcher for killing purposes, and the stockers and buyers want something of finer breed quality.

Among the native cattle offerings, the handy weight butcher class has been notably scarce. The local wholesale butchers have found it very hard to fill their requirements and along with the bigger packing houses have had to have resource to the heavy weight export class.

Among these were a few loads of very fine quality well finished cattle, weighing from 1400 to 1500 lbs., and fetching good prices, one load selling up to $8.75 and several more loads at $8.50. The general run of good to choice butcher cattle sold at practically steady prices all through the week, around $6.75 to $7.00, a few lots at $7.20. Fair, medium quality $6 to $6.25, and common anywhere from $4 to $5.

A quiet export demand early in the week brought from $7.35 to $7.85 for fair quality export cattle. The export trade so far has not come quite up to expectations, although a brisker trade is looked for later in the fall. Complaint is still made that the excessively high ocean freight rates are responsible for the cutting down of the export business. Prices have been right at this market, and in the Old Country, and only the high freight rates are now standing in the way of a big export demand.

Hogs weakened the latter part of the week to 50c lower, at $10.35 fed and watered and $9.75 f.o.b.

Receipts.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept 7—Wheat scored a material advance in price to-day largely as a result of lower estimates of the 1923 Canadian yield. Closing quotations were unsettled, 7-8 to 1 3-8c net higher, September $1.03 and December $1.06 3-4 to $1.06 7-8. Corn finished 3-8 to 3-4c up, oats at 1-4 to 1-2c gain, and provisions showing a rise varying from two to twenty cents.

With the President of the Canadian Pacific Railway reported as saying 350,000,000 bushels was his estimate of this season's wheat crop in Canada, whereas other authorities had yesterday put the total at 400,000,000 bushels the wheat market here displayed from the outset a decided upward tendency. Buying was also stimulated by the fact that the Winnipeg market showed a stronger tone. Inasmuch as the chief inspiration of late has been coming from that point, the change of front was quickly noted here. Besides, the crop somewhat in all sections was lighter than last year, especially in the northwest.

Considerable attention was given to reports indicating doubt as to any heavy movement of domestic Spring wheat, as small yields in many instances had apparently led to a decided disposition to hold wheat back in various sections. Under such circumstances, declines from the day's top figures were only moderate, and shippers appeared less anxious to press wheat for sale. It was said exporters who bid for wheat on the same basis as a few days ago failed to obtain offers.

Cool weather delaying the maturity of the corn crop had a bullish effect on corn and oats. May delivery of corn reached the highest price yet this season.

Better export business helped to lift the provision market.

STORAGE EGG MARKET SHAKEY.

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—The general situation with regard to fresh eggs remains very firm and unchanged. There appears, however, to be a good deal of uneasiness in connection with storage eggs, chiefly due to the unsatisfactory condition of the storage market in the United States. A break on that market on storage eggs is feared by a good many in the trade, and if such should take place it would mean that United States storage eggs would be laid down in this country at low prices.

that will and must save Canada from that overhangng danger of taxation so burdensome that it threatens the very existence of seventy-five per cent. of the homes in our country.

The Conservatve party have never failed Canada in any national crisis. They will not fail now in fearless program of retrenchment and reform that will save our dominion from ruin, save as well our country from its present reign of an utter contempt for liability, and rebuild i greater, stronger, more prosperou and happy than ever before. Canadians must never lose sight of what the fact is, that the Conservative party has never been the guiding star in Canada of every great undertaking that has contributed to the sound development of our country. It is not correct to say that it was the Conservative party which was defeated at the polls in 1921. The part that went to the polls in 1921, with its long name and ponderous platform was not the Conservative party. The Conservative party was disorganized through an act of errant treachery in 1917 when Conservative doors were unbolted to let in the enemy. Over the period which followed, let us draw a kindly veil.

The Conservative party stand today where they ever stood—true to that traditional record for stability in government, as inaugurated by MacDonald and Cartier, as preserved and maintained by the organized force of the Conservative party for the past generation and more. We can only hope for stability in government when we practic common sense. The Canadian people are weary to-day of jingo and buncombe. The achievements of our party in the past through stability and common sense action will no doubt, not only shape the course of our national convention but will assist in framing its policies for the future.

Indians Gave Evidence in Their Own Tongue.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Sept. 7. — Tom MacKenzie, Bear Island Indian, who escaped with John Bradey, convicted thief, from Cobalt jail, appeared before Magistrate McGaughery in North Bay on a charge of attempted arson and was committed for trial. It is understood that the chief evidence on which the crown will support its case is the fact that coal oil is alleged to have been found on McKenzie's running shoes the morning after the fire had been discovered among some oil soaked material beside the house of another Indian, Charlie Moore. The appearance of almost a dozen Indians who addressed the court in the language of their tribe, was novel even in a town so far north as North Bay.

There is a very large amount of motor traffic through Cobourg at the present time, the destination of many being the Toronto exhibition. It may safely be inferred that rural Ontario is contributing a fair percentage to the large crowds that daily attend the Canadian National and it looks as if the automobile was getting ahead of the railways as a means of transportation to and from.

A FINE COMPLEXION

CAN BE HAD THROUGH KEEPING THE BLOOD RICH AND PURE.

A girl's complexion is something more than a matter of concern to her vanity. It is an indication of the state of her health. Pallor in a growing girl means a thinning of the blood. Eruptions means impurities in the blood. Mothers should be watchful of their daughters' complexions and see to it that these signs are corrected—not covered up.

When a girl in her teens becomes pale and sallow, especially if, at the same time, she shows an inclination to tire easily, a listlessness and inattention to her work or studies, she needs Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a tonic which directly and specifically corrects the condition from which she is suffering. A chemical analysis of the blood of such a girl would show it to be deficient in just the elements that Dr. Williams Pink Pills can supply, but the physical signs are plain. The girl with a bad complexion, or who suffers from occasional headaches, who is easily tired and breathless after slight exertion, should begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once. A good appetite, sparkling eyes and rosy cheeks follow the fair use of this medicine.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

LIVED 90 YEARS CAVAN TOWNSHIP

Late David Sharpe, One of Pioneer Settlers—Family Came From Ireland.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 8. — The passing of the late Mr. David Sharpe, after a lingering illness at the advanced age of ninety years, removes one of the pioneer settlers of Cavan Township. Mr. Sharpe's parents came to this country from County Cavan, Ireland, in 1818, the voyage by sailing vessel occupying six weeks, during which sea sickness was the portion of most of the passengers, possibly as a result of the severe storms encountered.

The family settled first in Hope Township, near Welcome, but removed to Cavan in 1821, locating on the 11th concession, then but a deep forest. Here the land was cleared by degrees and cultivated, the hard and constant labor demanding persistence and courage of a high order, the fruits of which are being reaped by the descendants today. The late Mr. Sharpe was the youngest of a family of eleven children, six sons and five daughters. Four were born in Ireland, and while still quite young accompanied their parents to Canada, Mary, the eldest, being only seven years old, Betty born in 1913, Henry two years later, while George, the baby, contracted a fatal illness during the voyage and was buried at sea. The children born in Canada were: James, the year after their arrival in the new land, Joseph in 1821, Thomas in 1823, Jane in 1826, Eleanor in 1828, Sarah Ann in 1830 and David, who was the last surviving member of the original family, was born in 1832, and died Thursday, August 30, 1923. Deceased was baptized on September 22, 1833, presumably by Rev. Samuel Armour, but no record of the actual date of his birth had been kept, hence some uncertainty always existed regarding his exact age.

Long Life Here.

The late Mr. Sharpe was born and lived all his life on the homestead where his parents first settled on coming to Cavan, and which is now occupied by his youngest son, Mr. Bruce Sharpe, the other members of his family being Mr. Walter Sharpe and Mrs. R. S. Staples, both of Cavan, and one daughter, Edna, who predeceased her parents. During a life but a few years short of the century mark, deceased must have witnessed many extraordinary changes in the township, since memory would carry him back to the first log home in the clearing, when wolves, bears and Indians might be encountered in the forest, and when blazed trails, corduroy roads or soft dirt paths were the means of finding one's way to the nearest neighbor or settlement. From this store of recollections of bygone days Mr. Sharpe delighted to recall many interesting happenings, some of which were connected with the doings of the famous "Cavan Blazers," and all of which were most entertaining in character and in the manner of their telling.

Unspoiled By Age.

The present commodious and comfortable family residence was built when the late Mr. Sharpe was in his tenth year, and still stands unspoiled by age and is in so good a state of preservation it becomes difficult to realize that it was erected eighty years ago. The third generation of the descendants of the pioneers, Mr. and Mrs. David Sharpe (the latter's maiden name was Elizabeth Bradburn), is now on the homestead, the crown deed to the land being naturally a valued possession. In 1866 Mr. Sharpe was married to Maria M. Neville, a daughter of a U. E. Loyalist family which had settled near Napanee upon coming to Canada. Seven years ago his wife predeceased him.

A life-long and faithful member of the Methodist Church, always taking a deep personal interest in its welfare, Mr. Sharpe was for nine years superintendent of the Sunday School at Ebenezer, with which church and its various organizations he was intimately connected.

A Serious Fall.

Deceased's last illness, which practically began last January and was accentuated by an accidental but serious fall in May, was from no specific cause other than a general breaking-up of what had been naturally a splendid constitution. The funeral took place from the residence of his son, Mr. Bruce Sharpe, on Saturday, September 1, to St. John's Cemetery, North Cavan, the services being conducted by a former pastor Rev. J. E. Beckel, who until his removal last June to Castleton from the Bethany appointment, visited deceased regularly during his long illness. The pall-bearers were of Mr. Sharpe's personal choice and included Messrs. J. Walsh, nephew, J. Heaslip, R. Fair of Peterborough, W. Lough, C. W. Neville, brother-in-law, and Ephraim Whyte. By special request, Mrs. Archie Kennedy sang at the funeral service at the homestead, "Heaven Is My Home," a song which was held in particular favor by the deceased. The large number of friends who accompanied the funeral cortege to the cemetery was a mute testimony of the esteem and affection in which Mr. Sharpe was held.

MEMORIAL TO SOLDIERS IN CAMPBELLFORD MAY BE MUNICIPAL BUILDING

Some Citizens, However, Have Objected to Public Utility as a Memorial — Continue Weekly Half-Holiday.

CRICKET CHALLENGE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 8. — The suggestion has been made here that the memorial which it is proposed to erect in honor of the soldiers who lost their lives in the Great War, take the form of a municipal building containing a large hall in which public meetings, dances and other social functions could be held, a community hall such as has been erected in other places, with the same end in view. In the past the favorite meeting place has been at Cole's Opera House, recently purchased by Capt. Hyland of Belleville, and it is likely that the place will still be available for the purpose even though Capt. Hyland has announced that he intends to give an every night presentation of moving pictures or plays.

It is understood, however, that when the new High school is completed that part of the building will be converted into an assembly hall, as only a part of the structure will be required for public school purposes, sufficient to accommodate the two primary departments that are at present housed in a building that was formerly a private residence and which has long been regarded as unsuitable.

Campbellford has always recognized the necessity for a municipal building, but the question of expense tended to defer action on the part of the Council. Such a community hall as its promoters have in mind would, however, be paid for almost, if not entirely, by private donations.

There are some people who contend that a soldiers' memorial should be that exclusively and not involved in any public utility that would benefit the public.

The movement to erect a monument was started by the members of the I.O.D.E, and the proposition, as it stands now, is to put up a shaft on the site of the new post office, the necessary permission having been secured by the government some time ago. The meeting of this society suspended during the summer months, will be resumed next week, when it is likely the matter of a memorial will be revived.

Two Days For Fair.

T. J. Horkins, one of the most enthusiastic directors of the Fair, is in favour of having the gates open for the admission of the public for two days instead of one as in the past. The case of Warkworth is cited as an example of successful enterprise where they have a three-day Fair and never have any reason to complain on the score of attendance.

Cricket Challenge Accepted.

A. Nicholls, Jr., secretary of the De Laval Cricket Club of Peterborough, has written the secretary of the Campbellford club to say that he had noticed by the Examiner that the cricketers here were anxious to get on a game with an outside eleven. The De Laval, too, are anxious for a game and offer to come to Campbellford on Saturday of next week. L. A. Humphries, captain of the business men's team, will write Mr. Nicholls accepting the challenge.

One Fisherman's Luck.

Not all fishermen are given to exaggeration after a trip to Crow Bay, Healey Falls or some of the other favorite haunts of anglers on the Trent River. Dr. Stevenson, of Port Huron, who is a guest of Dr. S. L. O'Hara, was taken to Crow Bay by his host for an outing. They trolled that body of water from end to end, up and down and across and their only catch was a pickerel, which Dr. O'Hara admits did not weigh more than three pounds, one and a quarter ounces.

The Half Holiday.

The Friday half holiday, which has been so popular and so generally observed during the summer, will be continued during September and October.

Ready For Winter.

The Sinclair Construction Company, who have the contract for the excavation and tail race for the new million dollar power house that the Hydro is erecting, have solved the final problem in advance and are not worrying over the coming of winter. A large quantity of first class hardwood has been purchased from McCook and McKelvie of Campbellford, to heat their office buildings and the living quarters of their employees. The wood was lightered down the canal to the new village.

As a measure of safety to the public the firm has placed a number of placards on the banks of the canal and within a radius of half a mile in the district, warning people to beware of dynamite blasts. It is expected that when the work is well under way the surrounding country will be fairly well rocked by the force of the explosions.

When Barbara Weeps, She Can't Turn So Easily To Laughter

By JAMES W. DEAN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Thanks to Barbara LaMarr for a better understanding of that tragic transmutation of flesh-to-salt which befell Lot's wife.

Mrs. Lot, you recall, turned into a pillar of salt when her curiosity got the better of her and she turned for a forbidden look at the iniquitous city of Sodom.

Barbara performs the modern parallel to music. She dissolves into a pool of salty tears while a cello and a foot-pedalled organ grind out such bits of sentimental molasses as "Just a-Wearing For You."

This phenomenal change in the human form occurred as I watched George Fitzmaurice film final interiors of "The Eternal City," which Sam Goldwyn is bringing up to date on the screen with Lionel Barrymore, Richard Bennett, Bert Lytell and Montague Glass in leading roles.

* * *

While the scene shifters were making ready Barbara gazed into a very strong studio lamp. (A studio lamp will bring tears to almost anyone's eyes.) The cello and the organ were hard at their doleful tunes.

You see, Barbara was getting herself into an attitude. She was "feeling" the scene that was to be shot. In that scene she is a poor deceived woman who pulls a gun from the folds of her dress and bores a hole through Mr. Barrymore as he comfortably reclines on a bear skin.

Now you must realize that it is a moment of great emotional tension in any woman's life when she is to shoot a man, especially if the man be so characterful as Lionel Barrymore.

* * *

Well, Barbara weeped. The scene shifters shifted. Rehearsals were called. Barbara weeped. Scene was re-rehearsed. Barbara weeped. The scene was shot. Barbara weeped. Barrymore arose from the dead, sat in a chair and waited to be shot again. Barbara still weeped.

* * *

Barrymore laughs at death, from blank cartridges. He poses while the artist sketches his picture.

Bennett enjoys seeing Barrymore shot. Says facetiously he would enjoy seeing Barrymore even half-shot. Fitzmaurice, busy director, welcomes the artist and his sketching pad.

Barbara still weeps.

* * *

Maybe Barbara weeps because the artist hasn't sketched her. No, that's not it. Barbara is in a mood. She isn't seeing anyone today. She isn't talking to the press. Barbara, her ambassador reports, is not crying for the picture, but because the lights hurt her eyes.

Barbara's maid, with unkinked hair, pours Barbara a drink of whiterock. The bottle is empty. Barbara summons an assistant director, then a studio executive. A lackey must be sent for another bottle. Barbara sweeps imperiously from the set, still weeping.

* * *

Mrs. Lot's art in statuary was greater than that of Barbara's in celluloid. Mrs. Lot performed without music and without strong Kliegls.

* * *

Recalling the filming of "Outcast." Elsie Ferguson in emotional scene. Crying. The scene over, she brushes the tear from her eye, walks from the set, sits down to chat, joke and laugh. A stage star for years. Recognized for great talent. She forgets her emotion when the scene is done. Barbara LaMarr, comparatively a novice, throws all she has into an emotional scene. When it is done she hasn't a laugh in her system. Barbara, continuing in that manner, will pay more for her art than her art will pay her. She won't last.

* * *

Lionel Barrymore, sitting for the artist. "Do you get as much enjoyment out of this as you do your stage work?"

"Nah." he answers. "You do this for the money that's in it."

No working up to great emotions on his part. He proceeds to the business of acting as a carpenter does to the business of sawing. And Lionel Barrymore is one of the most effective of all screen players. Where's this "divine spark" that's spoken of in the business of acting?

PLAGUE STORIES

were at Hakone and others were arriving at Kobe.

News Coming Out

Stories of mountains that slide into their valleys of huge waves that swept hundreds of bathers into the seas, the Yokohama hotel that "utterly sank into earth" and of other spectacular incidents witnessed by survivors of great disaster are being given to world as communication in and out of Japan is gradually restored.

Tokio correspondent of Chicago Tribune, reaching Kobe, says, five hundred foreigners were killed in Yokohama earthquake and fire left foreign residential section mass of ruin. Dead bodies were everywhere when flames passed. Hotels of the port city were obliterated.

Thomas D. Cochrane, motion picture man was at Miyanoshita, mountain resort with his family when the quake came. Great slides occurred in mountains he said, and roads were wiped out and houses demolished.

In Tokio order prevails and there is no further rumors of cholera. Loss of life in capital was not as large as at first reported, according to message over re-established Tokio -Kobe line. Probably ten thousand persons lost their lives in uptown section, most of which was spared.

Thousands of refugees, who fled from Tokio, Yokohama by rail and water are pouring into Osaka and problem of caring for them is taxing ingenuity of authorities. Great majority of them are destitute and every effort is being made to provide them with food and shelter. Neighboring cities have organized relief stations and corps and doctors, nurses, and supplies are still being sent to stricken city.

STRANGE FISH.

MILFORD HAVEN, Eng., Sept. 8.—A strange fish measuring 4½ feet around the head and 12 feet long has been caught by a trawler off the north-west coast of Ireland. The mouth is bottle-shaped and toothless, but the body resembles a shark's.

STATE TO ASK WARRANTS FOR COLONY RULER

Life Term Threatens Benjamin Purnell, Head of the House of David in Michigan.

LANSING, Mich., Setp. 8.— The State will probably ask a stronger warrant against Benjamin Purnell, head of the House of David, than the one now outstanding, it became known to-day. The new warrant is expected to be based on new evidence given Judge Harry J. Dingeman by Gladys Bamford Rubel, a former member of the colony on whose testimony the present warrant is based.

The present warrant is for one of the most serious offences in the Michigan criminal calendar, and is perfectly good, officials say, for the purpose of arresting Benjamin and trying him for a crime for which he could be given life imprisonment. Whether the new information charges him with a still more serious crime or whether the State has merely discovered a new set of circumstances which it believes would make a stronger case against Benjamin is not known. Action will not be taken probably for 10 days.

To Probe Information.

"We will need at least that much time to investigate some information that has been given us by Mrs. Rubel," said Judge Dingeman, before whom the grand jury sessions were conducted. "By that time we hope to know a great deal more about this case.

Judge Dingeman denied that he will institute disarmament proceeding aaginst Walter M. Nelson, Detroit attorney, who was formerly attorney for Mrs. Roben and whom she charges aided her in avoiding appearance before the grand jury. Contempt of court proceedings against Mr. Nelson are not before the State Supreme Court.

"There have been statements that I intended starting such proceedings," said Judge Dingeman, "They are not true. I am not trying to persecute Mr. Nelson. Any such proceedings as that will come from some other source than me."

Ben Reported Dead.

It was learned that the Supreme Court in its decision in the contempt proceedings would disbar Mr. Nelson if it thought it justified on the basis of the evidence before it. Any other action would have to start with the Wayne County Bar Association.

Renewed interest in the investigation since the discovery of Mrs. Rubel has reawakened discussion as to the whereabouts of Benjamin and whether he is alive. One report to Andrew B. Dougherty, attorney-general is that he is dead of diabetes, from which he was said to have suffered for months before his disappearance.

Another report has been brought here that a considerable number of colony members left this summer and that others are following them almost daily.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS BABY.

PEKING, Sept. 8.—(Associated Press)—Attracted by the wailing of an infant, a pedestrian recently turned aside into a cemetery outside Hsichimen, one of the principal western gates of Peking, and found a new-born child wrapped in red silk and with a silken cord about its neck.

An envelope attached to the cord contained $300 in cash and a note asking the finder to use the money for the care of the youngster. The finder was further instructed to appear at a certain place, Wofusu, on July 15, three years hence, when, the note said, he would meet with good fortune.

CARE OF HEADLIGHTS.

Because of the vibration of a car minor accidents etc., many times throw the headlight device out of adjustment, the lights should be tested at intervals to see that they conform with the regulations. Headlight lenses sometimes rotate in the frames and inspection should be made frequently to see that such lenses are tight and properly adjusted. The reflectors need to be carefully watched also, and when dented, tarnished or rusted should be put in first-class condition or replaced.

ROYAL GETS BIG ENGLISH PRODUCTION "ROB ROY" DIRECT FROM MASSEY HALL, TORONTO.

"Rob Roy" Will be Presented at Royal During Exhibition.

On September 12the the big English production, "Rob Roy", will open at the Royal Theatre for four days. This film is based on Sir Walter Scott's famous historical novel and is the greatest melodrama ever presented on the screen. It comes to Canada fresh from a phenomenal run in the Old Country, playing eleven months in Glasgow, ten months in Edinburgh and one solid year in London.

The story is the story of Rob Roy MacGregor, one of the greatest personalities ever seen in motion pictures. The feats of physical prowess accomplished by David Stewart, as "Rob Roy", are unprecedent in the film world. This wild, fighting, head of the clan MacGregor is a lover who puts to shame Valentino and other great actors, and transfers the scene of motion picture romance from the Argentine of "The Four Horsemen" to the Highlands of Scotland, as depicted in "Rob Roy."

The story reaches great moments such as have never been seen in any film since "The Birth of a Nation," one of these being when Young Ronald, asked to remove his hat to the Duke of Montrose, replies with his true MacGregor spirt "I never uncover only to ma faither and ma God.. This scene brought down the house every time the picture was run in the Old Country.

One million dollars was spent in producing this big picture and the big scenes include the rising of the Clans, the attack on Castle Stirling, Rob's dive into the River Forth, the burning of the entire MacGregor settlements at Inversnaid, Rob's abduction of the pride of all the Highland lasses, Helen Campbell, on which occasion Rob rode through the village with Helen slung across his saddle and shouted "Rouse the Clan! Rouse the Minister! For I am bringing hame ma bride."

As one English critic said, the film is dipped in the red blood of Scotland and fragrant with the romance of the heather, which tells in once sentence the reason why this picture is claimed to be the greatest masterpiece since "The Birth of a Nation."

Music will be supplied by the Royal orchestra, and a special "Roy Roy" score will be used.

Exhibtion visitors are reminded whatever they do while in Peterboro, they shunna' miss this picture.

AT THE CAPITOL.

REAL MONTE CARLO SEEN IN "ENEMIES OF WOMEN."

"All the artistrp, perfection of detail and lavishness of production which featured the creation of Cosmopolitan Productions' epoch-making photoplay, "When Knighthood Was In Flower," were employed in the makiug of "Enemies of Women" a Cosmopolitan picturization of Vicente Blasco Ibanez's latest and, as many consider, his greatest romance. This marvelous picture, distributed by Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan, will be the offering at the Capitol theatre strating Monday.

No stone was left unturned to make of "Enemies of Women" one of the most beautiful pictures ever made. It was for this reason that Cosmopolitan upset all tradition by sending an entire company to Europe on location, something never before done in the history of pictures. The company spent six weeks in Monte Carlo, Nice and Paris, where the author located his story.

The trip abroad brought the company into direct contact with Ibanez, and his assistance in the direction of many of the scenes taken abroad is considered invaluable. So enthusiastic did Ibanez become over the plans of production, that he arranged to have scenes taken in the Casino at Monte Carlo and on the terrace of the Garden, the first time in seven years that the world famous faming resort has been filmed. Ibanez also obtained permission to take scenes of the Prince of Monaco's palace, and pointed out the most picturesque spots of the Riveria.

As a result of the author's work, "Enemies of Women," as a picture of scenic beauty, surpasses any ever made. The work on the "interiors" of the picture was made on a most lavish scale. Two of the most strikingly handsome sets ever constructed were built by Joseph Urban for the filming of the Prince Lubimoff palace scenes.

In picturizing this famous story as a super special, Cosmopolitan assembled a brilliant cast, directed by Alan Crosland. Featured are Lionel Barrymore, considered by many as America's leading character actor, and Alma Rubens, of "Humoresque" fame. These two famous players are supported by such prominent stars as Pedro de Cordoba, William "Buster" Collier, Jr., Gareth Hughes, Paul Panzer, W. H. Thompson, Gladys Hulette and Mario Majeroni.

AT THE GRAND.

"CINDERELLA."

Some years ago the Peterborough playgoers saw the old nursery tale, "Cinderella," staged as a pantomine by Stuart-Whyte's company. Echo productions are now responsible for a new version of the fantasy, which appeared at the Grand last night. In the present presentation the details of the story, as familar to every child, are closely followed, and only the main characters appear in the action, while there is no chorus, although there is a musical score of considerable merit, for which Stanley T. Vermilyea is responsible. Unusual stage settings are employed and the effect is not always convincing. The star of the cast is Miss Ruth Marr, who as Prince Charming sings most delightfully. Her numbers, especially "Love's Toll" and "Song of My Heart," are the high lights of the performance. The "Cinderella" is Miss Theo MacFarlane, a winsome little actress who does good work in the title role. Edward Loeffler and Al. S. Smith are sufficiently crabby as the two ugly sisters to satisfy anybody, and Miss Will Vernon, as the Baroness, is shrewd enough to make the baron's subjection easy to understand. "Cinderella" will be seen at the Grand again tonight.

WILL OBLITERATE VILLAGE.

DERBYSHIRE, Sept. 8.—(Associated Press)—The picturesque village of Derwent, with its ducal seat dating back to the seventeenth century will be blotted out in the near future and the population numbering several hundred will be obliged to find fresh homes.

The village will be submerged by the construction of a dam in connection with the scheme of development of the Derwent Valley Waterboard. No systematic attempt is to be made to demolish any of the village buildings, the chief of which is a fine stone mansion, Derwent Hall, a seat of the Duke of Norfolk which was built in 1672. A large sum of money will be paid the owners of the property and for the hall alone the authorities have had to pay $100,000.

Baby Cutting Teeth Was Very Sick With Diarrhoea

When the baby starts to cut its teeth, especially during the hot weather, then is the time that the poor mother is under the stress and strain of great anxiety.

There is no remedy so safe and effectual, for the teething complaints of infants, as is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, no remedy that has had the endorsation of so many Canadian mothers during the past 78 years it has been on the market.

Mrs. C. W. Meyers, Clanwilliam, Man., writes:—"My baby girl was very sick with diarrhoea when she was cutting her teeth. I tried several different remedies, but nothing did her any good. She was getting worse when my mother sent me out a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I gave her a few doses and the next day she was much better, and in a couple more days she was as well as ever.

Now I always keep 'Dr. Fowler's' in the house and recommend it to all those troubled with diarrhoea."

Price 50c. a bottle; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ARAB RULER DEAD

farther inland the mountains give way to the high plateau that extends into Central Arabia.

"In Asir's higher mountains, according to the meager word-of-mouth reports of natives, is a land the direct antithesis of the unlovely 'tehama.' The rainfall in the mountains is said to be considerable and its valleys are regions of running water, trees, gardens, fields and orchards. None of the streams reaches the sea, all being swalloped up by the desert or dissipated by irrigation ditches.

"Even the Emir of Asir, nominal lord of the realm, is without authority in much of his wild country. He holds securely only the 'tehama,' the lower mountains, and a portion of the highest region. In much of the highlands the inhabitants do not acknowledge his authority. This is especially true of the nomads on the edge of the great central desert.

"When Italy was at war with Turkey in 1911-12 she subsidized the Emir of Asir who was glad enough to make active his slumbering enmity toward Turkey. During the World War the Emir was one of the numerous chieftains who nominally joined the Allies against the Central Powers. He received supplies from Great Britain, but accomplished little, never dislodging the few Turkish garrisons in Asir.

"Sabia, the capital of Asir, is in the lower highlands, just outside the 'tehama.' It is described by a British Indian medical officer who visited it during the World War as 'a village of huts.'"

MEXICO MAY MODIFY LAWS.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 8.—(Associated Press)—Foreigners in Mexico view with mixed feelings the proposal of a group of congressmen to reform Article 33 of the constitution. Being "thirty-threed," the popular way of expressing the operation of said article, means being expelled without hearing on trial from Mexico on orders from the president as "a prenicious foreigner."

Proposals for reform include the granting of a hearing to candidates for 33d degree; but, in case of conviction, the serving of the corresponding sentence should the offense charged be of a civil nature, and then expulsion. At present, under the article, a few days imprisonment, "incommunicado," before expulsion, is the only extra punishment inflicted.

COSTUME SLIP.

The costume slip continues in popularity. One of the newest is of tinted silk lace, the lace very finely pleated. The pleating permits the slip to cling to the figure and yet allows the greatest amount of freedom.

Miss A. Webb has returned home after spending the week end in Toronto.

In the list of teachers who went to their respective schools on Monday, the name of Miss Alta Sanderson was inadvertently omitted, she having been engaged at Washago for another term. Congratulations are also extended her for having passed her summer course examinations at Bracebridge recently.

Mr. A. Weaver, manager of the Omemee branch of the Bank of Toronto, is in Orangeville, opening up a branch of the bank there.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morgan, of Belleville, Rev. E. W. and Mrs. Morgan and little daughter, of West China, Mrs. J. J. Thornton of Janetville and Rev. Mr. Mackenzie and little daughter of Enniskillen, spent Monday in this vicinity. After visiting the old Morgan homestead and enjoying a picnic dinner on the old picnic grounds, they later called on Omemee friends and afterward spent the evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. Connel.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ford and son, Master Wilson, spent a few days last week with friends in Toronto.

Hunter From Buffalo.

A number of sportsmen from Buffalo and other parts of the States are camped down the river fishing and duck shooting, both of which are reported to be fairly plentiful in this district.

Sunday School Picnic.

The annual Sunday school picnic of Omemee and Bethel congregattions was held to Thurstonia on Wednesday afternoon, where a delightful outing was enjoyed by a goodly number. The chief attractions for the younger members of the gathering was boating, swinging and afterwards a ball game. Tea was served in the usaul picnic style, and needless to say all did justice to the ample supply of eats spread out.

All good druggists sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar for a case, or if you prefer you can secure them direct from the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. ## MANY RICH COAL MINES OWNED BY GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(Associated Press)—Uncle Sam is one of the largest land owners in the world, and his rents and royalties amount to a stupendous and ever-increasing sum yearly.

Coal and oil lands form the chief part of his holdings, and immense tracts of oil shale lands, deposits of phosphate, potash and other important salts add greatly to his acreage. The Bureau of Mines has supervision over operation of more than a hundred coal mines distributed through eight states, and while at present mining on public land is overshadowed by private industry, the government mines are increasing in importance. In addition, leases for one phosphate development, one oil shale project and four potash operations have been issued.

The growth of leasing operations on oil and gas lands owned by the government has been phenomenal since the passage of the Leasing Act in 1920. In the three years and two months from February, 1920, to April 1923, the Bureau administered operations involving 334 oil and gas leases and 10,608 prospecting permits.

Revenues and rentals from these and other leases have totaled about $24,470,000, a part of which has been turned over to the Reclamation Service to be put back on the land.

They are the best medicine I know of for little ones and I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine delaers or by mail at 25c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NEWSPAPER LIVES ON

English Labor Daily Continues For Three Months

PLYMOUTH, Sept 7—The trades union congress by a large majority decided to-day to continue the Daily Herald, the labor organ, for another three months.

Announcement was made recently that owing to financial difficulties the Daily Herald would cease publication on September 30 unless the trades congress decided that its life should be prolonged. In this connection it was stated that during he past year the congress had spent £76,000 on the Herald. The Herald a short time ago stated that its circulation had never exceeded 200,000 whereas it required a circulation of 500,000 to be kept going.

PARIS WILL NOW LOAN .... MONEY ON AUTOMOBILES

PARIS, Sept. 8.—(Associated Press).—The Paris "Mont-de-Piete" or the municipal pawnshop, as it would be known in the United States, is organized under Government statutes containing the obligation of "loaning money on any and all valuable articles, or articles of some monetary value presented thereto."

Some time ago a luxurious limousine drove up to the main entrance, and a dapper youth sauntered out of the machine.

"What will you give on this bus?" he asked one of the employes.

The clerk referred the matter to a superior officer, a consultation took place and finally the owner of the automobile was informed that no loan could be advanced on such collateral. The municipal pawnshop had no place to park it.

The young man lodged a formal complaint with the proper authorities.

The municipal pawnshop has now rented a large plot of ground and announced that they are ready to loan upon automobiles. They have accommodations for one thousand cars.

Nuxated Iron Will Increase Strength of Delicate People In Two Weeks Time

In many instances says City Physician persons have suffered for years without knowing what made them feel tired, listless and rundown when their real trouble was lack of iron in the blood—how to tell.

If you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason that the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied a multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you good; you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases, it is worse than foolishness to take a stimulating medicine or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your fagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good sound, healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and one of the best blood builders in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of inorganic iron like tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomach and were not assimilated and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated Iron, for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron which is recommended above is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, and does not injure teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

SMALLEST PRECINCT IN U. S. HAS FOUR VOTERS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 8.—(Associated Press)—A voting precinct in St. Louis County, with four perennial residents, is believed to have the smallest population of known qualified voters of an precinct in the United States.

The precinct is at Washington University, just west of St. Louis City, and the four residents are wondering how they can distribute themselves at elections to provide the necessary six precinct officials.

The quartet, however, takes comfort in the fact that some members of the faculty stay at the domitories when the university is in session, and some of these may be qualified voters in St. Louis county.

Those who reside at the university throughout the year are Jake Reichert, a janitor, and his wife, and Morris Boorstin, superintendent of buildings and grounds, and Mrs. Boorstin. Formerly they voted at the county courthouse at Clayton but at the last session of the state legislature a law was passed providing for a board of election commissioners in St. Louis County. This law necessisstated a redistricting of precincts, as it forbids the adjoining of municipal and rural, or unattached, territory in precinct.

At Washington University is not in a municipality, but is surrounded by municipalities, it was necessary to make the grounds of the institution a separate precint. The unique precinct will be in operation for the first time Sept. 18-20, when a registration will be held in St. Louis County.

"Vacations are about over, all except the scratching.

CO-OPERATIVE MOVEMENT BRIGHTENS FARM LIFE

DURHAM, N. H., Sept. 8.—(Associated Press).—Significant changes tending to check the economic trend which has been sapping farm life have been brought about by county agent work in the interest of better farming, according to a report by L. C. Kendall, director of co-operative extension work in the University of New Hampshire. Taking as a basis conditions in Sullivan County, where in August ten years ago county agent work was first begun, Director Kendall points to numerous developments which he attributes directly and indirectly to extension activities.

"In the first place, the spirit of aloof individualism has very largely gone," Mr. Kendall says. "People in the old days used to go to meetings to scoff at the agricultural specialist; now they stay and ask questions. They used to think it was a mistake to share their ideas on farming with each other; now they get together and discuss ways in which they can co-operate to advantage.

"But the advance has not been one in spirit only," he adds, and points to scores of new houses built according to extension recommendations; to standard feeding; the testing of two score thousands of birds; and to hillsides of MacIntosh apple orchards destined to the axe and saved only by demonstrations that the scab could be controlled.

The building up of cow-testing associations, the tendency toward better sires, hundreds of alfalfa fields that yield three crops instead of two, farmers exchanges which do an annual business in the State of $1,200,000 are all evidences of the movement, Mr. Kendall asserts.

Substantial results in making farm life more desirable for young people and their elders alike are also observable. He points to better balanced meals, more economical and attractive wardrobes, walls of more prepossessing appearance and kitchens with modern conveniences. Last year 10,000 women worked together to make each other dress forms of gummed paper, co-operated in making patterns and helped each other make fireless cookers.

In addition, Mr. Kendall points to boys' and girls' clubs and asserts that the significance of 2,000 youngsters training in various farm and home projects is not to be easily waved aside.

HOARDS RICH RELICS

DRESDEN, Sept. 8.—(Associated Press)—Art dealers and antiquarians here have few valuable objects of art left in their shops. Since the mark began its wild downward course and the distrust in money became so acute, Germans have been putting all their savings into articles which they believe to have a stable value in a world market. Old masterpieces, old furniture, old silver, old tapestries and old rugs have been eagerly snapped up if they had beauty and bore evidence of their age.

In many cases the dealers themselves withdrew the articles from the market if they were their own property. Shops, now devoid of choice pieces, keep up appearances by filling up their show windows with Chinese porcelain made in imitation of old wares and modern Russian oddities gathered from the mass of refugees which has come to Germany.

What the farmers need is a weed-eating insect.

CLOSED-BODY TYPE IS 14 YEARS OF AGE.

Correspondence Discloses First Design Somewhat Like Modern Coupe.

The rapid attainment by the closed type of body of a place of first importance among body types recently led an English motoring journal to try and discover the original closed body. A series of letters came from different persons who had long been indentified with the motor trade and ultimately it was discovered that the first closed body was built some fourteen years ago in the form very similar in general lines to the modern coupe. In establishing his claim as the first builder of the closed boy, Chas. E. Cann, a coach designer, writes:

"Without being too egotistical or presumptuous, I think I can justly claim some part of the grateful thanks of present-day drivers as the one who was largely responsible for the first design, and most certainly for being the first builder, of all-weather bodies. Mr. W. Munn, when secretary of the De Dion Bouton Co., whose help I would not for one moment belittle, did approach me first seriously in the matter, but the whole idea was worked out and evolved by my staff and myself, the design being registered at that time (1910) in the name of "Medicann."

"The first bodies of this character were built as two-seaters only. This I soon afterward developed into the four-seater type; this also was registered under the name of 'Cabriocann,' and in itself varied but little from the fashionable all-weather body of to-day, the general principles and lines being almost precisely the same.

A watch has 160,144,000 ticks a year. This is more than a cow.

TRIPLETS BORN TODAY.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 8. — (Canadian Press).—Triplets were born today to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Miller, Caintown, short distance west of Brockville. The new arrivals, all boys, as well as the mother, are doing well.

The parents of the children, who are English, have resided in Canada for some time. They already have four children, three daughters and a son, the oldest of which is about 16 years.

A TRANSIENT TRADER'S AND PEDDLER'S BY-LAW FOR HASTINGS VILLAGE

G. N. Gordon, M. P. of Peterborough will be Instructed to Draft a Measure Which Will Stand the Test of Appeal—A Long Felt Want

COUNCIL IN SESSION

HASTINGS, Sept. 8.—G. N. Gordon, M.P., of Peterborough, who is solicitor for this village, will be instructed by the Council to draw up a by-law dealing with transient traders and peddlers. The special tax to be levied on the former class of dealers will be placed at $100, while the fee to be charged peddlers will be left to the discretion of Mr. Gordon, as the Council is desirous of having a by-law that will hold water.

At the meeting of the Village Council last night, at which Reeve rowlds, Councillors Chapman, Dodd Kelly and Coughlan were present, the Reeve appointed Councillors Chapman, Dodd and Kelly a committee to take this matter up with Mr. Gordon.

Hastings has at present no such by-law and the lack of it has recently forced itself upon the Council and the citizens. Last spring a trader from Toronto set up a temporary business in Hastings. The by-law then in force was repealed and another prepared in which the tax or license was raised to $250. This the dealer refused to pay, but continued to do business. When an attempt was made to collect the fee by legal process, Mr. Gordon gave it as his opinion that the tax was exorbitant and that no Judge or court would uphold it.

A Baker From Outside.

Some time ago a Campbellford baker commenced selling bread here from door to door, charging the same price which prevails in his home town, 16 cents a loaf, two cents less than that charged by the local baker and by the grocery stores, some of the latter having their stock shipped from Peterborough. The business men objected to an outsider carrying on trade without a license or tax, but there was no by-law to deal with the case. An attempt was made by Reeve Fowlds to secure an opinion from Mr. Gordon, but the latter was out of the city and could not be reached.

Difference of Opinion.

There was a difference of opinion among the councillors last night. Reeve Fowlds contended that it was only fair to a local merchant, who paid his taxes regularly, to have some protection from outside competition. He has taken legal advice on the matter and had been assured that the Council had power to pass a by-law imposing a license fee upon peddlers who offered their wares from door to door. Whether these wares were vegetables or other kinds of foodstuffs. Such dealers are exempt from a fee only when they dispose of their goods in bulk.

Councillors Dodd and Kelly were inclined to the opinion that a man was at liberty to sell as he saw fit any article grown or manufactured by him. Councillor Coughlan did not arrive at the meeting until after this matter had been disposed of.

Reeve Fowlds stated that other municipalities had by-laws dealing with peddlers and as these enactments were according to the Statutes he saw no reason why Hastings should not follow the example.

The matter was disposed of without a vote being taken by the appointment of the committee to consult with Mr. Gordon. There is to be no re-vote on the $100 charged transient traders but if a dealer comes to town and satisfies the councillors that he will remain permanently he will be exempt from the operation of the by-law.

It was suggested that a fee of $50 be charged peddlers, the license to do business to be good for one year. If this by-law finally passes the Campbellford baker can either pay the tax or retire from the field.

Purchased Fire Hose

H. J. Hodgert, representing the Goodyear Rubber Company and J. A. Francis, salesman for the Dominion Rubber Company, appeared before the Council to sell fire hose. Fire Chief Lew Scriver and Nelson Scriver, assistant chief, were also present. The salesmen were each given a hearing, one retiring from the room while the other was speaking.

Mr. Hodgert offered double jacketted hose at $1 a foot, warranted to stand a pressure of 400 pounds and guaranteed to give satisfactory service for three years. Other higher priced goods he said was meant for large cities where the hose was used more frequently in town and villages and where the pressure was higher.

Fire Chief Scriver informed the Council that in Hastings the pressure on the house is not more than 140 pounds.

Mr. Francis of the Dominion Company had hose at $1 a foot but he recommended a line which sells for $1.55 a foot as it is warranted not to freeze in the winter season. His company, too, gives a three-year guarantee.

Mr. Hodgert was given an order for 300 feet of hose and this quantity may be reduced to 250 feet of it is shown by actual measurement that the latter quantity with the hose now on hand, is sufficient to reach to all parts of the village. Councillor Chapman maintained that residences in the outskirts were as much entitled to fire protection as houses and business blocks in the heart of the village.

That Proposed Factory

A representative of the manufacturing concern that asks for concession to establish a branch factory in Hastings, will be in the village on Monday. On the evening of that day he will submit his proposition to a meeting of the ratepayers and all interested are urged to attend.

Building permits for the month of August totalled $25,033, an increase over August last year of $9,000. Included in the permits this year were two dwelling houses and five garages.

End in Sight of Ruhr Occupation.

LONDON, September 8. Canadian Press. — A special cable from Berlin to various papers intimates that the end of the Ruhr occupation problem is in sight.

In diplomatic circles the statement was made to-day that negotiations are under way which will probably clear up the German-French difficulties within the next eight days.

Optimism is expressed but at the same time it is declared that should the present negotiations between Germany and France fail, the result will be the fall of the Stresmann Cabinet, and it will probably lead to the worst revolutionary crash since the war.

AFRAID THEY MIGHT BURY WOMAN ALIVE

MONTREAL, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—As Mme. Elisee Laflamme, aged 67, of St. Jean Baptiste De Rouville, was about to be buried yesterday, it was noticed that rigor mortis had not set in.

The heart was not beating and she was not breathing but there was neither rigidity to the "corpse," nor was it cold.

Fearful that they might be burying the woman alive the mourners sent for two doctors, who made an examination. They ordered cancellation of funeral for further observation.

It was found later, however, that decomposition had set in and the funeral arrangements were duly carried out.

Germans Have Secret For Damaging Planes.

LONDON, September 8. Canadian Press. — Some secret radio or wireless means discovered by the Germans for damaging airplanes in flight, is believed, says the Daily Mail to be the explanation of nearly thirty forced landings by French machines in German territory since the Ruhr occupation.

Such landings, two more of which were reported to-day, happened for the most part in the neighborhood of Furth, in the Upper Palatinate, Bavaria.

PESSIMISTIC VIEW OF SITUATION HERE

Meighen Says Burden of Taxation in Canada is Unparalleled Elsewhere

WINNIPEG, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Speaking before the Winnipeg Conservative Club, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Conservative leader, said he was no pessimist, but he took a serious view of the situation in Canada to-day. Many people were coming to Canada, but he feared more were leaving. There was a feeling of super-caution and timidity, if not fear, hesitation and reluctance to invest, an absence of expansion and activity. What was the reason?

"Canada," he said, "labored under a burden of taxation unparalleled in any other country."

DR. CAMPBELL MORGAN'S VISIT

The citizens of Peterborough who are not acquainted with the Rev. Dr. Campbell Morgan and his work have no idea of the treat which is in store for them the week beginning September 16th. To ministers his name has been familiar as the greatest living expository preacher since the death of the celebrated Dr. McLaren, of Manchester. It must be over twenty-five years since he first visited Toronto and conducted a brief mission here. Many in Canada had heard of him before that and had recognized in him a man of superb gifts and prophesied for him a brilliant, and successful future. They were not mistaken in their estimates of the man. He has grown steadily in the favor of all who have followed his career since then. His greatest work was done in Westminster Chapel, London, England, where he labored with the most brilliant success for thirteen years. When he was called to this church it was in a condition of decay the despair of Congregationalism in London. Before long it was crowded to the doors, and the foremost of British statesmen in large numbers waited on his ministry. His greatest triumph was his Friday evening Bible class of over two thousand gathered from all over London. He was for a time Principal of Hackney College. He conducted, in addition to his own great work in London, frequent Bible conferences throughout Britain, and was a frequent visitor in the summer time to Moody's Northfield Summer School on this side of the Atlantic.

The aim of his Bible missions is to confirm the faith of his hearers in the truths of the Bible and the great historic message of the Christian faith. He seems specially to be a voice sent from God to steady the faith of the Church in these days when many are drifting from the old moorings. He adopts none of the arts of the popular revivalist. While he has a message for the man outside the Church, his work is directed specially to the man who is already in the Church and who for various reasons is not taking the interest that he should in the Church's mission.

He is the author of over some score of important books, some of which are in almost every minister's library.

A paper in Virginia, writing of a mission which he recently conducted, has this to say of the man, his method and his message:

"Dr. G. Campbell Morgan is without an equal in this country, as a forceful, analytical, expository preacher.

"The kind of preaching which counts to-day is that which challenges the deepest thinking of men and women—preaching which goes to the very heart of things, and which takes into account the whole of man, the whole of earth, and the whole of heaven. Such is the preaching of Dr. Morgan.

"For accurate knowledge of the letter of the Scriptures, insight into the spiritual meaning of the sacred writers, wide vision over the past, present and future of the Kingdom of God; and skill in setting forth his views in a deeply impressive manner, Dr. Morgan's superior can scarcely be found among living men."

Dr. Morgan will speak twice each day, in St. Paul's in the afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, and in the evening in George Street at eight. The public are cordially invited to all the meetings.

PREVENTING PYORRHEA

The ordinary person in the good old days didn't think much about danger from pyorrhea.

Pyorrhea is as old as man, the scriptures say, but so is almost every other disease.

We are not so much concerned with their ancient history as with their prevention and cure at present time.

Pyorrhea is the chief, or at least one of the chief causes for the loss of our teeth. One by one they drop away without any special warning, after the first alarm.

If you have a cavity in one of your teeth have it attended to at once. Decay of your teeth is bad, but pyorrhea is much more so. It starts as a one-tooth disease and remains so for a time, depending on your condition and strength of resistance. Then it generally spreads to another tooth, and another, until the last one goes and you have to buy a set.

Strange, but true, the disease never attacks all the teeth at the same time, so there is hope.

To prevent this unpleasant condition from becoming a reality in your own case, go at once to your dentist, at the first sign of pain or tender and bleeding gums. Have the scale removed from the root and you may check it. If another tooth becomes tender and infected have the process repeated.

Better prevention is to clean the mouth and teeth thoroughly after each meal, also at night and in the morning.

Visit your dentist two or three times a year for examination and cleaning.

This disease may be checked by proper treatment and careful diet for system upbuilding.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

MISTER DIPPER

"Why, how do you do." he said hospitably.

"Who sent you word about Mrs. Bear and her boys being after Tommy Trout?" asked Nancy, when Buster Bear and Bunch Bear and their mother had gone home after promising never, never, never to fish again.

Mister Gallop, the cowboy fairy, rolled up his lasso and hung it on his saddle. "It was Dandy Dipper who told me," he answered. "Do you know Dandy Dipper?"

"No," said Nancy. "What is he called that for? And what's he like?"

"He's a bird," explained the fairyman. "But jump on your ponies and I'll take you to his house. It isn't far from here."

So the Twins climbed on Snow and Blackie and they all rode along until they came to a place where the creek fell down from a high place to a low place and then went rushing off as if it were scared.

"Here's where he lives," said Mister Gallop. "Jump down, and follow me."

Before they knew what he was about Mister Gallop had waded out into the water in his high boots and walked straight into the waterfall. It was because he was a fairy, no doubt, but anyway, it was most astonishing.

"It's a good thing we have our magic shoes along," laughed Nancy, "or we never could follow him. Come on, Nick, here goes."

The Twins put down their heads and dived right in, and lo and behold when they got inside it was as quiet and dry as could be. "This is where Mister Dipper lives," said Mister Gallop, "but he isn't at home. Oh, here he comes now."

As he spoke a little grey bird came splashing in. Over his eyes were little curtains to keep the water out. Then he lifted the little curtains and shook himself.

"Why, how do you do!" he said hospitably. "I didn't know I had company. Thank you for saving my friends, Tommy and Timmy Trout. I've been greatly worried."

"You're welcome," said Mister Gallop. "If anything else goes wrong please let me know."

"I sure will!" declared Mister Dipper positively.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond, (Terry) lovely and unbelievably innocent is imperson ating her beautiful half sister.

Juliet Divine, known as the Million Dollar Doll—whose sketchy career is unknown to Terry.

Miles Sheridan, Terry's 'Dream Prince' furnished the money for her convent education when she was a child. His wife is making him wretched with her infidelity and in order to facilitate her obtaining a divorce Miles offers the Million Dollar Doll $20 000 to take a yacht trip with him stipulat ing that he will not "trouble" the girl. This he knows will give his wife sufficient grounds for divorce. Juliet is unable to take the trip herself but working on her little sister's gratitude to Miles she per suades Terry to go in her place. Terry is an exquisite counterpart of her sister.

Betty Sheridan, Miles' wife is deeply in love with

Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek who does not know of Terry's relationship to quiet is in love with the younger girl.

Poor little Terry unaware of her sister's reputation and how she must ap pear in the eyes of the world starts the voyage with Miles who does not reco g nize in her the little girl he befriended so long ago. Mr. Harkness his servant is sternly disapproving of "The Million Dollar Doll."

Terry refuses the $10 000 which Miles sends her by Mrs. Harkness.

Miles is surprised at the "Million Dollar Doll's" refusal of his money.

Miles Meets Terry on deck and is struck by her youthful charm. She reminds him of some one he knew years ago.

Terry tells her Prince she wants no money from him.

CHAPTER XXXV

A Siren's Charm

"Well, you force me to ask one more question. What do you want from me if not money?"

Terry drew a deep breath. "That—that's almost the same question, in a different shape, isn't it?"

"Perhaps, but I wish it answered, now. I don't want some fantastic idea sprung upon me later on.

"Everything's got to be settled without delay. I thought it had been already. Please let me have the truth."

"The truth is, I don't want anything from you at all," Terry said, shamed anger trembling in her voice. "You—you seem to talk as if I were some greedy—animal!"

"You are, just that," were the words on Miles Sheridan's tongue, but he kept them there. After the late experience with his wife, which had deeply wounded his pride and honour if not his heart, he'd come to believe that he had lost trust in women.

He had told himself lately, that if he never met a so-called "attractive woman" again he would be glad. Yet here he was shut up with one in a floating house and unable to get rid of her for weeks.

She was the last creature of her sex he would be inclined to trust; but unfortunately he couldn't shake her off permanently by being a brute.

All he could do was to say, coldly, that he had not intended to be rude. Perhaps Miss Divine would change her mind later on, before the cruise ended, and suggest some arrangement agreeable to herself.

"Meanwhile," he added, "please go and come as you like, without any fear of disturbing me. You've been abroad, I understand, so you probably know something about life on shipboard, if not on yachts.

"On board this yacht, we'll manage things much as if 'Silverwood' were a liner ten times her size. We'll take our exercise round the deck, when we feel like it, without noticing each other. We don't need to speak, or even bow and smile as we pass. That's the programme.

"But if there's anything you want that you haven't got, let me know—by Mrs. Harkness or a steward. You see the programme?"

"I see," Terry echoed.

She got up and walked away quickly, lest the moon should glint on the tears in her eyes.

Miles Sheridan loved the sea. He had a bent for mechanics, and liked to spend an hour or two a day in the engine room. There were men on board, including Yale, the yacht's captain, with whom he enjoyed a chat; and there were plenty of books to read.

Though he had organized the cruise for a grim purpose, he was not bored as days drifted into nights and nights into days. He was in a mood that sickened him of the world, and was glad to be away from it, for, though he had never loved Betty as a man loves the One Woman, her betrayal of him had been a blow.

He could sit for hours on deck in a long chair, smoking a pipe and gazing in a half dream at the architecture of the waves; distant towers, marble-white on grey-green hills, built against the horizon only to crumble, and be rebuilt again.

It was like life, he thought; the stupendous successes and failures, and new successes reared out of ruined hopes as ages came and went.

Sometimes the Doll would go by, and if he saw her through the corner of an eye, he would absorb himself in a book. Seldom, however, did she pass his way twice.

She seemed to know by instinct when he was on deck, and to choose another time for her walks.

If the girl had accepted her wages, and the French novels, Sheridan would have thought of her scarcely at all, except to turn distatefully from the prospect of flaunting himself with her by and by on land. But she had thrown eight French novels and ten thousand dollars on the floor of her cabin; and he could not help speculating upon her mentality.

It intrigued him, too, that a type of these self-indulgent dolls should contrive to keep the figure, face and throat of a seventeen-year-old girl, while a well-bred woman of twenty-seven or twenty-eight—like Betty, couldn't escape the burden of fat, and a double chin, without stern dieting and pouring down of acid medicines prescribed by secret specialists.

This doll, however, touched no wine. So said Mrs. Harkness, having got the information from Roberts, who waited on Miss Divine at the table.

Sheridan, being told, had remarked, "I'm not interested in Miss Divine's habits, my dear Harky." All the same he was interested; a mere matter of curiosity.

And from one or two things the old woman had let drop before this gently administered snub, Miles had gleaned that his ex-nurse was weakening in her disapproval of the girl. Not being a brute, Sheridan was mildly glad.

Rather deadly for the wretched girl to be haunted by the graven image Harky could be, when her conscience was on the war-path!

It was true; before "Silverwood" had been a week at sea, Mrs. Harkness had succumbed to the charm of the siren.

WARN FARMERS OF SWINDLE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(Associated Press).—Farmers who have been asked to invest in methods for producing illuminating and fuel gas from distillation of straw, are warned by the Department of Agriculture today to be on their guard. Tests conducted by department chemists for several years appear to show that destructive distillation of straw, or other cellulose material for the production of gas on a commercial basis is so far impractical.

Much of the advertising literature circulated among farmers exploiting various processes producing plants for rural use, has implied that these plants have received the endorsement of the department, and many complaints have been received.

ELMKE OF BOSTON RED SOX IN HALL OF FAME

Credited With Second No-Hit, No-Run Game of the Season--Mack's Athletics Again the Victims.

COBB'S MEN FIGHT.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Howard Ehmke of the Boston Red Sox received credit for the second no-hit, no-run game pitched in this city during the week when he shut out the Athletics today, 4 to 0. The game was similar to the performance of Sam Jones of the Yankees last Tuesday in that one man walked and one reached first on an error.

In the sixth inning Harris, who opposed Ehmke on the mound, had a chance to spoil his rival's record, but was out on a long drive for not touching first base. Then, in the eighth when it seemed that Ehmke would surely reach his goal, Welch hit a liner to left. Menowisky reached the ball, but fumbled it sufficiently for Welch to reach first.

At first it was recorded as a single, but before the inning was concluded the official scorer ruled that Menowsky had committed an error and Ehmke's record was safe.

Twenty-eight men faced Ehmke, just one less than faced Jones last Tuesday. Harper drew a pass and was forced at second by Miller. A double play erased Miller from the paths and Welch was the only Mackman left on the paths during the contest. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Boston | 100000030 | 4 | 9 1 |
| Philadelphia | 000000000 | 0 | 0 1 |

Ehmke and Picinich; B. Harris and Perkins.

Used English Pitchers.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Detroit defeated Cleveland, 11 to 9, today, in the first game of the series for the possession of second place. The contest was characterized by ineffective pitching, particularly by Uhle and Dauss, who started the game, and by Boone and Francis, relief twirlers. Police were summoned to stop a fight on the Detroit bench after Manager Cobb had yanked Pitcher Francis from the box. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Detroit | 031002320 | 11 | 16 1 |
| Cleveland | 103010211 | 9 | 15 2 |

Dauss, Francis, Cole, Holloway and Bassler; Uhle, Morton, Boone, Smith and O'Neil, Myatt.

Chicago Beat Shocker.

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Chicago hit Urban Shocker hard behind two passes, an error by McManus in the third inning, and easily defeated St. Louis, 7 to 2, in the first game of the series. Mike Cvengros kept the visitors' hits scattered and was given perfect support, the fielding of Ramm being especially noteworthy. The score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| St. Louis | 001000010 | 2 | 7 2 |
| Chicago | 00600100x | 7 | 8 0 |

Shocker, Root and P. Collins; Cvengros and Schalk.

$800,000 ADVANCE SALE FOR FIGHT

Record Receipts So Far For Firpo-Dempsey Battle.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.— The advance sale of tickets for the Firpo-Dempsey championship fight at the Polo Grounds next Friday night has amounted to approximately $800,000 so far, Tex Rickard revealed to-day. The promoter declared it exceeded the advance sale for any previous title match he has promoted, including the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, which has established a record 'gate' of $1,600,000 two years ago.

PUZZLING PLAYS

THE PLAY

Failure to touch a base invariably creates confusion. Many of the biggest disputes in baseball have resulted from the failure of a runner to simply touch the bases as called for by the rules.

There is a runner on third base, two out, and the pitcher, a weak hitter, is up. With the count two balls and two strikes on the batsman, the runner on third gets away to a big lead in an effort to steal home.

It looked as if he might be successful. The batsman did not offer at the pitch. The catcher, in an effort to hurry the play, permitted the pitch, which the umpire ruled a strike, to get away from him.

Since it was the third strike, the batsman dashed for first. The ball rolled to the grandstand and the coacher at first waved the runner to try for second. He made it easily.

While the catcher was chasing the ball things were happening. The runner from third had slid over the plate, gotten to his feet, dusted off his uniform, and was on the way to the bench before the catcher even recovered the ball.

The batsman, who had gone to second on the error, unfortunately failed to touch first. The mistake was noted by the first baseman and the umpire. The player called for the ball, touched first and the umpire ruled the runner standing on second out, making the third out of the inning.

The runner form third, who had crossed the plate, was sitting on the bench before the third out was finally made.

Does the run count?

THE INTERPRETATION

The run does not count. The rule covering the scoring of runs says a run cannot score on a play in which the batsman fails to reach first base for the third out. Although he reached second, because of his failure to touch first, he never reached that base, hence the run does not count.

MANITOBA'S WHEAT YIELD IS HIGHEST

13 Bushels As Compared With Average of 16 Bushels to Acre.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 7.—Manitoba's wheat crop will yield this year an average of thirteen bushels per acre as compared with sixteen bushels over a ten-year period, it is estimated to-day by George Bathe, Provincial Statistician.

The southern portion of the province will average less than eleven bushels and the northern areas from sixteen to eighteen bushels, according to Mr. Bathe's report.

KEEP FLIES AWAY

A sponge saturated with oil of lavender will keep flies away.

RESERVE DECISION IN WILLS ACTION

Rickard Stands to Lose $50,000 If Big Bout Is Stopped.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Supreme Court Justice Hagarty late to-day reserved decision in the action brought by Harry Wills, negro heavyweight contender, seeking an injunction against the Firpo-Dempsey fight at the Polo Grounds, September 14.

Wills claimed the prior right to box Dempsey for the heavyweight title. Attorney William Klein, representing Wills, declared the State Boxing Commission has acted in a "tyrannical manner" and had not given Wills a fair opportunity to meet Dempsey.

Represetnatives of the Commission staed that NO complaint alleging injustice had been lodged before them by Wills. Counsel for Promoter Tex Rickard declared that he had spent $20,000 in preparation for the bout between Dempsey and Firpo and that if the fight did NOT take place he would lose $50,000.

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Toronto took the second game of the series from Buffalo this afternoon, 7 to 6, in ten innings, Gonzales' double and Heitman's wild throw to third base on Miller's bunt scored the winning run. Babe Dye's hitting featured. He had a homer and two singles and scored three runs. Onslow also hit for the circuit with two on bases. The score:

Catcher Lake Ejected.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Beall was invincible today, limiting Syracuse to four hits, three of them scratches, and Rochester won easily, 6 to 1. Catcher Lake of the Tribe was put out of the game by Umpire James for disputing a decision. A change in the Syracuse schedule makes doubleheaders with Toronto Sunday and Tuesday, no games being played Monday and Wednesday. Score:

WILLIAMS WITH 34 HEADS RUTH

Chicago Scored Six Off Adams and Bagby in the First Innings.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Philadelphia defeated the New York Giants here to-day, 10 to 6. It was Philadelphia's third victory from the Giants in 21 games. Ring pitched a fairly efficient game for the visitors, and helped win his victory with a double and a single. After Stengel's home run with Meusel on base had tied the score in the sixth, the Phillies knocked Watson out in the 7th, scoring three runs on five hits. Williams hit his thirty-fourth home run of the season with Ring on base in the third inning ,again putting him one ahead of Ruth. The score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Philadelphia | 002 100 304 | 10 | 18 0 |
| New York | 010 002 012 | 6 | 12 3 |

Ring and Wilson; Watson, Barnes, Jonnard and Gowdy, Snyder.

Boston 11, Brooklyn 3.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Boston batted Vance savagely to-day, defeating Brooklyn, 11 to 3. In the second R. Smith's single to centre scored two runs, the second of which caused a protest by Brooklyn, the visitors claiming that Ford ran out of the line to escape Catcher Taylor, who had the ball. R. Smith went to second on the throw home and then stole third and home while the Brooklyn players argued with Umpire O'Day around the home plate. After that the game became a rout. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Brooklyn | 000 000 120 | 3 | 7 0 |
| Boston | 032 510 00x | 11 | 17 2 |

Vance, Decatur and Taylor; Barnes and E. Smith.

Pirates Beaten.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 7. — Chicago knocked Adams and Bagby out of the box in the first inning and defeated Pittsburgh to-day, 6 to 4, scoring all of their runs in that inning. Steineder went into the box with none out and two men on bases and stopped further scoring. Keen weakened in the fifth inning and yielded three runs on three hits and two walks. The Pirates added another in the eighth but were unable to overcome the Cubs' early lead. Score:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Chicago | 600 000 000 | 6 | 9 1 |
| Pittsburgh | 000 030 010 | 4 | 8 2 |

Keen and O'Farrell; C. Adams, Bagby, Steineder and Gooch.

Hornsby's Circuit Clouts.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7.— St. Louis divided a double bill with Cincinnati to-day, taking the first contest, 5 to 1, and losing the second 8 to 5. In the second game Hornsby got his 16th and 17th home runs of the season, the first coming in the first inning with none on, and the second in the eighth with Flack and Blades on, tieing the score. The visitors came back in the ninth, however, and duplicated their rally of the eighth by running up three more tallies. The locals' errors aided the Reds.

In the first game the locals landed on Donohue for ten hits in six innings. Flowers, a recruit recently obtained from Cambridge Club of the Blue Ridge League, played short for the Cardinals and made the only extra base hit of the first game. Scores:

C.G.E.-Colonial Game.

Tuesday evening's game between the C.G.E. and the Colonial girls should draw a big crowd when play is called at Central Park at six o'clock. The Electric girls are out to win. Colonials have the first half of the schedule to their credit, but in the second round they have already lost one game to the C.G.E girls who are determined to be in the play-off. The rivalry is keen and should produce a rattling good game.

CINCINNATI PLAYERS SUE SPORTING PAPER

Duncan and Bohue Start Proceedings For $50,000 Each Against "Collyer's Eye."

REPUTATION INJURED

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Outfielder Pat Duncan and Infielder Sammy Bohne of the Cincinnati Nationals filed suit in the United States District Court here today for damages of $50,000 each against Collyer's Publishing Company, owners of "Collyer's Eye," a sports weekly. They declared in the two actions that they had been damaged to that extent by a story in the weekly that they had been approached by gamblers and offered $15,000 each to throw games to the New York Giants.

The pleas recite that the plaintiffs have for some years been professional ball players, and declare that the article referred to was intended to destroy the good name, reputation and credit of the players in their profession.

The players declare their standing and reputation with the Cincinnati club and with all other baseball clubs and the public has been impaired, and their opportunities for employment in the future have been damaged.

The article printed in Collyer's Eye, August 18, is reproduced in the pleas. It charged that the complainants, and possibly a third player, had been approached by agents of certain gamblers and offered $15,000 each to throw certain games to the New York club, then in the lead in the league, in order that the gamblers might win money on the games. Ban Johnson, President of the American League, the article said, is making an investigation, adding that all trails led to certain New York real estate office where the agents were alleged to receive their instructions. The article said that there was no direct evidence that the two players named had accepted the alleged offers of money and then called attention to playing of the two men which the article said had not been up to the standard they had maintained earlier in the season.

The story was investigated by league officials who denied it as did the players. Today's suits are understood to be the answer of the Cincinnati club and the league itself to the charges, although neither the club nor the league are mentioned in the action as parties to the suits.

HUMAN PUNCHING BAG FOR FIRPO

Young Bob Fitzsimmons Among New Arrivals at Camp.

ATLANTIC CIY, N. J. Sept. 7. — Luis Angel Firpo welcomed two new sparring partners to his camp to-day. There were seven rounds of lively sparring in the dog park before several hundred persons. John Lester Johnson, a New York negro heavyweight who broke three of Jack Dempsey's ribs some years ago, when Jack, then "just a fighter," made his first bow in New York, was in the first mixup with Luis. John Lester made the South American step around some. John Lester found the Argentine's jaw with some stinging lefts and some rights and took on a hard right in the ribs that hurt him.

Young Bob Fitzsimmons browned and in excellent physical condition at 185 pounds, was next with Firpo They sparred two rounds. Bob was hard to hit, but was hit. Firpo was hit too but not enough to bother him. Joe McCann boxed two rounds and the session ended in a round with Frank Koeble. Altogether, it was the fastest sparring period the Argentine had had.

WHITE SOX PICK STAR IN BARRETT

Has Everything to Make One of Greatest Outfielders.

It looks as if the Chicago White Sox had picked up a star outfielder in Bill Barrett. He was recently secured from the Reading club of the International League. Barrett is a big, husky fellow, about six feet tall and weighing about 175 pounds. He is very fast, takes a healthy cut at the ball and has a wonderful arm. He bats and throws right-handed.

"Barrett is one of the best recruits I have seen in years. He reminds me of Happy Felsch, and to my way of thinking there never was a better outfielder than Felsch," remarked Kid Gleason to me the other day. "Barrett has everything to make one of the greatest outfielders the game has ever produced. He needs only the experience to polish him off." Some boost from a veteran like Gleason. Incidentally, Eddie Collins entertains much the same opinion.

It is a rather interesting fact that Barrett began his big league career as a pitcher. It so happens that Connie Mack, the discoverer of so many big league stars, dug Barrett up. Mack used him as a pitcher and shortstop. He had a great arm but lacked control. For some reason Mack passed him up. Now he comes back to the big show as an outfielder and a mighty good one. In this connection it might be mentioned that Charley Jamieson of Cleveland, generally regarded as one of the greatest outfielders the game has ever produced, started in the majors as a pitcher. Of interest also is the fact that Connie Mack once had him and turned him over to Cleveland.

ROUGH RIDING PALLED FIRPO TOOK UP BOXING

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(Associated Press).—Luis Angel Firpo is the "rough guy" of the Argentine.

Before he became a pugilist he was barred from two of the Republic's most popular games, soccer and "rosette."

A member of one of Buenos Aires' leading soccer teams, he so frequently incapacitated opposing players in apparently accidental collisions that nobody would play against him. He was too strong and too rough, they said. So Luis Angel looked around for another game to play.

Being an expert horseman he decided on "rosette" In this game a rose is pinned upon the sleeve of a horseman who sends his steed galloping across the field. When he crosses a certain line, another rider starts in pursuit. The pursuer must pluck the rose from the sleeve of the pursued before the latter reaches the end of the field in order to score a point.

Firpo developed a habit of plucking the rider along with the rose, and then he took up boxing.

EXPUNGE 'HERO' ON ROGERS' TOMBSTONE

Changed to "Our Son" on Order of Bishop Scollard.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Sept. 7. — The words "Our Hero" on the tomb stone of Leo Rogers, which aroused the ire of the local church and other authorities, have been removed and in their stead appears the inscription "Our Son". The change was made quietly and it is understood was executed at the instance of John Rogers acting on the suggestion of Bishop Scollard.

NO AMENDMENTS TO QUEBEC LIQUOR LAW

Beer Will Still be the Strongest Drink Sold in Taverns.

QUEBEC, Sept. 7.— The Quebec Liquor Law will sustain no amendment of importance at the coming session of the Legislature, it is understood. Satisfaction over the financial and moral success of the law have been expressed on several occasions by the Government spokesmen. The Quebec Liquor Commissioner, as well as the members of the Cabinet, are inclined to believe that any changes might bring immediate abuse.

Immediately after the enforcement of the new law the sale of wines in taverns, which are only licensed for beers was advocated. It was suggested by the tavern license owners that they would meet the wish of their patrons by having wines on hand and that the efforts o fthe Government to encourage the sale of wines instead of hard liquor would be furthered by such a policy. At the same time came the suggestion that those having permits to sell beer by the case also be given permission to sell wines.

Both requests have met with refusal, and they will again be denied this year according to information to hand. The Government is openly opposed to any change which might allow stronger spirits than wines to be disposed of in taverns. Another reason is that some brands of wines have percentage of alcohol just as high as any hard liquor and that a new classification to separate high percentage wines from others would be necessary, resulting in endless disputes, which would render the enforcement of the law more difficult.

WILL START WORK TRUNK ROADWAY

Premier Ferguson Gave Promise Affecting Northern Ontario.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Sept. 7.—An announcement that is regarded as of supreme importance to Northern Ontario has been made by Mayor John McDonald of North Bay following an interview which he had with Premier Howard Ferguson at Toronto on Wednesday. Mayor Mc Donald told your correspondent that he was assured by the Premier that work on the long discussed trunk highway which will link the Southern Ontario System of roadways at present terminating at North Bay, with Temiskaming and Cochrane districts will be started next Spring. The route has not been chosen but will probably be one of two surveys which have been made reports, of which are now in possession of the Government. This trunk highway has been the subject of numberless resolutions and deputations from all parts of the north to the Ontario Government for the past three years.

In well informed circles believed to be close to the government view point in North Bay it is also stated that the proposed trip which Lieut. Governor Cockshutt, Premier Ferguson and party are starting next week, and in which the territory between Cochrane and James Bay is to be explored by canoe is merely preliminary to an extremely important announcement of policy which the Premier may make some time after his return. It is believed that at present he has in his mind definite plans for a policy of development for the entire Northern Ontario.

Elevator Facilities Need of Wheat Pool

Elimination Races to Select Horse to Meet the British "Papyrus"

WINNIPEG, September 7. — No further progress was made to-day by the Alberta and Saskatchewan wheat pool representatives in their efforts to secure elevator facilities for the proposed pools. The directors of the Saskatchewan Cooperative Elevator Company were in conference during the morning discussing the proposals of the pool representatives and this afternoon they are meeting the directors of the United Grain Growers Limited prior to meeting the pool officials.

Hon. J. E. Brownlee Attorney-General for Alberta stated at noon that the special committees of the Alberta and Saskatchewan pools were in session and that a reply to the statement of the elevator interests issued last night might not be presented until Saturday.

REGINA September 7. — Returns received by the Saskatchewan wheat pool officials up to Thursday night show that a total of 12,093 contracts have been turned in covering 1,676,886 acres.

750,000 Furs on Sale at Montreal's Auction.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.—Two and a half million dollars' worth of furs were auctioned off this week in the four-day September sales of the Canadian Fur Auction Sales Company, which ended here this afternoon, according to a statement issued by R. S. Coltart, Vice-President of the company.

Over 750,000 furs gathered from all parts of the world, are placed on sale. Record prices were secured for Canadian beaver, silver fox and Marten pelts.

JURY INQUIRED INTO DEATH OF FRIENDLESS VAGRANT IN LINDSAY

LINDSAY, Sept. 8.—A coroner's inquest was held this afternoon to inquire into the cause of the death of John Coyle, who died this morning in the Ross Hospital. The deceased, who hailed from Ireland, was arrested here as a vagrant about two months ago, and was sentenced to a six months' term in the county jail. While there he became seriously ill and was removed to the hospital. The jury brought in a verdict of death from natural causes. Coyle, it is said, has no friends or relatives.

A CAMPAIGN FOR SIMPLE SPELLING

Boston Engineers Back Movement Which Philologists Have Started

BOSTON, Sept. 8.—(Associated Press).—A movement to have the spelling of the English language simplified and standardized by engineers co-operating with philologists has been started. A resolution favoring systematic standardization has been approved by the Boston Chapter, Society of Industrial Engineers and the recommendation is now on its way around the country to be submitted to other chapters of the association for indorsement.

Dr. Frank B. Gilbreth, a consulting engineer of Montclair, N. J., in urging the indorsement of the plan here asserted that the present mode of spelling is productive of enormous preventable economic waste. With an improved, efficient system of standardized spelling, 200,000,000 pupil-years would be saved every generation, he estimated. The saving in time to students, however, would be only one of the benefits, he said, declaring that the increased speed and fluency which would follow the elimination of uncertainty and hesitation would result in much time-saving in business.

Additional benefits would immediately follow, Dr. Gilbreth said. "Start with standardized spelling and the standardizing of other things will come naturally in sequence." The relation of the engineer to the problem is obvious, he held.

"Standardization is naturally the work of the engineer and he should assist the philologists to reform spelling standards because he has new units, methods and devices for measuring that are particularly important in evaluating present and proposed spellings for standardization. Because spelling will be used by countless generations, he present absurd standards of spelling should be reformed once and for all by measurement. Spelling should be super-standardized. It behooves the engineering profession to lead the way, show the method and go to the limit to find the one best way to do work and to standardize the elements of things and methods that will permit the greatest savings of time and the acquiring of the greatest quantities of the durable satisfactions of life," Dr. Gilbreth said.

Some engineers are already members of the Simplified Spelling Board, Dr. Gilbreth pionted out. He asserted that modern scientific methods, if applied to the question, would detect all forms of mental hesitation and waste motion in writing and in typewriter operation. This step, he believes, will be the real beginning of a standardization of everything else.

NEW BATTERY CARS CANADIAN NATIONAL

Steel Coaches 60 Feet Long, Carrying 90 Passengers to Augment Service.

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—Ernest W. Oliver, general manager of the electrical lines of the C.N.R., stated that the new type of battery cars which the C.N.R. is building at St. Catharines will be put on local lines where conditions justify it in place of the steam service. Four of these cars are in course of construction. The new battery car is 60 feet long, 10 feet wide and carries 90 passengers. They have a speed of between 40 and 50 miles an hour and built about the same as a railway coach, with steel bodies.

Mr. Oliver states that the extension of the electric system between Peterboro and Bowmanville had not yet been considered, but the question of battery cars for some of the branch lines where the steam service at present is both inadequate and fearfully expensive, has been taken up, with a view to improvement of service wherever the conditions warrant it, with battery or gasoline cars.

It is understood that the service between Toronto and Guelph will be much more frequent in the near future.

SPORT EVENTS SOUTH AMERICA

By MILES W. VAUGHAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (United Press).—Whether Luis Angel Firpo wins the heavyweight championship of the world from Jack Dempsey or not, he ought to get a lot of credit all over the world for doing a tremendous service in boosting boxing to a major place in the South American sports firmament, and giving tremendous impetus to all kinds of sport in countries where healthy competition is needed as badly as anywhere in the world.

Firpo, single-handed, probably has done more to pull South American youth away from such non body-developing sports as horse racing and cock fighting to brawn-bulding exercisings of slamming at each other' chins in a roped ring than all the athltic missions the whole world could ever have got together.

For Firpo is INTERESTING—and interesting to everybody from the highest of the highbrows to the lowest of the unschooled masses; interesting because he offers the possibility of a championship, of proving that South America can raise just as husky sons as her sister nations of the north, and proof that the Latin can fight just as well with his fists as he has with his brain.

Every country in South America wants a champion, and if she can't raise one for herself this year she will be perfectly willing to let Argentina do it and bask in the reflec,ed glory.

In Argentina itself there still is a considerable disposition to doubt Firpo's rating as a really great heavyweight, despite his victory over Willard. The Argentines know perfectly well that Firpo has met a lot of set-ups, and they know Dempsey has beat a lot of men far better than the average fighter who has been put before Firpo.

Argentina doesn't want a newspaper champion. She wants a real fighter, who can get out and win the heavyweight crown and hold it against the best of them. During recent moths Firpo has got to look better, and now a lot of Argentine fans will concede him a chance against Dempsey where they wouldn't have given him a look-in four months ago.

The big battler's stock took a rise when he whipped Willard, but it didn't make the Argentines overconfident by any means. They know Dempsey is a lot tougher man than Willard, and there'll be a lot of relief if Firpo clears the last hurdle with one of his terrific wallops, which they hope will move the heavyweight crown south of the equator for the first time.

But, win or lose, Firpo will have done a greater service for sport than either he or South America realizes just now—for he has given great impetus to the whole South American sport movement, which is going to make stronger, healthier and happier manhood in the Latin American republics during the next generation.

SUMMER DRIVING QUICKLY OVERHEATS STORAGE BATTERY.

One of the most harmful influences to guard against in summer is overheating. This condition is always due to one or more of the following causes: Neglect to keep the battery filled with pure distilled water is one of the greates evils, as well as the most common, and will shorten its life quicker than anything else. Evaporation of water in the solution is continuous. If the level of the water is permitted to reach a point below the tops of the plates the upper portion is left exposed and useless. If only one-half of the surface of the plate is covered by the solution, a normal charging rate is equivalent to twice the amount of current which should go through the covered portion. This causes rapid overheating and damage not seen at the time, but which results in considerable expense late. The temperature in the battery should not be allowed to exceed 110 degrees Fahrenheit.

ENDING OF STRIKE AFFECTED STOCKS

New York Market Strengthened.

New York, Sept. 8. United Press. —Nothing of significance happened at to-day's abbreviated session of the stock market. The fluctuations were entirely in the hands of the professionals who succeeded in bringing about some minor recessions among the industrials though the selling was based on the theory that all the good news regarding the settlement of the anthracite strike was out.

Special Weakness.

Special weakness was uncovered in a few specialties such as Davison Chemical, and Jones Bros. tea, but the speculative leaders continued to move in a narrow trading area. But indications were not lacking that interests sponsoring the steels and the tobaccos had not abandoned the hope of bringing about higher levels of selling. Rails also gave promise of developing a broader market strength in this group, particularly among the low priced issues, reflected increased evidence that business generally is going bad after the early summer slump and events are forming community the year is turning out better than had been figured; important gains in traffic are being made in the northwest, where they are most needed. The Great Northern officials predict record breaking traffic during the remainder of this year and reduced operating expenses because of the completion of much repair work.

The bears made no further headway against the main body of the stocks in the last hour. Studebaker, Baldwin and other leaders recovered most of their early losses and special strength cropped out in heavily bought spots of the list. Continental Can made a new 1823 high at 52 1-4, while Republic Steel went into new high ground on the movement at 51. The rails continued to act well up to the close with Reading and N.Y.C. in demand at close to the recent highs.

Stocks strengthened.

Stocks were strengthened at the opening by settlement of the anthracite strike and by mercantile agency sources reports of expanding business were multiplying. Another constructive factor was the great optimism expressed by George F. Baker, Bethlehem General Motors, Studebaker, American Can., and other industrial leaders scored fractions of gains on the initial transactions; rails were generally higher.

Wall Street Close Prices

PAPYRUS WILL RUN IN UNITED STATES

Derby Winner Will Compete Against Best American Three Year Old.

LONDON, Sept. 8. — (Canadian Press.)—That it has been definitely settled that Papyrus, the Derby winner, will go to the United States to race the best United States' three-year old this fall, was announced today by C. J. Fitzgerald, agent of August Belmont, who came here to negotiate for the English horse's appearance. Steve Donoghue, the leading jockey, who was in the saddle when Papyrus won the Derby this year, will have the mount in the International race in the United States.

LAST SURVIVOR TRAGIC ALPINE ASCENT DIES

ZERMATT, Sept. 8.—(Associated Press).—The recent death of Peter Taugwalder has robbed Switzerland of its most famous Alpine climber, and the last survivor of the party which climbed the Matterhorn for the first time 58 years ago, at the cost of six lives.

Only three out of a total party of ten returned to Zermatt after having made the first ascent of the previously unscaled Matterhorn. These were Peter Taugwalder and his son and Edward Whymper, a famous British Alpinist who organized the party. Whymper and the younger Taugwalder have been dead for many years, but Peter Taugwalder lived to make over 120 ascents of the mountain on which he miraculously escaped death when his seven companions plunged over a cliff to the Matterhorn glacier 4,000 feet below.

The body of Lord Douglas, who was among the Englishmen who were lost, was never found, and probably caught on a crag high on the mountain side where it could not be seen.

Edward Whymper wrote a book about the tragedy which occurred after the plucky climbers had been on the peak for an hour and had started on their downward trip. He and the two Taugwalders were saved by the snapping of a rope which bound them to the other members of the party. One of the British members of the party, who was next to the guide leading the way, slipped and knocked the leader over with such force that they dragged the other members of the party down with them. The weight and strain on the rope became so great that in snapping it left the three last members of the party safe on the mountainside, where they could see the bodies of their companions on the glacier far below them. For a time the survivors thought it would be impossible for them to continue the descent. They were unnerved by the accident, but finally aroused themselves to action and tied their ropes to rocks in such a manner that they were able to pass the dangerous stretches with a feeling of security.

The victims of the tragedy were all buried in the Zermatt churchyard, and Peter Taugwalder now lies with his companions.

ELIMINATION RACES

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Several of the leading three-year-old candidates for the honor of representing the United States thoroughbreds in the proposed international race with the English Derby winner, Papyrus, will undergo an official tryout tomorrow in the historic Lawrence Realization, feature race at Belmont Park.

Leading the list of five entries is Zev, star of the Rancocas stable, acknowledged three-year-old champion until he went lame recently. Zev, however, apparently has recovered the form that carried it to victory in the Kentucky Derby and will go to the post a heavy favorite. The Green Tree stable's pair, Rialto and Untidy, are expected to give Zev keen opposition.

The result of the Lawrence Realization, together with the National Trial Sweepstakes, September 15, will determine the horse which is to meet Papyrus.

Governor John A. Walton of Oklahoma, whom some citizens of that state want removed, was elected by the combined support of the regular Democrats and the Farmer-Labor party. Many are protesting against his placing cities and counties under martial law.

MAKING THE MOST OF YOUR VACATION

Go Slow For a Day or Two Until You Become Acclimated, Says Expert

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Do you know how to make the most of your two weeks' vacation?

Here's some advice from Dr. Lois Boyd Gaw, official physician of 250 women attending the Y. W. C. A. conference in the Blue Ridge Mountains.

"Go slow for the first day or so," she advises. "Don't scorn a porch rocker occasionally until you get acclimated to the change in altitude, air and drinking water.

"Girls accustomed to sedentary lives 50 weeks of the year often plunge immediately into mountain climbing, fast sets of tennis under a hot sun and other strenuous exercise. Small wonder they are worn out when they return.

"Exercise should be a development. Begin with short hikes and work up to the long ones. Eat sensibly an regularly for the first couple of days. On picnics avoid starchy foods. Vary them with plenty of fruit and liquids. In your sandwiches use brown bread and lettuce and tomato fillings."

Safety First

It is a simple matter and a wise precaution to have one's heart examined before indulging in a heavy vacation programme, Dr. Gaw finds. She advocates exercise, but she believes it must be done in moderation by those unaccustomed to it, or unable physically to stand it in its most strenuous form.

"A hangover from a vacation isn't necessary in the least if common sense rules are obeyed and occasional rest periods are definitely set apart," she maintains.

"No exercise at all is as bad as too much. Porch sitters who don't exert themselves at all go to just as great an extreme as those who scorn relaxation. Most of us cheat our systems of so much exercise, the vacation is the only chance we ever have to catch up.

Walk, Too

"And worse than the porch sitters are the tourists who travel by motor. They have a feeling of lassitude half the time from cramped and stiff muscles. Motor travel has its advantages, but it is making walking almost obsolete.

"A tennis racket, golf clubs or a swimming suit should be part of the equipment that is put to use. Though, of course, a determination to take a long brisk walk daily would serve just as well.

"And let me emphasize the importance of comfort. That's the best style you can follow," she concludes. "Be able to forget your clothes."

CHICAGO BOAT WON GREAT LAKES TROPHY

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Ariel Smart, a Chicago boat, to-day won the championship of the Great Lakes and the Richardson trophy, when she defeated Huskie 2nd of Watertown, Lake Ontario representative, in the third race of the series on the Canadian National Exhibition course.

CRESS IS RICH FOOD

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., Sept. 5.—(Associated Press).—Watercress as a side dish for lunch is well known in most households, but few people eating it were aware that it contained all the essential vitamines, until this fact was stated by Dr. Harold Scurfield at a Medical Association meeting recently. He advocated a more extensive use of the vegetable and said that the Greeks regarded it as food for the mind while to-day it was regarded as a stimulant for the body.

This recalls a favorite experiment of Professor Vivian B. Lewis, explosive expert. When lecturing he used to fill a glass jar with watercress, take it to Greenwich hospital and leave it on the roof in the sun's rays. The next week it would be brought back to the lecture room, the cover removed, and a light placed near the opening with the result that a deafening explosion occurred. This proved, according to the professor, that watercress was compoosed of pure oxygen and therefore very beneficial to the human system.

Member Acknowledges Satisfaction at Efficiency and Economy.

The advantages of the Automobile Legal Association of Canada to automobile owners is illustrated by the following letter of appreciation from Peter De Carlonis:

"Automobile Legal Association,
"214 Barrie Bldg.,
"Peterborough.

"Dear Sirs,—Last Wednesday my truck was down near Port Hope when my drive shaft broke, and as I did not want to leave the tuck in Port Hope, but wanted it in Peterborough, I 'phoned Mr. Bestard, who maintains an A.L.A. service for the motorist who has a membership in the association, and he came down and towed me home so I could get fixed up. I have only had a membership in this association a short time, but as the cost of towing my truck to Peterborough is paid by the A.L.A., it has already paid me for being a member.

"Yours truly,
"P. DE CARLONIS."

Mr. Motorist, when you are in trouble with your car the A.L.A. will give you more service for the small investment of membership than any other agency.

The above letter from a satisfied member speaks for itself. You may be the next to need assistance.

The thought will soothe our pain,
That we shall still be joined in heart
And one day meet again.

KILLS SWEETHEART ENDED OWN LIFE

Maddened by Jealousy, a Montreal Man Wields Razor to Fatal Effect.

MONTREAL, Sept. 10. — Jealousy over relations of girl he had( brought from Italy to marry, with men in her homeland is believed by the police to have caused Pietro Lemmetti, aged 26, to kill his 27-year old sweetheart Marie Modelino Delesandro and then to end his own life with a razor at the home of his sister, Mrs. Augustine Maggi, Tetreaultville, on the outskirts of Montreal this morning. Couple were to have been married in a few days.

Mrs. Maggi told the police, that while she was out in front of the house this morning, she thought she heard groans from the room in which were the two lovers. Believing that one of them might have taken ill, she repaired for the house and tried to gain admission to the room. She heard faltering footsteps on the other side of the door, a key turned in the lock and her brother stood before her. There was a terrible gash in his throat, from which blood was streaming. Behind him on the bed, and only partly dressed was the body of his fiancee. Her throat was also cut.

As he opened the door, Lemmetti spun on his heel and collapsed on the bed over the corpse of his sweetheart.

The story of the tragedy is said by the police to have been one of a life-long love, culminating in the discovery by the would-be groom, that his sweetheart had not been true to him during the long years of separation.

WHIRLWIND OF FLAME

By Moto Takata, Assistant Foreign Editor Osaka Mainichi, written for the United Press; Copyright 1923 by the United Press; Copyright in Great Britain and Canada.

OSAKA, Sept. 10—A story of how 32,000 survivors of the Tokio earthquake were burned alive in a huddled screaming struggling mass at Honjo was told to-day by the lone survivor, singed and nearly crazed, who dragged himself to Osaka. The man told a tale of unparalleled horror in what was probably the worst tragedy of the quake. He says:

"The flames were driven by the wind out into the space where thousands of us stood crowded helplessly.

"Screams arose as those about me felt their faces and flesh seared by the fire.

Packed in Compound

"Every one tried to make their way to the western side of the compound, which was already full they were packed in, thirty-two thousand of them unable to move further

"Then flames broke out there, and the crowds on the edge, surging back trampled hundreds to death. Cries and screams filled the air in deafening profusion.

Humans Devoured

"Then a terrible whirlwind of flame swept the compound, devouring humans as it had the houses.

"I was forced back to the eastern edge; then providentially I reached the edge of a big pool.

"Into this pool I lunged seizing a thick bed quilt, which was swirled in my direction by the high wind.

"Almost subconsciously I wrapped myself in this, soaking with water from the pool.

"The shrieks of the victims were incessant, hundreds were being burned alive at each caprice of the wind.

"The flames approached me and so intense was the heat that my soaked bed quilt was instantly dried up.

"I jumped again into the pool, which was also drying up and rolled up and down along the muddy bottom.

Trampled to Death

"Occasionally the milling, tortured crowd would open and I could catch glimpses of others further away being burned or trampled to death. The baggage they had brought with them feeding the flames.

"I felt delirious with the heat and horrors all about me. It was nine o'clock at night when I recovered consciousness.

"On every side of me was acres of burned bodies. A stench from these was terrible.

Among Charred Dead

"I was the lone survivor among the charred dead.

"I sought vainly again for my parents and my sisters, but all the bodies looked alike, burnt beyond recognition.

"In the morning I looked again, in vain. Finally, the soldiers got me out or I could never have done so.

Cut Victims' Throats

Among stories from passengers on board Steamer Empress of Australia which has arrived here from Yokohoma, is one obtained from two women residents of Shanghai, who were spending their holiday at Dzushi, 20 miles from Yokohama. They say they rushing toward outskirts of city, and saw Koreans rob people and then cut their throats. Party of Japanese firemen rounded up many of these ghouls and killed them.

"A gruesome sight was witnessed in Yokohama. Passengers in street car, all were electrocuted and were sitting in car in natural attitude.

"Many Koreans have been killed by infuriated mobs since earthquake It is said that C. E. Morse of International Banking Corporation and Manager Mollison of Hong Kong-Shanghai Bank, were murdered."

BOOST THE CAUSE

The public are reminded that the annual Tag Day for the Children's Aid Society falls this year on Saturday, 15th September, last day of Peterborough's Exhibition.

The cause — welfare of orphaned and neglected children—is one which should appeal to all, and with ever-growing demands on the Society, it is hoped that the tag boxes will show commensurate increase.

In example of the splendid efforts of this organisation, it is interesting to note that under the Adoption Act, ten cases have been handled and ten babies placed in good homes, where they will be brought up as members of the families and in the fear of God and that respect for the moral and civil laws of communities which assures exemplary citizenship.

Let everybody see to it that they are tagged on Saturday next.

Seven Sisters Hold a Reunion

YOUNGSTOWN, O., September 10. — For the first time in their lives, seven sisters are eating from the same table together.

They are the children of Samuel and Augusta McCreary.

The youngest is 56; the oldest 73. And by a strange twist of time never before have all been in one house at the same time.

The older daughters were married before the younger ones were born at their original home at New Castle, Pa.

Then came the passing of time, and the scattering. Some went east, some south, and some north.

One of them conceived the idea of a reunion. Bags were packed and from the farthest corners of the country the sisters wended their way to the home of Mrs. Ella Porter, here.

The sisters came from pioneer stock and can trace their family history back for generations.

They say they hope this reunion won't be the last one.

ENGLAND FACING A MENACE OF TWO MILLION IDLE MEN

To Feed Workless Has Already Cost Empire a Billion and a Half—A Generation Which Knows Nothing of Work.

LONDON, Sept. 10. — (United Press.)—For the fourth time since the end of the war England faces a "black winter of unemployment."

At Christmas time, 1920, there were just over half a million workless listed on the unemployment exchanges in the British Isles.

One year later the number had increased to 1,700,000.

Last year a decrease of about 400,000 served only to aggravate the plight of the luckless thousands still out of work.

The "army of the unemployed" is pitifully slow to demobilize.

This year the problem is no nearer solution. These idle thousands are supported by the dole, a post-war and temporarily intended expedient whereby those who do work support those who do not.

The vicious possibilities of such subsidized though unavoidable, loafing is becoming apparent to Britain's leaders.

"It is better," declares J. R. Clynes, a Labor member of Parliament, and admittedly a sane and capable economist, "to pay in wages one pound sterling a week for productive, serviceable employment than to give away ten or fifteen shillings for absolute idleness."

Estimates 2,000,000 Idle.

Clynes estimates the peak of the coming winter's unemployment will find two million men out of work. With their dependents, that means that close to ten million persons will be directly affected by the scarcity of work.

It will cost the Government $250,000,000, according to Clynes, to prevent starvation among the workless during the winter.

Already more than one billion and a half dollars have been dumped into the insatiable maw of unemployment. The State has paid much of it. Some has been furnished by municipal authorities. A tremendous sum has been paid directly by employed workers in the form of unemployment insurance allotments.

The immediate source is of small moment. In the end the money comes from the scanty post-war productive surplus of the country. It is money which otherwise might have gone to add new curtains to a miner's home, or buy tires for the manager's automobile, or, perhaps, finance a millionaire's trip around the world.

The temper of the workless, when for the fourth winter they find themselves literally out in the cold, will be bitter. In 1920, 1921 and 1922 they felt themselves sorely deserted and resented it. They were angry and did not conceal it.

For women during those winters, to appear with expensive furs was to invite loud and unpleasant remarks from the workless who swarmed the streets. Profiteer-looking persons were served in the same way.

Youth is Idle.

During the four years of unemployment has grown up a problem that even work for all may not solve.

Eight hundred thousand youths who became of working age in 1920 have never worked. They have attached themselves to some governmental source of sustenance, or their parents have done it for them, and they are loafing away their lives with neither a thought nor a desire for work.

If a great class of permanent parasites has arisen in the last four years, the serious consequences will persist until the last of the younger genertaion is dead and buried in a pauper's grave.

The insistent cry for work is growing in volume. It echoes in the houses of the rich as in the hovels of the poor. The hopeless burden of millions of workless is a menace as great as any England has met in a thousand years of war-like history.

CLAIMS DISMISSED BY JUDGE HUYCKE

Action Resulting From Motor Car Accident Is Disposed of with Costs.

In the Division Court, before Judge Huycke, Robert Henderson, of Gilmour street, sued Frank Montgomery, a hotel keeper, for damages for an accident which took place at the corner of Park and Hunter street, last May.

Mr. Henderson was driving down Park Street with his family and Mr. Mongomery's car was being driven west on Charlotte street, when the cars met at the inter-section, and Mr. Henderson's car was damaged to the extent of $63.00, while Mr. Montgomery's car required to have $11; expended to repair it. Mr. Henderson took proceedings against Mr. Montgomery for the amount of his claim, and Mr. Montgomery counter claimed for the damage that he suffered.

His Honour Judge Huycke dismissed the claim and counter-claim with costs in each case.

Mr. G. N. Gordon K.C., appeared for Mr. Frank Montgomery, and Mr. Joseph Wearing appeared for Mr. Henderson.

DECIDE CANADIAN POLICY IN CANADA

Definite Statement by Hon. Ernest Lapointe.

L'ISEL, Quebec., September 10.—Canadian Press. — Canadian Policies must be decided in Canada and by Canadians, and the parliament of Canada must be the supreme authority in the matter.

Such was the definite statement made by Hon. Ernest LaPointe, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries at the meeting held here yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Lapointe was replying to the charge of the Right. Hon. Mr. Meighen a short time ago, when he claimed that representatives of Canada who had gone to London to the Imperial conference, had no policies to put before the delegates.

"The leader of the Opposition," he said, "would like us to express our willingness to adopt and accept every proposal which might be made to us. We are part of the British Empire and as such we are invited to the conference. It is well that we should take part in the deliberations but the people of Canada through their representatives in Parliament will have the last word to say as to what proposals or suggestions should be acted upon.

"Under existing circumstances, for example, I do not see that we should subscribe to any scheme involving military or naval expenditure, and no doubt such will be the attitude of our representatives at the conference and the final opinion of the Canadian Parliament.

Coldest Room in World

WHERE TEMPERATURE IS 317 DEGREES BELOW ZERO.

FORT WORTH, Texas, September 10.— Fort Worth folks have as much hot weather complaint as any other town's citizenry—yet right here is the coldest spot on earth!

Furthermore, it stays that way—at a temperature of 317 below zero. That's right, 317 below.

The government's helium plant is the scene of the extreme coolness. Natural gas is liquefied at this temperature, so the helium can be extracted for use in the army and navy dirigibles.

Special safeguards are maintained to keep these rooms insulated from the rest of the plant. There's a reason. Lieutenant R. E. Davenport, in charge, gives some.

"If a person would just put his hand in that temeprature, his hand would in one second freeze so solidly that it would drop off.

"Put a piece of beefsteak in there and then drop it to the floor; it would break into a thousand pieces, flying in all directions.

"A lead pencil would do the same and steel pipes when subjected to but part of that temperature shrink so quickly, that all paint drops from them. A human body would also become so brittle it would fall to pieces."

Helium, which is extracted from the liquefied gas is non-inflamable, and possesses 92 per cent. of the buoyancy of hydrogen. Its use in dirigible airships will make them immune from the explosion disasters of the la stfew years.

After helium is extraced, the gas goes back to the city mains, as good as ever for cooking the family dinner.

Meantime, Forth Worth folks choose to swelter under the hot sun rather than frequent the city's coolest place.

REVIEW OF THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(Special).—World affairs at the start of the new week exhibited the greatest degree of composure seen for some time. With Greece and Italy in more amicable terms, Germany and France ready to open reparations negotiations, and the anthracite strike out of the way, most of the recent disturbing factors were removed. Stocks had a confident tone in the early dealings.

Canadian shares were the outstanding features of the industrial group. Continental established a record high for the year at 52 5-8, while American moved up a point to 99½.

In the carrier list Southern Railway was the leader, reaching new high ground on the movement at 35¾ on exceptionally heavy sales. Trading slackened after the early dealings and the market was uninteresting for the balance of the first hour. An example of the prevailing dullness was the failure of Gulf States Steel, one of the recent speculative favorites to appear on the tape before 10.45.

The low-priced rails, especially Erie and the Frisco issues and Southern Railway, continued active, but further gains were not sizeable.

Cosden was the feature of the oils, moving up to 31, up over one point net, on reports that the present payment would be continued when the directors meet for dividend action next week. Westinghouse responded to the record volume of business by selling around its best price over the current recovery at 60¾. Orders booked for the three months ended June 30 were $47,649,000, an annual rate of $190,000,000 against the total sales of $125,166,000 for the fiscal year to March 31. July bookings were about $19,600,000, or 26 per cent. ahead of the average for the preceding three months. Unfilled orders stand at $78,000,000, or sufficient for about six months' operations.

Opening prices, pays included; Burns Brothers 25¼, up ¼; Republic [illegible] 1-8; Sinclair 20 7-8, up ¼; United States Steel 92 5-8, off [illegible] Canada 123 3-4, off ½; Pan-Petroleum 50 5-8, up 3-8; Can. 99, up ½; Baltimore and Ohio 50½; St. Paul 17½, up 3-8; Erie 14 3-4, off 1-8; United States Rubber 42 3-8, off 5-8; Atchison 98; Southern Pacific 88 3-4, off 1-8; N.Y. Central 100 3-8, up 1-8; Southern Railway 34 7-8, up 3-8.

TWO MEN FOUND WITH THROATS CUT

Strange Case Being Investigated by Montreal Police.

MONTREAL, Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Bodies of two Italians were found this morning at their home in Tetrautville on outskirts of Montreal. Both had their throats cut. Police, who are investigating believe it to be a case of murder and suicide.

SHOULD EVINCE MORE INTEREST IN THE WORLD

Canadians Must Study World Politics and be More Familiar With Developments.

ROTARIANS ARE TOLD

The desirability of Canadians taking a deeper interest in world politics, particularly in regard to the affairs of the British Commonwealth of Nations, was stressed by Lieut.-Colonel Charles Ackerman, in the course of a most interesting address to the Peterborough Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon to-day. Col. Ackerman spoke on impressions of his recent trip to Europe, and his remarks were closely followed by the Rotarions.

There was an 82 per cent. attendance to-day, while V. J. McElderry was back in the chair after a month's vacation.

Rotarian Jack Primeau announced that the Rotarp Bantams had captured the city bantam championship, winning eleven out of twelve games, and as there is no other bantam league in the O.B.A.A., the Rotary kids are also Ontario champions in this class.

It was intimated by President McElderry that the directors would consider some way of recognizing the exploits of the champion bantams.

In commencing his address, Col. Ackerman compared his impressions of his three visits to England, in 1909, when Canadians were looked upon in the Old Country as "Colonials; in 1914, when they had been tested by the acid of war; and in the present year when Canadian prestige in the Mother Country had reached a high level. To keep it at this present standard, the speaker pointed out, Canadians must be ready to take some responsibility in regard to the government of the British Comomnwealth, and must endeavor to familiarize themselves with world problems, just as the Englishman of to-day is doing.

Speaking of the unemployment, Col. Ackerman said that the manufacturers of the Old Land anticipated a bad season during the coming winter unless the European difficulties were speedily cleared up.

The speaker gave a most interesting description of the unveiling of the Canadian memorial shaft at St. Julien, at which he was in attendance. The Crown Prince of Belgium, the Duke of Connaught, General French, Marshall Foch, Sir Richard Turner, V.C., representing the Canadian Government, and other famous personages took part in the ceremony, and it was a unique experience for those Canadians who had participated in the fighting near this point eight years before. Col. Ackerman described a visit to the Ypres battle line, nearly all traces of which have now disappeared. Pilken's Woods, for example, has nearly all been replaced by a wheat field, and every available inch of ground is being cultivated.

The speaker had the unusual, to Canadians, at least, experience of flying from Paris to Croydon, near London, in a Handley-Page flying machine, and described the voyage through the air in a vivid manner.

In conclusion he referred to the League of Nations, which he compared to the Rotary Club ,announcing that a League of Nations Society would be organized in Peterboro this autumn for the purpose of educating the community to the aims and objects of the organization.

A letter of appreciation was read from Rev. Father Finn of St. Peter's Cathedral, thanking the Rotary Club on behalf of the Holy Name Society boys, for the use of the Boys' Camp at Clear Lake.

CLOTHING WANTED EARTHQUAKE ZONE

The Greatest Problem is Housing Millions of Homeless.

OSAKA, Sept. 10. — (Canadian Press).—After a week of supreme effort, conditions in the earthquake zone show a remarakble improvement. The food supply in Tokio has been virtually assured, but clothing is wanted, especially in view of the approaching autumn season. The greatest problem is the housing of the millions of homeless who at the present time are facing the usual autumnal rainfall. The exodus from Tokio by rail and sea aggregates thousands of persons daily. Reports show that order is being maintained in Tokio and in Yokohama. Tokio will remain the capital of Japan, according to a formal statement said to have been issued to-day by Premier Yamamoto.

BOARD HEALTH WILL ENFORCE SANITARY RULE

Orders to Install Sanitary Conveniences Must Be Obeyed — Legal Action Contemplated.

MILK SUPPLY GOOD

More strict enforcement of the regulations for the installation of sanitary conveniences was decided on at this morning's meeting of the Board of Health.

Mr. E. F. Mason declared it the duty of the Board to complete the work initiated in this direction. Everything possible should be done to put the city in a sanitary condition, he said.

Sanitary Inspector C. S. Stapleton complained that many people who have outdoor closets will not apply for the sewer connection.

Dr. W. H. Young, referring to the resolution passed at the last meeting of the Board, leaving action in his hands, said Mr. Wearing is willing to prosecute where necessary. The Sanitary Inspector was instructed to give his list of unsanitary houses to Dr. Young, who will consult with the solicitor of the Board.

Some of the people complained of had received notice on May 17 and have not yet complied with the request of the Board.

Market Square.

Dr. Young reported complaints that the Market Square is not cleaned up after the Saturday market, but is left in a disgusting condition. A basket of eggs, it is said, was broken and remained on the square for some days.

Mayor Taylor promised to attend to this.

No Water Available.

Two good houses on Wolfe Street were reported without sewer connection, although the tenants want it installed. It was reported that while the sewer passes the houses there is no water available. Pumps are within eight or ten feet of the closets.

Mr. Mason said the matter of extending the water main was under consideration by the Utilities Commission. "Under the Railway Act," he said, "we cannot put down mains on streets where there would not be sufficient revenue to pay for them."

Attend to Requests.

If requests for sewer connection are received before the next meeting of the City Council they will be forwarded to that body in order that the work may be completed before freeze-up.

Vacuum Cleaner.

A vacuum cleaner will be purchased for the Isolation Hospital, on motion of Dr. Young and Mr. Mason.

City Building Imperfect.

The Sanitary Inspector complained that an upstairs closet in the City Building is unsanitary, having no window. This will be investigated.

Dr. Young reported that the last milk test was satisfactory.

Houses Needing Sewer.

The following houses were reported as needing sewer connection. Some of the owners have applied for installation: 237½ Princess, 346 London, 246, 258 and 244 Antrim; 412 and 414 London, 458 Mark, 639 Rubidge and 427 George Street South.

There were present at this morning's session: George H. Duncan, chairman; Mayor W. H. Taylor, James Lynch, E. F. Mason, Dr. T. W. H. Young, medical health officer; C. S. Stapleton, sanitary inspector, and A. G. Metheral, plumbing inspector.

The following accounts were passed for payment:

W. H. Hamilton, $13.85; Harrison's, $5.25; James Juby, $3.50; W. J. Kent, $11.05; F. J. Lynch, $1.25; Roland Denne, $10; W. A. J. Giles, $9.90; McDermid & Jury, $1.50; T. L. Edwards, $14.72; James Abraham, $20.04; J. C. Turnbull Co., Ltd., $8.50; Porter S. White Co., $20.70; Peterboro Examiner, Ltd., $1.15; Sanitary Ice Supply, $10; Richard Hall & Son, $9; Utilities Commission, $24.05; William Brown $16.10; R. J. Soden, $1.25; J. Penrose, $19.17; N. F. Stabler, $16.53; J. John, $13.40; Can. Packing Co., Ltd., $10.18; Bell Telephone Company, $7.01; T. Anthony, $11.96.

All the big cities of Holland may soon adopt complete automatic telephone systems.

PETERBOROUGH RANGERS. THE REGIMENT WILL COMMENCE ITS FALL TRAINING ON TUESDAY, 11TH SEPT., 1923. ALL MEMBERS AND INTENDING MEMBERS ARE REQUESTED TO BE ON HAND AT 7.45 P.M.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

The A. B. C. of the Pulpwood Embargo

Sir,—

In view of the grave national situation in connection with our forest resources and the many foolish and wilfully misleading statements that are being circulated regarding the pulpwood embargo, I feel it incumbent on me to summarize conditions.

My main contention is that what wood it may be necessary to cut in Canada shall be manufactured in Canada so that not only Canadians may receive the full benefit of their own devastation, but that the wood shall be manufactured at or as near as possible to the district where it was produced, so that the farmer on whose land it was cut may not only have a market nearby for his wood, but also have a mill built and a town developed that will provide a home market for his farm produce as well as furnish extra work for himself and family.

Is there a man or woman in the whole Dominion of Canada who will say it would not be better for the country to manufacture pulpwood at home, thereby leaving $50 in the country for every cord of wood cut, instead of exporting it and bringing in only the $8 to $15 per cord which is now being obtained?

No one would be permanently injured by an embargo. The moment it is applied, the Americans have frankly told us, a considerable portion of their mills in the United States will be put out of business. This means that these mills will be forced to move to Canada. It takes less than a year's time to build a pulp mill and with the same number of mills operating there would be just as great a demand for the farmer's wood and just as much competition for the purchase of pulpwood. Just as high prices would be paid, in fact, a greater demand would arise as with the advent of new mills there would be greater conservation practiced by the pulp and paper companies on their own holdings and larger purchases made of farmers' wood.

This influx of new mills would not take a matter of one or two years but would begin instantaneously as the supply of newsprint paper in the U. S. must be maintained and if they cannot ship the raw wood across the line to be manufactured in their own country, they will not only be forced immediately to move these mills to Canada but they will be only too glad of the opportunity afforded to manufacture their pulp or paper so near home, rather than be forced to move to the Pacific Coast where they would have to ship the manufactured product three thousand miles to the great consuming centres. Practically all the machinery from existing mills could be moved to Canada and their water powers in the U. S. sold for other purposes at a sufficiently high figure to enable them to acquire new sites in the Dominion and sufficient left to more than pay the cost of the erection of new mills in this country so that no one in the transaction would be injured and, what is of first importance to us, Canadians immeasurably benefited thereby.

In any sections of Canada not served by water power, the wood can be utilized by the erection of sulphite, sulphate or soda pulp mills, none of which require any water power for their operation.

In all the short-sighted and silly arguments advanced against the embargo, the public good is entirely lost sight of as completely as if such a thing as the public were a nonentity, or, in other words, it is simply a case of "the public be damned," and only the interest of a few foreign exploiters is to be considered.

When the so-called selfish interest of the Canadian Pulp & Paper industry is referred to, the important fact is also lost sight of that without this industry Canada would be practically bankrupt today as this industry is one of the financial bulwarks of Canada. The wood using industry is now an an equal with agriculture as a revenue producer, and without it not only would thousands of employees and whole cities and towns and farming communities be put out of business, but our newspapers would be forced to import high-priced newsprint paper.

It has been stated that we have "vast wooded areas in Canada yet which will become just as accessible as the northern clay-belt is today." In reply to this fallacy, I will simply refer the writer to the report and map of the James Bay Survey made in 1922 by the Government of Ontario which conclusively shows these so-called "vast wooded areas" of the north to be but a myth consisting largely of either burns, muskeg or scrub, with the small patches of green wood so scattered or remote as to be not only inaccessible to operation but to fire protection as well, and as fire is ravaging that country unchecked, what wood is now left there will very soon have disappeared in smoke. With this vast area eliminated our supply is restricted to the comparatively narrow strip of wooded country that is open to the inspection of everyone, and this is the supply that is not only being depleted by pests and all the elements, including our increasing fire scourge, but is supplying 104 Canadian Mills with their raw material, and is also being exported in sufficient quantities to keep in operation 44 American mills of a capacity of one hundred tons of newsprint each per day, in addition to a countless number of saw mills, millions of railway ties and mine props, millions of telegraph and telephone poles, fence posts, and several million cords of firewood.

If the facts published are not sufficient to convince the most skeptical, there are many more equally convincing and much more alarming still, that are ready for the public if it becomes necessary in order to awaken those who are apparently asleep.

FRANK J. D. BARNJUM.

Efficient Housekeeping

The modern idea of efficiency extends into the household as well as into every branch of business. Most housewives pride themselves upon the fact that their homes are conducted in an efficient, business-like manner.

Every housewife knows, too, that the business of running a house, providing for the wants and needs of the different members of the family and meeting the almost daily emergencies is second to none.

The Want Ads. in the Examiner are a great boon to the efficient housewife. In securing helpers, in purchasing various articles of household equipment, disposing of discarded furniture, in fact in countless ways, the Want Ads. are the housewife's most valuable assistant.

THIEVES WALK OFF WITH SAFE

Removed the Hinges of Bakery Door — Loot Amounts to $12.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Sept. 9.—(Canadian Press.)—Early this morning the bakery and confectionery store of W. J. Holmes in Owen Sound's main business district, was broken into and the small safe in the store carried off bodily. The rear door of the store was forced open and a second door leading into the main store was opened by means of removing the hinges, the screws being carefully taken out and carried away. It must have required two or three men at least to move the small safe, which weighed about four hundred pounds. The loss was discovered this morning about eight o'clock when the front door was found open. The burglars will get very little reward for their labors, when they succeed in getting it open, for there was only twelve dollars and some cents in it. Mr. Holmes had taken Saturday's cash receipts with him when he left the store Saturday evening.

RECORD QUAKE ON SEISMOGRAPH

Two Disturbances Reported at American Station

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 10.—An earthquake of moderate intensity was recorded between 5:23 and 6:40 p.m. to-day on the seismograph at Georgetown University. Father Tondorf, the Seismologist, said it was very difficult from the record to determine the distance of the disturbance, but he estimated it centered 2,300 or 2,400 miles from Washington. It had two periods of maximum intensity, at six, and at 6:15 o'clock.

LIFE IN THIS PUMPKIN YET.

DEATH BELIEVED DUE TO HOOTCH

Odor of "Wintergreen" From Port Arthur Man in Hospital.

PORT ARTHUR, Sept. 9.—Thomas Holliday is dead in hospital here as the result of what physicians believe to be from drinking a poisoned concoction as a beverage. Holliday was removed to hospital from a local hotel and died five hours later. The doctor who attended him states there was an odor of "wintergreen" from Holliday's breath. Wintergreen, chemists say, is sometimes used in embrocations and with rubbing alcohol. Coincident with the death of Holliday, Gerald Galvin succumbed from at present unknown causes. Galvin was not with Holliday. Coroner Laurier has ordered a postmortem and an inquest in both cases. Galvin is stated to have been a sufferer from heart failure and asthma.

A CAR ACCIDENT MAY PROVE FATAL

John Bent of Omemee Sustained a Fractured Skull.

OMEMEE, Sept. 10.—When an automobile turned over twice on King Street at 8.30 on Sunday evening, John Bent suffered a fractured skull, a broken shoulder bone and serious injury to his chest, as a result of which he was still unconscious this morning. Reuben Reeds, owner and driver of the car, sustained a broken shoulder bone and two broken ribs. Harry Burdess received minor cuts on his face, and Wilbert Clemett suffered several cuts on his head. The car is a complete wreck.

The accident occurred as the automobile was proceeding west on King Street. The driver turned out to pass another car, and suddenly came in view of a third car standing by the roadside. Applying the brakes quickly to avoid a collision, the car rolled over twice before coming to rest with the victims underneath.

NOTABLE ACHIEVEMENT

TORONTO, September 10. Canadian Press. — An attendance of 1,493,000, which was only seven thousand short of the goal of the directors, was the mark which the 45th year of the Canadian National Exhibition attained on Saturday night when it closed. It was a notable achievement—the greatest of which the fair can boast in all its history.

MARMORA NEWS

MARMORA, Sept. 9.—The Public school underwent a thorough cleaning, painting and renovating before the opening of school.

The annual convention of the Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora Sunday School Association will meet in the Methodist church at Springbrook on Sept. 11. A good programme is prepared and everyone interested in Sunday school work is cordially invited.

The school fair for Rawdon township will be held at Springbrook on Monday, Sept. 17. The Marmora school fair is on September 25th in connection with the Fall Fair.

Mr. Clarence Gladney and Rev. D. R. Clare, two Albert College old boys, with their wives, attended the Albert College old boys' re-union on Thursday evening. The programme was given by ex-students and the selections were mainly the favourites of long ago. ## Reduction in Capital of Riordan Company.

MONTREAL, Sept. 10.— (Canadian Press.)—The re-organization of Riordan Company, which has been mailed and will be in the hands of some five thousand shareholders of the company to-day, calls for a reduction in capital from 47 million dollars to about 22 million dollars, and reduction of about fifteen million dollars in funded and other indebtedness, while the old first mortgage six per cent debentures and first and refunding mortgage eight per cent. bonds will aggregate $7,558,000.

ITALIANS AND GREEKS ACCEPT COUNCIL TERMS

Italy Will Evacuate Corfu When Her Demands Are Complied With.

REPLIES RECEIVED.

PARIS, September 10 (Canadian Press). — Greece's acceptance of the terms of the Council of Ambassadors in connection with the Italo-Greco controversy was received officially at the French Foreign Office yesterday.

The acceptance lays particular insistence upon the evacuation of Corfu by the Italians at the soonest possible moment.

Italy accepts the terms of the Council of Ambassadors and agrees to evacuate Corfu and adjacent islands when Greece has satisfied all of Italy's demands for reparations.

THE GREEK REPLY.

ATHENS, September 10 (Canadian Press) — The Greek reply to the note of the Council of Ambassadors was forwarded to Paris yesterday. It was described by M. Alexanderis, Foreign Minister, as broadly accepting the conditions presented, and as leaving to the Ambassadors the fixing of the date and details of the salute, funeral service, and other formalities.

In a statement to the newspapers, the Foreign Minister termed the solution of the crisis as a Greek diplomatic victory inasmuch as the inquiry into the murders is to be made by the various nations, while the tribunal will fix the indemnity.

There was much gratification in Italy yesterday over what was considered the acknowledgment of Premier Mussolini's right in demanding reparations from Greece for killing the members of the Greco-Albanian Commission.

Greece has sent an ultimatum to Albania, demanding delivery within five days of those responsible for the murder of the Italian Mission, according to Greek newspapers.

WANTS PROTECTION FOR THE CONSUMER

President Coolidge Asked to Safeguard Public Against Increase in the Price of Coal.

HARRISBURG, September 10 (Canadian Press). — Governor Pinchot, in a letter to President Coolidge last night, suggested that with an anthracite coal supply assured for the coming winter, as a result of the agreement reached by representatives of the operators and miners on Saturday night, steps be taken to safeguard the consumer against increased prices.

John L. Lewis, the miners' leader, who has returned to Philadelphia, expressed himself as well satisfied with the wage conference which resulted in a 10 per cent. increase for all anthracite mine workers, and a two-year contract.

Representatives of the anthracite operators and miners last night agreed upon the terms of a proposed new two-year wage contract. The Union Scale Committee immediately approved the agreement, and fixed 17th September as the date for a tri-district convention at Scranton, at which it will be submitted for ratification by the miners.

Meighen Predicts Early Return to Power at Ottawa

WINNIPEG, Sept. 9.—Professing to see everywhere signs of a revivifying influence within the ranks of the organization, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative opposition, speaking at a Conservative women's picnic here Saturday afternoon, forecast an early return to power of the Conservative party.

"We are now on the crest of the wave and if we manage our craft right we shall be well on the road to victory," he said. "Signs are aplenty that the party is coming back and we shall soon have another chance to show the country that most of the constructive legislation is placed on the statute books when the Conservative party is in power."

PRICE OF COAL WILL INCREASE AFTER STRIKE

Fairly Adequate Supply Expected in Toronto Before Winter.

TORONTO, Sept. 10.—Coal will again go up in price. This will be the outcome so far as the public is concerned of the anthracite miners' strike, which has now been practically settled by the willingness of the operators to grant an increase in wages. Although the public will pay for the silver lining of the strike cloud, they will, however be recompensed by the assurance of a fairly adequate supply of fuel before the real cold weather sets in.

Mr. H. G. Ratcliffe, secretary of the Conger-Lehigh Coal Company, Limited, who had just returned to Toronto from Philadelphia stated on Saturday that if the strike is settled on the forms now tentatively agreed upon it would mean an increase in the price of Anthracite coal to the consumers. Just what the increase would amount to had not yet been ascertained, but consumers could rest assured that it would not be unduly excessive.

Half Have Coal in

Asked regarding the local fuel situation, Mr. Ratcliffe said that fully fifty per cent. of the Toronto consumers had their Winter's supply of coal in. If the miners were back on the job within ten days, as now expected there would be no need for worry by those who had not yet got in their coal.

The period of the strike would probably not have exceeded two weeks and the result of this short cessation from work would never be noticed as the mines had, with that exception, been operated without letup since last April.

Mr. Ratcliffe considered that all big coal demands would be met within the next six weeks to two months, which would be well before the real cold weather set in. After two months the only wants the dealers would have to supply would be those of the small consumers who purchase their coal by the ton as they require it.

Toronto speculators are said to be offering sixty cents and certain Montreal interests are offering seventy cents.

MILLIONS OF TONS OF OIL BLAZED THROUGH STREETS OF YOKOHAMA

Houses on Cliff Hurled In to City — Ground Heaved Like the Waves of the Sea--Water Gushed From Wrenched Mains—Bodies in the Cemetery Were Disinterred.

GLIMPSES OF JAPAN'S DISASTER.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press).—At the first shock of the earthquake the great oil tanks on the hillside above the Yokosuka cable station exploded and millions of tons of oil swept down upon the city, turning the harbor into a mass of flames. The walls of the Negeshi Prison collapsed and 5,000 convicts were released. The most desperate of these sought to profit by looting and murdering the disabled. Hastily formed bodies of citizens, however, hunted out the miscreants and exacted a summary death penalty.

The American hospital is reported to have been hurled from the bluff to the cemetery below, tearing open the earth and exhuming the bodies of many of those interred there.

Houses Hurled From Hill.

The stories of the earthquake as narrated by eye-witnesses epict scenes rivalling in horror the popular representations of the Buddhist Hell. Business men were about to leave their offices in Yokohama at the close of Saturday morning's work, when, without warning and with a tremendous roar, the ground heaved up four or five feet and then dropped back again. Houses on the bluff were precipitated headlong into the city. The ground rocked, heaved and swayed like the waves of the sea. Fugitives fleeing from the falling buildings found their way blocked by huge, gaping holes, some of them large enough to admit a horse and wagon.

Water Spouted From Broken Mains.

Peril was added by the rising water from the water mains which burst everywhere; this, with fire, blocked all the exits from the city. Hundreds sought to escape from a fiery death by rushing toward the Moto Machi Canal, while some, who endeavored to cross on wooden lighters, were overtaken by blazing oil which flowed from the exploded tanks, and met a terrible death. Still others, panic-stricken, flung themselves into the water an met an equally dreadful fate. The canal was soon choked with floating bodies.

People leaped into the sea in their frenzy to escape the deluge of red hot cinders from the blazing ruins.

True Beauty

Is impossible to those who leave film on teeth

Prettier teeth form one great beauty item. And millions now enjoy them. Every day they are combating the dingy coats of film.

This offers you a ten-day test of the method they employ. It is used by dainty people of some 50 nations now. And you will always use it when you once see what it does.

That cloudy film

The clouds on teeth are due to film — that viscous film you feel. Much of it clings and stays on teeth under old-way brushing.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats which hide the luster of the teeth.

Film also causes most tooth troubles. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Hardly one in fifty, in the old days, escaped these film-caused troubles.

New-day methods

Dental science has now found two ways to fight that film. One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. The other removes it without harmful scouring. Those methods were proved effective by many careful tests. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Now that tooth paste is in world-wide use, largely by dental advice. Wherever you go you see the benefits it brings.

Natural ways

Pepsodent acts in natural, gentle ways. Its effects do not come from harsh grit.

Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, also its starch digestant. One is to neutralize mouth acids, the other to digest starch deposits. These great natural tooth-protecting agents gain manifold power from each use.

Pepsodent will bring you a new conception of what clean teeth mean. Send for this 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the cloudy coats disappear.

Do this for your own sake and your family's sake. Cut out the coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

BOOSTING THE EXHIBITION.

The decision of the Kiwanis Club to hold its luncheon this week at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition is an evidence of the fact that the business and professional men of the city are lining themselves solidly behind the Exhibition.

That is the spirit that will make the Peterborough Industrial one of the biggest annual fairs in the province.

Once get the community completely organized to put the Exhibition over and nothing can stop it growing.

The Canadian National has reached its present greatness largely because of the faith and enthusiasm of the people of Toronto.

From the crossing sweeper right up to the mayor everybody in Toronto has consistently boosted the "Ex."

Everywhere that Toronto people go they talk about the wonders of the Canadian National.

Holidays are ended so that they can be back in time for the annual event.

Few Queen City people would think of missing it, and so from lake and river they flock back to Toronto.

Naturally their enthusiasm is contagious—it spreads wherever they go until all Ontario people are Exhibition fans.

Peterboro citizens can do much along that line for their own exhibition—if they are enthusiastic as their Toronto brethern.

THE CANADIAN NATIONAL.

The fact that the attendance at the Canadian National Exhibition this year has reached a new high level strikes the Examiner as a pretty conclusive answer to the Montreal "whisper of death" campaign.

When more people than ever before passed through the turnstiles and visited the Canadian National during the last two weeks, business conditions generally and the individual citizens of the country cannot be in such desperate shape as the lamentations from the East would have the world believe.

Canada may be going to the dogs—may be facing bankruptcy or annexation but there were very few signs of it in evidence at the world's greatest annual exhibition.

On the contrary the huge attendance, the wonderful exhibits and all the other features of the Canadian National testified to the prosperity of Canada, to the vast extent of her material resources, and to the happy status of her people.

No one could spend a day at the Exhibition without going away convinced that there is nothing wrong with this country and that Canada is bound to win through to success.

Because the Canadian National is truly both "Canadian" and "National" the Examiner feels that it is voicing the general sentiment of the people of Ontario in congratulating President Miller and his associates upon having established a new record.

THE PROGRESSIVE CONVENTION.

In view of Secretary J. J. Morrison's recent candid statement that the United Farmers of Ontario made a very serious mistake when they embarked on the sea of politics, the announcemnt that a convention of Progressives is to be held in November is of more than usual interest.

The decision to call the convention was made by a committee consisting of six elected U.F.O. members and six representatives of the U.F.O., and it is declared will function along the lines of Mr. Drury's celebrated "broadening out" policy with both farmers and urban dwellers as delegates.

Just where such a move leaves the U.F.O. in regard to politics is difficult to conjecture.

Certainly Mr. Morrison is not likely to give the convention his blessing, and his influence with the United Farmers is such as to cause a large proportion of the members of the Agrarian organization to hold aloof from a gathering of this kind.

Mr. Drury's policy is, however, not without its friends, not only among the farmers, but with those townsmen who believe that there is a need in Ontario of a third political party.

The question resolves itself into whether or not there are enough of such friends to give a Progressive party, as distinct from the U.F.O., a fighting chance to establish a foothold in Ontario politics

The first consequence of the announcement of the convention is likely to be the fanning of the embers of the Morrison-Drury battle into flames again.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

The attention of the people of Peterborough is called to the fact that the annual tag day on behalf of the Children's Aid Society is to be held on Saturday—earlier in the year than usual.

The objective of this campaign is $2,000, and it is needless to say that every cent of this amount will be required for the society's activities during the next twelve months.

Since the last tag day the Shelter has been practically destroyed by fire, and it has been found necessary to secure other quarters.

In the matter of accommodation, the society is at present more fortunately situated than at any period in its history.

Yet the increased facilities bring with them additional expenditures, and the annual budget will necessarily have to be larger.

In view of these facts, it will readily be understood that the sum aimed at in Saturday's drive is none too much.

As for the work of the society itself it is surely unnecessary to acquaint Examiner readers with what is being accomplished by this organization.

Every citizen must by this time be familiar with the mission of the Children's Aid Society and have a more or less comprehensive idea of what it means to scores of neglected and dependent children to whom it offers a new chance in life.

That being so the mere announcement of the annual tag day should be suffcient.

It is a splendid cause and should, and the Examiner is confident it will, be splendidly supported.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM CONCERNING BANKS.

Although the suspension of the Home Bank has caused some anxiety on the part of bank shareholders as a whole, and also to a certain extent on the part of bank depositors, there is no reason to expect further serious developments, says the Monetary Times. The Canadian banks as a whole are sound, but in the general business adjustment of the past two years, it is only to be expected that certain losses have to be written off. Rather than show the profits that have been made and continue the payment of good dividends, a better policy would have been to provide for the losses to some extent out of current profits rather than let them accumulate and meet them from reserves. However, it amounts to the same thing in the end, and apart from the suspension of the Home, the sale of the Merchants, and the re-organization of the Nationale, only two banks have thus far reduced their reserve fund. The proposed purchase of the Hamilton by the Commerce does not necessarily mean that heavy losses have been incurred.

In relation to Canadian banking as a whole the suspension of the Home is of small importance. The total assets of the Home Bank were just one per cent. of those of all the Canadian banks, and were less than ten per cent. of the total assets of either the Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank or Canadian Bank of Commerce.

There has been fairly heavy selling of bank shares upon the stock exchange, and while in some cases prices have gone down, the decline has not been heavy. This would indicate that there is still confidence on the part of investors in the shares of the banks. In view of the double liability it is in fact somewhat surprising that the shares of the banks continue to sell at prices which yield only from 5½ to 7 per cent. in most cases, or what may be received from investments in municipal bonds and in corporation bonds of the best class.

From the depositors' point of view, the possibility of loss is small. In the case of the Home Bank they should, in the event of liquidation, receive back all or nearly all of their deposits. This would allow for the wiping out of reserve and capital totalling $2,500,000, and, if necessary, the collection of further $2,000,000 from the shareholders, on which perhaps $1,000,000 might be realized. In other words, if the losses totalled $3,500,000 the depositors might receive payment in full. And this would be a very heavy loss for a bank the size of the Home.

ANOTHER "COAL STRIKE" NEEDED!

The compromise agreement submitted by Governor Pinchot after listening to a large number of neutral witnesses and digesting—so far as time allowed—a mass of figures dealing with the mining of anthracite, seems in a fair way of proving acceptable both to the operators and to the men.

The advantage in this compromise seems to rest with the miners. The increase in pay which Mr. Pinchot proposes while below the demands made at Atlantic City is better than nothing at all, and the miners will hardly forget that the operators from the first have stood out consistently against any increase. The operators, however, have always been willing to submit the question at issue to arbitration, which inevitably would mean compromise as well as the loss and inconvenience incident to delay; and they probably realize that under arbitration they might reasonably expect to give at least as liberal concessions to the miners as those which Governor Pinchot sets forth.

There remains, of course, the third party to the dispute, which Governor Pinchot ignores, save to suggest that fifty of the sixty cents which the ten per cent. wage increase would add to the retail price of coal should be borne by the public. The share seems wholly disproportionate. In view of the rumors current last winter of the price boosting by middlemen and also having regard to the high freight charges, it seems unfair to burden the patient ass of the public with five-sixths of an increase given to the miners. Yet the callous way in which the load is placed upon the shoulders of the public should spur the users of antracite, in this country at least, to action.

It is high time that the anhracite users went on strike against that tyrannical fuel. The greater part of this country manages to keep warm without hard coal and it is only within the last thirty years that anthracite has been foisted upon us. By cunning propaganda the belief has been drummed into the householder of this wonderful and necessary coal. Last winter many persons tried experiments with oil burners and this year their number is likely to be increased. Last winter thousands of houses were kept warm with semi-anthracite and not a few with soft coal, while peat, coke and other fuels had an increasing vogue, and even wood, which served our forefathers for many generations, heated many homes.

Anthracite may be a good fuel, although its caloric properties have probably been exaggerated, but it is mined under conditions of such instability that it exasperates those who use it with an increasing annoyance. Perhaps the loading upon the public of an extra fifty cents in order to settle a strike that should never have been called may prove the last straw to break the back of a long-suffering people. The next strike should be a strike by the general public and they should strike against the cruel tyranny and the dictatorship of that bully anthracite.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterborough's big week—the week of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

"50,000 for 1923" may sound big, but the people of this district can put it over if they will match the enthusiasm of the directors.

One thing about the Peterborough Industrial should sink into the mind of the public. All the features cannot be seen in one visit.

Henry Ford with his $7,000,000 appropriation for advertising should put backbone into a lot of people who have been unable to see anything but disaster ahead for business generally.

According to an exchange, jazz is dying. However, it must be admitted that its demise is a noisy one.

Peterborough's street paving programme is beginning to assume respectable proportions. The awakening, however, has been none too soon, for a lot of money has been wasted on repairs that have not lasted until the work has been paid for.

EGG MARKETS.

Stock of Storage Eggs in the United States Heavier Than Last Year.

OTTAWA, September 9 (Canadian Press). — The most interesting feature of the market is the publication by the United States Bureau of Markets of the report of stocks of eggs in storage on 1st September.

These amount to 9,800,000 cases, as compared with 9,586,000 cases for the same date ast year.

The quantity in storage on 1st August was 10,390,000 cases. The movement out of storage during August amounted to 590,000 cases, which is a little bigger than the movement out of storage during August 1922, when it amounted to 547,000 cases.

The effect of the publication of this report will no doubt be seen in the market prices during the next week.

Toronto very firm, specials 45 to 48, extras 43, firsts 37.

Montreal firm and unchanged.

Winnipeg dealers quoting delivered extras 32, firsts 27, seconds 21.

Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia unchanged.

Chicago spot 28 1-2 to 30 1-2, refrigerators weak and unchanged.

New York extras firsts 38 to 41, firsts 34 to 37.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, September 9 (Canadian Press). — The market in cash grain on Saturday was rather quiet, with a firm undertone. There was no important change in the condition of the flour market. The undertone to the millfeed market continues strong, but without price change as yet. There was a fair trade in rolled oats.

The egg market closed strong at the recent price advance. Total receipts from 1st May to date were 320,215 cases, as against 267,931 cases for the same period last year.

Butter prices closed with a net gain of 1 1-8 cents per pound, and are now at the highest level of the season to date. Total receipts from 1st May to date have been 102,958 packages less for the same period of 1922.

Continued strength prevails in the cheese market. Total receipts from 1st May to date have been 62,939 boxes in excess of the same period a year ago.

BUTTER SOLD AT 35c.

FARNHAM, September 9 (Canadian Press). — At the meeting of the Eastern Townships Dairymen's Exchange yesterday, five factories offered 155 packages creamery butter, and all sold at 35 cents per pound.

BELLEVILLE CHEESE.

BELLEVILLE, September 9 (Canadian Press). — The offerings on the Board were yesterday 1,776 boxes of white cheese and 230 boxes of coloured, and all sold at 24 3-16 cents per pound.

CHEESE SALE AT PERTH.

PERTH, Ont., September 9 (Canadian Press). — At the meeting of the Board yesterday there were 900 boxes of cheese offered, and all sold at 23 7-8 cents per pound.

BROCKVILLE CHEESE.

BROCKVILLE, September 9 (Canadian Press). — The registrations of cheese on the Board yesterday were 1,115 boxes white and 1,350 boxes of coloured, or a total of 2,465 boxes, and the sales totalled 1,350 boxes at 23 13-16 cents per pound.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, September 9 (Canadian Press). — Surprise at assertions that the three Prairie Provinces of Canada would harvest 78,000,000 more bushels of wheat this year than a year ago led to moderate declines to-day in prices for wheat.

Closing prices were unsettled 3-8c to 7-8c; net lower, with December $1.06 1-4 to $1.06 3-8, and May $1.01 1-2 to $1.11 5-8.

Corn finished at a range varying from 1-2c decline to 1-4c advance; oats 1-8c to 1-4c down, and provisions 2c to 20c up.

At first the majority of the wheat traders were inclined to ignore the new estimate regarding the 1923 production of wheat in Canada, the fresh forecast being upward of 100,000,000 bushels in excess of an estimate yesterday by the President of the Canadian Pacific Railroad. Selling here increased, however, when Winnipeg quotations showed a material setback. Commission house buying developed on the ensting downturn in prices, but rallies failed to last.

Prospects of a moderate increase of the United States visible supply total had a bearish influence on the wheat as the day drew to a close.

On the other hand, it was pointed out that shipments of wheat from Chicago this week have exceeded receipts, and that in all markets wheat for immediate shipment is selling at a premium over transfer to be made in the future. Bulls contended also that Europe would take a large amount of Canadian wheat, that the hedging pressure would be less of a burden than many feared, and that the present price level has discounted the Canadian crop in full.

Corn and oats were easier with wheat, except that the September delivery corn displayed strength as a result of scantiness of receipts and of rural offerings to arrive.

Provisions ascended in line with hog values.

FAMILY PICNIC IN OTONABEE

Seventy-Five Representatives of One Family Celebrated Coming Of Forefathers.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 10. — A very pleasant and enjoyable afternoon was spent last week at the home of Mr. Thos. Chamberlain in Otonabee. It was the annual gathering, which took the form of a picnic, held on the old Chamberlain homestead in Otonabee, in commemoration of the coming to Canada of the Chamberlains, ninety-one years ago.

One feature of the occasion was the presence of all the living children of William Chamberlain, the founder of the old home. They are: Mrs. J. A. Fife, Mrs. J. H. Taylor and Mr. E. Chamberlain, of Peterboro; Mrs. J. Dixon, Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. D. Kelly, of Otonabee; also Mr. Thos. Chamberlain on the old homestead. Miss J. Chamberlain, whose father, Edmund Chamberlain, settled in Peterboro, was also present. These, together with their children and grandchildren, numbered about seventy-five.

The afternoon was very pleasantly spent by the older people recounting stories of events in their early lives upon the farm; while the younger people enjoyed themselves at football, baseball, races and jumping. The prizes for the races for the children were keenly contested and were very much enjoyed. One race which was particularly interesting to the children, consisted of seven small children each driving a hen with a rope.

After the sports, supper was served in the old picnic style, and all agreed that they had spent a very pleasant afternoon and one long to be remembered.

Never hit a train with an auto. Illinois railroad sued a man who did and won the case.

LANG HAS ADDED HIGH SCHOOL WORK

Higher Form Class-Room in Town Hall — Nine Pupils on Roster.

LANG, Sept. 10.—The trustees of the public school at Lang, in Otonabee township, have completed arrangements to convert one of the rooms in their town hall into a higher-form class-room, and they have also instituted a new departure in this class-room by incorporating High School work, in first and second years, with the ordinary school programme which has heretofore ceased with Entrance classes.

In the converted room in the town hall, third and fourth form work will be taught, also first and second year High School work, which will be available without charge to residents of School Section Number Two in Lang. For other intending pupils who wish to avail themselves of the opportunity of High School work, the charge will be $15 per annum, payable $5 in advance at each of the three terms, commencing in September, at New Year's and at Easter.

The term commenced with nine High school pupils on the roster, and notices of others sent in. Miss Jennie Barrie has charge of the new room, with its preparation for Entrance and High School work, and Miss Lillian Moore supervises the work in the old lower-form school.

TEETH.

So Mussolini is to be made a duke? He'll get the title in October, according to court rumor in Italy. He'll probably be wise enough to refuse. Inducing him to accept a title would be a cunning way of "extracting his teeth." That is, it would tame him down, according to all precedent.

The quickets way to tame a radical is to admit him to the "inner circle"—give him power.

PSYCHIC MEDIUM AND HEALER

MRS. CORA THORSEN

SAN MATEO, Calif., Sept. 7.—Hiram Johnson will be next president of the United States.

This according to Mrs. Cora Thorsen, physic medium and healer here.

Mrs. Thorsen is well known locally both as a predictor and for her healing work in the government veterans' hospital at Palo Alto, Calif. She bases her prophecy of Johnson's election upon a vision.

"I was standing in a large crowd, listening to a speech," she says.

Turned Toward Her.

"The speaker, who had his back to me, was without his coat, but had on his hat.

"Suddenly he turned toward me, and I saw that it was President Harding.

"Then he left the platform and came toward me. When he reached a certain part of the crowd, he paused and taking off his hat, placed it upon the head of a man standing there. The man was Hiram Johnson.

"'You wear my hat,' said the president, 'Coolidge has my coat.'"

"Then I came to, and realized that I had not been asleep, but that this was a prophetic vision, such as I have had many times before."

Harding Reception.

Among other prophecies which Mrs. Thorsen claims is that of having predicted in 1907 that Harding, then senator, would some day be President.

She was attending a reception being given in Washington, D.C., by Mrs. Harding, she says, when she announced Harding's coming elevation to the chief magistrate's office.

Though Mrs. Harding merely laughingly remarked, "You certainly know how to make people happy," she never forgot the incident, declares Mrs. Thorsen. For, after Harding's nomination at the Chicago convention, Mrs. Thorsen received a note from Mrs. Harding congratulating her upon her foresight, and asking if she still believed Harding would be president. To which Mrs. Thorsen replied yes.

GAMBLING IN BERLIN FEVER WITH GERMANS

BERLIN, Sept 10—(Associated Press)—In the wake of the mark's depreciation and the commonplace use of many-ciphered sums, gambling has become a veritable fever among Germans. The infection is particularly evident at the racecourses. Crowds swarm about the grounds like ants every day, and the people literally stumble over each other trying to reach the betting machines before the horses are sent away in the various events.

Bookmakers flourish, and the betting machines do a huge business. The lowest bet accepted is 5,000 marks, and the highest is an open question. At the Gruenewald track the other day a bookmaker was heard refusing a bet of 100,000,000 marks at even money.

Many of the foreigners in Germany patronize the German tracks, but foreigners and Germans also follow closely the French races. The results from Paris are distributed about Berlin every night on sports agency leaflets at subscription or single-copy prices.

Yet much "loose" money appears to be about for other kinds of speculation. Lotteries, card-playing, and the stock-market each claim a considerable following. One lottery involving a total of 19,500,000,000 marks is prominently advertised in Berlin. The police swoop down almost every night on private houses or clubs where unauthorized games of chance are under way. Many people not on the Bourse find means of acquiring stock shares which they have been "tipped" to buy, only to sell in a day or so when, they hope, the quotations will be higher.

GRAPHIC STORY OF TOKIO CORRESPONDENT

Large Buildings Toppled Over In His Path—Dead Piled Along Street In Yokohama.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press).—The Tokio correspondent of the Central News, cabling from Kobe, under date of September 8 describes some of his experiences in the capital and aboard a Canadian steamer after the earthquake. He says:

"Passing the palace of the Prince Regent, who fortunately was away at Nikko with the Emperor and Empress, I saw huge sections of the wall gone; the main gate of the Diet Building nearby likewise was badly damaged. The other Government buildings, made of modern brick, seemed to have borne the shock well.

"Passing Hibiya Park, in the centre of Tokio, the gateposts of which were a mass of ruins, I came to a large two-story restaurant. The roof of this building lay flat on the ground, and fire had broken out in one of its rooms. This was the first outbreak of the fire in Tokio which spread rapidly and added horror to the already appalling spectacle. My greatest surprise was to find the Imperial Hotel, a massive stone and brick building, standing rock-like, entirely intact.

Police Station Crumbled.

"I soon reached the Imperial Palace; here I found damage considerable. Two modern police headquarters, the Imperial Theatre, some office buildings and the wall enclosing the palace grounds, which had stood for centuries and had been constructed on shock-proof lines, had all crumbled.

"Soon after passing this spot I experienced another sharp shock, which caused large buildings in front of me to sway, and eventually to topple. At a rough guess eighty per cent. of the modern structures of the city survived the shock. But there was a different tale to tell soon afterward when smoke began to curl up in different parts throughout the city. Within an hour fierce flames were shooting skyward."

Torn Roads Blocked Cars.

The correspondent tells of making his escape from Tokio in a motor car filled with men and women. Finding the car useless outside the city, because the roads were torn up and the bridges gone, the correspondent made his way to Yokohama on foot. He found that the villages had the same terrifying experiences as Tokio.

"People were wandering aimlessly about; others were sitting huddled together in the road; others bringing out their belongings from ruined homes. From the ruins came groans of the injured. Many lay dead on the ground. At length I came into the main road, on which was an endless stream of refugees, all making for Yokohama. At last I reached the suburbs of Yokohama, only to find that it had suffered the same fate as Tokio. The whole streets were afire."

After sleeping on the platform of a suburban railway station, except when interrupted by shocks, the correspondent proceeded to Yokohama to find a steamer.

Yokohama Horror.

"I passed another long stream of Japanese refugees," he continues, "similar to those with whom I trudged on the previous day. They were foodless, almost without clothes, staring hopelessly and wearing dumb expressions, all seeking shelter from the inferno. Coming into the heart of Yokohama I beheld a scene more tragic than anything I had witnessed.

"The Sanitary Department were piling up many hundreds of dead on both sides of the street; a dying mother clinging to her baby was lying in the gutter; ambulances were hastily removing the dying and injured, who lay thick in all directions.

Refugees on C.P.R. Liner.

"On board the steamer I found a scene of great confusion. Women were sobbing, children were groaning, but some people were calmly helping them, and endeavoring to relieve the sufferings of the injured, and many lives were saved by this kindly help. The vessel was the Empress of Canada. Many refugees had arrived aboard with rags tied around their feet; men were without shoes, women without stockings, their dresses in shreds. But nearly all were bearing up bravely; they even enjoyed a little laughter over the grotesque garb in which they had escaped in, notwithstanding that some of these passengers were penniless, though wealthy the day before.

"As we proceeded along the coast we saw fresh fires spring up in the distance; burning oil blazed, sending clouds of smoke and flames skyward, while the cries of foodless natives wandering along the shore could be heard.

Exhausted in Reaction.

"When the scene of havoc had faded in the distance the refugees flung themselves exhausted on deck chairs and stateroom floor. The regular passengers organized a relief scheme, distributing clothing, sharing their cabins with the refugees, raising funds and, with patience and sympathy, listening to the poor people as they related their experiences.

"Before our ship reached harbor late in the afternoon it slowed down, while a casket bearing the remains of an infant who had died of exposure was lowered over the side. Down below decks a woman who had lost all her family was raving mad."

OLD SHOES.

Bury your old shoes—near to a tree if possible. Put them at least two feet down. Nature and the tree roots will convert them into fruit and green leaves. With a layer of coal, old shoes will make a hot fire in the kitchen range.

GRAPE JUICE

If you like to serve a friendly glass and a tasty cake to evening guests grape juice answers as no other brand of "home brew" can.

Grapes for juice should be perfectly ripe. The fruit's sweetness is at its best when the grapes are not over-ripe.

Aside from beverage purposes, there are many other ways of using grape juice. In this day of prohibition many cooks are "put to it" to find something to take the place of sherry and brandy in sauces and seasonings.

Grape juice, combined with lemon juice, is quite all right for many purposes. Pudding sauces flavored with one tablespoon grape juice to one of lemon juice are delicious and economical. Fruit cake perhaps lacks that crumbly richness and moistness when deprived of brandy, but one tablespoon grape juice, one tablespoon lemon juice and one tablespoon cold strong coffee used in the cake, and grape juice alone used for dampening the wrappings, will give a cake that's "hard to beat." But the cake can not be kept indefinitely, as if an alcoholic preservative were used.

Ham baked in grape juice rivals real Virginia ham.

There are several ways of making grape juice but the one I like to use is simple but a saving of cans or bottles.

Grape Juice.

Pick grapes from stem. Wash thoroughly. Put in preserving kettle with a very little water and heat, stirring to prevent sticking. When the skins are broken and the juice flows freely put into jelly bag and let drip. Measure juice and allow one-fourth cup of granulated sugar for each cup of juice. Return juice to preserving kettle and bring juice to the boiling point. When boiling sift in the required amount of sugar. Any scum that rises on the juice before the sugar is added should be carefully skimmed off. After the sugar is added there should be no scum. Do not let the juice boil after adding sugar. Pour into hot cans or bottles and seal quickly. The bottles must be full to overflowing and the juice at the boiling point when sealed. This juice should be diluted when used as a drink.

The method of canning the whole grapes is quicker for the time being but if cans and space are to be considered it is not as practicable.

However, for the woman who has more cans and room than time, I give this recipe:

Grape Juice II.

Fill glass jars half full of grapes, pour over cold water to fill the jars to within one inch of the top. Half seal and put in boiler. Fill boiler with cold water, covering jars by at least an inch. Bring to the boiling point. Reduce heat and simmer 30 minutes. Remove from heat and let stand in boiler until water is cold. Remove and finish sealing jars. Sweeten to taste when wanted, but do not dilute with water.

Any variety of grapes can be used, but Concord grapes make a rich, delicious juice.

STUFFED POTATOES

Left-over baked potatoes may be made into stuffed potatoes Cut the potatoes in halves, coop out the inside portions, mash, add butter, salt, pepper and milk, and beat until smooth. Put back in the shells and just before meal time brush with beaten egg and run them into a quick oven until hot and brown.

MANY INTERESTED IN FIDELITY TO CHURCH

Interesting and Profitable Addresses at St. James.

Mrs. Howard Fallis, of South Monaghan, and Major J. I. Hart, of Orillia, gave interesting and profitable addresses at a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of St. James' Methodist Church. The meeting, held under the auspices of the Treasure-Seekers' Bible Class of St. James Church, was designed to emphasize the necessity of fidelity and faithfulness to a church in all its services, and also to promote interest in Bible study. Both of the addresses were strongly directed toward this aim and object, and were calculated to stimulate increased devotion toward the church. There was a good attendance of members of St. James' congregation and representatives of other denominations in the city.

The Sunday School orchestra of the church led the music, prayer was offered by the pastor, Rev. J. D. Richardson, and benediction was given by Rev. H. F. Spence, of Peterboro. A. E. Prest acted as chairman.

MISSING BOY'S BODY FOUND ON LAKE SHORE

TORONTO, Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press).—The body of Arnold Ira Tilton, one of the three Toronto boys for whom search has been made at Georgian Bay for the past two weeks, was found on the shore on Saturday afternoon.

The discovery was made by a search party, with W. A. Tilton, father of the boy, in charge. From the condition of the remains, doctors said that the body had been washed ashore some days when found.

The remains were motored to Coldwater and brought to Toronto early yesterday morning.

THINKS SOVIET WILL ABIDE BY ALL CONTRACTS

Canadian Railway Builder Quite Confident That Capital from Dominion Safe in Russia.

OFFERED BUSINESS

TORONTO, Sept. 10. —(Special) —"Canadian capital is as safe to-day in Russia as in Canada," Sir Donald Mann, one of Canada's railway builders told the Examiner to-day on his return to Toronto from a 2,500 mile trip through Soviet Russia.

"I believe the Russian Government will live up to any contracts they make. It is vital to them now. They must have foreign capital and they must keep their bargains to get it."

"Did you do any business with the Soviet Government?" the Examiner asked Sir Donald.

"They offered me a great many things, including the railways," Sir Donald said, settling back in his big office chair. "But I told them no one had any money for railways. Especially as far away as Russia.

"I don't remember the names of all the big men I talked to," Sir Donald continued.

Talked to Krassin.

"Did you see Krassin?" he was asked referring to Leonid Krassin, Bolshevist Commissioner for Trade.

"Yes," Sir Donald said, "it was a big relief to talk to him because he spoke English. I think I met Chichern, but I don't remember. I've got a list of them all somewhere."

"Do you mean you were offered the concession of all the Russian railways?" Sir Donald was asked.

"Well you know how it is. They have a list of all these things, mines, big plants, railways. I had one interview with the Government men that lasted six and a half hours. But I didn't do any business with them."

Living Comfortably.

Living in Russia, according to Sir Donald is fairly comfortable. He traveled from Petrograd to Moscow and from Moscow to the Black Sea.

"In the North they are raising rice and in the South you travel for days through great wheat fields. Crops in the north have been damaged by the heavy rains, but in the south the harvest is very fair."

"What I was impressed by most," Sir Donald said, "was the earnestness of the people. Men in government positions often work all night. Every one is working at top speed to get the country back on its feet.

Reconstructing Moscow.

"Moscow is in process of reconstruction. Smashed houses are being rebuilt. New stores are going up every day. There are miles of new shops in Moscow. These shops are all leased by the Government to the shop owners."

"Was the Red army much in evidence?"

"I didn't see many soldiers," Sir Donald said. "No more than in France. The soldiers were all in khaki. I didn't see any red on their uniforms, except the officers had red trimmings."

"I liked the people and the country," Sir Donald continued. "The people were all very kindly and nice to get along with. Of course there was no French cooking, but I could always get a chop or a steak, sometimes chicken, sometimes ice cream for desert. The food was good and plain.

No Kick in Wine.

"How about liquor?" the reporter asked.

"They drink the native wine, but it has no kick in it. There was no alcohol and no cigars. Everybody smokes cigarettes.

"Do the women smoke as much as the men?" asked the reporter.

"Most of them smoke. I didn't meet more than four or five women. Most of them smoked cigarettes. Some didn't though." Sir Donald drew in a deep puff on his own cigar and blew out a cloud of smoke that would have taken a couple of boxes of Russian cigarettes to produce.

Soviet Will Last.

"What do you think about the recognition of the Russian Soviet Government?" the Examiner asked Sir Donald.

"There is nothing for the powers to do except recognize Russia." Sir Donald said with emphasis. "There is nobody to take the place of the present government. Everyone in Russia tells you that, including the people. They don't want the danded gentry back. They ran away when the revolution came on and left the people to fight. Now they have this present government and I believe it is solid and will last."

Bustle effects are seen in many of the new taffetas. Sometimes a butterfly bow finishes the long tight corsage.

WARM GREETINGS IRISH FREE STATE

Delegates are Received by League of Nations with Open Arms.

GENEVA, September 10 Canadian Press. — Announcement that the League of Nations had unanimously accepted the Irish Free State as a member of their body was received with prolonged applause and delegates and spectators rose to extend warm greetings to the newest member of the League.

When the president of the Assembly extended greetings to the Free State and invited the Irish delegates to enter the hall cheering broke out again amid a very impressive demonstration. President Cosgrave ascended the rostrum and began his salutatory address.

He spoke first in his native tongue and changed to English in a few minutes. He referred to Ireland as one of the oldest and also one of the youngest nations on earth. His country he said looked forward to a cessation of all bitterness and hostility and counted upon having no enemies.

On her new career, which he believed would be one of peace, progress and prosperity, Ireland, he said, would ever be cheered by cordial welcome which she received as she entered the league of nations.

Thousands to Gather in Triple Convention Week of September 17th.

CINCINNATI, September 10. — Thousands of visitors and delegates are expected here during the week of 17th September in connection with the triple convention of the various branches of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, the Sovereign Grand Lodge, the General Military Council, and the Association of Rebekah Assemblies of the World.

Cincinnati lodges are raising a fund of $50,000 for the purpose of entertainment.

Detroit Oddfellows have made hotel reservations for 1,100, and more than 1,000 are coming from St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Toronto members have reserved accommodations for 600, and orders for reservations have been coming in from all parts of Canada and the United States for blocks of from 50 to 500. Thousands of Cincinnatians will throw open their homes to accommodate those who cannot be taken care of at the hotels.

Prize offers aggregating $15,000 for degree competition and drills have tended to induce entire lodges to come here for the convention, many of them arranging to bring their own bands. These may reach a total of 30. With approximately 20 local bands, the visiting organisations will take part in the grand parade on Wednesday, 19th September.

The 147th Regiment Band, a World War organisation, has been engaged as the official musical organisation for the convention.

The programme includes addresses by a number of prominent persons. A dinner tendered by the local committee to the I.O.O.F. International Press Association will be a feature on the opening day. There also will be a public reception to Lucian J. Eastin, of St. Joseph, Mo., Grand Sire, and other officers and representatives of the Sovereign Grand Lodge.

Mr. Eastin has recently returned from Europe, where he studied the condition of European Oddfellowship, which is under the jurisdiction of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, and will make a report to the convention.

Newsboys, Boy Scouts, and Girl Scouts are being organised as an army to help the visitors to find their way about the city.

They Say—

Interesting Thoughts of Interesting People

WALTER LIPPMAN, in the Atlantic: "It is clearly easier to arouse large audiences to a denunciation of war in general than to persuade them to agree on the principles of a code. Men agree that war is a horror and a crime. They do not agree easily on the fixing of boundaries, the right to secede, the right of revolution, the control of raw materials, access to the sea, the right of minorities, tariffs, immigration, the status of colonies, the rights of property."

* * *

JOHN A. PRESCOTT, president, Investment Bankers' Association of America, in an interview: "Counterfeiters of money work with a few simple tools, metal and mold, pen and paper. Counterfeiters of credit work with the illimitable forces of human nature, the imagination, ignorance, carelessness, hope, greed and egotism within the public mind. That is why the counterfeiters of credit, the sellers of fraudulent and other worthless securities, always find it comparatively easy to defraud so many, many thousands of our people."

* * *

R. A. HISCANO, New York authority on steamship transportation, in an interview: "Students of transportation are in agreement that the country needs more than its present rail system to move the commerce, and the past three years of congestion and embargoes has shown the need of utilizing the waterways. Many of our waterways cannot be either partially or entirely used without improvement. The time is not far off when business will be returned to normal and the demand for transportation will cause another breakdown in the rail system. Why not, therefore, plan to meet this situation in advance?"

* * *

MME. JOHANN AUGUST STRINDBERG, widow of the great Swedish dramatist, in an interview: "I believe the best way to remain happy after a marriage of love—the only moral marriage—is to increase and accentuate the differences between husband and wife. Let the wife develop and emphasize her natural feminine qualities and the husband his masculine ones. Let there be the natural division of labor, which apportions the care of the home to the wife and its maintenance to the husband. The marriage in which the wife and husband have the same duties sounds well in theory, but rarely works well in practice. Until men have the babies women can not do without marriage."

* * * *

JOHN MACY, in The Bookman: "The speech of common men, when freed from certain social restraints, is no doubt, as violently and abundantly profane as it was in more specious days, though literature is no longer permitted to reproduce it. The diminution has not been in the quantity of spoken profanity but in the quality. There has been a loss in variety, in richness of vocabulary."

* * *

FREDERIC S. LEE, research professor of psychology in Columbia University, in an interview: "With a machine of soulless steel, decreased hours mean decreased production; with a machine of flesh and blood, decreased hours, within limits, means increased production. It is difficult to make people believe this seeming paradox."

* * *

E. W. HOWE, in E. W. Howe's Monthly: "A strange man is W. J. Bryan; an old stage coach rattling about the country, criticizing railroads."

* * *

HENRY W. COWPER, in the New Republic: "It is bootless to inquire whether in England or America there is the larger measure of freedom. The academic shortcomings of different countries, like the frailties of housemaids set upon them after different patterns."

* * *

ERNEST G. DRAPER, president American Creosoting Co., giving social arguments for a guarantee of subsistence and employment, in New York Evening Post: "We can say with some measure of authority that the right to seat and the right to work are not merely nebu conjecture. They are concrete principles of life, which are both humane in conception and relatively easy of attainment any time we summon sufficient effort to accomplish the task. None of us is so foolish as to believe that the resulting world would be Utopia, but neither are we rash enough to deny that for millions of missahapen lives this new world would wear a greener and a fairer aspect than it has ever worn before."

* * *

HENRY W. COWPER, in the New Republic: "Those who think in quantities, and not instances, and who are familiar with the business risks and industrial hazards may well insist that no job is more secure than an American professorship. To daring souls the perils from retributive 'capitalism' are far too few to make an adventure out of 'the quest for learning.'"

AT COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, Sept. 10.—Mrs. George Lord has sold her two hundred acre farm near Bailieboro to Mr. John Greer, of that village, it is stated.

The Canadian National Railways has sold a part of lot 22, Con 2 Haldimand Township to Mr. James F. Farmer.

Mary Coates has sold a part of lot 23 con. 7, Haldimand Township to Arthur K. Jenkins.

Mr. T. F. Hall K.C., has sold a house on Bagot street Cobourg, to Mr. Victor Climo.

Miss Adeline Dawson has purchased a house on Ward street, Port Hope, from Mr. I. C. Honey and Mr. Henry Gibbs has purchased another house in the same locality from the same owner. Mr. J. A. R. Elliott has purchased a house on Harcourt street, Port Hope.

Mr. Archie Russell, Preston, is understood to have purchased a residence in Cobourg and will return to Cobourg to make his home.

Must Observe the Law

Traffic Officer Friend, the Provincial Constable in this district, is endeavoring to stop motorists speeding and in this locality. As a result of his watchfulness, it is stated that there are twenty cases to come before Magistrate Campbell at Port Hope next week and that there are all for speeding or driving without lights. Each week apparently the list of infractions of the law, is growing.

Local Missionaries Home

Mrs. McWilliams is a daughter of Mr. William Winter, Grafton.

Racing Pigeon Club

A good record was made in the Cobourg Racing Pigeon's first young bird's race from Collin's Bay a distance of 84 miles. J. Swan's entry arrived 24 minutes and 55 seconds ahead of the second bird. The other entries came in in the following order 2nd Chas. Ling, 3 G. Menton; 4 Wm. May; 5 Thomas Leonard; 6 Kent Payne.

To Be Pensioned

Mr. David Wagner will receive a pension from the Canadian National Railways of which he is a valued employee, dating from Sept. 1st., it is stated. He was eligible for a pension some few months ago, but kept on the job. Mr. Wagner has been with the Grand Trunk for over forty years, which is a long and complimentary record.

STRIKERS GIVEN TAX MONEY AID

LONDON, Sept. 10—Marry in haste repent at leisure. The Dock and Riverside workers employed in the London Docks have learned it to their cost. A few weeks ago an unofficial strike committee led by communistic firebrands got them excited and wedded them to a strike.

Now they regret it. One by one, defeated and dejected, they are returning to work.

From the beginning the strike was denounced by Ernest Bevan, known as the Dockers' K. C., and the leaders of their own Union. It spurned a national agreement which the union had indorsed on behalf of the men, so the leaders repudiated the strike, refused the payment of strike pay from union funds, counselled a return to work and investigation of the grievance which was that the Board of Trade index figures as to the cost of living under which the sliding scale of payment operated, was incorrect.

Strikers Defy Officials

The strikers refused to listen. They backed the committee they had elected, and set their trade union at defiance. It was at the Mersey Docks, Liverpool, where the trouble originated. It spread to other ports, and finally to London, but when the definite stand which the union was taking sunk home, the men in the North returned to work. London, however stood out, and by intimidation prevented others from working.

For two months they kept the London Docks virtually idle, dislocating the whole of the dock traffic, causing tons of food to go bad through inability to get it unloaded, creating shortage where no real shortage could ever have occurred, causing ruin to look many importers in the face and, finally hitting the whole community through the higher cost of living.

The refusal of the men to honor their own agreement cost them public opinion. It did even more than that; the strike revealed the defects of local and national legislation wherein it was disclosed that a mere handful of recalcitrant workers could actually be financed out of public money to maintain their struggle, and by Act of Parliament were empowered to prevent others from working, and so reduce to chaos the operation of one of the main ports of the United Kingdom

The situation has taught England more than one lesson

How It Worked Out

It possibly will seem strange to the average American to read that a strike in England can be financed out of taxpayers' money, but this is what actually occurred in the London dock strike. It was rendered possible through what is known as the Poor Law system, under which any destitute person may go to the administering authorities, known as Boards of Guardians, and claim either out relief, if they live in the area administered by the board they approach on behalf of whom the work is done by relieving officers, or admission to the workhouse, which is a living-in institution.

Boards of Guardians, which are elected by popular vote, have to maintain one such institution, or have a working arrangement with another, and all funds which they require to operate them, and also our-relief, they obtain by levying on the taxpayers living in heir districts.

Strictly speaking it is illegal for a board to grant out-relief to men on strike; board members do, they are liable to be surcharged by the public auditor and sent to prison; yet experience has demonstrated this is no deterrent. The docks are mainly in the area covered by the Poplar and Bermondsey Board of Guardians. The Poplar board is mainly Socialists, most of them also members of the Borough Council, and the bulk of them already have been sent to prison once on a surcharge issue, so that did not worry them.

As soon as the Dockers Union, the Transport and General Workers Union, repudiated the strike and refused to give strike pay, the strikers, who were also unable to get the dole (unemployment benefit), went in a body to the Poplar Board of Guardians and demanded out-relief for themselves and their families. They got all they demanded. The motto appeared to be: "Let 'em all come." The strikers came; were in clover; considered it just and fair that the taxpayers should keep them because they objected to their wages being reduced by 2/4 cents a day under the sliding scale agreement their union negotiated for them.

Up To Government

The issue has put a definite challenge up to the government. What Poplar can do with impunity, other Socialist dominated local government bodies also can do, and the system of local government of Great Britain can be thrown into a state of chaos.

The Poplar taxpayers protested to the Minister of Health. He merely said:

"Any taxpayers in the union may apply to the High Court for an injunction to restrain the guardians from granting unlawful relief, and the District Auditor, before whom the guardians expenditure must come when the accounts for the half year are under review, can disallow any expenditure which in his opinion is unlawful, and surcharge the amount on the guardians who authorized it."

No injunctions and surcharges in the world will have effect on the members of the Poplar Board, of course.

It is estimated that the cost of the taxpayers is $400,000 and while there is a growing demand to render this impossible in the future, the business community is also demanding that the government take in hand the question of peaceful picketing and intimidation. It is evident that Socialists are doing their best to wreck trade unionism in Great Britain, but that is another story.

BE CAUTIOUS OF SUBSTITUTES

There are several medicines on the Canadian market to relieve Kidney and Rheumatic Ailments, but there is one preparation that seldom fails to give quick relief and for that reason Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills are in a class by themselves.

This statement is vouched for by well known residents of this city. For instance Mr. Arthur Pinch, well known in the city, states that he was unable to work and suffered severe pains from backache, but after using three boxes of Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills, he was able to go back to work and is as well as ever.

Mr. Thos. Oldham, another well known Simcoe street resident, has no hesitation in saying that for Kidney and Rheumatic Ailments, there is no equal of Dr. Banta's Pills.

Never neglect Kidney Ailments as they are liable to lead to other complications, but always keep on hand a box of Banta's Pills. If they fail to do what we claim for them, return your box to your dealer and your money will be refunded.

Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills are sold at Lynch's Drug Store, 168 Hunter street. Mail orders attended to promptly. m.w.-84

GIRLS, BE SURE TO START RIGHT

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Be careful of that first job. It may spell happiness and success. Too often it spells discontent and years of wasted effort.

Tucked away in the heart of New York's business district is a port for unhappy girls. It is known as the Girls' Service League. Here girls who can't get along with their parents, girls who can't get along with their bosses, girls who want to do great and beautiful things but haven't yet found themselves are taken in and sheltered and advised and set on their way again.

And a great deal of the unhappiness arises because girls are careless in their choice of first jobs, says Miss Esther Midler, director of the league's service bureau, who every year places more than a thousand girls in positions where they can make good.

"The average girl who sets out in quest of work," she explains, "decides she would like a place with the Blink Filing Company, because her chum's employed there, or maybe in the bank where her brother used to be an errand boy, or that she'd prefer a clerical job, it has such an important sound. But perhaps she isn't fitted for any of these things.

"One girl came to me who had lost one position after another. She was a stenographer, but it seemed impossible to keep her mind on her work, and her memory was poor.

"I discovered that her outstanding characteristic was a fondness for doing things for other people. She had a great wealth of affection which never got a chance to display itself at home, for her life there was unhappy.

"I placed her in a home where there were several children to care for. The home's mistress took a motherly interest in her. During her spare hours she's been taking a course in nursing and now she is completely happy.

"Almost every girl wants a clerical post. Almost all dislike the thought of factory work. Yet there are wonderful chances for advancement in factories, while the clerical field is overcrowded.

"The girl seeking her first job should take stock of herself, learn what she can do best, visualize the future, see what kind of position she's likely to be holding ten years later.

"Then she should look for the work she's best suited to—the kind that offers the greatest opportunity for advancement. It may pay less money in the beginning, but it will pay better dividends, not only in cash, but in health and contentment, in the end."

Psychological and vocational tests, Miss Midler adds, are almost invaluable aids to the girl who has not yet found herself. The girls are willing to take them when once they understand.

London Observer Imperial Relations.

LONDON, September 10. — Canadian Press Cable. — Under the heading "The Vital Issue," a special correspondent of the London Observer deals with the Nationalist versus the Imperialist sentiment in Canada.

"Let there be no misconception," says this writer, "supporters of the creed of Nationalist isolation are not a meagre impotent band of shrewdish agitators preaching a doctrine through a few minor weekly papers."

After detailing the history of both movements, the correspondent deals with the arguments on both sides, and comes to the conclusion that the case for the maintenance and the strengthening of British connection, is too strong to be overcome in the immediate future, but contends that its supporters in Canada need timely help from their allies in Great Britain.

EVERY MOVE OF MURRELL WATCHED DAY AND NIGHT

Former Jail Inmate Describes Night of the Bandit's Arrival From California and Precautions Taken--Special Guard and Double Bars on the Cell From Which He Escaped Two Years Ago.

POWERFUL LIGHTS SWEEP YARD OUTSIDE

How does the law guard a suspected murderer?

Or more specifically what is life like over in the county jail where men are responsible for the safe-keeping of Sidney Murrell who once before outwitted them?

The Examiner gives here an answer to these questions in the experiences of a London man who fell foul of the law for the first time in his life and who was doing time in the jail on a minor charge when Murrell was brought back. The man's identity must remain anonymous but his story is authentic and affords an interesting glimpse into places which are unfamiliar to most.

Sidney Murrell confessed bandit, accused murderer and cunning jail-breaker faces trial for his life at the fall assizes on October 15. Justice Mulock had been listed as trial judge but his recent appointment to the office of chief justice vacated by the death of Sir William Meredith makes necessary a new assignment.

"It doesn't matter how I got into jail what I went to jail for or how long I spent down there. I know that my ears are still full of the ringing of bells the restless mumbling along the rows of cells; the lonesome endless pacing of keepers along the cold concrete corridors; that wearying sound of metal grating where everything that moves is iron or steel, no door ever slams—they clank.

"My nose still twitches a little at the smell of beef stew and onions; life down there is an endless smell of bull neck beef stew and an onion hash. Personally I don't like onions well enough to beg for them at home and I don't dislike them half enough to tell the Greek waiter to leave them out of the hotdog that goes with the cup of black Java before I get the last car home. But when I got down to the jail that reeking smell of onions that filtered up and wriggled out through the bars and screens from the little kitchen on the lower deck seemed to make the idea of going to jail harder than I had ever persuaded myself it would be.

His First Pinch

"I had never been pinched before; I don't intend to be again; I'm cured, for over. I'm not going to argue with cops again. This bird seemed used to being argued with. I think I could be taken a round out of him if he were not in uniform but he was in uniform and just while he seemed to be making up his mind to quit arguing with another policeman came along to see what the talk was about and they both started arguing at once.

"I still think that if I had given the cop a fight in police court I would have had a fifty-fifty chance to win out. But the pictures of all my kidding friends back in the gallery listening in on the proceedings of a lot of newspaper guys and an occasional picture too the possibility that I would be beaten and that submission might get me an easier passage than a battle would. I don't know now whether I was right or wrong. I am of two opinions; the first is that it would be worth while to put up a fight but the second is that I was fairly well treated in the jail and that if there was enough money in it I could be persuaded to substitute for some one else for a real short trip—not more than a week or ten days.

"At the police station I had been searched and stripped of everything my pockets contained. I boiled over a little at the nosy curiosity of the policeman who turned out my pockets and scanned the things I carried. He put them together got me to sign a sort of audit check and I suppose passed them along to the governor of the jail when I was transferred in the rumbling old motor patrol from Carling street to the county jail.

"The turnkeys at the jail seemed to take it for granted that I ought to be in jail but that I was a harmless sort that would do his days and go home again.

Jail Geography

"The geography of the jail is interesting to a first timer. The old jail building is connected with the court house proper by a narrow neck of a passageway with a main door through to the main corridor of the ground floor of the court house and doors on the north and south sides of the connecting passageway. They are at ground level the door on the north leading out to a sidewalk that divides one part going down a few steps to Dundas street sidewalk and the other winding around beside the court house building. On the south side there is a well beaten dirt path but no sidewalk. The high wall of the south exercise yard rises up casting a musty shadow against the court house wall a few feet away. That was the door to which I and the others of the batch were brought. The policeman stopped inside a moment and handed in our commitment papers to the governor whose narrow office overlooks the exercise yard from which Murrell escaped in September 1921. We were steered down a winding stairs and were met by a turnkey who I learned later had been warned by a push button signal from the governor's office to let us in. The door opened and clanked behind us; a key like a stove poker rattled through a lock as big as a hydro meter and we were officially and emphatically prisoners doing time.

"I had got a glimpse on the ground floor of a long wide corridor running east and west through the center of the jail building with a barred and wire-screened grill cutting it off from the entrance a little beyond the governor's office and the head of the winding stairs.

"Downstairs I found a similar corridor flanked on either side by rows of cells with narrow slits of queer-shaped openings through white-washed masonry walls.

Named to Kitchen Duty

"I had one big worry on my mind; I did not want to have to rake the grass or massage the court house lawn and take the comedy of the passing jokesmith. I was tickled when I found that my job was to help out in the kitchen. It didn't seem to matter that I didn't know anything about cooking; our boarders wouldn't quit anyhow.

"I sat up till two the first morning playing cards for a time because I couldn't make a go of sleeping in the night cells. Next morning I was ordered out of bed before 7 o'clock and the second night sleep came easy. There's that old stuff about early to bed and early to rise makes you strong and makes you wise but 'you don't meet many regular guys' according to the Andy Gump version of it. Andy must have been in Middlesex County jail.

"I learned early next morning that I had arrived at an interesting time. Governor Dawson was down through the cells a score of times always busying himself around the first ward from the east on the south side of the corridor. Several times he called turnkeys with him evidently to explore the place again and give new directions.

Murrell on the Way

"Murrell was coming. The train carrying him back from California was then half way back across the continent and as if to break his defiance of the law preparations were being made to put him back in the very cells from which he and his brother escaped in September 1921.

"You will remember that I said that the south side of the main corridor on the lower floor was a masonry wall. To reach Murrell's quarters there is a door about three feet wide leading into a later corridor of about the same width running through to another door opening into the south exercise yard. The door from the corridor is an iron grill; the door to the exercise yard has both a grill and an ordinary wood door used in unfavorable or cold weather.

"Fifteen feet or so down this narrow passage there are doors facing each other on either side. If you enter that on the east side you will find yourself in the small barred room known as the day cell. It has two narrow heavily-barred windows opening to the exercise yard on the south and on that side also is the low brick leanto built on to provide a lavatory for that "ward" some time years ago when the earlier jail was equipped with more modern fittings.

Porridge Every Day

"The north side of this little day cell room is a row of cell doors or gates—six of them if my quick count was accurate. These are the night cells. I suppose they are replicas of the one I occupied narrow things about three feet wide divided by bars and with a barred ceiling uncomfortably close overhead. The bed or bench intended for a bed occupies the full width of the cell. Thus it is impossible to do the usual roll into bed from the side. It appears to be one of the punishments of jail that as an every day and every night occurrence you have got to go in and get out over the foot of the bed. But there is no foot to it. I found that the best way to work it is to sit down and back in like a crab. The jail routine locks everybody up in his night cell early in the evening and gets you out about 6:30 in the morning. Then comes breakfast. I am some distance from the jail now but I can tell what they had to eat this morning what they are going to have to eat tomorrow morning and what you will get to eat three months from now if you go down yourself. Porridge. Porridge every day. Dinner may make a mild variation from beef stew but breakfast never. Porridge without sugar or milk. I wouldn't have believed it. But when you go to bed at 9 o'clock get up at 6 for a cold shower bath plain porridge is pretty fair diet.

"The ends of these narrow cells I have described but against the masonry wall of the main corridor punctured for each cell by a small square opening big enough to pass a plate of skilly. You can get a peep into the main corridor through these openings but because of the thickness of the wall you can't see any distance to right or left.

Turnkeys on Their Toes

"I was told by some of the prisoners that the jail routine had been speeded up quite a bit about the time that I arrived. Turnkeys were up on their toes getting ready for the coming of Murrell. We didn't know when he would arrive but it was in the air.

"The next morning after one of the prisoners had tipped me off that Murrell was nearly due there was an intensified hustling.

"The run of the jail that I was given as a kitchen helper gave me a more complete idea of the special precautions that were being taken. Telegrams had come from somewhere carrying news of some kind, and they put more pressure on the "efficiency buck up."

"There was a busy day of testing this and fixing that. The bars cut from the window of the lavatory leanto when the Murrells made their 1921 escape, were replaced, I am told, soon after the jail delivery. Now they have added to the bars a screen of heavy wire woven to a fine mesh, through which it would be impossible to work a file or hacksaw to hack away the heavy bars.

"The cells and bars were tested and inspected again and again. Every movable fixture and fitting was taken out or made secure lest the prisoner should improvise a tool or weapon as he and his brother did when they bent the handle of a slop pail and used it for a hack saw handle. The lid of the tank of the toilet, built to lift off to permit inspection of the flush valve mechanism, has been screwed down with wood screws; Murrell might use the metal parts for some deadly purpose.

Special Precaution

"That day the turnkeys with a couple of the more active prisoners, including a young Londoner, were taken out into the south exercise yard and used to hurry along the work of stringing wires and setting up a battery of electric flood lights that keep the walls and windows outside Murrell's cell as bright as day.

"While that work progressed more of us were given pails, and under the supervision of turnkeys, we gathered every stone and pebble from the gravel surface of the exercise yard; Murrell might use the stones as weapons to attack his guards.

"The spirit of expectancy among the prisoners had lulled toward evening, and the ribald bantering of the prisoners, and the high-pitched, screechy jabber from the women's ward at the other end of the corridor faded off to the dull monotony of another night as I backed into bed. I was tired after a long stiff day at work that isn't in my own line, and I had no thought of the hard iron slats as I dozed off to sleep.

The Arrival

"I didn't know how soon after—it appears to have been less than an hour—when the lull of the night burst into a furore of excitement. Bells rang. Guards rushed through the corridors. There was a clashing, banging of gates, muttered words and again the rush of a scuffling knot of men in the lower corridor.

"I heard that long furnace-poker sort of key grinding in the queer keyhole as big as your fist in the masonry beside the door. The lock isn't in the barred gate; it's in the wall and holds the gate. The scuffling faded into the narrow corridor leading into the ward that had been the object of the preparations.

"A raucous voice down the line raised a jeering laughing shout, 'Here comes the murderer.' His voice was lost in the din of a babel of oaths and shouts, and through the narrow slit of my skilly hole I saw a row of arms and fists wave through the openings as the prisoners, by common consent saluted the return of Murrell. I don't think they gave a hoot whether Murrell came or went; but they were tickled by the strained anxiety of the keepers and the apparent straining for security almost to the point of burlesque.

Will Never Break Out

"Murrell will never break out of that jail. I feel sure of that. But I am not so sure that some of the guards won't die of heart failure.

"In the morning I found the meaning of a line that had been painted on the floor a little more than arm's length from the barred door that leads from the narrow passageway into the day cell of the ward Murrell is in. An armed guard had been posted like a death watch to keep a ceaseless vigil on Murrell, but even he is forbidden to step beyond the painted line. I suppose the rule affords two precautions, the guard cannot carry anything to Murrell nor can Murrell reach through the bars to attack him or snatch his loaded pistol.

"The guards are changed at intervals, and even they are searched like prisoners when they report back for duty. No one is trusted. No one wants to be trusted. There must be no escape.

Where Are The Keys?

"At night, I am told, Chief Turnkey Last, who lives in the neighborhood, comes from his home, inspects the doors and gates, and looks the place over from the outside at about 10 o'clock. The prisoners all have the story and believe it. There is a dread of fire among them, for they fear that should the place be ignited either accidentally or by any act of a desperate prisoner, they would be creamated before the keys could be brought from Last's house. Personally, I believe that Byron Dawson, the jailer, who sleeps in the jail every night, carries all the keys that are needed.

"There is a night guard constantly in the upper main corridor, armed to resist a possible attack on the jail through the doors on the sides of the connecting passage between the court house and jail.

"Even during the night, there is the atmosphere of armed preparedness against attack, and as the time for the trial draws nearer, this tension increases. The sound of a motor burring up Dundas street hill in the night, or the slightest unusual sound in the vicinity of the jail brings a clanging of alarm bells and a rush of armed guards to points of vantage to which, it seems they have been told off for duty in the event of any emergency.

Murrell as He Is

"But meanwhile what of Murrell?

"I had never seen him until his return to the jail. I am told that he used to weigh around 175 pounds in good hard condition, a weight he carried well with his five feet ten or eleven inches. He may have worked some of it off in the prize fights he claims to have fought in the Middle Western States before his capture in Nevada.

"Today he does not weigh more than 135 or 140 pounds.

"If he was ever the singing, noisy braggart he and his brother were supposed to have been before his escape, he looks whipped now.

"On the narrow strip of grass in front of the Museum of Art in Detroit is a weathered bronze statue of a grim-visaged man, seated hunch-backed, with his right elbow on his knee, and his chin resting on his clenched fist. His left arm falls limp and his eyes stare at nothing. Rodin's 'Thinker.'

"Today Murrell thinks. He sits for hours at a time scarcely moving a muscle, brooding, glowering. When he left he mailed a note to the newspapers saying the police were 'boobs,' and that he couldn't see any medals on them; four of them passed him without recognizing him while he was worming his way through the streets after sawing the bars of his cell and scaling the jail wall. But today he's back in the cells, and he knows there is no escape.

Kept in His Cell

"He wrangles a little with his guards now and then, and pleads with the jail doctor. I have heard him cursing with rage, demanding his rights, proclaiming the British principle that a man is innocent till he's proven guilty and pounding a clenched fist in his open palm to prove his right under jail regulations to the use of the shower baths. During the first couple of days he was back in London, he was let out for a little while in the south exercise yard from which he formerly escaped. But something happened—possibly a warning from Inspector Dunlop of Toronto—and since then he has not been allowed to leave his cell. The center cell of the row of night cages I previously described is left always unlocked. The others that flank it on either side are not used and are always locked. Thus Murrell has the run of the small day cell or room in front of the cages, and of his own cage. When he demanded a bath, after being in a couple of days, extra guards stood by while the door was opened and a pail of water, sponge and soap were handed in to him. He refused absolutely to use it, and again quoted the jail discipline to show that he is not alone entitled to a bath, but that he must take a bath at least once a week. I know nothing of the report that the jail staff at length forcibly bathed him in his own cell; my days were up before that issue came to a head.

Taking No Chances

"The guards take no chances with him. They never enter his cell night or day. They hand him his food through the skilly hole, as circus attendants would feed a caged lion; they throw him a broom to sweep out his own quarters, but while I was there he taunted them and refused to do the sweeping.

"While Murrell had the company of his brother after his first arrest, he probably kept in better humor. He had a supply of tobacco. Together they had visions of a successful coup and they had tobacco. You will remember the story that they tried to use the smoking privilege to burn down the jail, despite the fact that they would have stood the least chance of all the occupants of the building to escape cremation. That is one of the reasons Murrell is not allowed tobacco now.

"He has been a hard smoker; an unrestrained nicotine addict. Any old smoker who has tried to stop smoking will realize what has happened to him with his supply suddenly and completely cut off. I have heard him beg the doctor to allow him one smoke; heard him plead and demand. First that he knows what he is up against, and that 'You shouldn't rub it in,' and again falling back on the contention that he is innocent, and that in law he is in custody awaiting trial, and not a convicted prisoner, undergoing punishment.

"Play It On the Nose"

"Dr. Wilson is the man who said before the Murrels escaped, that nearly all criminals are "moral idiots" without a normal sense of the difference between right and wrong. They threatened to kill him then, evidently preferring to risk hanging as sane men, than to be excused as fools. Sid Murrell appears to have forgotten the old feud. I noticed that the doctor did not go in the cell with him. But he listened patiently and in a kindly way to the caged bandit's pleadings, and seemed inclined to let him have a smoke. But the barrier is set up by the inspector of prisons, and the rule could not be overridden by the doctor except as a matter of medical necessity.

There is no doubt that Murrell is wearing down physically, but whether it is the prospect before him, the cutting off of his smokes, or the imprisonment and rigid restraint, I don't attempt to guess.

"To him who has pursued adventure on the seven seas, and roved America on the highways or riding the rattlers, jail is a hell on earth. He dreads a long term as much as the gallows.

"Play it on the nose, win or lose," are his instructions to his lawyer. "Fight it out on the murder charge, where its freedom or the the gallows. Manslaughter means life and that means hell. I didn't kill Campbell. Fight it out on murder."

Dog Fight Followed by a Law Suit — A Teachers Convention — Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 10. — Miss Bessie Andrews interfered in a dog fight in the interests of harmony, and, like many another benevolent individual, adopting the same course, found herself involved in trouble which the majesty of the law was invoked to settle.

John Cook, accompanied by his dog, went on a neighborly errand to the residence of John Bell, which is also the home of Miss Andrews. Mr. Bell, too, owns a dog. While the neighbors chatted on the verandah the dogs, after sniffing at each other suspiciously after the manner of their kind, engaged in combat. It will, however, always remain a matter of dispute as to which was the aggressor, and the question of fighting superiority still remains in abeyance.

Miss Andrews, it seems, attempted to stop the conflict, but the Cook dog, probably misinterpreting her pacific intentions in the blindness of its fury, fastened its teeth in the young lady's ankle. Miss Andrews retired to the house, where she promptly fainted, remaining unconscious for some time.

The young lady was, by reason of the injury, kept from her employment for two weeks, during which time she required the services of a doctor and a nurse. Her expenses, including loss of wages, amounted to $47.95, and for the payment of this she looks to the owner of the dog that had bitten her, and which she mainttains to this day belonged to Mr. Cook. The latter as stoutly avers that there is doubt on this point, and refused to settle. Finally it is alleged by competent witnesses, Mr. Cook agreed to go fifty-fifty with Mr. Bell in settling Miss Andrews' account, but he put off payment so long that a suit was started in the Division Court.

The case was heard in Cole's Opera House Saturday afternoon before Judge E. C. S. Huycke, of Peterboro, and no picture show or other form of entertainment could have proved a better drawing card as the building was filled by friends of the different parties to the suit. T. A. Humphries looked after the interests of Miss Andrews, while G. A. Payne appeared for Mr. Cook.

After the plaintiff and a number of witnesses, all of whom corroborated her story, had been heard, Mr. Cook took the stand. After hearing his story and securing from him the admission that at one stage of the proceedings he had agreed to a settlement on a fifty-fifty basis, Judge Huycke at once ruled that it was up to the witness to keep his word. He was accordingly ordered to pay Miss Andrews $25, Mr. Bell to give her a like amount, each party to the suit to pay their own costs.

Teachers' Convention.

P. S. Inspector Boys, Principal Haig of the Public school and Principal Chaplain of the Hastings schools, motored to Brighton Saturday afternoon to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Teachers' Association, which comprises parts of the counties of Northumberland and Durham. It is expected that an address will be delivered by J. F. B. Belford, M.L.A., who is especially interested in educational work.

W. Atkinson, who taught school at Norham last year, has retired from the profession and is now employed by the Hydro. He was secretary of the association and as his resignation created a vacancy in the office this has been filled by the appointment of Principal Haig of Campbellford.

Miss Audrey Bull, who has been visiting her sister, Miss Sylvia Bull on Sabastopol street, has returned to her home in Wooler.

SHOULD HAVE SOME SPORT ANYWAY

(By GUS M. OEHM)

BERLIN (By mail to United Press) —Germany has developed a new indoor sport—figuring out what wonderful things one could buy before the war with the same amount of marks one lays out for trivialities today.

For instance when the German today pays out 57,000 marks to have his suit pressed he has a lot of fun figuring out that since he could buy a complete ... suit before the war for 70 marks, the 57,000 marks which he spends for cleaning would have brought him 814 new suits in the olden days.

The cost of a bad pencil today equals prewar cost of the furnishing a complete living-room, bed-room with two beds and well-equipped kitchen. The price of a little box of matches today equals the prewar price of ten pairs of good shoes. A cigarette equals the price of a good piano, and the single individual little match with which a German lights his cigar costs as much today in paper marks as a pre-war pound of meat and a pound of butter.

Everytime a German eats a cherry he does so with the realization that "there goes a 50-mark note."

And as for strawberries, he can't even think of the 150 marks each one sets him back.

Every puff of a cigarette, he figures, means five marks gone up in smoke. And he gets grey-haired when he thinks that every time he rides his elevator to the top floor he does so at 3,000 marks a trip. Most of them walk.

Russians Endeavoring To Restore Petrograd

REVAL, Sept. 10 (Associated Press). —Soviet Russia's effort to restore Petrograd to its former importance as the gateway to North Russia is having a detrimental effect on the ports of Helsingfors, Reval and Riga. The Moscow government is diverting all possible business to Petrograd, and is making improvements in the harbor to enable large ships to enter with safety as they did in the days before Bolshevism worked ruin to the port which has lain idle for so long.

The Moscow government holds no kindly feeling for Latvia and Esthonia, and naturally does not care to have the ports of Reval and Riga continue to be gateways to Russia, as they were in the days of the czar. Ice troubles are far less in Reval and Riga than i Petrograd. Bolshevist efforts to keep Petrograd open through extremely cold weather have not been very successful, and the Russian government was very unhappy over the necessity for shipping a large amount of American Relief Administration supplies through the ports of the new Baltic states rather than through Petrograd.

A recent census in Petrograd showed the city now has over half a million inhabitants. This was something of a surprise, as it was at one time believed to have fallen to 300,000. But the housing conditions are so good there, as compared with conditions in Moscow, that the population of Petrograd which remained in Russia is apparently drifting back to the old capital. Zinovieff, the head of the Petrograd soviet and chairman of the Third International, is making a vigorous effort to bring Petrograd back. Odessa and the other Black Sea ports are being neglected in favor of Petrograd.

The last rose of summer usually arrives with the first nose of winter.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

CHATTERBOX MAGPIE'S MESSAGE

"I know a secret," screeched Chatterbox.

"Here comes Chatterbox Magpie," said Mister Gallop, the cowboy fairy, to the Twins. "He must have some important news from the way he's hurrying."

"I know a secret," screeched Chattbox, as he settled on a nearby branch and flopped his wings to steady himself. "I was away up on a high cliff just now right above the place Mrs. Golden Eagle has her nest. And I heard her say, 'What would you like to have to-day for your supper, dearies, a nice fat sage hen, or a cotton-tail, or a prairie dog?'

"And all the little eagles called out, 'Bring us a jack-rabbit, Mammy. It's bigger.'

"And Mrs. Eagle said, 'All right, darlings, you shall have it. I know just where to get a fine one, for I saw Johnny Jack's mother and daddy go out not more than half an hour ago.'

"That's all I heard," panted Chatterbox Magpie, "and I came to tell you at once because Johnny Jack Rabbit is all alone."

"You did exactly right," said Mister Gallop hastily. "There isn't a moment to lose. Come on, Twins, jump on your ponies and we'll ride down to the place Johnny Jack lives and save him."

So Nancy and Nick and the fairyman jumped on their horses and clattered away.

Johnny Jack was out playing in some willow bushes beside a ditch. But he got hungry after a while and decided to hunt for a patch of sweet grass.

Scarcely had he stuck his head out in the open when swoop—there was a rushing of wings and down came Mrs. Eagle. She made a grab for Johnny Jack and got him.

At the same second a rope whizzed through the air and caught Mrs. Eagle 'round the neck.

"You let go and I'll let go," called Mister Gallop sharply.

It didn't take Mrs. Eagle long to maek up her mind. She let Johnny Jack drop in a hurry.

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond, (Terry) lovely and unbelievably innocent is imperson ating her beautiful half sister.

Juliet Divine, known as the Million Dollar Doll—whose sketchy career is unknown to Terry.

Miles Sheridan, Terry's 'Dream Prince' furnished the money for her convent education when she was a child. His wife is making him wretched with her infidelity and in order to facilitate her obtaining a divorce Miles offers the Million Dollar Doll $20 000 to take a yacht trip with him stipulating that he will not "trouble" the girl. This he knows will give his wife sufficient grounds for divorce. Juliet is unable to take the trip herself but working on her little sister's gratitude to Miles she persuades Terry to go in her place. Terry is an exquisite counterpart of her sister.

Betty Sheridan, Miles' wife is deeply in love with

Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazio, a wealthy Greek who does not know of Terry's relatic ishlp to quiet is in love with the younger girl.

Poor little Terry unaware of her sister's reputation and how she must ap pear in the eyes of the world starts the voyage with Miles who does not reco g nize in her the little girl he befriended so long ago. Mr. Harkness his servant is sternly disapproving of "The Million Dollar Doll."

Terry refuses the $10 000 which Miles sends her by Mrs. Harkness.

Miles is surprised at the "Million Dollar Doll's" refusal of his money.

Miles Meets Terry on deck and is struck by her youthful charm. She reminds him of some one he knew years ago.

Terry tells her Prince sh: wants no money from him.

Harky is slowly won over by Terry's sweetness and charm.

CHAPTER XXXVI

The Taming of Harky

The taming of the old lioness had been slow, almost imperceptible at first, and had come about through a series of small shocks, little surprises. She had expected that the spoiled hussy would be exacting of her time and patience, but the creature never asked for any service.

How it managed to fasten its frocks at the back, Mrs. Harkness couldn't conceive; but it did fasten them. And it never put upon her the expected indignity of lacing or buttoning its shoes.

Instead of leaving its room in a state of utter disorder, its belongings were so tidily disposed that even half a gale couldn't upset them.

Instead of making Harky's head ache with a deluge of rich French perfumes, the spalpeen used no scent at all, except the delicate iris sachet in the padding of its dress hangers.

All this made the Irish woman admit to herself that these "vamps" were not quite so offensive in their manner as she had imagined. And the thing seemed such a baby! Its eyes were so big and soft, with the look in them of "oh, please don't be so cross!" Harky could not stiffen herself against that look, day after day.

Then came the climax when Miss Divine fell down the three last steps of the companion-way, going below to her cabin, and wrenched her ankle.

She made no fuss about the affair, at all; that was what touched the old woman's heart.

A gale was blowing, and the girl hadn't minded it apparently. She went up on deck to walk as usual, while her stateroom was being "done," but the yacht had suddenly dipped, and the girl had been caught by a wave.

Drenched to the skin, she had started below to change, had lost her footing as "Silverwood" gave an unexpected pitch, and had come down with a twisted foot.

Mrs. Harkness had not yet finished the girl's cabin, when the door opened to admit a dripping figure with a very white face.

"A nice mess ye've made of yourself, Miss!" reproached the old woman, who was already on easier terms with h charge than at first. "Ye might have gone overboard by the look of you!"

"Oh, it's nothing much," said Terry, though she had been a good deal startled, and at the moment was feeling sick with the pain in her ankle.

"I'll change my things, and be all right again. But I'm afra d my dress must be dried. I'm sorry o make you trouble."

"You're mighty pale," remarked the Irish woman. "Maybe you're a bit seasick?"

Terry said no, she was not seasick. Still Mrs. Harkness l'ngered, and took the drenched dress as it was peeled off. "My gracious, ye've torn the heel from your shoe!" she exclaimed. "And yer ankle is swellin' up. What have you done to yerself?"

"Twisted my ankle a little, that's all," Terry replied. "I don't think it's going to be very bad."

"I do believe you'd never have mentioned it if I hadn't seen for myself!" said Mrs. Harkness.

"Why no, it wouldn't have been worth while," admitted the girl, "I can bathe it if it gets worse."

But having forced help upon the young person for the first time, and got off her clothes (what a child she was to look at in her little kimono!) the relenting woman brought liniment and lint.

"Good thing it's not a broken bone!" she grumbled, "as we've no proper surgeon on board. Though, for that matter, the master is what you'd call a natural bone setter. He was always that, even as a young boy.

Folks used to bring him dogs with broken legs, and birds with broken wings, and he'd mend 'em as good as new! He might have made a livin' that way if he'd the need to make it.

But he hasn't, more's the pity, not even with the pictures he paints, which they are so wonderful, after the new style. As for doctorin', I'm not a bad hand at it meself, for simple things."

Terry neither shrank nor winced under the manipulations of the strong-old hands. When her ankle had been bandaged she insisted upon dressing again, and would have tried her luck on deck once more, if Mrs. Harkness hadn't said that it was no weather for lame people, and the master would be angry if he knew she'd run such a risk.

Terry became docile on hearing this. She imagined that Sheridan would be annoyed if she fell overboard, or hurt herself so seriously that she could not go ashore with him when the time came. The trip would in that case have been wasted, and she would have done him no good after all.

But Mrs. Harkness put it down to sheer, good-child obedience that the girl should submit her will without a struggle. Her gentleness, her courage, her reluctance to make trouble, combined with the necessity to act the nurse for her, softened the last hard edge of the old woman's heart.

She found herself thinking of her charge as "the child," instead of "the creature." She had to remind herself that the girl wasn't what she seemed, to prevent her hands from patting and stroking; and she often had to bite back caressing little words that wanted to come.

No, the girl simply could not be what she seemed! And yet—Mrs. Harkness no longer thought of "the young Madam" as wholly bad.

"The poor lamb must have had a wicked bringin' up," the excuse would come, "with someone more to blame than herself. And oh, the shame it is! For a prettier and sweeter little thing to look at and talk to, I never did see!"

She burned to tell "Mr. Miles" about the accident, and the way the victim had borne it. Once snubbed, twice 'shy, however: so Harky held her tongue; but for the first time she resented her idol's attitude toward his guest. Unconsciously she ranged herself against him, on the girl's side.

EVERYBODY'S PRINCE VISITS AGED POET.

Dorsetshire and Thomas Hardy Received Prince of Wales.

LONDON, Sept. 10—The Prince of Wales' visit to the home of Thomas Hardy, the aged poet and novelist, while His Royal Highness was on a tour of Dorsetshire recently, touched the popular imagination as few things else have done in the career of even this remarkable prince of the empire. It was an occasion somewhat unique in the annals of British Royalty, this comparatively youthful heir to the throne paying a personal call to the octogenarian man of letters. Both of them enjoyed it.

The poet's wife also was a sharer in the little domestic scene—only these three participating in it. Max Gate, Dorchester, the home of the Hardy's, henceforth will have an additional charm for the people of the town and countryside, for the most popular prince has paid tribute to Dorsetshire's own most popular poet.

All day long the Prince's motor-car sped through Mr. Hardy's world; not only through the very country which the great writer has transfigured for so many of his readers by the shifting lights of his genius, but the country he has peopled with characters that do not die like mortal men and women. Here are houses, farms, cottages, beautiful with the time-worn loveliness of Wessex; but their beauty is overlaid by their poetical interest, for in them live the spirits of Bathsheba Everdene, Gabriel Oak, Eustacia Vye, and Tess. Such habitations are familiar, though his readers may never have seen them, since Mr. Hardy has the secret of giving his eyes to his readers. And with his eyes they look also at the barrows and downs that stretch along the horizon in lines of green and purple, brown and g

The Prince's route may not be related to Mr. Hardy's books by such links as the literary investigator loves to forge, but the veritable Hardy air is breathed forth by names like Warminster, Mere, Shaftesbury and Upwey. Through some of the places the Prince passed without stopping; at some he stayed to meet Dutchy tenants, or for other various objects of his tour. Then, at last, Dorchester gave him a welcome which might have been a chapter out of an unpublished Wessex novel. This chapter would describe how a son of the Wessex soil, having lifted himself to greatness, joined in his town's greeting of a Prince, who afterwards delighted to honour him, and be honoured by him, in his own home.

The road into Dorchester cuts deeply between high, wooded banks. The banks were filled by children in simple, pretty dresses; while the road was kept by Boy Scouts and Girl Guides. A blazing sun from quite a blue sky brought out the colour wherever it showed among the rich green of the trees or in the heat of the flagged and bannered road. The children's sweet, trained voices rang out in the chorus from The Dynasts specially set to music.

At the top of the road the Prince was received by the Mayor and Corporation in a covered stand, where Mr. Hardy had a place. His Royal Highness was then conducted, through lines of the Dorsetshire Regiment, to a new Territorial drill hall, which he declared open in a short speech. Mr. Hardy was present at this ceremony. From the Drill Hall he drove with the Prince amid the cheers of people pleased to see the young and the old faces side by side, to Max Gate.

As for Mr. Hardy, he may be 80 odd, but his lined countenance bore a very alert and cheerful expression, and, if it spoke truly, he enjoyed it to the full the bustle and colour of the streets, and shared to the full the joy of his fellow-townsmen.

The house at Max Gate stands secluded among the closely growing trees that overshadow it. There was no mob at the gates. The privacy of Mr. Hardy and his guest was respected in intention no less than fact, the photograph taken after luncheon on the lawn will be the sole record of an occasion that charms alike the fancy of the Hardy student and of the man who could not tell how Tess came of the D'Urbervilles.

The Prince visited the Wishing Well at Upwey—as though nothing was to break the spell of this memorable day in "Wessex"—and took a drink therefrom but forgot to wish before drinking, as he should have done, of course.

His Royal Highness' visit was made all the more enjoyable by his receiving, while at Dorchester, a telegram from the Society of Dorset Men in London.

Many Russians Are Bound For America.

TOKIO, Sept. 6.—Japanese ports are filled with Russian refugees bound for America as a result of the opening of the new fiscal year for immigration to that country, and steamships arriving in the Pacific ports of the United States during the next month will be crowded with immigrants.

Most of the Russians coming to Japan en route to the United States are from Siberia, Harbin being the starting point of their journey. Every train which comes into Yokohama from Shimonoseki is crowded with them and the sidewalks are packed with those who are endeavoring to make or have already made bookings for the trans-Pacific voyage.

The immigrants preparing to go in now are those who came under the new immigration laws of the United States. Students, teachers, government officials, merchants, professional men, business men and tourists are not supposed to be included in present quotas and wil be allowed to enter at any time they may reach the United States.

GIVES UP CLAIMS.

LONDON, Sept. 10. — (Associated Press).—The case of the British South African Company, known as the "Chartered Company," which some time since asked for sovereign rights in Rhodesia, has been settled. The British government will pay the company $18,750,000 and the claim will be withdrawn.

The company has been operating in Rhodesia for 33 years.

ABOVE.

An airplane crashed into electrical transmission wires at Chattanooga and put the power plants temporarily out of commission.

The greatest dangers in civilization soon will be overhead in the air. Regulation of flying should be provided to the last detail before aviation becomes popularized. As usual, we'll probably wait until the horse is stolen, before locking the barn.

PREVENTING TRAECHOMA

One often meets persons who boast of their strength and endurance. But endurance is a thing seldom accurately measured and those with so much boasted vitality may easily overstep, and break down or destroy the real effectiveness of delicate bodily adjustments. The eyes, for instance, are often abused and overworked so as seriously to injure them.

Radical treatment has done much to prevent and stamp out traechoma (granulated eyelids). But though the disease is not nearly as prevalent as it was in this country, it still is a menace in a number of European lands which send many emigrants to the United States. The government physicians at Ellis Island always are on guard, however, and no traechoma case enters, if detected.

There are parts of America where traechoma seems to prevail owing to lakc of proper sanitation. The prominent symptoms are itching and burning of the eyelids. There is a swelling of the mucous membrane and the eyes are red and discolored. There is much secretion, which may be thin and watery or yellow in appearance. In the morning the lids may stick together. When this condition exists rubbing with the fingers should be avoided. Efforts to dislodge the little nodules will only cause irritation.

Traechoma may be contracted by using the community towel in working camps or boarding houses which still use such toilet nuisances. Also by contact with articles which have been handled in common, in mills, shops or large working quarters.

Be careful always to keep your hands away from your eyes under any working conditions where infection may be waiting for you. A soothing eye wash is a safety first preventive when any doubt exists at the end of the day. Be on watch for anyone who may have traechoma and guard against any possible contact.

TRAINS INSTAL RADIO

LONDON, Sept. 10. — (Associated Press).—Pullman cars equipped with radio receiving sets will be running shortly on the various railway services in England.

Experiments carried out by radio engineers on express trains, using both inside and outside aerials, have been very successful. It has been possible to pick up concerts from broadcasting stations while traveling at 60 miles an hour. Passing trains do not interfere, nor do tunnels make any difference to the clearness of the music and messages.

ORILLIA ELIMINATED AFTER EXCITING BATTLE C.G.E. WIN BY 8 TO 7

Northerners Put Up Unexpectedly Strong Opposition, and After Tieing Score in the Ninth, Are Nosed Out in Extra Frame.

FROST IS THE HERO.

This baseball is a queer old game.

On Wednesday last in the Intermediate O.B.A.A. series the C.G.E. made a light lunch of Orillia on the Northerners' own ground, winning by 13 runs to 1 and driving Cloutier, Orillia's southpaw ace out of the box.

Saturday the two team met at Riverside Park with identically the same lineups and Orillia put up such a strenuous battle that the Electricians only managed to nose them out by one run after an extra inning had been played. The final score was 8 to 7.

Orillia started off by getting a three run jump on last year's intermediate champs in the first inning and although by the end of the fifth it had been change to a 3-7 deficit the Tri-County winners kept on fighting until they sewed up the game at 7-7 in the ninth. They were within an ace of grabbing off the victory on several occasions but the needed hit was not forthcoming when the stage was set although with a little more nimbleness on the bases they might have turned the trick.

Both teams had a bad day afield, the Canadian General crew having eight errors while Orillia were charged with seven miscues. On top of these actual fielding lapses both outfits were guilty of errors of omission that made the task of the pitchers much more difficult than there was any need for it to be.

"Bun" Frost the C.G.E. twirler was the hero of the engagement, for not only did his steadiness in the pinches save the situation but his prowess with the willow was another big factor and he had the satisfaction of winning his own game with a beautiful wallop in the tenth inning. Frost was at his best when in a tight corner. In the sixth for instance when Orillia had scored three runs and had men on second and third with nobody out and only one run needed to tie the score he tightened up and retired the side without further scoring. Again in the eighth the invaders had second and third occupied and not a hand down but Frost threw out a runner at the plate and struck out the next two men when a hit would have meant the loss of the ball game. Orillia had no fewer than sixteen left on the bases.

Cloutier the visitors' left hander pitched nice ball for the losers and got better as he went along. He fanned twelve of the C.G.E. crew and kept the winners' twelve hits pretty well scattered. Like Frost he suffered from wobbly support and few of the runs scored on either side were earned.

In spite of the errors, however, the see saw nature of the play made the game always interesting.

C.G.E. will meet the winners of the Oshawa-Bethany series in the next round.

BETHANY TIED UP ROUND WITH GREAT FINISH

Won From Oshawa General Motors By 5-4 in Second Game.

TWO IN NINTH.

BETHANY, Sept. 10.— With a ninth inning rally that netted two runs Bethany came from behind and tied up the round with the General Motors team of Oshawa Saturday afternoon winning the game by the score of 5 to 4 in the intermediate O.B.A.A. series. The playoff will likely be staged in Bowmanville.

Oshawa took the lead early in the game getting two runs in the second frame on two long clouts which went for three bases. Bethany nearly scored in the first innings but a double play nipped their chances. But they sent one run across in the second and only failed in getting another when Arnott was called out in a play at the plate. Oshawa had no chances in the third. Bethany tied the score when Riley crossed the triangle on R. Staples' long hit which bounded over the eighth field fence. They nearly broke into the lead, but again fast play on the part of Oshawa stopped them a quick relay in spite of C. Staples hit to centre, getting Ray at the plat.

Oshawa sent across their other two runs in the fourth. Bethany failed to reach first in their half, but by pulling off a snappy double-play, they were most successful in holding the motor crew scoreless. Good pitching on the part of Bennett was all that kept Bethany from scoring in the tenth when McCartney got on, with none out. Bethany sent another across in the sixth and with luck would have got more. Oshawa loomed up dangerous in the seventh when a couple of hits put men of the runways but a nice running catch by Price turned them back.

Neither team had any chances in the eighth and Bethany fielded clean ly in the ninth. The ninth was Bethany's innings. McCartney walked and F. Staples hit. B. Riley grounded to the pitchers. W. Price got on when Brown missed his hard hit to centre field and McCartney tied the score on it. Ray Staples sent in his brother with the winning run and the game was Bethany's.

Bennett twirled for Oshawa in good style striking out four and allowing but seven hits. Riley pitched for Bethany until the seventh when he was replaced by C. Staples. Both pitchers worked well. Price was playing center field and was the field ing star of the game, gathering in three hard drives to his field, after long runs.

Cecil McGill on the coaching lines for Bethany was Nick Altrock and Jake Solomon rolled into one.

THIRD AMERICAN TO SWIM CHANNEL

Charles Toth, of Boston, Showed Home Folks He Could Do It.

DOVER, Eng. 10.—Charles Toth of Boston, Mass., to-day swam the English Channel, starting last night from the French side he landed near St. Margaret's to-day. He had been in the water sixteen hours, forty minutes.

Toth will not receive the £1,000 offered by the Daily Sketch for the man making the swim, the offer having expired September 7. He said he made the attempt "just to prove to the folks back home that I could do it."

Charles Burgess, the English swimmer, who was the first man after Captain Matthew Webb to swim the Channel, accompanied Toth in his successful effort.

When Toth turned up in Dover today in time for lunch, it was the first real meal he had had since dining in France Saturday evening. He made the greater part of his swim during the night, and was the third American to conquer the Channel this summer. The other two men were Henry Sullivan of Lowell, Mass., and Enrique Tirabocchi, an Argentine.

It was 6.56 p.m. Saturday evenin when Toth plunged into the Channel at Cape Gris-Nez, France, and it was about 11:50 o'clock this morning when he reached the shore of England. He took only a few minutes more than was required by Tirabocchi in his record-making spurt across the choppy sea. Like Tirabocchi, Toth was lucky. He touched the bottom at the extreme edge of the little point of land separating Cape Margaret's Bay from King's Down. Had he missed this point by even a few yards he would have had to keep going with his steady trudgeon stroke several miles further along the coast to find a spot to land.

Burgess acted as Toth's pilot and adviser through the swim, and joined him in the water during the last two miles. To the advice of the English veteran Toth attributes no small part of his success.

THE MAPLE LEAFS OF GUELPH WON

Defeated Oshawa Centrals in Barn Storming Tour Game by 3-1

OSHAWA, Sept. 10.—(Special).—Guelph Maple Leafs of the Inter-County League, who are on a barnstorming tour of Eastern Ontario, got away with their first win here Saturday when they defeated Oshawa Central Leaguers in a ten-innings struggle by 3-1. The two southpaws, Goyer, of Guelph, who migrated from Belleville of the Central Ontario League to the Royal City, and Dainty, the local slab artist, who battled for League honors when Oshawa captured the bunting in 1921, opposed each other in a pitchers' duel for nine innings before a runner crossed over the rubber, when each team chased one across.

Little, the first man up for Guelph, singled. O'Connor fanned. Jones walked on four balls. Pegineaut hit to right, scoring Little. Jones was out trying to reach third, and Allan made three dents in the air.

For Oshawa, R. Fair, the first man up, laid down a perfect bunt on the first ball pitched, and went to second on the throw to first which got away from Allan. Morrison was out, Goyer to Allan. Jacobi hit a hot one through second, and Fair scored. Jacobi was out going to second, and W. Fair flew out to left.

In the tenth Brown, the first up for Guelph, hit for three bases. Goyer fanned. Norman got a charity on four balls. Lindsay was out to Wilson, the big first baseman coming in on a bunt, tagged Lindsay out, holding the runner at third, Norman reaching second. Little drove a Texas leaguer to centre and both runners scored. O'Connor made the third out when he flew to Morrison at short.

Tyson, for Oshawa, flew out to Brown. Dainty hit to centre but was caught off first on a snap throw Pegineaut to Allan. Roddick walked on four balls, but Wilson was out to Allan at first on a foul fly.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The New York Americans defeated Boston in both sections of a double-header here to-day, the American League champions winning by scores of 6 to 2 and 4 to 0.

The superior pitching of Bush and Shawkey proved too much for the tail-enders. Bush yielded six hits in the first game and Shawkey three in the second.

Home runs by Witt and Scott accounted for four of the Yankees' runs in the first game, Bush driving in two others with a single.

EXCELSIORS OUT TUESDAY NIGHT

First Rugby Practice of the Season at Central Park.

Ross Dobbin has promised to help out with the coaching this year so a well drilled team is promised. It is hoped that all of last year's players will be out on Tuesday night along with any other new players who are desirous of catching a place on the team. Rugby is promised a bigger place on Peterboro's sporting map this year, and with a good team the Excelsiors ought to help boost it along this year. So all players desirous of a try out are requested to be at Central Park, in uniform if possible, at 5.15 or shortly afterwards tomorrow night.

SEVENTEEN DRAWS IN SOCCER SCORES

Old Country Games Saturday Showed Determination of Home Teams.

LONDON, September 10 (Canadian Press Cable). — The desperate struggle to make good in the early weeks of the football season was reflected by Saturday's seventeen draws. Jock Rutherford's return to the Arsenal's line-up failed to stimulate that team's forwards to the form they reached in the second half of last season.

The clubs newly promoted to the First League continue to play as though they mean to stay. Notts Forest deserved their victory over Burnley on Saturday, and provided the surprise of the week, while West Ham led Cardiff nearly all the way, and probably lost only through the absence of Watson at centre forward.

Some teams of the Second Division enjoyed themselves on Saturday, not a single one suffering defeat, although Crystal Palace came near it, only managing to equalise from a penalty in the last few minutes.

The noted centre half, Wilson, put the ball through his own goal, and so gave Southampton a point at Sheffield.

Swansea Town's form suggests that another Welsh team is steering for higher ranks.

Among the Southern clubs of the Third Division the new club, Bournemouth, did well to win against Exeter City, and the Plymouth Argyles showed improvement, scoring the only goal at Norwich.

The present period is the time for stocktaking, and several leading teams are casting around for fresh players to repair the weaknesses developed in the early games, consequently transfer fees show no sign of slumping.

A certain London cub was asked £5,000 for a centre forward, whose cub is not even paying him in its first team.

ST. PATS' DEFEAT BY BELLEVILLE WAS SURPRISE

At Least to Ottawa Amateur Baseball Fans, who Expected Victory.

OTTAWA, Sept. 10. —Baseball has run its course in Ottawa, and attention will now be focused on Rugby till the snow flies again. Ottawa's squad will be in condition at any rate as they have had two weeks of intensive work and are now on the line-up grind. The outside wing worries are still uppermost, and it is probable that Charlie Connell will be used at one of the outposts. Connell would prefer to work as a ball carrier as he is a glutton for this kind of play, but is one of those players who will go where his coach thinks he will do the most damage to the opposition.

Joe Tubman, the kicking half, was forced out of action through an attack of tonsilitis which necessitated the amputation of his throat members last week. He will be laid up for another week. The return of Bill Baker has gladdened the hearts of Ottawa fans who foresee one of the best plunging teams in the union wearing their colors. Their back division will be much stronger, and the aggregation will be one capable of giving all the others a tidy race to the wire.

Ottawa and Pro Ball

The defeat of St. Pats by Belleville was an unexpected blow St. Pats fed up their batting averages on mediocre pitching all season and when they faced the superior article in the person of the Indian, Williams they were baffled. The amateur moguls tak, the early extinction of St. Pats with equanimty and are planning for next season. Professional baseball received to terrific black eye through the visit of the Canadiens and Royals who started their play-off series in Ottawa. This is a marathon series of eleven games. The attendance at both attractions in the Capital was very small, and the games were called at the end of the seventh inning to the great ire of the fans. Prices charged were out of all proportion to the quality of ball and the amateur cause, which was on the wave was considerably bolstered by the series. Ottawa wants higher class ball than that shown in the Page circuit, and won't stand for any substitutes, at least in the professional line.

Dr. Skelton will be in attendance at the forthcoming economic conference in London in an advisory capacity on constitutional as well as matters of political economy.

THISTLES WIN FROM PACKERS

Quakers Unable to Field Team Against the Vets.

The Thistles defeated the C.P.C. football team 6-0 in a league fixture on Saturday, the latter being short-handed throughout the game.

The game commenced at 3.50, with the Thistles facing sun and wind.

After five minutes of midfield play Melville cut in from the right to score the Thistles first counter.

From the kick off Matt Shaw ran up the field on the left, beating several Thistles' players, to have his final effort stopped by McKay.

From the return the Thistles forced a corner which was cleared in good style by Jack Shaw at back. Richmond came back to beat the backs, but failed to beat Curtis, who was playing a great game in goal. The play was then mostly confined to midfield, till Hutton broke away, and though well blocked by Shaw and Jury, got the ball in the net for the Thistles' second counter. From the kick-off the C.P.C. made a raid into the Thistles' half, but Anderson and Rae were equal to the occasion. The Thistles returned for Williams to try for goal but his effort was stopped by Curtis. Matt Shaw, who was palying back, and Jury, made some fine clearances and broke up some combination efforts on the part of the Thistles, but their lack of men in the forward line threw the game right back. Half-time arrived with the play in midfield. Thistles 2, C.P.C. 0.

From the kick off the play ran from end to end, each goal keeper being called upon to save on several occasions till Melville took the ball down the right to cross for Richmond to head in, grazing the upright. The C.P.C. were beginning to show signs of fatigue, and it says a lot for the sportsmanship of the players that they stuck it out for the full ninety minutes.

Again and again they made fruitless raids into Thistles' ground showing good combination work. McKay having to save on several occasions. Sumner had a run up the field on the left to cross to Richmond, who beat Curtis. Curtis injured his hand in trying to save but was able to carry on. Anderson scored on a pass from Wiliams, while Williams scored number six just before time up. Time was called with hte play in the Packers' half of the field.

Final score: Thistles 6, C.P.C. 0.

The teams were:

CP.C. — Curtis, J. Shaw, Jury, Underwood, H. Hotson, M. Shaw, Bradbury and Follis.

Thistles — McKay, Anderson and Rae, Jackson, Henderson and Burgess, Melville, Hutton, Richmond, Williams and Sumner.

J. Clark referee.

Matt Shaw while on the field and off, renewed many old acquaintances and showed that he had not forgotten how to play football.

The Quaker vs. Vets. game on the Oval, was not played, the Quakers being unable to field a team.

EASY WIN FOR MAPLE LEAFS

Clean Sweep of Series with Cobourg by Winning 19 to 2

Maple Leafs made a clean sweep of the O.B.A.A. series with Cobourg by winning in the Lakeshore town on Saturday afternoon by the score of 19 to 2. The Leafs collected twenty hits off two Cobourg twirlers, while "Chuck" Bradley was holding the homesters to four safeties. Once on the bases, the Leafs made life miserable for the Cobourg infield, sending nine runs across in the fourth and scoring in every frame thereafter. The local youngsters are now in the finals for the Juvenile championship of Ontario.

Defensively, the Leafs put up their best game of the season, opening strong when Cobourg worked hard for an early lead, and smothering every fresh effort as the game progressed. Bradley sent over some soft offerings in the eighth when the lonely pair of runs were tallied, and followed it up in the ninth with a shutout.

The hard and timely hitting, fast work on the runways, and the deadly throwing of Ab. Delahaye and his infield teammates put the Leafs in solid with Cobourg fans. Bradley fanned thirteen batters, getting away nicely, and working smoothly throughout the game.

The Leafs were given good support, motors for the trip being supplied by Messrs. Tom Ashby, H. J. McCannan, Wm. Kay, F. J. A. Hall and "Bill" Prindible. Several members of the Sacred Heart team also made the trip.

The teams:

ON LINER'S BRIDGE FOR LONG STRETCH.

SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 10. — Sixty-nine consecutive hours' duty on the bridge was the difficult test of endurance met by Commodore Hayes, of the White Star liner Majestic, on her voyage ending here Saturday.

The vessel required six days and two hours to cross from New York due to bad weather. For three days and fifteen hours it passed through a thick fog, a phenomenon at this time of the year. The master was on his bridge from 8 o'clock Tuesday night until 6 o'clock Friday evening when the ship anchored at Cherbourg.

DESTROYERS STRANDED.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press.)— Message received at Navy Department to-day from Admiral Robinson, commanding United States Pacific fleet, said no movable material could be salvaged from seven United States' destroyers stranded on California coast at Point Honda, until the heavy surf abated. Message did not refer to the number of lives lost.

DONOGHUE WILL RIDE PAPYRUS

Derby Winner Will Cross Atlantic With Imposing Retinue.

LONDON, September 10 (Canadian Press). — Papyrus will embark on the Aquitania, on 22nd September, with a retinue befitting a Derby winner seeking conquests in the New World.

Bar Gold, his playmate and solitary stablemate companion, is going along to keep the colt company, and so is the little black cat whose favourite pastime is rubbing his head against the legs of Ben Irish's famous horse.

Trainer Jarvis will, of course, go along, as also will the stable boy who massages Papyrus several hours every day, and another lad whose job it is to exercise the thoroughbred.

Mr. Irish, who on Saturday reached a final agreement with C. J. Fitzgerald for the colt to engage in an international race against the best three-year-old in the United States at Belmont Park, will go along if he can induce his physician to accompany him. Mr. Irish has been in poor health, though he looks to be the typical red-cheeked English country gentleman.

Brings Own Food.

Papyrus will take his own food and water along with him. As food was the question upon which the success of the negotiations had hung word was awaited from Washington as to whether the horse would be allowed to bring his own corn to the United States in contravention of the laws.

August Belmont cabled yesterday that the difficulty was not insurmountable, and the agreement was signed.

Papyrus will arrive in New York late in September, and will have three weeks in which to become acclimated and regain his land legs before the race.

Quite a number of British racegoers fear they will never see the horse again, and they have been writing scores of letters to Owner Irish. He was informed by one of the letter-writers that the race "is a deeply laid scheme to get the colt into the United States and keep him there, thereby depriving British blood stock breeders of the chance of using him in the stud."

Willing to Sell.

Mr. Irish, like most of the other members of the modern human race, has no contempt for dollars, and if somebody in the United States stacks enough in front of him, he can have Papyrus. But if will take more then $200,000, for Mr. Fitzgerald said on Saturday that an offer of that amount already has been made on this side.

The other day Mr Irish said that if anyone in the United States wanted to buy Papyrus, he would have to pay £100,000, but no one took that statement serious, for, as everyone knows, the highest ever paid for a horse was paid for Tracery, the father of Papyrus. The figure was $265,000, or about $200,000 less than £100,000.

Sail on 10th October.

Steve Donoghue, who has been the leading jockey in England for nine years, and who was in the saddle on Papyrus when he won the Derby this year will have the mount on the horse in the United States. He and a party of some of his friends and a group of wealthy English sportsmen expect to sail on 10th October.

Donoghue will leave New York on the Tuesday following the race, so that he will be back in England for the important engagements in Cambridgeshire at the autumn meeting.

Mr. Fitzgerald will go to Doncaster next Wednesday to watch Papyrus in the running of the St. Leger, his last race before embarking for New York. His hardest opponent in that race is expected to be Parth, who finished third in the Derby.

Mr Fitzgerald feels confident that Papyrus will win the St Leger, but he says that if he doesn't it won't affect the interest taken in the Derby winner, in the United States.

$5.75; 7 do 800 $3.50; 5 do 800 $4.25;

RETURNED PITCHER

CHICAGO, Sept. 10. — Claude Gillenwater pitcher, obtained by the Chicago Americans from the Muskegon, Michigan, Club of the Michigan Ontario League, to-day was returned to that club.

FIRPO'S CAREER

NEW YORK, Sept. 7—(By The Associated Press).—Luis Angel Firpo—ex-stevedore, the son of an Italian emigrant to the Argentine—has scaled the pugilistic heights to challenge for the world's heavyweight title after one of the strangest, most picturesque career the prize ring has ever known. Unheard of two years ago, he is matched to fight Jack Dempsey, the champion, at the Polo Grounds on September 14.

Big, strong and possessed of a powerful punch, Firpo is recognized by boxing critics here as a dangerous contender for the title, but back in his native Argentine, Luis is more than that—he is a national hero.

Firpo's early career in the land of the pampas gave little forecast of the athletic prowess he was to gain. Born October 29, 1895, nearly 28 years ago, in Buenos Aires, he had little but size and ruggedness to recommend him as a ring prospect. His father, a native of Genoa, Italy, emigrated to the Argentine at an early age. Enrique Firpo was small of statue but his wife, born of Spanish parents in the Argentine, was of much larger build and from her Luis inherited his size. The mother died several years ago, leaving an older brother and a younger sister, besides Luis. The father is now employed in the government railroad offices at Buenos Aires.

Before turning to pugilism as a means of livelihood, Firpo had a variety of occupations, doing odd work as a stevedore for some time. He also earned a little as a bootblack and had another job as bottle-washer in a drug store—the foundation upon which was built the legend that he once was a drug clerk.

Firpo, however, irked under the drudgery of these tasks and devoted most of his spare time to athletics, where he demonstrated all-round prowess through natural aptitude and physical qualifications. He had read of the achievements of the world's great pugilists and one day when a friend took him to a gymnasium he seized a chance to enter the ring against an amateur named Angel Rodriguez.

The disastrous ending of that attempt, in 1917, was the real stimulus to Firpo's ring career. He was knocked out in the first round by Rodriguez, who since has retired from active competition.

That setback, the only one of his career, was followed by a succession of triumphs. Firpo, finding a natural outlet for his physical ability, learned the rudiments of the game rapidly, through relying chiefly on his strength and punch. He knocked out a score of opponents as an amateur. Then, in his first bout as a professional, he knocked out an American, William Daly, in the seventh round. That bout occurred in September, 1919, in Chile, and was followed by a string of knockouts by Firpo among opponents in that country Uruguay and his native land, the Argentine.

By the winter of 1921-22, Firpo had conquered about all the pugilistic opposition South America afforded and began to turn toward other fields. Influenced by sportsmen who had taken an interest in him, Firpo came to the United States early in 1942 and after some delay obtained a match with Sailor Maxted, at Newark, N. J., Firpo won by a knockout in seven rounds and then in succession stopped two other lesser heavyweight lights, Italian Jack Herman and Joe McCann, before returning to the Argentine.

Yet unschooled and crude in the finer points of the game, Firpo showed enough promise to attract attention of boxing experts. After bowling over Jim Tracey, an Australian, in Buenos Aires, Firpo signed an agreement with Tex Richard to return to this country for a series of fights, the last with Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight title if he won the others.

That marked the rise of Firpo to real prominence and recognition as a title contender. He bowled over Bill Brennan, Jack McAuliffe and then halted a come-back by Jess Willard, besides scoring a number of minor victories here and on a barnstorming trip to Cuba and Mexico. He had battled his way to the top of the heavyweight challenging heap and the title match was a natural outcome.

THINKS DEMPSEY WILL CONQUER LOUIS FIRPO

Jimmy Deforest Confident in Outcome of Big Bout.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 10.— (Canadian Press.)—Jack Dempsey to-day is not the same tigerish Dempsey that battered Jess Willard into helplessness in Toledo four years ago, but he still is good enough to conquer Luis Angel Firpo, in their heavyweight championship battle at the Polo Grounds next Friday night.

This is the opinion of Jimmy Deforest, who trained Dempsey for his fight with Willard, and conditioned Firpo for several of his contests in this country, notably with Bill Brennan, Jack McAuliffe and Willard.

The champion boxed six rounds today but only worked earnestly in four of them. He started off with two rounds against Farmer Lodge and found the 235 pound Minnesotan a trifle harder to hit than on previous occasions. In the second round Dempsey sunk a few body punches into Lodge until he grunted with the shock. Lodge smashed Dempsey a couple of times with a looping right punch to the head.

While boxing George Godfrey, the 225 pound negro, Dempsey attempted his famous shift, starting a right lead and then shifting for a left hook. He nailed Godfrey twice with this punch and also shook him up with hard rights and lefts to the head.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

From Massey Hall to the Royal comes "Rob Roy," on Wednesday.

The latest sensation in the film world, the million dollar film production of Sir Walter's Scott's spectacular romance, "Rob Roy," will have local premiere at the Royal on Wednesday of this week.

The central character of the story is Roy Roy Macgregor, chief of the clan MacGregor at Inversnaid, the feudal enemy of Duke of Montrose, branded as an outlaw without name, or hame or siller, but with all possessing a reputation as a lusty man of battle throughout the length and breadth of the highlands.

MacGregor is one of the most powerful characters ever appearing in a motion picture drama. The slogan, "What Bruce can do, MacGregor can do; watch out for MacGregor when he takes to the heather," and right soundly does Macgregor set upon his enemies, working by the old adage "Might makes right." He takes what lass he wants with a brief and stormy courtship, ending in a laconic proposal, "To-day your name's Campbell, to-morrow your name's MacGregor."

With $5000 reward for his head, MacGregor goes where he wills and takes what he wanst, on one occasion performing the audacious exploit of capturing Montrose's body of retainers and servants on the rent collection day, and right under the nose of the duke, possessing himself of all the rents and taxes, magnanimously allowing the honest and hard working homesteaders a 25 per cent. reduction for cash.

The characters, Rob Roy, Helen Campbell, Wee MacGregor, Dougall Argyle and Killearn, portrayed by famous English actors, are figures which seem to live in the story. And the big scenes include the rising of the clans, the tremendous conflagration which consumes the entire MacGregor settlements at Inversnaid, MacGregor's abduction of Helen Campbell; the many physical exploits of Roy Roy, who engages single-handed bands of outlaws and companies of Montrose's retainers; MacGregor's dive into the River Forth; the tremendous mournful funeral procession of the entire clan MacGregor, which ends in the spectacular rising from the dead.

This tremendous English film comes to Peterborough direct from two weeks of capacity business at Massey Hall, Toronto.

It is also worthy of note that the big production "Main Street," now playing at the Royal, is also playing at Pantages big theatre in Toronto on the same dates, and all the Toronto papers have nothing but praise for its entertainment qualities.

"Main Street" comes to the Royal, highly recommended. Will be shown two days only, Monday and Tuesday.

The announcement of W. P. McGeachie, manager of the Royal Theatre, that "Main Street," a screen adaption of Sinclair Lewis' novel, describing life in a small town, will be shown for two days commencing to-day, will be hailed by all motion picture enthusiasts as an event out of the ordinary run of things. Patrons are reminded that owing to the big British production "Rob Roy" being booked for the last four days "Main Street will be screened on Monday and Tuesday only.

"Main Street" in the novel form was the most widely discussed book ever published in America, not excepting even "Uncle Tom's Cabin;" it dealt with the life of the small town and aroused more comment pro and con than anything of the kind.

It is a long time since the screen has seen anything like the ensemble of actors assembled in "Main Street" —a distinguished cast that gives dash and life to the action. Think of these players all being in one picture: Florence Vidor, Monte Blue Harry Myers, Noah Beery, Louise Fazenda, Robert Gordon, Josephine Crowell, Gordon Griffith, Otis Harlan and Alan Hale.

The story is familiar to many: — Carol Kennicott, her revolt against what she finds in Gopher Prairie, a Main Street town, her attempts to make it fit with the ideals she has acquired from books and college, her fight. The picture should be seen by "evcryone, for Main Street is a little world, and the world is composed of nothing but Main Streets.

The production is in ten reels and patrons are advised to come early.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor the The Examiner, Sir,—Ther, is a great deal of dissatisfaction with the treatment handed out to people caught breaking into and robbing the houses of settlers and others in the Stoney Lake district. It is only encouraging criminals, who are now coming from far and near to take advantage of their opportunities and what does the Children's Aid mean by letting a young boy go free to continue on the rampage as he is doing now. This is keeping a school for criminals and no wonder there is talk of complaints to the County Council and higher up. It is this sort of thing that finally causes an enraged public to take the law in its own hands. If more courage is needed, those will be found who have it.

ODDITIES IN NEWS

POCKETBOOK.

The cost of living is about three-fifth higher now than it was when the war started, in 1914, according to National Industrial Conference Board. It figures on the basis of the requirements for the average American wage-earner with five-person family.

In other words it takes about $1.60 to buy what cost $1 in 1914. To counteract this situation, the average person should be getting an income three-fifths higher than before the war. Divide your income by 16, then multiply it by 10 and you'll have your present buying power in terms of the 1914 dollar, for comparison.

Most of us will consider the board's estimate three-fifths too low in living cost, too conservative.

OPIUM.

China, discouraged by civil war and other troubles, again is smoking opium on a big scale. So reports the Rev. Dr. H. H. Gowen, back to the University of Washington after a trip in the orient.

Americans individually used to do the same things with whisky. Discouraged, they "drowned their troubles" instead of facing and meeting them. Nationally we're getting the alcohol out of our system, sobered, we're making strange discoveries about our economic predicament.

The Case of the Edwards Brothers

JAMES, the older brother, said "I'm thrifty—I'll save my money and invest it in sound stocks and bonds." Harold, two years younger, said "I'm not very good at saving—I'll invest in a twenty year endowment policy with the North American Life."

That was twenty years ago. Today both are married; James has two children and Harold has three. On May 15th Harold's endowment policy matured and he was paid $10,000 by the North American Life Company.

James had only $2,200 laid by. "Some of the stocks I invested in dropped, one company failed entirely and I was forced to sell at a loss. I wish I had shown the wisdom and foresight of my brother, but, as the old saying goes—'afterthoughts are dearly bought, let thy forethoughts rule thee.'"

BETHANY TABERNACLE.

Last November Rev. A. G. Doner rendered his resignation as pastor of the church, but the officers asked him to hold it in abeyance, and no further action was taken until Thursday evening, Sept. 6th, when a regularly called business meeting was held, presided over by Mr. L. Watson, of Toronto, as the representative of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, who asked the congregation of Bethany Tabernacle to release Mr. Doner from the pastorate of the church. As the official representatives of the Alliance in Canada have another work they want Mr. Doner to do. This being agreed to by the congregation, it was decided to ask Mr. M. Bollister to take charge of this branch of the C. and M.A.—A. L. Johnston, Church Secretary.

THE NEW YEAR STARTS TODAY FOR HEBREWS

Is is the 5,684th Since Creation, Their Calendar Shows a Period of Repentance.

LOCAL SERVICES

Hebrews in Peterboro, in common with their brethren in every section of the globe, to-day begin their observance of the Hebrew New Year.

The New Year ushers in, for Hebrews, the most important period of prayer and religious orthodoxy in the Hebrew calendar, a period that concludes with the Day of Atonement, ten days after the New Year has commenced.

The New Year will, according to Hebrew computation, be the 5,684th since creation. This, to them, is the day God created Adam, the first human being in the world, and the same day on which Isaac was offered on the altar by Abraham.

Many legends, famous in Hebrew lore, surround the period. The central theme on which the thought of the period is constructed, is that the Creator sits in judgment upon every living being in the world. This grand review of their deeds and misdeeds commences on the first day of the New Year, and judgment is finally passed towards sunset on the Day of Atonement.

Period of Repentance.

The intervening days mark a repentance when, through an acknowledgment of one's omissions and commissions and a repentance of one's sins, one may be admitted to the mercy of the Supreme Deity.

The liturgy of these days is marked by some of the noblest passages of Hebrew literature and religious thought, and embody the spiritual message contained in the central theme. The thrilling notes of the "Kol Nidre," ushering in the one-day fast of the Day of Atonement is world famous.

Rabbi F. Rizenman, from Palestine, will conduct the services in the temporary synagogue on Water Street. In recounting the Hebrew belief in this day he described how Rosh Hashuno (New Year) was the day on which three angels prophesied to Sarah, wife of Abraham, that she would bear a son, Isaac, and on Rosh Hashuno, in the following year, Isaac was born when Abraham was 100 years old.

Rabbi Rizenman informed the Examiner to-day that in the service which opens to-night, special prayers will be offered for the freedom of the world.

Last November Rev. A. G. Doner tendered his resignation as pastor of the church, but the officers asked him to hold it in abeyance, and no further action was taken until Thursday evening, Sept. 6th, when a regularly called business meeting was held, presided over by Mr. L. Watson, of Toronto, as the representative of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, who asked the congregation of Bethany Tabernacle to release Mr. Doner from the pastorate of the church. As the official representatives of the Alliance in Canada have another work they want Mr. Doner to do. This being agreed to by the congregation, it was decided to ask Mr. M. Billister to take charge of this branch of the C. and M.A.—A. J. Johnston, Church Secretary.

FIVE CONVICTS FIRED PENITENTIARY STABLE AND MADE GETAWAY

Scaled Walls at Portsmouth Prison in Confusion Caused by the Flames, and Sped Northward in Stolen Auto.

POSSE IN PURSUIT

KINGSTON, Sept. 10.— (Canadian Press.)—Five convicts set fire to the Penitentiary stable here this morning and, during the confusion, scaled the walls andl escaped in a stolen automobile. Although guards on the walls fired at them, none were injured.

Police in Pursuit.

When the convicts dropped from the wall they made their way across the Richardson property and seized an automobile belonging to J. Thompson, a painter. They sped northward through the streets, while another auto, owned by W. B. Dunn, containing the guard from the penitentiary, was in hot pursuit.

Nearing a farm on the Perth road, the convicts smashed through the gate and landed the automobile in a swamp. They abandoned the car and escaped into the wood.

A large posse of guards and police, fully armed, is searching the woods and swamps for the escaped convicts, among whom are said to be McMullen, Wyoming bank bandit, and Ryan, alias Slade.

McMullen, the police say, was driving the stolen car and was wounded by the guard.

SURPRISE PARTY AND GIFT OF TABLE LINEN

A surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Fuller, 518 Gilmour street Saturday, Sept. 8th, the 26th anniversary of their wedding.

At about 8 p.m. a number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Fuller assembled and a very pleasant evening was spent in music and progressive euchre. Mrs. R. Read won the lady's prize and Mr. J. Londerville the gentleman's prize. Miss Lillian Adams of Toronto, sang beautifully and responded to an encore.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Fuller were presented with a gift of table linen, accompanied by an address read by Mrs. B. Watts, who made the presentation. Suitable replies followed by Mr. and Mrs. Fuller, who expressed their appreciation of the gift and pleasure in the social phase of the evening. Dainty refreshments were then served, which brought a very pleasant event to a happy close.

ODDITIES IN NEWS

POCKETBOOK.

The cost of living is about three-fifth higher now than it was when the war started in 1914, according to National Industrial Conference Board. It figures on the basis of the requirements for the average American wage-earner with five in family.

In other words it takes about $1.60 to buy what cost $1 in 1914. To counteract this situation, the average person should be getting an income three-fifths higher than before the war. Divide your income by 16, then multiply it by 10 and you'll have your present buying power in terms of the 1914 dollar, for comparison.

Most of us will consider the board's estimate (three-fifths rise in living cost) too conservative.

OPIUM.

China, discouraged by civil war and other troubles, again is smoking opium on a big scale. So reports the Rev. Dr. H. H. Gowen, back to the University of Washington after a trip in the orient.

Americans individually used to do the same things with whisky. Discourage, they "drowned their troubles," instead of facing and meeting them. Nationally we're getting the alcohol out of our system. Sobered, we' remaking strange discoveries about our economic predicament.

EXTREMISTS HURT PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Speaker Urges Proper Education of Public to Its Own Interest.

TORONTO, Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press).—"The proper education of the public to its own interests is essential before any embarkation is attempted on not too well charted and stormy seas of public ownership," was the statement to-day of J. W. Lowry, commissioner of telephones for the Province of Manitoba, to the delegates to the public ownership conference here.

Mr. Lowry declared that public ownership had suffered by the claims of extremists on its behalf that it was the panacea for all ills.

"Theoretically," he said, "public ownership is sound, yet I have seen instances where self-interested persons were always looking to use the public purse to their own advantage."

TORONTO'S POPULATION INCREASES BY 9,556

The Case of the Edwards Brothers

JAMES, the older brother, said "I'm thrifty—I'll save my money and invest it in sound stocks and bonds." Harold, two years younger, said "I'm not very good at saving—I'll invest in a twenty year endowment policy with the North American Life."

That was twenty years ago. Today both are married; James has two children and Harold has three. On May 15th Harold's endowment policy matured and he was paid $10,000 by the North American Life Company.

James had only $2,200 laid by—"Some of the stocks I invested in dropped, one company failed entirely and I was forced to sell at a loss. I wish I had shown the wisdom and foresight of my brother, but, as the old saying goes—'afterthoughts are dearly bought, let thy forethoughts rule thee.'"

RESISTANCE TO FRENCH NOT BEEN CALLED OFF DECLARES STRESEMANN

Germany Will Never Capitulate, Asserts German Chancellor, Although Moment Approaches When She May Make a Definite Offer to France.

REPORTS DENIED

BERLIN, Sept. 11. — (United Press).—Passive resistance has not been declared off. Such stories are pure nonsense, for Germany will never capitulate.

The above statement was given to the United Press by the German Foreign Office Monday night. It refers to reports from London yesterday, to the effect that the German Government had ordered a cessation of resistance to the French in the Ruhr, and was sending emissaries to Paris.

Start Negotiations.

Chancellor Stresemann, of Germany, and French Ambassador Margerie have started negotiations in an attempt to find a general basis for settlement of the Ruhr and reparations problem, it was semi-officially confirmed to-day. It is stated the Germans have not yet made a definite offer, but this is expected soon by the French.

It is semi officially announced that from the tenor of Chancellor Stresemann's conversations with Ambassador Margerie, which are taking place at Berlin, it can be concluded that Germany is approaching the moment when she will make a definit, offer.

France will submit any such offer she may receive to England and the other Allies.

Chancellor Stresemann is believed to be merely sounding out French opinion at the moment, however.

CANADIAN CLUBS REACH LOG CABIN

Proceeding to Victoria for Annual Convention

MONTREAL, Sept. 11. — The Canadian Club party now at Banff on a trans-Canada tour were entertained this afternoon on the summit of Vermillion Pass at the Storm Mount Rest House, an attractive log cabin bungalow recently erected by the Canadian Pacific Railway for the convenience of those motoring over the new Banff-Windermere Highway. The fifty-two members of the party who have been automobiling, trail riding or swimming in the warm sulphur pools during the last two days, leave to-morrow for Lake Louise before proceeding to Victoria for the annual convention of Canadian Clubs. They are enthusiastic over the spectacular beauty of the Canadian Rockies, which most of them are seeing for the first time. On Thursday they take tea at Lake Agnes, which claims to have the highest tea-house in the British Empire.

MODERN TOKIO TO RISE FROM ASHES OF FIRE

Plan Similar to That in Building Washington Has Already Been Tentatively Adopted.

FEEDING REFUGEES

TOKIO, Sept. 11.— (By Wireless from Iakaki to United Press.)—An entirely modern Tokio is to rise from the ashes of disaster.

A plan similar to that used in building Washington, D.C., has been tentatively adopted. Electrical manufacturers and other industries already are placing order for machines, equipment and food with United States' firms, even before the last of Tokio's corpses have been cleared away from the ruins laid by the 'quake of September 1 and the resultant fires.

Damage is Greater.

Reports from various devastated districts indicate the damage to property has been even greater than at first reported.

A tremendous tidal wave which swept Kamakura immediatey after Oshima, four miles off the shore, erupted violently and disappeared beneath the sea, did incalculable damage, especially in the summer resorts, to which many foreigners go each year.

Most of the foreigners there were saved.

Apparently about 250 foreigners lost their lives in Yokohama, few Americans being among the number.

Nowhere to Go.

Foreign refugees of the earthquake and fire are being sent to Koke, Chinese ports, and America. Millions of Japanese refugees have nowhere to go. Their homes are destroyed, but it is believed that all are being fed. A feeling already has grown up that Japanese-American friendship has been cemented by the disaster and that immediate aid will be given by the United States. The possibility of a war has been removed forever, they are saying here.

Robbed and Slain.

Refugees from Japan brought to Shanghai by the steamer Empress of Canada, confirm reports that foreign victims of the disaster were robbed and murdered, says a Shanghai despatch to the Morning Post, London. All survivors, many of whom were taken to hospitals, told poignant stories of their experiences. Many are penniless and without clothes, while several demented patients are being cared for.

Danger of Epidemic.

Some of foreign business concerns, against re-opening their Yokohama says a correspondent have decided establishments, fearing that conditions in that city wi'l always remain uncertain.

Kobe is said to be overcrowded, and that there is danger of an epidemic there.

BURGLARIZED FIVE TIMES.

PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEMS HERE WERE PRAISED

Enunciated by Miss Margaret Haley, Chicago, as America's Greatest National Enterprises,

STRESSFUL PROBLEMS

TORONTO, Setp. 11.—(Canadian Press.)— Public school systems of Canada and the United States were enunciated as America's greatest public ownership enterprises, in an address by Miss Margaret Haley, of the Chicago Teachers' Federation, before a public ownership conference with delegates from all parts of the continent, heer to-day. Miss Haley's address presented some of the stressful problems and potent possibilities of Public school work.

In the opinion of Charles K. Mohler, of Chicago, in his address on "some powers needed for public development of electrical energy," the Province of Ontario, Canada, up to the present has only satisfactory results to show, inadequate laws and accomplishments in the matter of public ownership on the North American continent.

"When we come to fully recognize and insist upon the fact that government must be organized to serve the community in many complex and diverse ways not at all related to the old conception of political institutions," said Mr. Mohler, "we will have made a distinct advance in human progress and welfare."

Addresses of Interest.

Other addresses on the programme for to-day are "Public Investment in Public Utilities" by W. H. Wood, of Brantford, Ontario, Chamber of Commerce; "Nationalization of Coal Mines" by John Brophy, of the United Mine Workers;"the PlumbPlan" by Warren Stone, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Several technical papers and addresses dealing with the progress of public ownership in various States and Provinces are being delivered this afternoon.

REVIEW OF THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(Special). —Foreign exchanges were the buoyant in the early dealings, reflecting the beginning of negotiations in Paris to find a general basis for the settlement of the Ruhr dispute and the whole reparations problem.

Sterling gained a half cent, and advances approximating 12 points were scored by French and Belgian francs. Stocks maintained the strong tone started in the previous session by cables forecasting the abandonment of passive resistance and the despatch of German envoys to the French capital. Fractional gains were scored by Utah, Studebaker, Republican Steel, American Can. and other industrial leaders. Union Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio and a few other rails made slight advances.

While the main body of industrials moved in a narrow range in the first hour, special activity continued in individual stocks, and marked strength developed in the rail stocks. New York Central went into new high ground on the move, reflecting the belief that this stock has not measured market-wise its splendid earnings and increased dividend.

Among the specialties, Cluett Peabody was the feature. This stock presents a $5 dividend rate is not likely to be increased at the October I meeting, but the earnings at the annual rate of $20 a share have induced action.

Continental Can. current $1 earning rate furnished the impulse behind this issue's continued advance into new high ground for the year.

Mallinson made a new high on the movement in anticipation of heavy inventory appreciation as a result of the Japanese situation and also in reflection of the sharp gain in the August sales.

WORK FAR FROM EARTH

"Aerial Couple" Earn Living by Soaring Near Clouds and Watching For Forest Fires Below

MR. AND MRS. NICK MAMER.

SPOKANE, Sept. 11.—Speaking of jobs, folks out here are convinced that the Mamers have about the most thrilling in the world.

"The Mamers" are Mr. and Mrs. Nick Mamer of this city, a young couple, recently married. Both are expert aviators, and they employ their time during the day by cruising about up near the clouds, watching for forest fires below.

Spotting forest fires in eastern Washington is an important assignment. The Timbermen's Protective Association decided best results could be obtained by having an airplane on the watch. That was where the Mamers came in.

So, following their aerial honeymoon, they started to work. Whenever they "spot" a fire, they radio its location to headquarters.

Mamer is the pilot who helped the Examiner score such a remarkable beat on the Dempsey-Gibbons fight photos. He flew westward from Shelby, Mont.

PRINCE POPULAR ON BOARD SHIP

His Personal Charm Has Made Many Friends During Trip Across the Atlantic.

LONDON, Sept. 11. — (Canadian Press).—Wireless messages are being published in newspaers here with reference to the Prince of Wales' trip across the Atlantic on his way to Canada.

The Daily Mail says the Prince, as Lord Renfrew, by his unassuming manner and charm, is the most popular passenger on the Empress of France, and has made many friends on shipboard, some of whom are invited to dine with him each night.

Brisk walks on deck and physical exercises in the ship's gymnasium keep the distinguished passenger in good condition, and at a fancy dress ball, during which the ship was ablaze with color, Lord Renfrew entered into the spirit of the festivities and appeared to enjoy the dancing.

The papers make reference to Lord Renfrew's part in the Sunday morning service on board, and his reading of the lesson from Corinthians.

It was announced from the headquarters of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal to-day that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales would arrive by the S.S. Empress of France at Quebec at 7 a.m. tomorrow. The Prince will spend the day and Wednesday night in the ancient capital, leaving for the West on Thursday morning.

THE WEATHER.

The temperature was down to 35 degrees this morning, with much white frost to be seen. Gardens in valleys and low-lying sections were probably touched with the blighting finger of Jack Frost. The first freezing temperature usually comes during the third week of September, the first time that sufficient snow comes to whiten the ground is about a month later, while the annual "freeze-up," if on schedule time, is due November 15th. Naturally, the seasons vary, but the foregoing dates are about the average.—W. P.

CONVICTS ARE STILL LIBERTY

Fifty Dollars Reward Offered for the Capture of Each Man.

KINGSTON, Sept. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Up till one o'clock to-day the police and posse who are engaged in the hunt for four convicts who succeeded in making their escape from Portsmouth Penitentiary yesterday after setting fire to the stables in the institution, had failed to locate the whereabouts of the quartette. It is believed, however, that they are in hiding in the McAdoo Woods, near where they abandoned the stolen car yesterday when hotly pursued by Guard Forsyth of the Penitentiary.

A message was received at the Penitentiary to-day authorizing a reward of fifty dollars for the capture of each member of the escaped squad. The authorities will use bloodhounds if necessary.

WIFE'S AIMS SERIOUS, BUT HER AIM IS BAD

Court Hears Marital Perils of Silk Stocking Millionaire.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.— Henry G. (Silk Stockings) Saal, millionaire manufacturer, to-day answered Mrs. Violet Piels Saal's divorce petition, charging that during their married life she threw at him:

One carving knife.
A monkey wrench.
A horse whip.
A pair of scissors.
A mirror.
A pair of shoes.
One picture frame.
A 3-gallon water can.
A heavy piece of iron pipe.
Seven phonograph records.

Saal, accused by his wife of wearing women's silk stockings, described himself as a "passive" victim of fiendish cruelty.

After enumerating the things he said Mrs. Saal threw at him, Saal asserts, she then tried to persaude him to drink poison.

CHEMONG PARK IN SECLUSION ANOTHER YEAR

Summer Resort is Beginning to Look Like a Deserted Village —A Few Remain.

NEWS OF THE PARK

Chemong Park is rapidly attaining its usual end-of-the-season aspect of a deserted village. The reopening of the schools and the recurrence of chilly nights and rainy days has driven most of the cottagers to the refuge of warmer houses in the city.

The days, when they are sunny, are lovely at the Park just now, and the colours of autumn are touching the trees with splashes of red and gold, glimpsed through long vistas of green and brown. Doors are tightly closed, blinds drawn down, verandahs are empty of hospitable rockers and hammocks. The long purr of passing motors is no longer heard, there are no paddlers in the pretty lake, and a solitary bathing suit or belated line of washing is the only back-door evidence of life. The hornets' nest that occupies a prominent position against the back window of one of the main-road cottages is left once more in quiet seclusion, and the little horse on the grocer's delivery waggon, the small brown animal that answers to a whistle, and goes from back door to back door on a signal from his absent master, makes his rounds to very few places.

The cottagers at Chemong Park might be numbered at about a score or less, just now. And the Park, in its declining autumnal days, has turned to religion. Below the old pavilion's blackboard is posted a bill that announces the arrival on 9th September of a travelling preacher. It reads: "Evangelistic services will (D.V.) be held at the Pavilion, commencing 9th September, at 8 o'clock in the evening. All welcome. Conducted by Irish evangelists."

Whether the Celtic revivalist received a warm welcome, nobody seems to know. His first meetiag, its attendance or success, are shrouded in mystery. The old Pavilion has been thrown open to his use for the next two weeks by the proprietors of the Rendezvous, where dances still continue, nightly.

Whether the arrival of the evangelist coincides with the desire of motorists to conform with "safety first" regulations or not, it is hard to say. A city-bound motorist swept along the roadway yesterday with front lights blazing out in the full light of day, and a Park-returning resident rumbled in about four o'clock with his rear lights on in force.

The dogs that summered at the Park have nearly all returned to town with their owners. The frolicsome Boston bulls, the little fox terrier Prince and the big Airedale of the same name, the somewhat lively pet of the Buntin family, have all disappeared. But Peggy is still at the Rendezvous. Lew Ingram's husky-collie remains with his owners, there is a funny little collie pup at the Wayte cottage, and Foch is a dog that is looking for a home. Foch's owner is leaving shortly, and the nice big collie with the cheerful disposition and the watchful eye, runs the risk of being chloroformed if his owner cannot find a good home for him.

On Saturday night, a group of Chemong boys and the Rendezvous Orchestra came into town with Gordon Mein on the "Comet," whose cheerful whistle greets many travellers on the road. They had a "feed" in town, with Pete Gettas as the chaperone.

Dr. and Mrs. Morgan, who have been among the late residents at the Park, are coming in this week.

Miss S. A. Tomkins is still in the cottage occupied this summer by Dr. and Mrs. McCulloch.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayte are in their cottage, and Mr. and Mrs. Hughes also.

Mrs. McGlauchin and Mrs. Murphy of Toronto have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes for the last fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hopwood are at the Island. Miss Elsie Baxendale of New York is their guest at present.

Mr and Mrs. Perry and family are in the Park still, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Sullivan of East City.

Mrs. J. Patte is in Toronto this week. The Patte cottage is still open.

Mrs. D. C. Fairman is at the Park, and intends remaining for some time longer.

Mr. and Mrs. Fligg and Dr. and

DEVELOPMENT OF THE PETERBORO EXHIBITION READS LIKE A ROMANCE

Free Insulin Has Been Issued to 2 Local Applicants

Free Insulin has been issued by the Peterborough Branch of the Provincial Laboratory to two applicants, and there are numerous enquiries for particulars as to its distribution. One of the cases—the first to receive free Insulin—was in the city, and the other patient resided in the district. It is believed there will be no difficulty in obtaining a sufficient supply from the Government distributing station in Toronto to meet even the large number of enquiries, should they all apply.

Treatment of diabetes by Insulin did not originate in the city with the inauguration of the free Government issue. Insulin has been available through physicians since the time it was possible to obtain a supply. The free treatment to needy patients now places the treatment within the reach of all sufferers from diabetes.

ANNEXATION OF FIUME TO ITALY WITHIN A WEEK

Reliable Sources Gather That Such is Intention of Premier Mussolini—No Serious Protest.

NO ARBITRATION

ROME, Sept. 11.— (Canadian Press.)—It was announced in a semi-official statement to-day that Italy is not prepared to consider any mediation or arbitration of her differences with Jugo-Slavia, with rgard to the status of Fiume, since that question is held to be one for direct settlement between the two countries.

Reliable Reports.

It is understood from influential reports gathered from reliable sources, that Premier Mussolini will proclaim the annexation of Fiume to Italy within a week, probably about September 15.

The Government of Jugo-Slavia is represented as being aware of Mussolini's intention, and is intending to make no serious protest provided Porto Barros and Sussak, adjacent, are not directly affected.

MANY CASES DEALT WITH IN PETERBORO

George W. Powell, President of the Children's Aid Society, and Superintendent charged with the administration of hte Unmarried Parents' Act and the Adoption Act in Peterboro County, gave the Examiner some interesting figures to-day showing the extent of his work in this district.

He has prosecuted in eighteen months, 33 cases under the Unmarried Parents' Act, and has collected for the benefit of the mothers and children $2,564.75. In the Province of Ontario there were 1,700 cases dealt with under this Act and $75,000 colected and $50,000 yet to be received.

Nnder the adopton Act, Mr. Powell has handled 10 cases, placing the baies in good homes. In the province there were 1,400 legal adoptions in two years

Every Change Has Been in Way of Progress—Exhibition of 37 Years Ago Recalled.

CONSTANTLY GROWS

"Large oaks from little acorns grow," is a saying that might well be applied to Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, tor from a little gathering of farmers 78 years ago has grown the biggest and best Exhibition between Toronto and Montreal. And it has grown in much the same way as the oak, adding a little bit to its size every year.

The Peterborough Agricultural Society had its origin in the early days of the community, and became firmly established in 1845 with the object of encouraging the raising of cattle, horses and stock of improved breeds, and improving the methods of farming. Small exhibitions they were in those days, but, shorn of the midways and entertainment attractions of the present age they were the centre of attraction for a wide community.

The Grand Trunk, and later the C.P.R., carried large numbers of farmers to the district attraction, and boats plying on the Otonabee, apparently much more numerous than now, brought their quota of visitors and exhibits.

As it progressed in strength and size the Fair changed its name successively to the "West Riding of Peterborough Agricultural Society Fair," the "Midland Central Fair," and the "Peterborough Industrial Exhibition," by which name it is now known, and favourably known, throughout Canada.

Credit to Officers.

Through many vicissitudes of fortune, in the shape of adverse weather conditions which appear only too frequent; counter attractions, and difficulties of which the organizers and workers alone know, the men who have from year to year guided the destinies of the big Exhibition have carried on. They have dropped out of the running as years passed, handing the task to younger men more fitted for the arduous work, but they have passed down something of their spirit, an invincible determination to make every year better than the preceding.

Small attention is paid by the public to the task which is with those who manage the Fair, not only during Exhibition week when the results of their work are seen, but throughout the 361 other days of the year. Constantly alert to seize a new idea that will boost the next Exhibition and always planning for improvements and enlargements, the men who direct the Peterborough Industrial are all-the-year-round workers.

The Exhibition of 1886.

In 1885, the Fair, which had attained to the dignity of the "Midland Central Exhibition" or the "Peterborough Central Exhibition" was opened under that name for the first time, but it did not attain its commanding position until the following year when the opening ceremony was performed by His Honor John Beverley Robinson, Lieutenant Governor of Ontario and nephew of the Hon. Peter Robinson in whose memory Peterborough is named. The Lieutenant Governor referred to the work his uncle had done in settling the locality, saying that when Peter Robinson brought his first settlers into this district he did not bring a written speech of welcome. In opening the Exhibition the visitors followed the same course and made an informal speech in which he praised the industrial achievements of the community and lauded the splendid exhibits.

In welcoming the Lieut. Governor, the Mayor described the occasion as the first opportunity the citizens of the town had of paying their respects to a representative of the Queen.

Appropriate Setting.

An adress was also read by John Carnegie, M.P.P., on behalf of the West Riding of Peterborough Agricultural Society in which it was said, "It is peculiarly appropriate that

BRITISH GIRL CLERKS DEMAND WAGE INCREASE

LONDON, Sept. 11 (Associated Press) —Girl clerks in American offices who bemoan the slimness of fifteen and twenty dollar a week salaries are considered lucky by their poorer paid counterparts in England.

There are 3,000 women clerks in government offices, some of them with eight years experience, who receive less than the equivalent of $10 a week. They don't like it, but they don't know what to do about it, for there are still more than 1,000,000 unemployed in England who stand ready to pounce upon positions the minute they are vacated. Most of these government clerks are in the late twenties, some have passed thirty, and among them there are widows with children to support.

The clerks have asked the government to increase their pay by $2 or $2.50 a week. Some of the newspapers are supporting their requests. The government hasn't said anything yet, one way or the other. Meanwhile, it is said, the girls who cannot make both ends meet on their salaries are making up the difference after hours, by sewing, doing laundry work, and teaching dancing.

ISLAND SOIL FREEZES THOUSAND FEET DOWN

Desolate Spitzbergen Presents Unusual Phenomena.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.— The soil on Spitzbergen, the desolate island in the Arctic Ocean which has come into some prominence since the war because of its mineral deposits, has been found to be frozen to a depth of 1,000 feet, according to information received by the United States Weather Bureau.

A temperature of just freezing has been found in a mine about 1,000 feet in depth.

The surface soil thaws in summer to a depth of about two feet. Building conditions are difficult as unless foundations go below the "thaw" line the building will settle in summer.

It is necessary to dig down below the permanent frost line far enough so that heat conducted down the foundation material will not cause thawing beneath. This has been found to be about five feet.

82 Persons Killed in Russian Wreck

And 152 Injured in Derailment Near Omsk.

RIGA, September 10 (Canadian Press). — A despatch received here from Moscow says an express train was derailed on Saturday at Omsk, and that 82 persons were killed and 152 injured.

FORD PLANS TO RAISE MORE EFFICIENT COW.

Seeks Two-in-One Breed That Will Produce Both Milk and Beef.

DETROIT, Mich., September 11.—Henry Ford is planning to develop a "more efficient" cow. The Ford animal will be neither a refinement of a standard milk breed nor a quick fattening development of any of the standard beef breeds. If expectations are realized it will be a combination of both, a dual purpose cow in which the milk-producing qualities of the Jersey, Holstein or Guernsey will be combined with the beefy lines of the Hereford, the Black-Angus or the Shorthorn.

Mr. Ford has already made known his plans and ideas regarding the new animal to cattleman now in attendance at the Michigan State Fair. He has offered the Commission of Selecting and Purchasing the "milking Shorthorns" that will be the forebears of the experimental herd.

The superintending of the selective breeding has been offered to R. L. Mackie, chief herdsman for the Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing. The offer was made to Mr Mackie while he was in Detroit with the college cattle that are being exhibited at the fair, according to A. E. A. Stevenson of Port Huron, a member of the State Fair Board of Managers who has charge of the dairy cattle at the fair.

Mr. Stevenson declared that although there are now no dual-purpose cattle that can efficiently compete either in the need of dairy cattle or of beef cattle, it might be possible to develop a new breed that could produce nearly as much milk as a Jersey and yet enter the open market and bring as much for beef as the Hereford.

"Mr. Ford thinks," Mr. Stevenson said, "that cattle, as we know the best of them now are not nearly as efficient as they should be. It is known of course that the lines between beef and dairy cattle are very distinct at the present time. One group of breeders has been attempting for many years to produce the best milker. Another group has bred for the heaviest beef steer, and between the efforts of the two the different types of animals are far apart. Mr. Ford intends to go at it the other way. He wants to make a two-in-one cow."

SETTLE IN WEST INDIES.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(Associated Press)—The Dutch West Indies may become a place of refuge for exiled members of the German nobility. These colonies consist of the Islands of the Curacao group, off the shores of Venezuela and Dutch Guiana, on the north coast of South America. Representatives of such exiles have been looking for a suitable country where property might be purchased without undue criticism, and depleted capital laid out to advantage.

Already some purchases have been made, the most notable being that of the former reigning Duke of Mecklenburg, who himself recently made a trip to the West Indies and purchased several large plantations. His action has been copied by many of the lesser nobles, and it is expected a colony of these exiles shortly will be settled on the islands.

LONG WALK WITH BABIES.

MOULTRIE, Ga., (United Press)—Jesse James is the only one of the 27 children who has ever been in trouble, Aaron James, negro, living near here declared, in blaming the misfortune of the fact his son was named for the famous outlaw. Jesse was charged with violating the prohibition law and his aged father paid the fine. Aaron claims he is the father of 30 children, 27 of whom are still living. James' has married 46 years.

"I bet I's walked 9,000 miles totin' squallin' young 'uns atryin' to stop there yelling so I could sleep," said James.

U. S. GRAIN EXPORTS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Grain exports from the United States last week totalled 6,898,000 bushels, as compared to 9,204,000 for the week previous.

Canadian grain in transit amounted to 112,000 bushels, against 268,000.

OPPOSE EMIGRATION.

MUNICH, Sept. 11.—(Associated Press)—Leading Bavarian newspapers have launched a campaign opposing the proposed emigration of Bavarians to Canada, unless there be "a cessation of anti-German and war guilt propaganda in Canada."

Answering statements published recently which quote the Canadian government as offering free transportation to Central European farmer-emmigrants, the press attacks the project, alleging that Canada, because of unemployment and the present price of grain, is little more attractive than their homeland to the farmers.

ELEVEN OF DESTROYER SQUADRON SAVED FROM ROCKS BY WARNING SIREN OF THEIR IMPALED LEADER

United States Flotilla Was Swept Out of Its Course By Cross Currents of the Pacific and Confusion of Wireless Messages From Stricken Liner Cuba —Other Vessels Unable to Help in the Darkness.

VALUED AT $1,500,000 EACH.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Treachery of the sea and the air were the main factors in the wreck of seven of Uncle Sam's sea hornets, destroyers of the Pacific fleet, which pitched at 20 knots an hour onto the jagged rocks of Lan Honda, 75 miles north of Santa Barbara, Saturday night, according to the belief of naval experts here. Twenty-two lives and seven warships paid the toil.

Four hours previously the Pacific Mail liner Cuba had piled up on San Miguel Island, 35 miles away, and the air was filled with radio messages telling of her plight and directing the work of rescue.

In the meantime destroyer squadron Eleven of the fleet was cruising south in a heavy fog, 19 craft, breasting a choppy sea in column formation and steering behind their leader, the Delphy, by dead reckoning and wireless compass directions from shore.

The shore directions are said to have become garbled with the flood of air messages on the Cuba wreck and the speedy destroyer squadron was left to the fog and the sea.

Twenty Miles Out of Their Course.

Then the evil genius of the latter added its quota to the sea fighters' dilemma and cross currents carried the flotilla out of its course to sweep seven of the leading vessels into the La Honda cliffs, an estimated twenty miles from the ocean lane they believed they were following. The Delphy crashed first, and within a few minutes six of her sister ships, Chauncey, Young, Woodbury, Fuller, Lee and Nicholas, were impaled with her on the rocks. A heavy surf swung them back and forth across the reefs, pounding the frail sides of the boats into sieves; the Young turned over and imprisoned 19 of her crew below decks in berths that became their tombs. Three of the Delphy's crew went to sailor's graves, while three of their shipmates went adrift on a raft. Their fate is still in doubt.

Piled Up on the Rocks.

The Woodbury rammed another crag and listed heavily. The Fuller joined her on the seaward side of the same rock. The Lee grounded close inshore and the Nicholas came to her end a few yards farther out with her bow pointed landward.

As the Delphy touched bottom and a moment later crashed, her shrill siren split the fog in warning to the remainder of the squadron. The whistle blast probably saved eleven of the flotilla, but six of the leaders of the column behind the Delphy were too close to avail themselves of the warning and plunged forward to their doom. The other destroyers of the flotilla had taken a different course.

With the grounding of the craft their fires were banked, searchlights were dark and the only illumination on their tilted decks was occasional hand flashes.

Chief Electrician Erckenberg of the Delphy swam forty feet to the nearest rock with a life-line and his shipmates came along it hand over hand. Erckenberg again jumped into the raging sea and carried the line ashore.

Chief Boatswain's Mate Peterson, of the Young, duplicated the electrician's feat. Peterson carried a line from his vessel to the Chauncey and gave his comrades a slim path of safety from their overturned ship.

Cradled in the Crags.

The crews of the Woodbury and Fuller, speared on two sides by the same cluster of crags, clung to their ship all through the night. They were furthest out of the unfortunate seven ships and were taken off at daybreak by a fishing smack that loomed up a welcome rescuer through the fog.

Two life rafts put off from the stranded flotilla and headed blindly for supposed safety through the black fog. One, with five men aboard, was picked up at Arlight, a naval wireless station, about three miles south of the wreck this morning. Three men are still missing.

Oil from the tanks of the wrecks covered the sea and added to the chances of death for men of the fleet. More fortunate comrades who succeeded in gaining the shore or a foothold on adjacent rocks told of their shipmates slipping from their grasp as they endeavored to drag them to safety.

Seaman Pearson of the Delphy went to his death a victim of the oil. Blinded by the murky coating on the sea and crazed by the pain of his injuries, he resisted efforts of his mates to rig a breeches buoy to carry him to safety. Then the vessel began to break up and his comrades were forced to lash him to a mast as a last resort, but as the remainder of the crew went over the side the craft cracked in two and Pearson went down with his ship.

Other Vessels Unable to Help.

The fog, treacherous currents and the air full of confused radio, tied the hands of the remainder of the destroyer squadron and prevented them from going to the aid of the stricken seven. Standing out in the channel during the night, warned by the fate of the others that they were far off their course and unable in the darkness to correct their bearings, they were unable to offer help without the almost certain probability of joining the others on the rocks.

All of the seven smashed ships are believed to be beyond salvage except for some of the equipment. Each was valued at approximately $1,500,000.

The group of rocks which proved the tombstones of these trim craft rises abrupt and jagged from the ocean. They extend out to sea approximately 500 yards from shore. Here the steamer Santa Rosa went down about 12 years ago, and in past years other vessels have met their doom on this ragged reef.

ELLIS ISLAND AGAIN JAMMED.

12,000 Aliens Detained Aboard Waiting Steamships.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Ellis Island is again a centre of attack, there are between twelve and thirteen thousands aliens being here on 24 ships each at the cost of one dollar a day to steamship companies not to mention disarrangement of sailing or loading schedules, because of lack of inspectors and surgeons at Ellis Island. Examination of those now in port will not be completed before Saturday and thousands are arriving daily.

AMERICAN MOVIE PARTY IS AMONG REFUGEES

KOBE, Sept. 11.—Thomas D. Cochran, the American representative of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in Tokio, his wife and her sister, Miss Lasky, are among the refugees who arrived here from Miyanoshita, a fashionable mountain resort about 45 miles from Tokio. Describing the disaster, Mr. Cochrane said he saw mountains sliding into valleys, roads, obliterated and houses and buildings transformed into piles of debris in a few minutes.

The Cochrane party was staying at the Fujiya Hotel, which was destroyed. Miss Lasky was pinned beneath the fallen walls, and was rescued only after three hours of feverish digging.

RAIN FACILITATES ONTARIO PLOWING.

Fall Work in Fields May Be Finished Next Week.

TORONTO, Sept 11.— Rain of the past week did much to help plowing for fall wheat, making the soil much easier to work, according to the report to the Ontario Department of Agriculture to-day. Threshing has been active, and in many cases the yield of grain has been much better than was expected.

Much of the plowing for fall wheat has been done and the remainder will probably be finished with the next week or ten days in order to escape the Hessian fly. Fruit and perishable vegetables in the northern part of the province are ripening well, this being the longest growing season for some time, in that there is an especial demand for men age done by frost as yet.

Farm labor is still scarce, and thereis an especial demand for men who can handle horses. Pastures throughtout the province are reported to be in good general condition, and cheese factories and creameries are handling an increased quantity of milk.

Japan Grateful For Canada's Aid

OTTAWA, September 11 (Canadian Press). — An official telegram received yesterday by the Japanese Consul-General from his home government reads as follows:

"The message of sympathy of the Canadian Government and people and their material contribution towards Japanese relief has created a profound impression among the people of Japan now striving for rehabilitation after the unprecedented disaster in their country.

"The kindness of Canada so promptly manifested at this time is a source of deep appreciation and encouragement to them, and will be remembered for ever in sincerest grattitude."

SUN LIFE OFFICE COMPLETE WRECK.

Canadian Trade Commissioner Sends News From Japan.

OTTAWA, September 10. Canadian Press. — A message has been received from A. E. Bryan the Canadian Trade Commissioner at Yokohama, by the Department of Trade and Commerce. The message came through the British Embassy at Tokio, and announced that Mr. Bryan was alive, but had "lost absolutely everything." Mr. Bryan added that he was proceeding to Kobe.

Mr. Bryan asked the Department to notify the Sun Life Assurance Company that its offices were totally destroped, but gave no information as to the staff of the insurance company. He also reported, as has been previously stated, that the general manager of the Canadian Manufacturers Life in Japan was safe, but that his wife and child had been killed.

Mr. Bryan had intended to sail for Canada shortly but it is now considered possible that his return may be delayed by the necessity of reorganizing the Canadian trade offices in Japan.

WARM WELCOME FOR FREE STATE BY THE LEAGUE

Ireland Desires to Assist in Promoting Welfare of Human Race, Says the President.

ENTERS NEW BOND.

GENEVA, September 10 (Canadian Press). — The enthusiasm with which the Irish Free State was admitted to the League of Nations yesterday was the dominating topic of discussion in Geneva last night. President Cosgrave began his salutatory address to the Parliament of Peoples in Gaelic, but quickly changed to English, and delivered an eloquent oration.

Desmond Fitzgerald, Foreign Minister of the Free State, said last night that he felt encouraged over one thing particularly —"that our welcome into the League of Nations shows that Ireland takes her place among the nations of the world, as the great patriot Emmett had said, without an enemy, because her election was unanimous."

"We want to give of our best to the world, and receive the world's best," he said, "and because we have no axe to grind, we shall in our League activities be solely guided by the principle of justice."

Enmity Toward None.

President Cosgrave's address was replete with feeling. He painted a picture of "The new Ireland going forward, without enmity in her heart toward any nation or any people, to her new destiny of liberty and happiness and to co-operation with the other independent states of the world."

"In the name of God, to this assembly of the League of Nations ,life and health," said Mr. Cosgrave, opening his address in Gaelic. "We are delegates from the Soarstat Eireann, from its Parliament and Government, who have come to signify to you that the Saorstat Eireann desired to acquire membership in the League of Nations and participate in the great work of this League. You have unanimously agreed to this request. We have found a welcome and generosity from you all. We thank you, and pray that our friendship may be lasting."

Passing to the English tongue, President Cosgrave said that Ireland in the ancient times had been linked by bonds of culture and friendly intercourse with every nation by her farventuring missionaries, and men of learning, and that to-day she had formally, but none the less practically, entered into a new bond of union with her sister nations, great and small, who were represented in the world organisations of the League of Nations.

After a long journey, through many tribulations, an international treaty brought to Ireland a peace by which hostilities and bitterness of the past shall cease to inspire the hymn of battle and shall merge in the pages of history.

To Avert Warfare.

"To-day, with all the nations whose spokesmen form this assembly, Ireland joins in the solemn covenant to exercise the powers of her sovereign status in promoting the peace, security and happiness, the economic, cultural, and well-being of the human race. Lofty ideals have inspired the best minds who have faith in the power of goodwill and of joint international endeavour to co-operate for good through the Council of the

PETERBORO PEOPLE SAW SUN'S ECLIPSE

Darkening Only Slight Here and Could Be Seen Through Smoked Glass.

Scores of Peterborough people yesterday evening witnessed the partial eclipse of the sun which occurred between 3.30 and 5.30.

While this was only a partial eclipse here and the diminution of light was very slight, it was witnessed as a total eclipse at San Diego, where many scientists had gathered to make observations. At that point the total eclipse lasted 3 minutes and 34 seconds. The shadow cast by the moon on the earth's surface was 105 miles wide and travelled at the rate of 1,800 miles an hour.

Those who took the trouble to observe the eclipse yesterday were amply repaid. Through a smoked glass the moon could be seen entering on the sun's disc low down on the right and traversing it upwards and to the left. The eclipse started at 3.33; at 4.29 it was at its height, and at 5.21 it had passed.

A Total Eclipse Here.

On January 24, 1925, there will be an eclipse visible here as a total obscuration at 8 o'clock in the morning and ending at 10.30. The moon, covering the face of the sun, will then permit its corona to be seen. Flames from the surface of the sun extend into space in some cases 400,000 miles, and these can be seen only when the disc of the sun is obscured.

NO HALF-WAY MEASURES.

In their decision to rigidly enforce the regulations in regard to sanitary conveniences, the members of the Board of Health will be supported by a very strong measure of public approval.

A plan of financing the installation of conveniences has been established that makes it comparatively easy for every citizen to comply with the regulations, and yet it has been found that many people have refused to take advantage of the offer.

Furthermore, it is reported that several citizens who received notice from the authorities in May last have ignored the board's warning.

The time for half-way measures has passed.

Every house in Peterborough situated on a street with sewer and water facilities should be linked up with the sewer.

And where there is a refusal to instal sanitary conveniences, even on the easy terms that have been made possible, the offenders should be prosecuted.

The health of the community is of more importance than the pleasure of a few stubborn individuals.

FIRE PREVENTION.

Although Fire Prevention week is not to be held until next month, it is not too early for the local authorities to begin preparations to make this campaign mean something to Peterborough.

Concerning the necessity of such an effort there is no room for argument.

Canada's fire loss each year assumes such enormous proportions that the problem of reducing this annual economic waste should engage the attention of every thinking Canadian.

Seventy-five per cent of the fires that are responsible for this terrible destruction of property are the result of sheer carelessness.

They could be prevented by the exercise of reasonable care, by the elimination of fire hazards and by ordinary common sense.

Fire Prevention week is designed to awake Canadians to a realization of these facts and it should be made use of by the civic authorities as a very necessary effort to cope with what has become a national problem.

The trouble in many communities is that the responsibility for putting over a "Fire Prevention" campaign has been left almost entirely to the newspapers.

There is neither sense nor justice in such a course.

Features should be planned by the Fire department and other civic bodies that would drive home to the people of Peterborough their duty in regard to fire prevention and their individual responsibility in connection with the elimination of fire hazards from their homes.

THE EXHIBITION AND THE MERCHANTS.

For people living outside of the city, a visit to Peterborough during the days of the Industrial Exhibition should be of great additional interest, not only because of the fair itself but because of the manner in which many fine retail stores prepare for those four big days.

The merchants of Peterborough not only assist in the success of the Exhibition with special exhibits on the grounds but they make a special effort to have their stores as attractive as possible with exceptional window displays and substantial store arrangements.

The latest styles in wearing apparel of all kinds, home furnishings and all other lines of goods are to be seen in the many shops and visitors in the City will readily see that Peterborough's storekeepers are modern in their offering of the latest and finest goods.

With the added incentive of being able to shop in up-to-date stores, crammed with new goods at attractive prices, as well as an opportunity of seeing the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition with its manifold features of interest there should be a record pouring-in of visitors into Peterborough during the last four days of this week.

Peterborough's Exhibition and Peterborough's stores are alike ready to extend them a hearty welcome to the Electric City.

To the Examiner's thousands of readers in the district let us us say that Peterborough will be glad to see them this week.

PHEIDIPPIDES AND YONEMURA.

The marvellous changes wrought by the inventions of men are suggested by the manner in which the news of the great disaster in Japan reached America, says the New York Times. After the battle on the plain of Marathon, a runner whose name, Pheidippides, is still remembered in tradition if not in history, sped all the way to Athens to tell of the victory of Miltiades over the Persians. The distance was only 26 miles, but so fast did this ancient runner fly over the mountain path that he died, the story is, when he had delivered his message.

Alongside this will doubtless be permanently kept, at any rate in Japanese annals, the story of Yonemura, of Japan. He is described in the Associated Press despatch as the "human link" between Japan and the rest of the world. He was a radio operator at Tomioka, on the west coast of Japan, 144 miles from Tokio. His sending mast was spared by the earthquake, when all other means of communication had been destroyed. He wos thus the only one who could send the message abroad.

He had more than Mount Pentelicus to pass over. It was the height of the whole half of the world that he had to climb. If he could not deliver the message, the stricken millions must wait for sympathy and succor until some slower messenger could be found to carry it. Long before Pheidippides could have finished his first stadion, Yonemura had reached San Francisco, and in the time that it took Pheidippides to reach Athens Yonemura had told the whole civilized world of what seems now to be the worst disaster the earth has ever known.

It would take the scientific imagination of a Marconi, a Carty or a Langmuir to follow the marvellous run of the Japanese Pheidippides, which brought almost instantly the response of every people on the face of the globe. For he not only carried the message to San Francisco, he carried back to Japan the prompt and helpful answers. He was only an "obscure" Japanese radio operator, as the report states, but his name ought to be heard and remembered as far as the message he carried has gone.

BIRKENHEAD AND WILSON.

If Dr. Woodrow Wilson had never occupied the White House he would have gone down to (American) history as a great academic teacher and a great academic administrator, and would be known throughout the English-reading world as a distinguished publicist and jurist. As it is—well, it is too soon to pronounce a final judgment or to assign to Wilson his appropriate niche in American or world history. Lord Birkenhead merely makes it clear that, in the opinion of some of the acutest of world minds, his failure at Paris was most disastrous and complete.

British opinion as regards American diplomacy at Paris passed through two phases, both perhaps a trifle irrational. The first was to regard Dr. Wilson as a super-statesman, inspired by ideals equally approved by England and by the United States. Unfortunately, Englishmen forgot that Dr. Wilson went to Paris merely as President of the Republic, and that, as regards the Treaty-making power, executive authority is, under the American Constitution, shared between the President and the Senate.

Erroneously regarding Dr. Wilson's position as parallel with that of an English Prime Minister, the English people naturally looked to him to implement his promises and carry out the covenants to which he had appended his signature. It was no fault of his that he lamentably failed to do so. Even had he retained his health he would probably have failed; his breakdown rendered the achievement of success impossible. The pity, and the blunder, was that an official with powers so restricted should have gone to Paris, apparently as a plenipotentiary, and claiming to speak, with no lack of emphasis, on behalf of the American people. It is small wonder that when the truth was realized, when it burst upon a perplexed world that one of the Big Four, one who in certain quarters—notably in that section of the English press hostile to Mr. Lloyd George—was acclaimed as the biggest, was not constitutionally the equal of Mr. George, or M. Clemenceau, or even Signor Orlando, a reaction, damaging to American prestige and damaging to the Treaty, should have ensued. No one who reads the story of the Peace Conference, no one who pictures the moving figures there—the vivid, domineering "Tiger" Clemenceau, the charming, engaging, quick-shifting Lloyd George, full of Celtic quicksilver—can fail to appreciate the pathos of the scholar-statesman, "It's going to be a rough-and-tumble affair, this Peace Conference," said Lord Balfour. His prescience was justified. For a rough-and-tumble affair the Professor, who went straight from his lecture room to the White House, was evidently ill-fitted. The contrast between him and his colleagues, who had struggled to political pre-eminence through the "rough-and-tumble" of a popular assembly, was painfully evident from the first. Dr. Wilson lacked the elasticity of mind essential to diplomatic intercourse, and, finding himself out-generalled by the veteran Frenchman and the mercurial Welshman, he wrapped himself in the seamless and unspotted garment of his own preconceived and pedantically-maintained views.

Yet, unyielding and pedantic as he seemed, shall we judge him to have been wrong? That it was a mistake on his part ever to have gone to Paris, unless he could have been endowed with plenary powers—an impossibility without a revision of the Constitution—must now surely be acknowledged by all reasonable critics. "The key to the peace was," he constantly insisted, "the guarantee of peace, not the items of it." Maybe. But where does the United States stand today in respect of that guarantee? Where does she stand in respect of the tripartite guarantee to France of her territorial integrity? And what of the Armenian mandate? It is here that Lord Birkenhead scores.

Wilson sacrificed his health and risked his life in the honorable endeavor to fulfill his obligations. But no man could have known better than he that ratification was very far from a certainty. The Constitution may be more blameworthy than the official; but the Constitution never contemplated participation of a President at a Peace Conference on European soil.

Yet the question obstinately recurs: Was he essentially wrong? The politicians may answer with a confident yea or nay; the historian will reserve judgment. Whether speeches like that of Lord Birkenhead help toward fair judgment, it is not easy to say.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Judging by reports, the English Channel must be as full of American swimmers these days as it used to be with transports in the war years.

Peterborough people should keep two events in mind this week—the Peterborough Exhibition, starting tomorrow, and the Children's Aid Society tag day on Saturday.

Governor Pinchot's name should be remembered in gratitude when the cold winds strike down from the north. It looks as if he has saved the situation, as the war bulletins used to express it.

Most Canadians will agree with the Brantford Expositor in its declaration that Wrangel Island has already cost more valuable lives than the place is worth to Canada. Let the Bolsheviks have it.

More than one woman will get a better realization of the extent of the Japanese disaster from the fact that silk will be doubled in price as a result than from the figures that have been published as to the number of casualties and the extent of the property damage.

TORONTO CATTLE MARKET.

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—There was a little stronger feeling at the Union Stock Yards yesterday morning as the result of not too heavy a run, and a smaller overburden to carry over than was generally expected. Some of last week's cattle were sold up to as late as Saturday, and there was not more than 55 head of stable stuff left for today. This morning's receipts were 3,372 cattle, 567 calves, 2,518 hogs, and 1,625 sheep and lambs.

Among the cattle there was a goodly number of the heavy finished, and J. B. Shields & Co. had five loads of these, which would average over $8 a cwt. One load averaging 1,400 lbs. each, sold at $8.60 a cwt. There was a scarcity of nice finished 900-lb. butchers, and buyers were unable to fill orders for this kind. Only 12 loads of fresh Westerns were in today, and two of these were sold early. One, a mixed load of heifers and cows, went at 4½ cents a pound, and a load of small heifers, bought for the country, brought $4.10 a cwt.

Exporters were in the market for stores 800 to 1,000 lbs. each and up. Export bulls were stronger, and Rogers paid 5 cents a pound for one over 2,00 lbs. Of fat cattle, the exporters bought 300 from $7 to $7.85 a cwt., and for the stores up to 7 cents a pound, but there were not many of the right quality available.

Alex Levack (Gunn's, Limited) bought 300 cattle. Good to choice steers and heifers, $6.50 to $7.25; choice steers, $7.50; cows, fat, choice, $4.50 to $5.

Swift's Canadian Co. bought 1 load choice heavy steers, $8.60; choice handy butchers, $7 to $7.25; do. medium, $5.50 to $6.50; cows, $4.50 to $5.

Rogers and Maybee bought 300 export cattle, $7 to $7.85.

Geo. Rowntree (Harris Abbatoir) bought 300 butcher cattle. Good to choice, $6.50 to $7.20; do. medium $5.25 to $6; common, $4.50 to $5; extra choice heavy steers, $8.30 to $8.60.

A. W. Talbot (Wm. Davies Co.) bought 150 cattle. Good butchers, $6.15 to $7; fair to medium, $5 to $5.50.

Dave Rowntree bought: Choice lambs, $10 to $12.50; bucks, $10.50; light sheep, $6; calves, $10 to $10.50; do. medium, $7 to $8; do. common, $3 to $4.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 204 cars, 3,372 cattle, 567 calves, 2,518 hogs, 1,625 sheep and lambs.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.— In the absence of any aggressive selling and with no broad demand, the wheat market held inside of narrow limits to-day awaiting the Government crop report due after the close. The report as to wheat proved to be less in favour of the bulls than had been expected. What prices closed steady at a range varying from 3-8 1-2c, net decline to 3-8c. advance, with December $1.06 to $1.06 1-8 and May $1.11 1-8 to $1.11 1-4. Corn finished 1-4c. off to 1-8c. gain, oats 1-8c. down, and provisions extending from 10c. setback to a rise of five cents.

According to the Government figures the 1923 domestic yield of wheat is about 4,000,000 bushels larger than the trade has of late been looking forward to, but there was no suggestion of this is the current gossip to-day, and the course of the market appeared to me governed by other factors. Smallness of receipts in Chicago, with fairly heavy shipments from here, together with firmness of Liverpool quotations, led to something of an advance during the early dealings, but subsequently weakness of prices in the north-west had a bearish effect, especially on deferred deliveries, and so, too, did an increase of the United States' visible supply total.

Reports that the German Government had ordered a stoppage of passive resistance in the Ruhr gave some encouragement to bulls in the wheat market, but had no immediate apparent effect on prices. Such action by Germany appeared to have been discounted in full beforehand.

Cool weather exerted only a transient bullish influence on corn and oats. The Government report, both as to corn and oats, was about as expected.

Provisions were without important change.

IMMEDIATE RECALL OF ITALIAN TROOPS WOULD RELIEVE EUROPE'S MIND

Italy's Attitude on the Evacuation of Corfu the Only Doubtful Element in Success of Issue of Dispute With Greeks—Assembly Waits and Watches.

GREECE DEPOSITING INDEMNITY.

GENEVA, Sept. 11 — Watchful waiting, for the moment at least, was considered to-night to be the policy of the League of Nations regarding the Greco-Italian conflict.

This was deduced from the publication of a telegram which Count Ishii, as president of the Council, sent to the Council of Ambassadors saying that the Council of the League shared with the Ambassadors anxiety to see the dispute settled as soon as possible.

The message voiced the Council's happiness that the documents forwarded by it to the Paris body were useful, and asked to be kept informed on any results of the decision taken and any discussions which might take place.

This telegram communicated to all the delegates to the Assembly here, was interpreted as confirming the impression earlier prevalent that for the moment the Assembly would content itself with awaiting developments in the Greco-Italian controversy before taking further action. This attitude of watchful waiting was said to apply particularly to the Italian position with regard to the evacuation of Corfu.

The general sentiment at Geneva is that the entire dispute would be immensely clarified if the Italian Government would issue an order immediately for the withdrawal of the troops from Corfu and the restoration of the other islands to Greece. The League leaders are anxious that evacuation should take place before any debate on the competency of the League is launched at the meetings of the Assembly, the idea being still further to help in the actual settlement of the crisis which has caused such a profound disturbance in Europe. They believe that world public opinion, as voiced by the nations' representatives at Geneva has alone made prompt progress on the Greco-Italian dispute possible

A special meeting of the Council of the League was suddenly convoked at six o'clock to-night. On its adjournment the members declined to discuss their deliberations, which were private.

M. Politis of Greece, was present on invitation and he answered afterwards that he had merely officially informed the Council of Greece's acceptance of the terms of settlement. He had added that the guarantee fund of 50,000,000 lire would be deposited in the Swiss Bank to-morrow.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Bensfort Methodist church, on Thursday, September 6, when Marjorie Sophia Finnie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Finnie, Bailieboro, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Byers Finnie, son of Mr. Bremner Finnie of St. Mary's, Ont., the Rev. R. M. Patterson officiating. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a navy blue tricotine travelling suit, grey picture hat and black fox fur, the gift of the groom, and carried a beautiful boquet of Ophelia roses. Her little niece, Jean Thompson, dressed in pale pink satin, charmingly acted the part of flower girl.

The wedding march was played by Miss Mary Dawson, cousin of the bride, and during the signing of the register by the bride's sister Jean, and Dr. R. C. Wansborough, Miss Anne Dawson very sweetly sang, "I Love Thee." At the close of the ceremony they received very best wishes and congratulations from a large number of friends and acquaintances, who were there to show honor to one, who was greatly loved and respected in the community.

Later a pleasant time was spent at the home of her father and a dainty repast served, the tables looking beautiful with pink and white asters. The happy couple left in the evening for a boat trip down the Saguenay. On their return they will reside in St. Mary's.

SWEETMAN—WILLIAMS.

A very pretty autumn wedding was solemnized at the church of the Mission, Toronto, on Saturday, September 8, when Florence Margaret, youngest daughter of Mrs. J. H. Williams, Toronto, and the late J. H. Williams, was married to Mr. Wm. Frederick Sweetman. Rev. W. G. Sunter of the church of the Epiphany officiated and the wedding music was played by Mr. Sargent of the same church.

The bride who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. W. J. Drope of Grimsby, formerly of Peterboro, looked very charming in her wedding gown of white georgette with pleated panels, brocaded satin train and bridal veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a boquet of sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley. The bridesmaid, Miss Julia Metivier, wore a pleated orchid georgette dress with silver girdle and grey duvetyn hat and carried American Beauty roses.

Little Miss Gwendolyn Burns, cousin of the bride was flower girl and looked very dainty in pink organdie frock trimmed with lace and hat to match and carried a basket of pink roses. Mr. Jack Kirby was groomsman, and Messrs. Charles Reid and Harold Sevaire acted as ushers.

During the signing of the register Mrs. W. McKee Bingham of Peterboro, cousin of the bride sang "Beloved it is Morn."

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, 178 Spadina Road. The bride received with her mother, who wore black charmeuse trimmed with jet and touches of gold and hat to match. Her corsage was of Ophelia roses.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Sweetman left on a trip for New York and other points, the bride travelling in a suit of green trimmed with persian lamb and hat of grey duvetyn. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

PATTON—TAYLOR.

One of the prettiest of the early fall weddings took place on Tuesday, 4th September, in Knox College Chapel, when Rev. Dr. Wallace united in marriage Marguerite Irene, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Taylor, and Harold Smith Patton, son of Mr. John Patton, Toronto.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked very lovely in a gown of white bridal satin with lace panel. Her long train, lined with white georgette, had sprays of pearls embroidered on the corners and the shoulders, and her veil of Brussels net was caught with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Verona Taylor was her sister's maid of honour, and Miss Muriel Patton and Miss Norma Taylor, a sister of the bride, were bridesmaids.

The three attendants were similarly gowned in charming long lace frocks with quaint georgette aprons and streamers of georgette, caught at the shoulder and falling to the hem of the skirt. The colours of the frocks were dull gold, Nile green, and orchid. They wore small cloche hats of black panne, and carried large bouquets of sunburst roses and maidenhair fern.

Little Miss Betty Ryan made a very dainty flower girl, wearing a corn-husk crepe de chine dress, with sports scalloped skirt. She carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

Mr. Peter Kennedy presided at the organ, and during the signing of the register Miss Helen Horne sang. Mr. Clare Patton was his brother's best man, and Mr. Norman Keys and Mr. Selwyn Griffin were ushers. After the ceremony Mrs. W. J. Taylor, wearing a most becoming French gown of black crepe, embroidered with cut steel beads, and large black panne velvet hat, received the guests in the north quadrangle of Knox College, where the lovely surroundings made a fitting background for the pretty scene. Mr. and Mrs. Patton left later to spend the remainder of the week at Kirkfield Inn, Mrs. Patton wearing a smart blue tricotine suit, and grey duvetyne hat, with platinum fox scarf, the gift of the groom, and on Saturday will leave for Jasper Park and a trip down the Pacific coast before returning to their new home in Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Taylor, Miss A. J Taylor and Mr. F. H. Taylor, of Peterborough, attended the wedding. The bride is a niece of Mr. E. G. Taylor.

OTTAWA HOSPITAL FACE $50,000 LOSS.

By the Assignment of the Whalen Paper Company.

OTTAWA, September 10. — As a result of curious circumstances the City of Ottawa at present stands to lose about 50,000, the loss being indirectly attributable to the Japanese disaster. The civic hospital commission under agreement holds about about $50,000 worth of stock in the Whalen Pulp and Paper Mills, Ltd., a firm which on Friday made an assignment. The immediate cause of the assignment of the Whalen Pulp and Paper Mills Limited was reported to be the disaster in Japan last week. Previously the firm had sold 50 per cent. of its products to that country. The stock which is held in trust by the civic hospital commission, formed a part of the estate of J. C. Cox, the veteran lumberman, who died leaving a large share of his estate to St. Luke's hospital and the civic hospital commission, the latter took over all the assets of St. Luke's.

If the directors of the Whalen Pulp and Paper Company are successful in their scheme to refinance the company, however, the stock may in time be worth par value and the loss to the citp will not be so great as it now looks.

EDWARD M'MULLEN IN THE PEN AFTER BEING WOUNDED BY PURSUER

Four Convicts Still at Large After a Sensational Getaway From Kingston Penitentiary.

STORY OF ESCAPE

KINGSTON, September 11 (Canadian Press). — One convict of the five who set fire to the stables at Portsmouth Penitentiary yesterday, and escaped in the smoke screen, is back in custody, and a posse of Provincial Police and mounted officers is pursuing the others.

The prisoners who escaped are Edward McMullen, sentenced to fourteen years for participation in the robbery of the Bank of Toronto at Wyoming in1921. Patrick Ryan alias Slade, sentenced in Hamilton last October to twenty-five years for bank robbery. The names of the other prisoners were Bryans, Brown, and Simpson.

McMullen was recaptured late yesterday afternoon, and is back in the Penitentiary. He was wounded by Guard Forsythe, who pursued the convicts until they abandoned their stolen motor car on the Perth Road.

A quantity of straw and hay was ignited, making a thick, black smoke, which operated splendidly to conceal the movements of the prisoners, who had designed it to cover their escape.

In the construction of the prison building the convicts were using ladders, and this made it easy for the gang to choose one which reached to the top of the wall, and gave them safe access to it. The smoke screen was all that was needed

"Red" Ryan stood at the foot of the ladder warding off the guards while the others ascended, using a pitchfork as a weapon. He was the last to go up, but before doing so, struck Chief Keeper Matthew Walsh a blow on the face, inflicting a nasty wound.

Gaining the streets, the convicts stole an automobile belonging to James Thompson, a painter, and sped northward.

Guard Forsythe followed in another car, firing on the fleeing convicts.

Reaching the swamp on the Perth Road, the convicts abandoned the car and took to the woods.

McMullen, who drove the stolen car, was wounded by Guard Forsythe's last cartridge.

Bits of evidence coming to light here and there since the escapede, show that the plot to escape was well laid, had been hatched for some time, and had been known to a number of the men.

Mr. Thompson said that one of the convicts must have been familiar with the running of a car, as he jumped into the front seat and had it going in quick order. He threw all the gas possible into the engine and left at a second's notice. The convict who was driving the car appeared to be about 45 years of age, while the others were very much younger. All of the men were bareheaded and did not appear to be very much excited. They did not have any firearms in their possession.

The middle man in the rear seat used abusive language and threatened to beat up Mr. Thompson if he persisted in detaining them.

The convicts left the automobile in Arthur Kemp's field, which is located on the main Inverary road about four miles north east of Kingston.

Mrs. Kemp stated that the automobile came along the road at a terrific rate of speed, and the occupants did not wait to open the gate leading into the field, but ran bang into it. Not much damage was done to the car. The five men immediately took to the woods. The woods at this particular point are very thick, so it is expected that it will take some time to locate the convicts.

Struck Guard With Pichfork.

One of the guards who happened to be near the convicts when they first escaped attempted to stop them, and he was struck with a pitchfork. The guard refused medical assistance, although Dr. R. J. Gardiner was close by, and took up the chase with several of his comrades. He later entered a car and continued after the fugtives.

The daring of the ruse shows that the convicts concerned decided to stake everything on the lone chance of obtaining their freedom, whether temporary or longer. If they should obtain firearms the consequences may be very serious.

Car Was Riddled.

It was found that the automobile in which the men made their escape had been struck by some bullets which were fired by guards of the penitentiary. A piece of the steering wheel had been carried away with a bullet and there was blood on the steering gear as well as on the wind shield. One bullet had passed through the back of the top of the auto, while another had gone through the top.

The heavy gate, smashed in by the men in their flight, had been locked with a chain which held fast, while the gate broke in the centre.

Two automobiles which contained the gaurds were within two or three hundred yards of the convicts when they left the atuo and beat it for the woods.

The guards got out of the autos and fired on the convicts and some of the shots must have hit them.

The automobile in which the men got away is not badly damaged although it is mired in the soft ground and can be taken out without much trouble. The small light in the inside of the auto was still burning.

Acquitted of Charge of Ill-Treating Wife.

JOLIETTE, Que. Sept. 11. — Pierre Bergeron of Lenoraie, charged with ill-treating his wife, was acquitted here to-day for lack of evidence in so far as the indictment was concerned. Bergeron's arrest last year caused a sensation at Joliette. Counsel for the defence said that the accused had not conducted himself as a saint or a hero — he had lived a miserable life for 15 years and the benefit of the doubt should be given him.

Judge Dubeau in acquitting Bergeron, said the accused might have been a better husband but that he was not guilty of acting like a brute towards his wife.

Residents Here Manifest Interest in Astronomy—Mission at St. Mary's Closed.

Campbellford, Sept. 11. — Young and old in Campbellford have a taste for astronomy and there are a good many pairs of sore eyes as a result of gazing at partial eclipse of the sun on Monday afternoon. Old Sol, hidden behind heavy clouds all morning, emerged at about the hour scheduled for the phenomenon, as if to give all a chance to study the change in his appearance. Those who had the foresight to provide themselves with smoked glass had an excellent view of the eclipse.

Mission at St. Mary's.

The mission that has been conducted all last week at St. Mary's church, closed on Sunday night, and Revs. Fathers O'Brien and McCandlish of the Redemptorist Order, who conducted the special services, left for Toronto on the noon train Monday. The most impressive service of the week was that of Saturday evening, devotion of the Virgin Mary. The children of the Parish, the girls all dressed in white, marched in procession, singing hymns of praise, to the church, where the front pews were reserved for them. They sang several selections, accompanied by the organ during the evening. The image of the Virgin was surrounded by floral wreaths, and the discourse of Father O'Brien, the preacher of the evening, told why the church held the Mother of Christ in esteem above all womankind.

An official announcement is expected shortly.

Hon. W. F. Nickle presided, and others present were General Victor Williams, head of the Provincial Police, James Hales, chairman of the Board of License Commissioners, J. A. Ayearst, Chief License Inspector, W. S. Dingman of the License Board and Deputy Attorney General Bayly.

LITHUANIAN REDS PLOTTED IN STATES.

Led Massacre of Non-Union Miners and Aimed at Control of Labor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.— (Canadian Press.)—Eighty-six Lithuanian Bolshevists led Herrin massacre of non-union Illinois miners, United Workers of America charges in making an article public, exploising an alleged plot by Moscow Communists to gain control of labor in the United States. Mob leaders, 67 of them, were present in Herrin as an American branch of Lithuanian Communists, according to the article, and nineteen other Communists were imported to foment attack on the stripe mine of the Southern Illinois Coal Company, which culminated in the violent death of 22 men in June last year.

Since the massacre, it is charged, Communists tried unsuccessfully to foment a general strike among rail workers last November and among coal miners last April, which also failed of execution.

They landed in the same position, the furnishing in the room protecting them from the falling debris. They were not injured, and are proceeding to Shanghai aboard the Empress of Canada.

CAMPBELLFORD SCHOOL GRANT STILL HELD UP

Council Met Last Night and Decided to Refer Matter to Provincial Member—Improvements Wanted.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 11. — At the regular meeting of the Council last night when the finances of the town were under consideration, the matter of the $1400 grant that was withheld by the Department last year because the High School building was not up to standard requirements came before the Councillors. Reeve Anderson and Councillor Allan stated that they had been informed that the grant had not been paid and that the allowance made by Department this year was for 1923 not for last year. Town Treasurer Wood who was present, said that he had received that information from Secretary Stephens of the Board of Education. Reeve Anderson and Councillor Allan both maintained that the withheld grant had never been passed by a special Act of the Legislature as required by the statute and Reeve Anderson proposed to take the matter up with J. F. B. Belford, the president representative from Northumberland.

Evidently a Mistake.

Evidently some one has made a mistake with regard to this matter. After the Council meeting Mayor Meyers and Councillor Cole went to the office of the former, where they learned by referring to the official Government report that the grant for 1922 had been passed by the Legisiature. The grant for 1923 is not due until about October 21st so that the amount received this year already must have been the grant that was withheld in 1922.

Who Deserves the Credit.

The credit for the recovery of this $1400 belongs to Mayor Meyers and Councillors Cole and Meiklejohn. At the beginning of the year, when it appeared certain that the town was to lose the grant, they went to Brighton for a conference with Wesley Montgomery who at that time was the local representative. Mr. Montgomery took the matter up with the Government and after several weeks of hard work succeeded in securing a promise that a special act would be introduced in the Legislature providing for payment. Ex-Minister of Education Grant gave the town councillors the same assurance when they waited on him last winter to discuss the High School problem. The special act was passed towards the close of the session.

Sewer for High School.

All the members of the Council were in attendance last evening, with the exception of Councillor Burke. A deputation from the Board of Education consisting of Trustees Irwin, Lynch, Birmingham and Dr. Watson was present and Trustee Irwin as spokesman, asked that a sewer be constructed from the new High School down Ranney street, to connect with the Bridge street sewer.

Earlier in the session a petition, signed by 15 residents of Ranney Street, asked for the same improvement, but as the number of signatures was less than the two-thirds required, this was referred back to the resident who presented it. The sewer, however, will be built, and work will start upon it at the earliest possible moment.

Engineer Hayes, who is superintending the building of the High School, will make the survey and draw up the plans.

Routine Business.

A large amount of routine business was disposed of. Fuel Controller Ellis, of Toronto, wrote advising the Councillors to prepare for the worst by finding substitutes for hard coal, and also recommended that a local fuel controller be appointed to co-operate with the Provincial authorities.

This communication was filed.

Mayor Meyers said that he had been assured by local dealers that the fuel question in Campbellford was not serious. In any case, the town has the best of all substitutes for coal, good hardwood.

The sewer on Booth street will be extended at once so as to permit the church property of St. Mary's parish to be connected with it, a matter that has been in dispute for some time.

T. S. Tait and Son were granted permission on the usual conditions, to install a gasoline tank in front of their premises on Front street.

Sam Buckston, who has built a handsome residence on Palliser street, near the bridge, asked for a sidewalk but it was decided that it was too late in the season to undertake this work. In the meantime the town will put in a gravel entrance to his house from the street.

The Council decided to meet at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Mayor's office to look over proposed repairs on Garry street and on the streets near Christ church.

Dr. O. C. Watson complained that the sidewalk in front of his residence is too low and that in wet weather it is flooded sometimes to such an extent as to be impassible, pedestrians being obliged to take to the roadway. The Council looked into this matter some time ago, but the doctor's patience was unequal to the strain of waiting for action. He received another assurance that something would be done.

Debenture By-law Passed.

A by-law providing for the raising of $8,850 by a debenture issue to pay the cost of the Front street sewer, was put through its various readings under the sponsorship of Deputy Reeve Wilkinson. This amount includes the costs of the law suit which arose out of this work, Town Solicitor Humphries having assured the Council that these costs could be legally added. Reeve Anderson and Councillor Allan objected to this procedure and voted in the negative when the roll was called on the final adoption of the by-law.

The Town's Finances.

In order to give the councillors an idea of where they are at financially, Town Treasurer F. W. Wood submitted a statement of the receipts and expenditures so far this year. The total income to date was $84,815.99 and the expenditure $79,882.78. Treasurer Wood has only about $500 in cash in the bank, but there are many sources of revenue left. The taxes collected on the first half year's call totalled $43,800 and the amount due the last half of the year, while probably less than this, will still be considerable. The school grant, too, are still due the town.

Councillor Carter's Grievance.

"It is impossible for some of the councillors to get away at 9 o'clock in the morning to attend these special open-air sessions," said Councillor Carter when the councillors agreed to make a tour of the town at that hour Wednesday.

"You should have thought of that at the beginning of the year," replied Mayor Meyers, who during his several terms in public office, has been at all times ready to make sacrifices in the interests of the municipality.

WILL OFFER $200,000 FOR ROGERS HORNSBY.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., September 11.—John J. McGraw, of the New York Giants, is expected to renew an offer of $200,000 for Rogers Hornsby following a fight between Hornsby and Manager Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals last week, the St. Louis Star said yesterday.

Rickey, on his return from the New York trip, warned that a shake-up of the St. Louis team was due, and the first man dropped for failure to "respect authority" was Eddie Ainsmith, veteran catcher, who failed to catch a train.

The Chicago Cubs also are reported bidding for Hornsby, the leading batter of the National League.

HASTINGS HOPES FOR NEW INDUSTRY

Public Meeting Hears Proposition From American Director—Ideal Site.

HASTINGS, September 11.—One of the largest meetings ever held in the town took place last night in the Opera House, when nearly every ratepayer turned out to hear the reports of one of the directors of a large American factory which is looking for a site in Ontario to build.

Hastings has been chosen as an ideal spot on account of its location on the Trent Canal, and being situated about 20 miles from Cobourg, which leaves it easy to export the goods manufactured out of Ontario.

Guelph has been spoken of for this industry, but the freight rates are so high from that place to the United States that it is impossible to locate there.

The proposition which the speaker put before the ratepayers was for a loan of $10,000 to be payable in ten years, or $1,000 a year till the whole was paid off, the loan to bear interest at 7 per cent. For security the company would give a mortgage on the building, plant and stock. They also requested a fixed assessment for ten years. All the machinery installed in the factory would be new.

This factory has only one competitor in Canada, and with Canadian and export trade it would not be long before 100 hands were employed in the Hastings factory.

Hastings is an ideal spot as to the labour conditions. A number of girls would be employed.

Their main factory is now located in Allentown, Penn., but as the United States Government will not allow them to export their products into Canada, a factory has to be built in the Dominion.

MANY PICTURES MADE OF ECLIPSE.

Navy Aviators Went Up More Than 16,000 Feet.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 11. — (Canadian Press.)— Navy aviators are depended upon by sirenlists to furnish them with photographs showing corona of the sun.

Fifteen aeroplanes from United States' battle fleet squadrons took the air more than an hour before the totality period of yesterday's eclipse of the sun and each of them rose to more than 16,000 feet, considerably above the fog and cloud banks that interfered with a view from the ground.

Many photographers of the eclipse were made. Sirenlists at Point Loma stated that, because of adverse conditions prevailing, eclipse observations were unsatisfactory.

Is the X-Ray Sure Death to Cancer Germ?

The Sectional View Above of the [illegible] Laboratory Shows How the Doctor Is Protected from the Powerful X-Rays by Means of a Thick Lead Glass Window, through Which He Can Watch the Machine and the Patient as Well. A Lead Filter and Lead Focusing Diaphragm Are Interposed Between the Patient and the Giant X-Ray Tube, Which Latter Is Also Inclosed in a Lead Lined Cabinet. The Beam of X-Rays Applied to the Patient at the Desired Spot Pass Through the Opening in the Lead Diaphragm, Those Through the Lead Filter Placed Directly Over the Patient, Through the Body, and in Turn Affect the Photographic Plate Placed Under the Couch on Which the Patient Lies.

MEDICAL scientists are confronted by a no more difficult and baffling problem than that of finding a specific remedy for the treatment of cancer. The sum total of scientific research to date indicates that full reliance must be placed on three known methods, namely, surgery, radium therapy, and X-ray therapy. Dr. Isaac Levin, Chief of the Cancer Division of the Montefiore Hospital and Clinical Professor of Cancer Research of New York University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, who has written quite a treatise on cancer therapy in, "The American Physician," maintains that cancer is neither an infectious nor a systemic constitutional disease, but manifests itself as a local disturbance in a group of normal cells. It begins its development as a local transformation of a small group of normal cells into cancerous cells. Some of these transformed cells become dissociated from the primary tumor, and are transported to distant regions where they form secondary tumors, and the latter again produce a local disturbance.

It is difficult, therefore, to develop a truly specific method of treatment of cancer. Such a specific remedy would affect deeply the cancer cells only and at the same time would be innocuous as far as the adjacent normal cells of the same organ are concerned.

Thus with surgery an attempt is made to remove normal tissue adjacent to the malignant tumor into which the cancer cells most frequently spread, and also the regional lymph glands. However, surgeons cannot make much wider dissections than they are now doing, as the tumors or cancerous growths are usually situated in close proximity to vital organs, and amputation in their vicinity would endanger life. Consequently there is a limit to which a surgeon may go in removing the normal tissue adjacent to the tumors. For this reason cancer surgically treated very often comes back again. If the tissues adjacent to the cancerous growths could be removed to prevent the spread of the cancer cells operative measures would be absolutely successful.

Radium and the X-ray, explains Edward London, in Science and Invention, act differently from surgery inasmuch as they are capable of destroying the cancer cells without injury to the normal tissues.

In the treatment of cancer by radium the first effect of the radiations is a direct action on the cancer cells. This effect consists in the inhibition of the proliferating power of the cancer cells. When the cancer cells cease to divide, they grow old, degenerate and die. In the opinion of Dr. Isaac Levin, this degeneration and death of the individual cancer cells may not be directly due to the action of the radium and the X-rays, but takes place in the natural course of the life-cycle of the cancer cell.

Each cell goes through a period of development or of youth, a period of maturity, and finally a period of old age, which gradually leads to death; the life of the individual cancer cell is very short, but in the natural course of events the cancer cells divide rapidly into two young daughter cells.

The radiations of radium and the X-rays inhibit this division, and interfere with the growth of the cancer cells. The superiority of radium over the X-rays is due to the fact that a radium tube can be placed in close proximity to the cancerous growth.

The X-rays on the other hand originate at the target of the X-ray tube, and become greatly diminished in strength before they reach the cancerous growth. Consequently, there is a certain air distance between the focal point in the X-ray tube and the body of the patient which varies from two to three feet, to which an additional distance, which may be as much as 5 inches, must be added as the distance from skin to tumor.

X-rays should not be used alone as a rule for the treatment of cancer patients. On the other hand, when used in conjunction with surgical procedures and radium, they give results in cancer therapy to-day which are much more gratifying than the results obtained a generation ago.

Dr. Isaac Levin draws the following conclusion: "Cancer therapy requires a great deal of sound judgment and influence in handling complex chemical conditions. The co-operation and real team work of physicists, chemists, biologists, and clinicians of all special tests in medicine are essential in order to obtain good results in treatment of cancer patients."

Is the Motor Car Making Man Lazy?

THE usefulness of automobiles, according to a writer in The Medical Review of Reviews (New York), cannot be questioned, nor can the desire for leisure which possesses the large number of people who drive, not because they are in a hurry or have to cover long distances, but because they are lazy and so drive everywhere instead of walking.

"Are we going to become a physically lazy nation, and, through lack of exercise, a people of pendulous abdomens and small legs?" asks this writer.

"Walking is one of the best forms of exercise, and one of the best means of keeping healthy. It will often prevent obesity, and will cure many cases of indigestion.

"Oftentimes walking will reduce flesh five or ten pounds in a short time. A walk a day, from three to ten miles, should be a health rule for every one.

"During the war when doctors were sent to training-camps, it was easy to tell a new man by his appearance; his skin was yellow, his abdomen pendulous and he was fatigued on slight exertion. He probably had not walked in several years, driving from one house to another. After a month in camp, with setting-up exercises, drills twice daily, equitation, long hikes, a change was noticeable; the skin lost its yellow appearance, the superfluous flesh disappeared, and in every way the man looked more healthy.

"Women often consult a physician because they are fat and want to reduce; they diet (by eliminating food they do not care for), follow every fad, from rolling to the Bergonie treatment, yet they are leading exponents of a sedentary life. They hate to walk. When they are advised to walk to reduce their weight they invariably say that they cannot because their feet are sore. The very woman who tells her children about the old custom of the Chinese women pinching their feet, unconsciously follows the same custom by wearing pointed-toe shoes which are so uncomfortable that she is crippled as far as walking is concerned."

Uncle Sam Is MIGHTIEST in ENERGY

THE basis of a nation's power is its energy resources rather than its man-power strength, declared Dr. T. T. Read of the U. S. bureau of mines in a recent address. The modern way to employ human energy, he explained, is to set it at work intelligently to release other energy. The average workman's energy output amounts to about 1-10 horsepower. A coal miner therefore expends in an eight-hour day energy equivalent to that available in about two pounds of coal. Thus the American miner whose daily output is about 8800 pounds of coal multiplies his energy by 4400.

The energy of the 41,000,000 wage earners in the United States is approximately 4,000,000 horsepower—only nine times the potential energy output in the form of coal of 100 miners. Obviously coal, petroleum and water power are the real sources of strength in industrial civilization.

The following figures show the strength, on this basis, of the principal countries of the world, the numbers in each case referring to millions of horsepower-years:

| | Coal | Petroleum | Waterpower |
|---|---|---|---|
| United States | 500,000 | 400 | 37 |
| China | 200,000 | 60 | 20 |
| Germany | 48,000 | 2 | 2½ |
| Canada | 40,000 | 40 | 22½ |
| Great Britain | 27,000 | (?) | 1 |
| Australia | 19,000 | (?) | 4 |
| Russia | 17,000 | 280 | 16 |

In no other country is there as much as 1-50

What Is the COLOR of Your MIND?

By DONALD A. LAIRD

WHAT color is your mind? Some people have what may be called colored minds. Whenever they think it is always in colors. Just as some people can think easiest in sounds, so can others think best with colors, and accordingly, almost all of their thoughts and ideas are tinged with some color.

David is a six-year old boy, the son of a college professor, who has a colored mind. David is a very bright, likeable child. His parents had noticed how he called one piece of music the "red march," and another one the "green song." All the pieces of music had been given a color as a name by the lad. His parents thought it was just a child fancy, and let it go at that.

But a psychologist learned about this boy who talked about music as if it were colored and came to see the boy. The psychologist, much to the parents' astonishment, found that the lad thought, not only of music, but of practically everything, as being colored. To David Monday was blue, Tuesday bright red, Wednesday a dull grey. Every day of the week has a color for him. Likewise numbers had colors as did names.

The technical term for colored thinking is synaesthesia. This term also includes other forms of linked sensations. Some people have shapes, rather than colors, associated with names and ideas. Still others think in terms of smells, although this is very rare.

David's father was found to have synaesthesia much similar to his son's. Monday was blue to the father, Tuesday was orange, and Wednesday white. The father also thought of the different States and cities of the country as colors. It is strange that the father did not know about his synaesthesia until the psychologist started studying the boy. He had always taken it for granted that everybody thought in colors just as he did and could see nothing unusual in it. He was much surprised to find that it was unusual, and that in many of his colors connected with ideas of things, he and his son had much the same thoughts.

Thinking in colors is not especially common, but neither is it a rare occurrence. Most folks with colored thinking are in ways similar to the father: they do not know that it is anything unusual. In almost any social gathering someone will be found, however, who has a colored mind.

HOW SENSITIVE Are Your EARS?

UP to the present time there has been no satisfactory technique for loudness comparisons of different tones. At a recent meeting of the National Academy of Sciences in Washington, Dr. Donald Mackenzie of the Western Electric Company read a paper on the relative sensitivity of the ear at different tones. He gave a description of an alternation phonometer which makes it any easy matter to adjust to equal loudness two tones of different pitches. With this instrument a determination has been made of the relative sensitivity of normal ears of both men and women, over the pitch range from bass to C5, at sound intensities midway between the faintest audible and the painfully loud.

It is found, according, to the Scientific American, that the sound energy necessary to produce a given loudness is smaller the higher the pitch, at least within the range examined. Different ears agree more closely at these intensities than at the least audible, and no difference is detectible between men and women. Interpretation of the results shows them to be in harmony with Fechner's law, according to which the difference between the sensations due to two lights of the same color or two tones of the same pitch is proportional to the ratio of intensities of the lights or sounds causing the sensations. This simple law holds only at moderate intensities.

Phonometric comparisons by a small number of observers were made at intensities from very faint to very loud. It appears that any one ear varies from day to day, but these variations are most noticeable at the extremes of loudness.

The results taken all together strongly suggest that, on the average, the relative sensitivity of the ear to different musical notes is practically the same whether the sounds are loud or faint.

TOWER for STUDYING the SUN

DURING the last few years much attention has been devoted to study of the sun, which is interesting not only because it warms and lights the earth, but also for the reason that it is a typical star.

Looking up at the Milky Way, the night sky is seen strewn with countless myriads of stars, all of which are suns; but even the nearest of them are so far away that they are nothing more than points of light to the most powerful telescope. But the solar luminary is relatively close at hand, and can therefore be observed to great advantage.

Much of the work done at the Mt. Wilson observatory, near Pasadena, Cal., has had to do with the sun—the variations in the amount of heat it gives out, etc.—and recently the astronomers there have set up a tall, skeleton tower for the purpose of studying the "spectrum" of the solar luminary. On top of it is a small circular room with a revolving, dome-shaped roof that serves as an observatory.

A beam of sunlight thrown through an ordinary glass prism upon a wall is split up into a rainbow of colors which is called a spectrum. An instrument known as a "spectroscope" gives a view of this rainbow in great detail, showing bands and lines across it which have come to be recognized as representing certain elements—iron for instance. By this means helium was found in the sun (whence its name) long before it was discovered on the earth.

It is very interesting to know that the sun is composed of the same materials as those which go to make up the earth. But doubtless its spectrum still holds secrets which it would be useful to know. Hence the solar tower on the summit of Mt. Wilson, which is utilized for the purpose of analyzing sunbeams.

A beam of sunlight, admitted through an aperture in the revolving dome, is split up by a large spectroscope, and thus is made available for detailed study by an observer stationed in the circular room at the top of the tower.

MYSTERY Creatures of the OCEAN

MAN has explored the land surface of the earth pretty thoroughly, and has classified most of its animals. But little is known about the world's oceans and their mysteries.

Ships stick to the same tracks between ports and there are millions of square miles of sea where the smoke of a steamer is never seen. Even close to well-known shores there are gigantic depths still to be plumbed to discover what life exists in the abysses.

The mysterious sea monster captured recently off the coast of Florida has given naturalists a shock. They cannot laugh at it as they do at the sea serpent, for it has been lying on the beach for anyone to see, measure, or examine.

This giant of the deep is quite unlike anything ever seen before. It weighs 33,600 pounds (15 tons); its hide is 3 inches thick, and inside it was an octopus weighing 400 pounds, a black fish weighing 1,500 pounds, and nearly four hundredweight of coral.

Nor is this strange beast by any means the first of such mysteries which have been cast up on the shore or taken by man. Two years ago a monster was found ten miles from Bombay, which was just as great a puzzle to naturalists.

This evil-looking creature was 25 1-2 feet long and its huge face had an uncannily human expression. The mouth was three feet long, with extremely sharp teeth. The body, dull black, was curiously ribbed. Its eyes were small and its great fins had the shape of an elephant's ear. Perhaps the strangest thing about it was that it was still alive after being forty-eight hours out of water.

Elephant-like was the head of a creature caught in Port Fairy Bay, Southern Australia. This fish, totally unlike anything ever seen before, was 9 feet 6 inches in length, had a tail like a screw shaft, a nose like a rhinoceros, and a huge toothless mouth. Its fins were large, and its skin black and soft.

Much smaller, but equally puzzling to naturalists, was a creature landed at Yarmouth by a steam trawler. Its body was seal-like in shape, and it resembled a seal in that it had two flippers, but its head tapered to a sort of beak, and it had a tail shaped like that of a porpoise.

The mouth was furnished with a double row of sharp teeth, and on top of its head was a blowhole such as whales have. The creature's eyes were mere slits. No one could classify this extraordinary specimen.

From its enormously thick hide and its tiny and almost useless eyes, it is supposed that the giant Florida fish lived in the profound and chilly depths of the ocean.

For similar reasons it is believed that a fish taken on the coast of Maine was also a denizen of the very deep sea. The creature was six feet long and weighed about 200 pounds. Its head was extraordinarily wide, and its mouth like a great bag with small but sharp teeth. It was practically boneless, the bones being represented merely by gristle.

SHOES of Snake SKIN for Modern EVE

THE modern Eve takes a characteristic revenge upon the descendants of the serpent, which served her such a dreadful trick in the world's early history. She wears it in the form of shoes.

The newest shoe modes include fish-skin footwear, as well as those made from reptiles. Dolphin, dyed in the loveliest shades of green, blue, fawn, and also in black, will be a novelty warranted to make folks stare.

Should you decide to purchase a nice pair of grey shoes, you will order a pair of Java lizard shoes. Supposing you want the contrast of soft fawn and grey, you will become possessed of a pair of python shoes. This particular python comes from Southern Nigeria. But grey is being eclipsed in popularity by shades of brown.

Burma lizards are used specially for children's shoes, as this lizard is small; four skins being required for one pair of woman's size footwear.

There is much to be said in favor of crushing the serpent underfoot for the benefits of durability, comfort, and becomingness that it possesses, and the ease with which it can be cleaned. Snake shoes are labor-saving shoes. All that is required to produce a good appearance is the application of a little beeswax.

The Duchess of York had several pairs of these novel shoes in her trousseau, and so had Princess Mary, Viscountess Lascelles.

Tropical waters, jungles, and forests provide luxuries in snake skins, so varied in strength that they fashion the toughest of riding-boots and golf-shoes for men, and the daintiest of park shoes or boudoir "mules" for women.

Varied, too, in pattern are the scaly surfaces, some definitely geometrical, showing diamonds and triangles, others in the roughly-defined oblongs and ovals, surrounded by bands of contrasting coloring. As for the sizes of the creatures, they naturally differ considerably.

The golden anaconda from Mexico, whose blood-red spots upon a golden brown skin deepen in color under stress of excitement and "tan" to a brown shade, measures thirty-five feet in length; the skin of the king python is 2 yard across its widest part; while the insect-eating frog of the large New Zealand monitor is the tiny species from Burma, already mentioned.

A great deal of trouble and [illegible] and in some cases skin must be wasted, as proof that a pair of shoes may really be a match.

One of the most arrestively pretty pairs of footwear is provided by the yellow jack snake of India. The centre is a lovely medley of soft grey and yellow, with a brighter yellow stripe.

Be careful if you should come [illegible] of the sacred anacondas of Mexico and think of capturing one yourself. An Englishman who was travelling in that country, knowing nothing of the reverence in which the reptiles are held, shot one, and then finding the safety of his party menaced, had to make a wide detour on his journey, by so doing avoiding inevitable massacre.

VEGETABLE That Is Like STONE

IT would sometimes seem that nature has a sense of humor from the way it makes animals look like plants, plants like animals, and both, on rare occasions, like inanimate objects. A striking example of the last mood are the stone-like plants found in southwest Africa. The family name of Mesembryanthemum was conferred on these plants by the German botanist who found and studied them.

There are several species of the succulent vegetable resembling various kinds of stones or pebbles, and in general they resemble the fat cactus family, but without thorns. Their brown color is a cunning protection against the hungry wild animals that roam there, for which they would not only furnish food, but a sort of cooling drink. As a further disguise these "stones" are usually found associated with real stones, smooth stones of dry creek beds, which they closely imitate by color as well as by shape.

Trench HELMETS Now WORN to Protect MINERS

THE trench hat, the old "tin hat" that served in some measure to turn aside shrapnel hail on the war-swept fields of France, is coming into extensive use as a means of head protection against falls of rock and ore in the mines of California, West Virginia, Oklahoma and many other States, according to R. V. Ageton, metal mining engineer of the Bureau of Mines. The trench shoe and similar heavy shoes are also being utilized by miners as a medium of foot protection.

"The Cornish miner of earlier days, who has left his mark in nearly every metal mining camp of the United States, usually protected his head with a hard resined felt hat, on which was stuck a candle, the candle being held in place by a gob of mud," Mr. Ageton continues. "The hat was hot, heavy and cumbersome, but long years of mining experience had impressed on the Cornishman the wisdom of protecting his head from bits of falling rock. His heavy, cumbersome, cowhide boots, with soles half an inch to an inch thick, undoubtedly prevented many an accident to his feet.

"Stiff protective hats are still widely used in some mining districts, but in general the custom of wearing stiff hats is not nearly so common in mines of this country as it should be, probably because a large proportion of the foreign-born miners, as well as many American-born miners, now come to the mines from other occupations, without previous knowledge of mining, and do not appreciate the importance of protecting the head and foot from minor accidents. In recent years, however, the Bureau of Mines has noted a gratifying increase in the use of protective devices for the head. Many soldiers had been miners and came back with a wholesome respect for the trench helmet and the thick trench shoes."

WEDDING BELLS

PRESTON—YOUNG.

A wedding of considerable local interest took place at St. Andrew's Church at high noon to-day, when Estella Whipple, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Young, 564 Charlotte Street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Frederick Alexander Preston, son of the late A. A. Preston and Mrs. Preston, 304 Frederic Avenue. The pastor, Rev. James Rollins, performed the ceremony.

The church was artistically decorated for the occasion with quantities of palms, ferns, gladioli and asters.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a lovely gown of white silk crepe de chine, with Val lace trimming. Side insets formed of rows of the lace and rosettes of lace trimmed the skirt, the short sleeves were composed entirely of lace and the round neck was outlined by embroidery of heavy rope silk. A net veil with orange blossoms was worn, and the bride's bouquet was composed of ophelia roses, showered with valley lilies.

A cousin of the bride, Miss Ruby Young, acted as bridesmaid, wearing rose taffeta, with black picture hat, and carrying columbia roses. Miss Catherine Millard, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl, in a dainty frilled frock of blue swiss muslin. She wore a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a basket of marguerites and sweet peas. Gerald Dawson, of Bailieboro, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Allan J. Preston and Wilbert Franks. The wedding march was played by Mr. John Crane, and a vocal solo, "Love, at Dawning," was rendered in sweet voice by Mrs. Chas. Breckenridge, of Westwood.

After the ceremony, breakfast to over fifty friends and relatives was served at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. A. A. Preston, wearing black canton crepe, with separate skirt panels of jet, and Mrs. W. J. Young, in black beaded crepe, received the guests. The dainty tables, in charge of Messrs. Hooper and Sons, were decorated with asters and sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston left later by motor for a honeymoon at Stoney Lake, after which they will reside in Peterboro. The bride travelled in navy blue gabardine, with grey shoes and stockings, grey fur neckpiece and hat of grey velvet ribbon with rose plume.

Gifts received by the young people were numerous and handsome, and included a gold-lined silver tea set, with tray, from S. C. Warne, of whose staff the bride has been a valued member for the past five years.

LEONARD—HAWKINS.

A pretty wedding took place at eight o'clock this morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, when Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl performed the ceremony which united in the holy bonds of matrimony Violet Hawkins, of Peterboro, daughter of the late Mrs. Hawkins and T. B. Hawkins, of South Qu'Appelle, Sask., and Edmund Leonard, son of the late Daniel Leonard and Mrs. A. Leonard, 298 Mark Street.

The bride wore a stylish suit of navy tricotine, grey taffeta hat trimmed with silver lace and ostrich plume, and squirrel choker. Her bouquet was composed of ophelia roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Guerin, wore a navy suit and grey hat and carried sweet peas. George Leonard acted as best man.

A very interesting aspect of the wedding breakfast which followed the ceremony was its service to about forty guests under the apple trees on the lawn of Miss Sarah Tobin's residence at 48 Maria Street, where the bride has made her home since coming to the city from Western Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard left later by motor for a honeymon at Rice Lake. They will reside in Peterboro.

The bride, who was a popular member of one of the departmental staffs at the Canadian General Electric Company, was presented with many useful and beautiful gifts, including some handsome silverware from her fellow-employees.

SOUTHERN—O'BRIEN.

A pretty wedding took place at St. Peter's Cathedral at seven o'clock this morning, when Jule Etheldreda, younger daughter of Mrs. Winifred O'Brien, 409 Aylmer Street, and the late William O'Brien, of Erinsville, Ontario, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to John Joseph Southern, of Peterboro, son of Mrs. Margaret Southern and the late James Southern, Pittsfield, Massachusetts. Rev. P. Costello said the nuptial Mass and performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, J. M. O'Brien, M.D., was beautifully gowned in dove grey georgette, studded with brilliants. A huge butterfly of brilliants held the long side drape in place, and the sleeves were of the long, flowing angel type. Grey shoes and stockings were worn, and a cloche hat of black velvet, with facing of silver cloth and trimming of Spanish lace. The bridal bouquet was of ophelia roses, showered with lilies of the valley.

The bride's attendant was her sister, Miss Margaret O'Brien, wearing navy satin-back crepe, with knife-pleated front panel and collar and cuffs of Belgian lace, hat of navy velvet with glycerined ostrich mount, and bouquet of columbia roses. Dr. J. F. O'Brien, of Peterboro, acted as best man. Ushers were Messrs. Ed. Riley and Chas. Carson.

The wedding march was played by Miss Lillian Hurley, and an "Ave Maria" was very sweetly sung by Miss Ernestine McManus.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served to immediate relatives and friends of the family, at the home of the bride's mother, where decorations were carried out in yellow and white chrysanthemums.

Mr. and Mrs. Southern left later by motor for Montreal, en route for St. Jovite, in the Laurentian Mountains, where the honeymoon will be spent. They will reside in Peterboro, at 796 George Street.

The bride's travelling costume was a gown of navy satin-back crepe, grey duvetyn hat and wrap of mid night blue fashona cloth, with grey fox collar and cuffs.

The young people were recipients of many useful and beautiful gifts from a large circle of friends. The bridegroom, a new-comer to the city, is assistant superintendent at the Auburn Mills.

TEXANS WOULD ERASE VERNON CASTLE'S MEMORY.

FT. WORTH, Tex., Sept. 11.—The sole monument in Ft. Worth in memory of Vernon Castle, famous dancer and aviator, who was killed in an airplane crash in Ft. Worth during the World War, may be removed.

His death stirred Ft. Worth. The services held here for him were elaborate. All Ft. Worth turned out to honor the dancer who died a hero. The widest street in the city was designated "Vernon Castle Boulevard."

Now some of the residents of the street want the original name restored. A petition filed with City Secretary Snow Thursday requested the city commission to strike "Vernon Castle" from the name, restoring its original name "Boulevard." It bore 82 signatures.

UNITED STATES TO START NIGHT AIRMAIL SERVICE

Planes, Guided By Powerful Beacons, Will Flash Across the Continent in 28 Hours--Plan Outlined By Department.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (United Press).—The American transcontinental air mail service will soon be seen streaking through the darkened skies of night, its pathway blazed by powerful beacons of light.

After having worked steadily on plans for more than a year, the Post-office Department intends to inaugurate the night air mail service about the middle of the present month. Air mail experts and aviation specialists have been experimenting in all phases of night flying and are confident of success.

In the opinion of Postmaster General new continuous and regular transcontinental air mail service "will be a milestone in the history of aviation and an epic in the progress of transportation, and will put the air mail service on the basis of an independent postal service."

The Night Schedule

Under the proposed schedule for the service after night flying has been inaugurated, air mail will leave New York City shortly before noon, go to Cleveland; then to Bryan, O., and then to Chicago, arriving there at sundown. From Chicago, another pilot will take the mail and fly about 1,000 miles, one-third of the trip across the continent, in the dead of night.

Leaving Chicago, this pilot will turn southwest to Iowa City, thence go to Omaha, on to North Platte, and into Cheyenne at dawn. A relief pilot then will start from Cheyenne and head for Rawlins, Wyoming, thence to Rock, Wyoming, then southwest to Salt Lake City, and from there will proceed straight for the Pacific Coast, passing over Elko and Reno, Nevada, and landing in San Francosco as the street lamps begin to glow.

Thus will be marked another great stage in the development of the post, life-blood of a nation. From the slow stage-coach, fighting its way over dangerous cliff roads and against Indian bands, to the modern railroad, considered at first the last word in the speed of science, mail will now be transported across the continent in 28 hours when the night flying of the air mail begins.

Giant Lighting Plan

Equipped with beacons of 600,000,000 candlepower, the five regular air mail landing fields from Chicago to Cheyenne will create an artificial aurora borealis, visible for 50 miles from its source under good atmospheric conditions, to guide the pioneers of the air mail. These giant deacons will swing around the tops of towers and will make three revolutions every minute. The lights will be operated only when a plane is expected.

Besides the powerful beacons at the five regular stations, emergency landing fields have been located and lighted every 25 miles along the route. These smaller beacons will be visible for 30 miles. Each plane of the night air mail service also will be equipped with bright searchlights for forced landings.

When the clouds are low and heavy and the pilot is forced to fly at a low altitude, flashing signals, similar to traffic guards on city streets, but whose lights will be directed towards the skies, will be located every three miles along the air mail route. On a clear night a pilot 7,000 feet up will see a narrow line of light stretching along the miles over the level prairies.

"There goes the air mail," will cry descendants of the American pioneers who first hailed the stage coach mail and then the steaming, glistening locomotive.

"No transportation," said Director Egge of the air mail service of the post-office department to the United Press, "is successful unless it can be operated day and night and through wind, rain, snow or sleet.

"The night flights of the postal planes cannot wait upon the will of the elements, but must take conditions as they find them. Almost one-third of the day flying is made through rain, hail or fog, and it is probable that the night flyer will have to bear the same conditions."

Operation of the day air mail service during the fiscal year 1923 was 96.73 per cent perfect, the highest efficiency attained since the establishment of the service. During that period the air mail covered 1,589,389 miles.

LEAGUE NATIONS FOURTH ASSEMBLY.

Will Review the Work of Eventful Year--52 Nations Raise Questions.

GENEVA, Sept. 11 (Associated Press)—The fourth general assembly of the League of Nations will be called to order Monday morning, Sept. 3, by Viscount Ishii, former Japanese ambassador to Washington and now ambassador to France.

The forthcoming meeting is regarded with great international interest. The League has passed through its most active year of endeavor, and numerous are the questions which will come up for discussion by the representatives of the 52 nations affiliated with the Geneva organization. It is regarded as certain that Ireland will apply for membership; Turkey and one or two other States may do likewise.

The assembly will bring together many of the world's foremost statesmen, including General Smuts, the celebrated leader of the South African Republic; Lord Robert Cecil; Dr. F. Nansen, for many years prominent in European relief work; former Premier Branting, of Sweden; Foreign Minister Benes, of Czechoslovakia; representatives of the British overseas dominions, and spokesmen of some 16 South American republics.

Something like 1,500 people, including national delegates, experts in various fields, and journalists from all corners of the globe are expected, and already Geneva is making ready its display of flags of all the world, preparing the great fountain which plays in the inner harbor, and otherwise planning for the reception of men from many lands, of many races, and of many languages.

All the work of the assembly will be done in public. Every session, both plenary and committee, is open to the press. Apparently efforts are being made to prevent the League from falling into those ways of secrecy which often mark the course of diplomats in international negotiations. Occasionally, during the last year, some sessions of the council were held privately, with resultant criticism based on the allegation that, if the League, as it gets stronger, yields to the temptation to follow the road of secrecy, it is eventually doomed to failure because the keynote of its success must be open covenants openly arrived at. The assembly generally discusses not only what the League has done during the past year, but also what it has not done and should do.

Each state which is a member of the League may be represented by not more than three delegates who are appointed by and responsible to their respective governments. As the work of the League covers many different fields of international life, and as the sessions are run with the greatest possible expedition, many countries have supplementary delegates and expert advisors on various problems. Each, however, has but one vote. Practically all questions of importance can be decided only by unanimous vote. One state could block an agreement, if it wished to take the responsibility. As a matter of fact such a contingency has not arisen in the history of the League. One of two policies has been followed. Either negotiations have been pursued until an agreement acceptable to all has been reached, or states which felt unable to agree to a definite proposal have abstained from voting, thus allowing the proposal to be adopted by the other countries.

TOMATO PASTE.

When tomatoes are plentiful, wash and scald them, strain through a fine sieve and boil until thick. Put in glass jars. The paste will be found useful for flavoring soups and sauces.

CANADA TRADE WITH U.S. SIGN OF PROSPERITY

United States Citizens Are Entering Canada in Large Numbers — Great Industrial Future For the Dominion.

NEW YORK OPINION.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (By Canadian Press).—Pointing to the fact that the gain in the value of Canadian sales to the United States for the twelve months ending June, 1923, was larger than the gain in the value of United States exports to Canada, as a significant indication of Canadian prosperity, the New York Trust Company recently published an article on the relations of Canadian and the United States.

Interlocking national interests are confirmed by statistics according to the article in which it is pointed out that the total value of trade between Canada and the United States during the twelve months amounted to $979,979,003, or approximately one-eighth the total value of United States trade with the entire world. Canada purchased goods from the United States valued at $583,732,788 and sold to the United States products amounting to $394,246,215.

Another significant fact is said to be that Canada's import and export trade with the United States was greater in value than her total trade with the British Empire despite the fact that the Dominion's trade showed gains in the value of products imported from and exported to countries of the Empire in the year mentioned.

After noting that with a population approximately one-twelfth that of the United States, Canada developed a world trade to the amount of $1,844,893,547 during the twelve months as compared with a world trade of 37,738,336,000 by the United States in the same period, the article continues:

"More than one-half of Canada's trade (July, 1922-June, 1923) was with the United States and there are indications that in the further development of Canadian commerce the interchange of products with the United States will continue to be greater than trade with any other country. Trade rivalry between ourselves and the Dominion thus will be for a long time to come mainly a competition as to which of the two countries sells the most goods to the other. Canada is our second best customer and in that role is not far behind Great Britain. Her future development and expansion may easily make her our best customer."

It is then noted that commercial ties between the two countries are being strengthened by enlarged United States investments in Canadian state issues and private enterprises, "a late estimate of which places the total at $2,500,000,000." This amount is almost as great as the British investment in Canada.

"Not only capital is being contributed by the United States to the development of Canada's wonderful resources. Accustomed to great improvements of population from Europe to the United States we are apt to overlook the fact that there is a country into which large numbers of our own citizens find it desirable to emigrate. Total immigration into Canada in the years 1900 to 1922 was 3,667,310 and more than one-third of that number were from the United States. In fact the emigrants from this country numbering 1,395,853 exceeded the number of British emigrants to Canada by more than 30,000.

"Canada has made great progress in various industries but it may be said, without detriment to her remarkable achievements, that she has yet to come into her own industrially. This applies especially to manufacturing. Naturally, with her vast expanse of territory and comparatively sparse population it has followed that agriculture and kindred industries have taken the lead. Latest available estimates of capital invested in her various industries disclose the pre-eminence of Canadian agriculture. The figures are agricultural investment (1921) $6,831,022,000; total manufactures, $3,230,686,368 (1919)."

SEEKING SAFETY NOW FROM DUST EXPLOSIONS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—(Associated Press).—Development of a method of testing the amount of explosive dusts in suspension in the air at commercial plants, with the aim of reducing the number of disastrous explosions, is under way by engineers of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture which expects shortly to announce the perfection of a successful testing instrument. Such a device, it is said, would result in the saving annually of many lives and an untold amount of property.

Processes in many industries are productive of considerable dust clouds, which, hanging finely suspended in the air, form a combination that is highly explosive. Among the establishments in this category are grain elevators, rubber working plants, spice, flour and feed mills, and plants in which powdered sugar, corn starch, sulphur and aluminum are used or manufactured.

Through a period of many years fires and explosions in these and other industries have taken an immense toll. The attention of engineers has been applied to their prevention, and the government has organized a laboratory under the direction of David J. Price, in the Department of Agriculture, for the sole study of dust explosion prevention. As a result fires and explosions in several industries have been reduced almost to a minimum; especially is this true in flour mills.

The problem of the engineers has been to discover how much dust must be suspended in the air to form an explosive mixture. While the lowest limit was not definitely ascertained, it seems to range from a content of from 7 to 35 ounces of dust per thousand cubic feet of air. The instrument devised by Mr. Price and his engineers is to enable plant engineers to check up on this condition by drawing dust-charged air through a paper filter, and comparing the weight of the collected dust with the amount of air thus analyzed.

WOMAN IS CITY ATTORNEY OF DALLES

THE DALLES, Ore., Sept. 11.—In which, of all man's activities, does woman seem to make most progress? The law, is the prevailing opinion here.

To prove this, attention is directed to Miss Celia Gavin of this city.

Miss Gavin is city attorney for The Dalles, and believed to be the only woman in full charge of a city's legal affairs west of the Rockies.

Her duties include municipal financial transactions, authorizations and bond sales, besides being adviser to the city council and conducting city prosecutions.

Codified Law

One of Miss Gavin's greatest accomplishments was codification of the city charter and ordinances. They were in almost hopeless confusion and contradiction when she took them and systematized them into a municipal code. It took her two years of steady, hard work, but she feels fully repaid for her effort. She came across many precedences and practices which she has found helpful in her legal practice.

Yet Miss Gavin, with all her official duties to perform, finds time to continue her personal practice with her father, long an attorney in The Dalles.

And besides all this, Miss Gavin is an active participant in the political activities of the Democratic party in Oregon.

Another Example

Miss Gavin isn't alone, by far, in her successful climb up the legal ladder. There's Miss Darden Moose of Little Rock, Ark., to whom her admirers point as another example.

Miss Moose hasn't progressed so far as Miss Gavin, but she's not so fully experienced. Yet Miss Moose is assistant attorney general for the state of Arkansas. She prepares the state's cases and briefs and is considered one of the most valuable members of the staff.

Before taking up law Miss Moose was a teacher in the high schools of Texarkana, Tex., and Little Rock.

FAMOUS PAINTINGS STOLEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—Eight famous paintings by old masters were stolen on August 1 from the Lenbach Art Gallery in Munich, Germany, according to the German Consul General here. The burglars evidently were adept as art connoisseurs as the works they took were among the most valuable in the collection. All but two of the stolen paintings were cut from their frames.

The missing masterpieces, it was announced, included a Rubens original sketch in three parts, the original painting from which is in Antwerp. The middle part represents the descent of Christ from the Cross, the right section "John," and the left "The Madonna." Others included an early product of Franz Hals, a bust of a smiling young man with cap, and a Hans Holbein, Jr., representing a man's head with a barret.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

CRUEL AND OBSOLETE.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: Wouldn't it be a good idea to publish the enclosed clipping in your paper, with the hope that the lady member of our School Board, and the Mothers' Clubs, will have homework abolished in our schools, too.

It is the height of cruelty to impose more home work on children after they have put in the best hours of the day in a school room. They will get along just as fast, if not faster, as was proved in my daughter's case. I never allowed her to do homework and she always passed her exams. with honors.

I know many children who never have any time to live their own little lives in their own happy way. As soon as they get in from school they are either rushed off to a music lesson or made to practice at home. Then after tea, homework till bedtime—no time to romp and play, and have a little freedom to "do things they don't HAVE to do."

No wonder there are so many nervous children these days—they are so many little machines run by a time clock.

Let us have mercy on young minds and growing bodies by giving the children freedom after school till bedtime. Yours,

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

The clipping referred to follows:

"Abolition of the homework system is Windsor public schools was ordered by the Board of Education, afer Trustee C. H. Smith attacked the system as 'cruel and obsolete.'

"That some teachers who cling to old-fashioned ideas, had ignored a similar order passed by the board three years ago, was charged by Trustee Smith.

"Members of the board took the stand that the homework should not be given to any pupil unless the parents consented."

HOUSE OF LORDS FEARS FOR ISLAND COLONIES

LONDON, Sept. 11 (Associated Press)—Fear that American influences may eventually affect the relations between England and the British West Indies has invaded Parliament and caused some members of the House of Lords to urge that the government lose no time in strengthening the existing bonds with the British colonies.

Viscount Burnham has urged that special representation at the Imperial Economic Conference be given the West Indies, and that better communication on the sea and under it be established at once with that part of the Empire. He points out that communication at the present time is very bad, a condition that does not obtain with any other part of the Empire. Almost all of the news supplied to the West Indian papers comes from America, and reflects the American point of view.

Director's Errors a Schooling

By JACK JUNGMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 11.—In the days when Hollywood was a village, Jack White used to sneak into the old Fine Arts studio to watch D. W. Griffith screen his early masterpieces.

The inquisitive youngster, tolerated on the lot because he was so deadly in earnest to pick up crumbs of production technique, developed a deep sentimental attachment for the place which didn't wane as White himself began to make a name in the picture field.

Today, Jack White, producer of comedies, in association with Lloyd Hamilton, occupies the renovated Fine Arts studio with five units of 150 people, a close rival of Hal Roach in the slap-stick field.

He occupies the old swivel chair which was once D. W.'s throne, and hopes "to create as many comedy stars here as Griffith created dramatic stars.

• • •

That marks a lapse of 12 years, just half White's lifetime. He was earning $4 a week in a hardware store when Mack Sennett offered him $6 as an office boy in the old home of Keystone comedies, where Charlie Chaplin was just getting started, Fatty Arbuckle was an extra, and where Ford Sterling, Mabel Normand and Fred Mace were the big stars. Around the studio he was a Jack of all work, gradually focusing his time and study on film cutting.

Acting didn't interest him. The business of making pictures did.

"Four years in the cutting room," he said, "showed me an unbelievable number of directors' errors. Patching up their work was like writing a story from a dictionary—so jumbled and haphazard was most of the film. I felt I couldn't pull so many bloomers, and so, leaping before looking, I launched out for myself, putting all I had into a comedy called 'Roaring Lions and Wedding Bells.' That put me on the map as a director, and from that venture grew first the Jack White Comedies, and, after Lloyd Hamilton and I had joined forces, the Mermaid Comedies."

• • •

Jack White has amassed a comfortable personal fortune in those 12 years, and will this year spend a gross of nearly a million on production. Divide the million by the $200 a year White used to get as a hardware store roustabout and you have the dollar equation in the spectacular climb of an "inquisitive kid."

"Such success as I have had," he claims, "is probably due to my realization that, while the desire to laugh is probably the least common denominator among all people, it takes more than a mere comedy label to make a comedy.

• • •

"Audiences advance three times as fast in their critical attitude toward comedy as they do toward drama. Many producers and actors catering to the risibles failed to perceive this and were left by the wayside.

"A playgoer's judgment on a film is frequently blinded by an actor's ability to start a tear, but seldom by his efforts to be funny. That's why comedies have to exercise closer marksmanship. Naturally, the producers who shot wild came home with empty sacks, and exhibitors accepted comedies generaly merely as programme fillers.

"We are now trying to keep pace with audiences by making comedies as sincere and human as the better dramas."

She's "Too Young" to Wed Her Divorced Husband

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Sept. 11.—Too young to remarry the father of her child!

That's the peculiar predicament of Mrs. Bertha Seal Sayre, pretty 20-year-old girl mother, living here.

And all because of a strange trick of fate.

It's this way:

Until a few weeks ago a girl could wed in Ohio on attaining the age of 18. But the last General Assembly changed her status. Now she must wait until she's 21.

After the war Bertha Seal met Clarence Sayre, just back from overseas. They were married when she was 18.

A son, now a year and a half old, was born. They went into the divorce court. The judge granted a decree.

Followed then a mining accident. Sayre was seriously injured. Mrs. Sayre and the baby called on him in the hospital. Old troubles were forgotten and reconciliation was effected.

Mrs. Sayre hurried to the court house to obtain a license. But the clerk turned her down.

"Too young," he explained.

The wedding, of course, can go on if Mrs. Sayre's folks don't object. But she refuses to ask parental consent.

"I'll wait," she declares.

She'll be 21 on Oct. 20. Then the nuptials will take place.

Legislators play many odd pranks. But it would be difficult to find one more unusual than they unwittingly perpetuated on Mrs. Sayre.

HOW TO GET THE BEST OUT OF YOUR CLOTHES

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 11 (United Press). — A stitch in time saves nine!"

But there are other things besides stitches which save one's wardrobe.

Stockings are perhaps one of our most expensive luxuries today, as they are both costly and perishable. By buying two pairs exactly alike at a time one will really have the benefit of three pairs of stockings, as one stocking of a pair always gives out before the other one does and with two odd ones you have another pair. If you do not believe this, look in your stocking bag and see how many odd stockings you have there. Suppose some of these odd ones matched. When the first little hole appears in the stocking, moisten it until you get an opportunity to mend it, as the moisture will prevent further running of the thread.

• • •

Felt hats have become the all-round season hats. Instead of buying a satin hat for the season between summer and fall, purchase one of the adorable little felts which can be used again next spring and will act as a sports hat all year round. Felt shapes are always good as they clean easily, pack easily and can be used for almost any occasion. This year we see them at the smart resorts with the afternoon and dinner gown, as well as with the sport outfit.

• • •

Nearly every woman wears silk underwear these days. Tintex or coloring of some sort is essential towards keeping these silks in tone, as they fade after several washings. Try saving the Tintex wrenching water from week to week by placing it in a large bottle. One can make a box of Tintex go twice as far this way. Often a drop or two of red ink added to wrenching water will add enough color to brighten the faded pink garment.

• • •

So many people wear down the heels of shoes before the rest of the shoe gives out. Watch for the first sign of wearing and have new leather heel tabs put on by a cobbler before the heel permanently turns. Nothing is uglier or more uncomfortable than a shoe with a crooked heel. By keeping the heel straight the shoe wears a great deal longer.

• • •

Buying two pairs of corsets at one time and wearing them on alternate days prolongs the life of each corset, by holding its shape. Always smooth the corset out after wearing, and roll it up as this also helps keep it in shape. Never wear a corset until it becomes discolored by perspiration as perspiration rots the material. Either send it to the cleaner or wash it with ivory soap and warm water, using a scrubbing brush.

• • •

Turn the discarded dress into a costume slip by cutting it off under the arms and adding shoulder straps.

• • •

Frocks that are spotted by water or any substance other than grease should be immediately rubbed with a clean handkerchief or cloth to prevent a ring forming. Taffeta usually responds beautifully to this treatment, thus saving a cleaner's bill. Grease spots can often be removed by placing a blotter over the material and ironing the blotter with an iron warm enough to melt the grease. In this way, the blotter absorbs the grease. Should a ring remain, try using a little chloroform or some cleaner that is guaranteed not to spot. Pour cleaner on clean cloth and rub over material, rubbing away from the spot, until material is entirely dry.

SUMMER GAMBLING AT MONTE CARLO OF LATE

By GUS M. OEHM

MONTE CARLO (By mail to United Press).—Gambling at the famous casino here is beginning to be an all-year-round proposition.

Summer time is usually respite time around the green tables where the games of chance are played. But this summer, contrary to expectations, promises to break all records for attendance and gambling enthusiasm.

Every table every afternoon and evening is filled with gamblers—and they are not all tourists from the States as one might think.

"The French themselves are sticking this summer," one of the attendants declared to the United Press. "Many of the big hotels in Nice and Monte Carlo which always closed during the summer season before, are staying open this year because business is so good. We are getting a lot of Americans, but a look around the place will show you that the French are here in droves."

A look around proved that very thing. Admitted to the gambling halls without question when an American passport is presented, tourists find the place alive with the seekers after wealth—and most of them are French.

"I don't understand it," the informant declared, "unless the people are getting more reckless as time goes on. I guess it's the jazz age—folks seem to blame the jazz age for everyhting."

Women artists designed a new set of postage stamps for Iraq, better known as Mesopotamia.

VEGETABLE SANDWICHES

Vegetable sandwiches can be used to take the place of a salad with cold meat when picnicking.

When salad dressing is used in sandwiches it should be a thick dressing that will separate and become "runny" when touched with vegetable juice. An oil mayonnaise will not stand up in sandwiches for any length of time, so a cooked custard dressing is best for picnic sandwiches. Oil dressing is delicious in sandwiches to be used at home.

Salad Dressing

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon mustard, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon sugar, ¾ cup vinegar, ¼ cup water, 2 eggs.

Melt butter, stir in flour. Add vinegar and water and when hot and smooth add salt, mustard, pepper and sugar. Cook until thick and smooth. Remove from fire and pour over eggs well beaten. This forms a custard-like dressing that keeps well.

Lettuce seems to require a dressing, but many vegetables are really better without it than with it. Whenever dressing is used it is well to use lettuce with any other vegetable. This keeps the dressing from the bread.

Onion Sandwiches

These are better without a salad dressing. Peel and slice onions. Let stand in cold salt water to cover for an hour. One teaspoon salt to a medium sized onion is a good rule. Drain and chop very fine. Put between thin slices of bread and butter.

Cucumber Sandwiches

Pare cucumber and slice into cold salt water. Let stand an hour. Drain. Pour over vinegar to cover and let stand five minutes. Drain and put between thin slices of bread and butter. Cucumbers are very good combined with salad dressing.

Tomato Sandwiches

Pare tomatoes and slice. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and let stand on ice for half an hour. Drain. Put between thin slices of bread and butter. The acid of tomatoes will ruin any salad dressing in a short time.

Radish Sandwiches

Wash radishes and pare off red covering. Slice into ice water. Let stand half an hour. Drain. Put on a thin slice of bread and butter. Sprinkle with salt and cover with another slice of bread and butter.

Celery Sandwiches

Wash celery and let stand in cold water for an hour. Drain and mince very fine. Sprinkle with salt and put between thin slices of bread and butter.

These sandwiches are truly delicious and delightfully simple. They are nourishing and refreshing on hot summer days.

SOUTHAMPTON IS BRITAIN'S BIG PORT.

With the arrival of the giant American liner Leviathan in Southampton Docks, the seal of supremacy is set upon our greatest passenger port.

All of the world's super-liners now have their home in Southampton. To rise in little over a quarter of a century from an almost unknown coast town to the vast passenger junction connecting Britain with all the countries in the world has been the port's remarkable achievement.

Seamen still call the Hampshire town the "mushroom seaport," but far greater things are to be accomplished during the next few years, which will make Southampton the finest seaport in the world, writes Arthur Lamsley in the London Daily Mail.

West of the present docks, on the Test estuary, are 640 acres of mudland, inhabited only by seagulls, but soon to be reclaimed from the sea and converted into a new port. Here are to be built five of the largest ocean jetties in existence, each 1,000 feet ong and 300 feet wide, extensively fitted to berth two super-liners, or four vessels of average tonnage.

These jetties are to be constructed on piles to prevent any interference with the tidal flow of the river, and will face oceanwards, enabling the biggest ships to sail in and out of the docks at any state of the tide.

Adjoining these jetties will be two new graving docks, one of them larger than any other in the world and capable of accommodating the biggest ship likely to be built for many a long day to come.

In the early autumn the great new floating dock, now in construction at the port and costing nearly a million pounds, will be completed, adding considerably to the existing accommodation. This dock can lift out of the water such monsters as the Majestic and the Leviathan with comparative ease.

Behind the projected new dockland, estimated to cost from twelve to fifteen million pounds, provision is being made for the building of another suburb of Southampton, and the plan includes business quarters, factories and a public park surrounded by private residences.

Ten times as many passengers use the port today as twenty-five years ago, and new lines of steamers apply for accommodation almost every month.

With the coming of the Leviathan and the United States Line it will be possible to sail from Southampton to the United States nearly any day in the week by one of the many companies' steamers using the port.

EVENING DRESSES.

Evening dresses this coming season are expected to be of unusual beauty and richness. Brocades, metal cloths and velvets will lead for formal wear, an authority predicts.

CRAZED BY MOONSHINE FATALLY SHOOTS WIFE

BELLEVILLE, Illinois, September 11 (Canadian Press). — Walter Cochrane, aged 40, said to be crazed as a result of drinking moonshine whisky, held two score of police officers and deputy-sheriffs at bay yesterday for four hours while barricading himself in his home here, after fatally shooting his wife and seriously wounding his mother-in-law and two officers.

PENNY PRAIRIE DOG ESCAPES.

"That's Penny Prairie Dog," answered Mister Gallop.

One day Nancy and Nick and Mister Gallop, the cowboy fairy, were riding across the prairie just to see what they could see.

Suddenly they heard a "Chk! Chk! Chk!" half-way between a bark and a squeak.

"Oh, look!" cried Nancy, almost falling off Snow in her excitement. "What's that?"

"That's Penny Prairie Dog," answered Mister Gallop, looking down at the funny little creature sitting straight up like a kangaroo on his hind legs. Every time he barked he jerked his tail which made him look like a wound-up toy. "He's keeping watch outside his house," went on Mister Gallop. "When he makes that noise he's telling his family that strangers are coming and to look out."

"Well, we won't hurt him," said Nick. "Look, there are a lot of prairie-dog houses and each one has a prairie-dog on top. They've come out to see what is the matter."

"Yes, and be careful that your pony doesn't step into one of the big holes they use for front doors," warned Mister Gallop. "Let Blackie and Snow go slowly or they'll trip and throw you off."

Suddenly there was a queer rattling noise almost under their feet and in less time than it would take a star to fall—the three ponies started off as though they had been shot out a gun.

"Whoa!" shouted Nick, pulling hard on his reins.

"Stop!" yelled Nancy, tugging with all her strength.

And Mister Gallop, the cowboy fairy, tried so hard to stop his pony that he stood straight up in his stirrups.

But not one of the three stopped until they were half a mile away.

"Wh—what was wrong?" panted Nancy.

"That was Rip Rattler," said Mister Gallop. "He was after Penny Prairie Dog. We'd better go back and see if we can help him—Penny, I mean."

Pretty soon whom should they meet but Penny himself and his wife and children, not looking a bit scared.

"How did you get away?" asked Nick.

"We have a secret back door," squealed Penny with a shake of his tail. "When Mister Rattler came in the front door we went out the back way."

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond, (Terry), lovely and unbelievably innocent, is impersonating her beautiful half-sister. Juliet Divine, known as the Million Dollar DollTwhose sketchy career is unknown to ,cerry. Miles Sheridan, Terry's 'Dram Prince,' furnished the money for her convent education when she was a child. His wife is making him wretched with her infidelity and in order to facilitate her obtaining a divorce, Miles offers the Million Dollar Doll $20,000 to take a yacht trip with him. Juliet is unable to take the trip herself, but working on her little sister's gratitude to Miles, she persuades Terry who is an exquisite counterpart of herself, to take her place.

Betty Sheridan, Miles wife, is deeply in love with Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian. Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek who does not know of Terry's relationship to Juliet, is in love with the younger girl. Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, is Terry's maid on board the yacht. Her early disapproval of "The Million Dollar Doll" is swiftly disappearing urder the influence of Ferry's child-like Charm. But 'the Prince' is cold and hostile. He has no desire to be friendly with this notorious young person, in whom he does not recognize the little girl he befriended so long ago.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

A Prayer and Its Answer

Miles did hear of Miss Divine's double adventure, as it happened from Captain Yale, a bluff old married man with a grown-up family.

From the bridge he had seen the girl overwhelmed by the wave: and inquiring from Mrs. Harkness when he went off watch, if "Miss had got a scare" had been told of the sprained ankle.

"Guess that young lady has had a pretty good dose of the sea to-day," he said to his employer. "And I'm afraid she'll have a worse one before morning. We're in for a rip snorter."

"Silverwood" was a yacht of three thousand tons, but she was a cockleshell on the waves that night.

Captain Yale had to put her about, and run from the monstrous force of the head wind. Sea and sky were in a welter. All was black but the livid, clear white of the foam which hung over the ship like the top of a water-spout.

Terry had never dreamed of anything like this. Before the storm rose to its worst pitch, it had astonished and encouraged her to be summoned to dinner as usual.

She had not imagined that a meal could be served in such turmoil; but she was not ill, had not even a headache; and awe of the wild din and confusion of waters had made her forget the pain of her ankle.

When the summons came she had been expecting every moment that the yacht must turn turtle, so it was with joy that she snatched at an excuse to leave the cabin, and see a friendly face like Roberts'.

The face was more friendly than it had ever been, and Mrs. Harkness had been in the act of coming to reassure her about the storm so there the two were, outside the cabin door.

Roberts explained that he was waiting to escort Miss Divine to the dining-salon, and Mrs. Harkness explained that she would have come before, but had been busy helping Mr. Miles.

A sailor had nearly gone overboard. Luckily Mr. Miles was close by, and had caught him just in time: but the poor boy's arm was broken and Mr. Miles had set it.

The "fiddles" were on the table, and Terry managed to eat a little food, though distant sounds of smashing china now and then, made her nerves jump. Roberts, too, was a born sensationalist, a scaremonger.

He told tales of storms he had seen at sea; but this one to-night he thought, was about "the limit" for such a small craft. He expected she'd weather it, but if things got worse, why, you couldn't tell!

To Terry it seemed as if things did get worse, each minute. Not only did the yacht lie over on her side as though she could never right herself again, only to reel onto the other, but the whole sea seemed to lift itself and then pour down over the ship.

Yet even that was hardly the worst. Every board creaked and groaned with the repeated strain. The girl could scarcely believe that the yacht might fall to pieces at any instant, like a cracked egg.

She asked Roberts if she might continue to sit at the table, after dinner was over. "I think I'd better not try to get to the salon," she said, "and it isn't somehow as lonely here as in my own cabin."

The steward encouraged her to stay, and said that he wouldn't be far off if "anything happened."

"You're close to your own stateroom, Miss," he added, "and you know where your life belt is, if you want it. Not that I really expect you will." And presently he returned, bringing with him a store of old magazines, including several police publications, to enliven her vigil.

But Terry could not read or look at pictures, the danger seemed too like a monstrous, living presence. She wondered if what she felt were fear; because people could surely not be afraid to die, if they had no one who loved them, to live for?

She believed in beautiful things beyond this life. Many of her sweetest dreams had been of another world than this. Yet, oh, she was very much afraid that she was afraid! She wanted to live on this earth long enough to learn all its sweetnesses.

Besides, it would be terrible to be caught and swept away by the merciless cold sea. Alone, too! If only her prince were not so cruel—if he were kind, and would say, "if you go, I'll be with you," she wouldn't mind half as much. At least, she thought she wouldn't.

Then, crash came another wave, and the yacht walloed in a trough of the sea that was like a narrow valley between high mountains.

A verse she had learned at the convent rushed through Terry's brain:

'There is not much that a man may save
On the sands of life, in the starits of Time,
Who swims in sight of the Great Third Wave
That never a swimmer shall cross or climb."

The Great Third Wave! Perhaps this was it, and all would end.

"Dear God, do make me brave!" she prayed.

Then the door opened, and Miles Sheridan appeared, in oilskin and sou'wester.

TINWARE.

A tin utensil should never be put over the fire without something in it, as tin melts at a low temperature. Neither should acid fruits be cooked in it.

BITES AND STINGS.

All sorts of bites and stings, whether from wasps, bees or hornets, should be sucked to remove as much poison as possible. Then bind a slice of acid fruit, apple, tomato or grape, to the wound. If the pain is very severe wet a folded cloth in alcohol or vinegar and bind to the wound.

Love Lurks Behind Clouds

MRS. CYRIL TURNER

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—Aerial courtship—but a wedding on earth!

When an aviator and aviatrix wed, one might suppose the ceremony would be held in the clouds.

But captain Cyril Turner, British ace and sky-writer, and Andree Pewre, French girl thought that the ordinary, matter-of-fact, man-of-earth way would do for them.

Mrs. Turner owns her own plane and loves to jaunt around in space. She has an altitude record of 15,000 feet.

The romance started when the young bride met Turner in France. It was there she had learned to fly. An aerial courtship followed—and then, well, they just simply decided to get married while here.

Your Health

BABY'S FOOD.

In nine cases out to ten, the breast-fed baby seems to avoid constipation better than the bottle baby Occasionally the breast-fed baby will suffer from this trouble, generally as as a result of underfeeding. Your physician usually can advise hygienic conditions to improve the quantity and quality of the milk. Such cases require individual attention. Correspondents cannot deal with them successfully.

As to the bottle, if the home is in the city and receives pasteurized milk, you may be reasonably sure it is good. The mother must be very careful, after its delivery, to prevent bacteria from entering it before it is used.

Where pasteurized milk cannot be obtained, be careful to strain and boil it for about 10 minutes. Cool at once by placing in cold water or on ice and keep at a temperature as near 50 degrees as possible.

Boiling is often the cause of constipation and baby's cross, fretful attitude.

Whether in the city or country, milk supplied by cows should be supplemented by some cereals or fruit juices to avoid constipation during the first year. These may safely be given to the baby beginning at the age of three months. Try barley water or oat meal water in diluting milk at first.

At the age of six months, some thin cereal gruel may be of assistance.

Another aid is to give some thin broth, chicken or mutton preferred, three or four times a week during the seventh and eighth months.

Use fruit juices freely, beginning at three or four months and continuing throughout babyhood. Begin with a few spoonfuls a day and increase gradually.

CHARLES N. MILLER IN HIS WORKSHED.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif., Sept. 7.—Once more Charles N. Miller is proving that a severe physical handicap need not halt one on the road where live those tantalizing twins—fame and fortune.

Miller is blind. Has been in perpetual darkness for 35 years. During that time he became nationally known as editor of the National Christian Advocate, published by and for the blind.

Now he heads a new $250,000 incorporation that will shortly market on a national scale a new breakfast cereal food, his own invention, by machines of his own device.

His is a story of genuine human interest romance. It has been the inspiration to his neighbors; it will be to others.

Unselfish.

Shortly after he lost his sight, Miller entered a college for the blind, supporting himself summers by book canvassing and selling of school supplies. On completion of his education, he became pastor of a church here, leaving this only to become editor of the National Christian Advocate.

There his work attracted attention. He labored ceaselessly for those afflicted like himself. His cheerfulness permeated all those with whom he came into contact.

Three years ago he returned. The old home town "looked" pretty good to him. He opened a store. His capital was small, and his shop was the screened porch of his home. In the back yard he set up a little mill and began grinding wheat grits for his customers.

One day a homesick old German came into the store and asked the blind grocer if he could prepare him a special breakfast food—"like mother used to cook in the old country."

Expands.

Miller experimented with the formula given him by the customer and from it he eventually evolved a new food of broken grains which instantly gained local popularity.

He wanted to expand. Local capital came to the rescue. Today, Miller is general manager of the Charles N. Miller Company, Inc., and now is awaiting installation of $5,000 worth of machinery, on which he has applied for patents.

He promises to become America's first blind financier.

What are his "philosophies" of life? One doesn't need to ask him. And one doesn't. He lives his philosophies; does not talk about them.

Cheerfulness, despite the most dreaded of handicaps. Mental activity, despite a natural tendency to allow one's mind to brood on the inscrutable inequality of a nature that blesses some with sight and leaves others to live in everlasting night.

BLESSED IS THE WOMAN

By HEDDAHOYT L

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept 1 1(United Press) —Blessed is the woman who possesses the sixth sense—clothes sense—for she shall receive the admiration of all men. Be she of middle age, she shooseth not the garb of the flapper, and be she flapper, she avoideth the garment of age. How few daughters of Eve ares blessed with the wisdom of correct dressing.

It is not only essential to know exactly what to wear, but to know exactly when to wear it is imperative. Many women wear clothes that are becoming to them and that look as though they were made just for them, but, even so, they often make the mistake of being over-dressed for certain occasions. It is far better to be under-dressed than over-dressed.

I have in mind a stunning woman whose age is on the kind side of forty. She is rather mature in build and realizes that flapper styles are not for her. She is always grownd in soft luxurious fabrics, with lines that are loose enough to conceal the outlines of her well-bloomed figure. Her colors are always subdued; soft grays, browns and blues that are kind to her carefully tinted complexion.

But—in her effort to attain a soft, feminine appeal in her clothes, she is very often over-dressed. She appears at morning in fussy clothes that are fit only for tea-time, while for afternoon occasions she is usually dressed in gowns that would be appropriate only for the dinner hour. She is always lovely and appealing, but not always in good taste.

Danger of Over-dressing

We all know that youth can wear one type of clothes and maturity another; also that morning calls for clothes of one sort and afternoon and evening for others. Many women make the mistake of overdressing for morning. I have seen intelligent women who were dressed in simple morning garments deviate from the rules of convention by wearing outlandishly long earrings or some other frivolous accessory that is not in keeping with morning attire.

Morning clothes should always be subdued in cut and color. Jewels of elaborate type are decidedly in bad taste. Low cut, sleeveless dresses, even though worn under a cape or jacquette, are not suitable for morning wear. To my mind, the simple sports suit of mixed tweed or jersey is ideal for business or morning usage.

Afternoon calls for more care of details even than morning. Sleeveless gowns are popular at present, are really very much over-done in America. The correctly gowned woman always wears sleeves of some sort on the street, if she is without a wrap. During the warm weather the elbow or just-above-the-elbow length sleeve is far preferable to the extremely short sleeve Gloves are no longer a necessity, but some arm covering is essential.

CANDID BUT KIND ADVICE TO WOMEN

The best exercise for fat women who want to reduce is scrubbing the kitchen floor, claims Mrs. Catherine H. Griebel, of N. J. State College of Agriculture.

Maybe so, but it's like telling the tired business man it would do him as much good to get a caddie job as to play golf.

Wood chopping is about as fine exercise as there is. But there's no danger of wood chopping becoming the national sport.

People, when they "exercise," want to get away from work.

After all, it's a good thing for us to try to get our physical exercise in the form of play. Exercise helps the muscles and internal organs, but play makes the nerves relax, which is just as important as developing the muscles.

There isn't much relaxation of tense nerves when we combine hard work with our exercise.

The average person who "needs exercise" usually is the victim of nerves rather than of physical inactivity. This can be proved by going to bed and staying a week, thereby getting rest and nerve relaxation that will do many of us as much good as a whole season of golf.

It's a mistake to start a campaign of strenuous exercise unless we're prepared to get more hours of sleep than we've been used to.

Sleep does us more good than all the pills, serums and other forms of "dope" ever devised.

The person who feels "all run down" should start his building-up campaign by getting plenty of sleep. Also by lying down several times during the day, for about 20 minutes at a time, to rest the overworked heart. Remember, when we're standing up the heart has to pump the blood stream the full height of the body. When lying down, gravity helps—the blood flows parallel with the ground, like water through horizontal pipes.

The second big need is fresh air and lots of it.

Exercise comes third. Combine it with play, to relax the nerves. There'll be plenty of time to scrub the floors and do other physical labor later.

Finally, the thing that is wrecking the nerves of the American people is needless rush—hurry at breakneck speed and without any special destination. We have to speed up at our work but it's time to slow down and "take things easy" when the bell rings and we quit our jobs until tomorrow.

RHINELAND PEOPLE SWAT MOSQUITOES.

America Blamed For Supplying Pests to Coblenz.

COBLENZ Sept. 11(Associated Press) —The United States is blamed for having supplied Coblenz and the area about the junction of the Rivers Rhine and Moselle with larger mosquitoes than are known in any part of the German Republic.

In the Franco-Prussian War of 50 years ago Fort Ehrenbreitstein was a concentration point for French prisoners and an important cavalry and artillery center.

Large numbers of horses and mules were kept there and, because of the shortage of forage in Germany to meet the needs of the animals great quantities of hay were imported from the United States. American mosquitoes were imported in his hay according to the old German army officers who were there at that time and throve in their new surroundings.

However the American brand of mosquito has not wandered far from his new home, and the pests along the Baltic Coast and throughout the nterior of Germany still are of a type so small that they can filter through the ordinary mosquito netting.

GERMAN HEALTH OFFICIAL COMES TO U. S. TO LEARN

NEW YORK, Sept. 11(United Press) —Dr. Gustav Seiffert of Munich, general secretary of the National Health Council of Bavaria, turned up in New York recently, without official heralding formalities but with something of dramatic urgency in his venture. He had taken a job as a ship's doctor on a German liner to America, and so managed to get in a few days' rapid-fire conferences with health experts and heads of public health organizations in New York City, while the boat lay over for the return trip.

Dr. Seiffert was particularly eager to get in touch with workers for child health, and to take counsel as to health educational measures which would put to most effective use the extremely limited funds available for his department in the Bavarian government.

Dr. Seiffert intends to translate the suggestions he received in his flying trip to America into such ways and means of restoring health standards for German children as the meager funds and personnel at his disposal will permit.

Machine Makes Money For Soviet Russia.

BY JOHN GRAUDENZ

MOSCOW, Sept. 11(United Press).—Of all the machinery occupied in printing the trillions and quadrillions of Soviet roubles since the revolution, American machinery stood the test best.

This certificate was given to William Recht, expert manager of the Fuchs Lang Manufacturing Company of New York, by M. Enokidze' managing director of the Russian state printing works at Moscow. Owing to the difficulty experienced about Russians going to America to purchase machinery, Enokidze sent a representative to place orders to the value of a quarter of a million dollars in Germany.

This order was halted at the last moment, after Recht had inspected the Russian shops where he was told that some American machines had been working between ten and twenty-five years, while others were out of order only because of the lack of certain small parts which the Soviet authorities were unable to replace.

Enokidze admitted that the perfect manner in which American currency was printed proved the superiority of American machinery and declared that he would like to send an engineer to America to inspect the various banknote establishments and buy machinery.

Twelve thousand men and women are employed at Moscow's three note factories, apart from the papermills. Among the American machines still running are the cutting printers, rollers and casting machines, job presses, etc. There is a school attached to each factory to teach boys and girls of 16 the art of printing banknotes, Soviet Roubles, railway-tickets, bonds, lottery-tickets, etc One of the Russian engineer's trip to America is to discuss measures for the prevention of counterfeiting.

Settlement of Difficulties With the United States Follows Revolution After Revolution — American Interests Guaranteed.

CONTINUAL WARRING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11(Associated Press).—Recognition of the government of President Obregon is regarded here as in line with the American policy, stated through successive administrations, of giving disinterested help to a friendly country so long as the rights of Americans are properly safeguarded. The announced aim of the Washington government has been directed consistently to such a course, although often with difficulty because of outrages upon the persons and properties of American nationals in Mexico, and of discouraging international complications incident to a condition of revolution and civil war running over more than a decade.

The questions arising under this policy have been among the most delicate with which the United States have had to deal, and have involved military patrols along the border, naval and military expeditions into Mexico, embargoes upon the exportation of munitions, and a succession of international conferences touching indirectly on the broad question of relations with Latin-America in general.

Recently the principal question at issue has had to do with the interpretation of Article 27 in the Mexican constitution of 1917, now satisfactorily adjusted through a definite understanding of its retroactive features reached in the recent Mexico City conversations.

This question was regarded as of primary importance by the administration of President Wilson, and later the Harding administration suggested to Mexico City a treaty of amity and commerce as a means to a definite understanding. The treaty plan, however, proved unsatisfactory to President Obregon, and in time the adjustment was reached through conversations, the American government making clear that it was interested in the substance rather than the form of the accommodation.

The story of the present cycle of American-Mexican relations has its real beginning in the outbreak in 1910 of the military revolution led by Francisco I. Madero against the long-established regime of President Porfirio Diaz. A policy of non-interference was adopted by President Taft, who soon mobilized units of the regular army on the border to guarantee neutrality and protect American interests. Thereafter extra troops were stationed there in greater or less force until 1919, by which time the general situation had eased considerably.

Because of sporadic revolutionary movements which arose almost immediately upon Madero's entrance into Mexico City and election to the presidency, a definition of American policy in the matter of recognition did not develop until the early part of President Wilson's first term. By this time Madero had resigned, been imprisoned and assassinated, and his chief military officer, General Huerta, who had gone over to the revolutionists, had assumed the presidency.

President Wilson demanded as a condition of recognition a real election under due constitutional authority, with the elimination of Huerta as a candidate. This was refused, and President Wilson announced his historic policy of "watchful waiting." Disagreement with this policy resulted in the recall of Henry Lane Wilson, who had been appointed ambassador to Mexico by President Taft, and President Wilson resorted to the use of personal agents in seeking solution of the difficulties, but these missions resulted in few tangible developments.

It was during the Huerta regime that American marines in 1914 were seized at Tampico by a Mexican army officer, and although released with an apology, a salute to the flag was demanded by Rear Admiral Mayo. It was refused, and President Wilson ordered the American naval forces to seize Vera Cruz in order to prevent the landing of a cargo of arms by the German steamer Ypiranga. The order had been carried out and war seemed imminent when the services of Argentina, Brazil and Chile were accepted as mediators. A conference was held at Niagara Falls, N. Y., but was without much practical effect because of the rapidly changing situation in Mexico.

Huerta's power was rapidly disintegrating as a result of the attitude of the United States and military victories of the constitutionalists in the north headed by General Carranza, then governor of Coahuila. Carranza had proclaimed himself in a state of revolt, and had been joined by several of Madero's former generals, including Francisco Villa, Obregon and Pablo Gonzales.

Huerta fled the country in July, 1914 and Carranza, entering Mexico City, assumed the executive power. Although faction differences at once developed, after varying fortunes Carranza was given de facto recognition by th United States in the fall of 1915, and de jure recognition after he had been elected president for four years under the constitution framed by a constituent assembly in 1917.

The refusal of Villa to support Carranza because of the latter's failure to hold an immediate constitutional election, resulted in a state of guerilla warfare in northern Mexico accompanied by serious consequences on the American side of the border. The raid on Columbus, N. M., by Villa was followed by a National Guard mobilization, and the dispatch into Mexico of the expedition headed by General Pershing in what proved to be a fruitless search for Villa.

The condition in the north was finally accentuated in the spring of 1920 by a revolt of governors headed by Adolphe de la Huerta in Sonora, who objected to a plan for the arrest of General Obregon after the latter had announced his candidacy for the presidency in opposition to Ignacio Bonillas, favored by Carranza as his successor. The movement developed such proportions that Carranza fled the capital and sought refuge in the mountains of Hidalgo, where he was slain by Indian soldiers.

De la Huerta was proclaimed provisional president and confirmed in office by Congress, which then convoked an election. As a result General Obregon was elected for a four year term and assumed office Dec. 1, 1920. He established a military command of the situation regarded here as satisfactory, and irritations for the United States greatly diminished.

Many nations recognized Huerta and several, including a number of Latin-America, have recognized Obregon. Others, however, notably Great Britain, preferred to await action by the United States.

VOICE AMPLIFIER MAKES PUBLIC SPEAKING EASY

CHICAGO, Sept. 11— (Associated Press).—Fewer cracked or strained voices as the result of strenuous political speaking campaigns in the 1924 elections, and which at the same time may reach a much wider constituency, is seen in the applications of the loud-speaking device used so successfully by the late President Harding on his tour to Alaska.

Candidates will be enabled to address millions of citizens without vocal strain or discomfort, it is indicated, as the instrument can be installed in any location, while atmospherical conditions cannot affect its operation.

President Harding was able, without straining his voice, to make himself heard to thousands surrounding the observation end of his car. Speakers of experience have stated that ordinarily only a few hundred can hear an open-air address by the average speaker and then they must be close.

The speech amplifying system is composed of three portable transmitters mounted on the railing of the car's observation platform; a control room in which is located the operating rack with its amplifiers and accessory apparatus; five projectors mounted in a semi-circle on a specially built extension to the observation hood, and the signal system. The sound waves of the speaker's voice are absorbed by the transmitters and conveyed by wires to the control room where they are amplified and then delivered to the projectors on the roof, which serve as megaphones in delivering the words.

The signal system is arranged so as to enable the audience observer and the platform and control operators to converse by signals. If the observer in the crowd thinks additional volume is needed, he signals the platform men, who makes the desired changes.

WAR AVIATORS MEET IN PEACEFUL CONTESTS

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, Sept. 11 —(Associated Press).—The first international aviation meet in Europe since the war is now open in this city, bringing together in peaceful competition fliers and exhibitors from countries that five years ago were at war. Thus Germany is represented as well as France, England and the United States. The neutral countries participating are Holland, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, Belgium, Italy and Czecko-Slovakia. Even such far away states as Colombia and Siam are taking part. Great Britain's interest is shown by the personal visits of General Branckner, Director of Civil Aviation who flew from England to Sweden, and Sir Samuel Hoare, the British Air Minister.

Airplanes of every known make are entered in the programme of contests between military, commercial, and exhibition fliers. Also there are a great number of balloons, gliders, hydro gliders, etc., and an exhibition of at least 30 different types of airplane motors.

An unusually interesting section of the exposition is that which illustrates the history of aviation. The development of heavier-than-air machines, from the earliest crude types to the most up-to-date military and commercial machines, is shown.

Sweden has entered 22 different machines, including a type specially constructed for the Swedish Red Cross to be used in carrying invalids or wounded persons.

SCIENTIFIC METHODS BY BANKS AGAINST CROOKS

CHICAGO, Sept. 11 — (Associated Press).—The bank robber of today is a post graduate of the university of crookdom and his methods of cracking safes are improving just as other inventions or theories are being improved upon in the evolution of things.

This fact, according to the Illinois Bankers' Association, has led to protective measures by banks that are based on the very latest and most scientific lines. The bankers, according to the association, have long since ceased to believe that any safe is impregnable to the fingers, acetylene torches or "soup" of the modern bank robber.

Accordingly the bankers now are concerned with building safes that will give the robber the most trouble to open. When new vaults are constructed, they are built from the standpoint of how long it would take an expert safe cracker to enter them, rather than from a view point of being absolutely impregnable.

What the bankers call "tin door safes" are safes with doors of one-half inch steel. Statistics show that these can be opened with an acetylene torch in 30 minutes. Therefore the association wants round or screw doors 3½ inches in thickness.

In addition to keeping in touch with the construction of safes, the association has divided the state into ten districts, with an inspection department operating in each district. At regular intervals each bank is inspected with a view to improving its protective features.

Many women in England are now breeding horses, cattle and other animals for profit.

RUSSIAN DIAMONDS ARE HELD IN LOW ESTEEM

BERLIN, Sept. 11 (Associated Press) —Bolshevist Russia has few supporters among the established diamond dealers of the world. The flood of cheap and defective stones which Soviet officials have thrown upon the market has interfered with the trade of old established houses.

Krestinski, the Bolshevist ambassador in Berlin, is reported to be one of the chief diamond dealers in Europe. There are fabulous tales in circulation as to the great quantity of confiscated stones which he keeps locked up in the strong boxes of the Russian embassy here.

At Genoa, The Hague and Lausanne it was currently reported that the Bolshevist delegates financed their expenses through the sale of confiscated jewels.

"Russian diamonds" has become a contemptuous expression in Germany to define inferior stones. This is because so many of the jewels which have found their way into the hands of German dealers from Russian sources are yellow, imperfect and badly cut. Size and not quality was sought by Russians who bought jewels in the old days, and they had the great yellow diamonds mounted in fantastic settings with other stones.

Consequently many of the Russian jewels had to be recut and remounted before they were saleable in western Europe. They were too oriental and gorgeous for the quieter tastes of westerners.

Buyers who paid fancy prices for Russian diamonds when they first began pouring into western Europe have learned a bitter lesson. Stones which sold for $300 a carat several years ago are now begging $100 a carat. The market for yellow and inferior diamonds has been glutted.

HISTORICAL DATA ON THE ANTARCTIC AREA

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 11 (Associated Press).—What is claimed to be the longest and most extensive natural history expedition ever undertaken will be started in September under the direction of George Finlay Simmons, Texas naturalist. The expedition, which is sponsored by the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, will cover approximately 25,000 miles and will be in progress for two years.

The expedition will leave New London, Conn., early in September on a specially equipped schooner, commanded by George Comber, who commanded the McMillan Relief Expedition in 1917. The party will visit many volcanic islands and wild regions in the Antarctic and Indian oceans.

After leaving New London, the first landing of the expedition will be St. Paul rocks off the coast of Brazil. From there the course will lead directly south into the land of the Antarctic. Investigations will be made and specimens of bird and other life collected on the South Georgia Island, Sandwich and Latter Islands. The last group is covered with ice and snow throughout the year and frequently visited by volcanic eruptions, it is stated.

After visiting several groups of islands in the Antarctic region, the party will move to Cape Town, Africa. The winter season will be spent in Africa. Expeditions will be made into the mainland along the west African coast and visits to St. Helena and Ascension Islands in the middle Atlantic.

On approach of the Arctic summer, the naturalists will go into the southern part of the Indian ocean. Life on the Crozet, Desolation and Kerguelen Islands will be studied. An effort will be made to get specimens of the giant sea elephant of the Antarctic region.

The expedition party will include more than fifteen recognized naturalists. Director Simmons recently was named as curator of birds and mammals of the Cleveland Museum. He has attained distinction through investigations of bird life on gulf islands off the Texas coast. Formerly he was instructor in the University of Texas here.

Specimens obtained on the expedition will be brought to the Cleveland Museum and to the American Museum of Natural History in New York, which is cooperating in the excursion, according to Mr. Simmons.

MEXICAN RAILS START PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN

By FREDERICK G. NEUMEIER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

MEXICO CITY, Mexico (By mail to United Press).—The industrial department of the National Railway lines of Mexico is beginning a big advertising and publicity campaign in the United and lecturers will tour the United States and Canada, exhibits will be established and advertising matter sent to all parts of both countries.

This is the first step since the revolution taken by the industrial department of the railways to advance industry in Mexico.

In view of the fact that recognition of Mexico by the United States seems in the offing, the National Railway Lines of Mexico is expecting a big influx of commercial representatives and tourists to this country and an impetus in freight as well as passenger business.

J. B. Rowland, well known in the middle west and western parts of the United States, is the chief of the industrial department. He is preparing a plan of advertising and propaganda which will extend through the entire United States and Canada.

He is at present terminating arrangements in Kansas City and San Antonio for colonization in Mexico. Offices of this colonization organization will be established in the leading centers of the United States and Europe.

Particularly choice lands owned by the government of Mexico will be turned over to this company, which will work in close harmony with the industrial department of the railroad.

LONDON'S OLDEST HOSPITAL

LONDON, Sept. 11.—"Right unclean it was; and as a marsh dungy and fenny, with water at most times abounding; whilst the only dry portion was occupied by the gallows for the execution of criminals." Thus did a monk, whose description has been treasured through the centuries, describe the site on which St. Bartholomew's Hospital was erected, and on which it stands today. This is recalled by the anniversary of its foundation.

St. Bartholomew's, or "Bart's," as it is now generally called, is the oldest charitable institution in London that retains its original site. Nowhere in the world, it is said, can any like important institution be found that has so faithfully interpreted and carried out the divine objects of help to the sick and suffering poor to which it was consecrated.

Nearly 400 years were to come, when St. Bartholomew's first opened its doors to ailing humanity, before America commenced to figure in the history of nations. London was surrounded by great walls and the city gates were closed nightly. The long line of lord mayors of London had not been remotely dreamed of. Magna Charta and Parliament were things of the future. The Wars of the Roses were far ahead, and more than 500 years had got to elapse before the Great Plague, followed in the succeeding year by the Great Fire, were to strain the accommodation of the hospital.

Curiously enough, the existence of the hospital covers virtually the entire period of English history with which the average Englishman is acquainted. He starts with William the Conqueror, whose hordes halted outside the walls of London wherein the defeated chieftains of the Battle of Hastings had taken refuge, and William had barely been dead 36 years when the hospital was built.

Story of Hospital

The legendary story of the foundation of the Hospital is that its construction was the direct order of St. Bartholomew, the Apostle, as imparted in a vision to the founder. It is recounted by a monk who assisted in the work, and has been printed in the "Monasticon," the authoritative book on monasteries.

The founder is one named Rahere, who lived in the reign of Henry I. and his early life is not all to his credit. He is described as low born. As a youth he haunted the households of noblemen, the palaces of princes; where, "under every elbow of them he spread their cushions, with japes and flatterings delectable annointing their eyes, by this manner to draw to him their friendship.

How, or when he was rewarded, or whether he paid himself for these flattering attentions to the noblemen of the day, is not clear.

Conclusion is left to be drawn from the intimation that he presently woke up to the fact that he was a sinner and embarked on a pilgrimage to Rome to seek remission of his sins. While in Rome he became ill of a fever, and then it is written the vision appeared unto him and declared its instructions.

"I am Bartholomew, the Apostle of Jesus Christ," said the visitant, "that came to assuage thine anguish, and to open to thee the sweet mysteries of Heaven. Know me truly by the will and the commandment of the Holy Trinity, and the common favor of the celestial court and council, to have chosen a place in the suburbs of London, at Smithfield, where in my name thou shalt form a church."

Rahere got well right away and is portrayed as returning to London, reinvigorated and inspired. The choice of the site of St. Bartholomew's was, according to the monkish historian, a matter of special arrangement by Heaven.

Edward the Confessor, it is declared, had previously had the very spot pointed out to him when he was asleep, while prophesies were made by men from Greece relating to the temple that was to be erected there.

The King granted the site to Rahere, who adopted singular methods. He aped the loon, and pretended the cheer of an idiot. Thus he drew to him the fellowship of children and servants, and with their use and help, stones and other things profitable to the building, lightly he gathered together.

His mental peculiarities were regarded as proof of his enjoying special Divine care.

A second class he influenced by his passionate eloquence in the churches, of which is recorded, "he addressed audiences with the most remarkable effects, now stirring them to a gladness until all the people applauded him, now moving them to sorrow by his searching and kindly exposure of their sins, so that naught but singing and weeping was heard on all sides."

A third way of obtaining help was by direct and personal solicitations at the houses of the inhabitants, in which he was assisted by Alfun, the actual builder of the hospital.}—

Rahere was the first prior, and he lived for 20 years to carry on the work he had established.

Part of Original

Of this very building, or rather series of buildings, which in reality were the work of Rahere, there still remains in a good state of preservation an important portion, the choir of the conventual church St. Bartholomew's, used as the present parish church. There can be no doubt that there exist the original walls, pillars, and arches of the twelfth century. The choir therefore forms one of the most interesting and valuable pieces of antique ecclesiastical architecture in England.

Whittington, a famous lord mayor, figures in the history of the hospital in 1423, when he bequeathed a large sum of money for its repair, and at the dissolution in 1546, when the priory was demolished, the hospital was spared by Henry VIII, who is often referred to as its second founder, but 200 years previously Edward served the hospital well through the medium of his proclamation on the historic Bartholomew's Fair.

Extracts from Edward's proclamation were read at the opening of the fair which formed one of the main features of the anniversary celebrations, and the historic pageant which followed brought out the main episodes in the history of the institution. Henry the VIII (bluff King Hal) was portrayed in the role of presenting the lord mayor of London with a charter restoring to the commonality and the City of London the hospital and its lands which had been alienated seven years previously.

The ceremony extended over three days, the Prince of Wales and the civic heads of London taking part.

Steam is coming into general use on the large farms of the country.

NEW INVENTION TO CONQUER GRAVITY

A Condensing Dynamo is the Medium of Astonishing Experiments.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Some years ago a young army officer was wont to stand on the edge of a great desert out west. He was watching the skies intently, for up there to him was one of nature's most mysterious mysteries soaring about.

An eagle or a buzzard would mount high and then in a series of graceful loops would rise and fall, and rise and fall—without any apparent effort.

"Apparently," though, this young officer, "nature has endowed you with some kind of a generator of Hertzian or wireless energy. It is possible that the feather points around the edgesc of your wings, polarize a horizontal plane of influence and in that way you laugh at gravity."

And then for years Edward S. Farrow, graduate of West Point, now retired, worked to invent a mechanical device that would overcome gravity, just like the eagle or the buzzard.

And he thinks he has done so!

He calls it a "condensing dynamo" and has made it the medium of some astonishing experiments.

For instance, the inventor placed a book on an ordinary pair of scales. On top of the book he placed his condensing dynamo. They tipped the scales at 18 ounces. To the dynamo he applied power. As the current set the wheels in the dynamo whirring, the indicator slowly receded until it stood at 15 ounces.

Apparently, three ounces in weight were lost. A law of nature to all appearances had been upset.

The idea behind the invention, which government experts are giving a thorough test, is based on the intensification of Hertzian, or wireless waves. These waves are transformed into electro-magnetic forces By doing that, then, a "parallel" force is created which attempts to nullify the "vertical" force of natural gravitation.

What would it mean to the world if Farrow's device should prove successful in a big way?

Aviation problems would vanish, for one thing. Placed on a plane, the air would be as safe as the ground.

And then consider the moving of heavy objects, like safes, etc. Put a condensing dynamo on it and handle it like an empty barrel. Just like that.

One might even allow his imagination to stretch and find solace in the thought that individual apparatus, capable of being carried by a person, would allow a human being to soar around through the air at will, like Frank L. Baum's hero in "The Magic Key."

Oh, anything is possible—if the new invention does what it is believed capable of doing—overcoming the greatest, the most baffling force of nature, gravity.

QUESTION WHEN ITALY WILL EVACUATE CORFU

PARIS, September 11. Canadian Press. — The British government is more interested in the question of when the occupation of Corfu will end than in any other aspects of the Greco-Italian controversy, it was remarked by Lord Crewe, the British Ambassador, in the Amabassadors' Council yesterday

Baron Avezzano, the Italian Ambassador, said in substance, that Italy could not leave the Island until Greece had fulfilled her promises.

STAGE OR MARRIAGE CLAIMS BEAUTIES

Not All Contest Winners Follow Glamour of Footlights or Hollywood's Movie Trail.

LEFT TO RIGHT: EVELYN ATKINSON, "MISS SEATTLE"; GEORGIA HALE, "MISS CHICAGO"; BONNIE MURRAY, 'MISS IOWA'

CLEVELAND, Sept.11.—This is all about what Venus did with her golden apple.

The annual distribution of apples, you will recall, occurred late last year, when beauty queens of every locality and division were crowned.

Now, as the time nears for another beauty contest on a wholesale scale at Atlantic City, it is well to look back and see what former winners have been doing.

What may a beauty contest winner hope for? What difference will winning make in her life, beyond the thrill of the moment?

The moving pictures will mean more than they ever did before. She may refuse offered contracts. She may even turn her back to the entire idea of theatrical work, and get married. But the experience of the beauties of yesteryear tells with certainty that Hollywood will shout a smiling "Come on!"

One of those who answered the call of the films is "Miss Chicago"—Miss Georgia Hale. She is making good.

"Doing Fine."

Before the contest she lived at home, a normal, happy uneventful period. She had finished high school and was taking music lessons. But once crowned, thoughts turned toward New York. Minor parts at studios followed for a winter. Then a rest. And now she is with the Fox Film Company in California. And a proud father will tell you that "she's infatuated with it and doing fine."

With Bonnie Murray, the queen of Iowa, it has been different. Last summer she had graduated from high school, attended college in her home town of Sioxu City and had taught school a year. They picked her as the most beautiful in all the state.

That ended the simple life.

At first there was a tour through the state to make personal appearances at theaters. Then she went to Chicago to study music, and discovered she had a real voice. It has been hard work since.

"I have had opportunities to go into the movies and in the chorus," she says, "but my aim is to develop ability so I can do bigger things. I want to try the stage for a while—but eventually I want a home."

Likes Home.

Miss Evelyn Atkinson, who was "Miss Seattle," did not think much of a stage career. Last December she married Leroy DeHan at Vancouver, B.C. For several months at Vancouver she did try the stage, playing in a stock company, but now she says she wouldn't trade the happiness of a home for all the curtain calls in the world.

Being pronounced San Francisco's prettiest maiden brought a husband and a movie career to Miss Tannie Zara, who represented the Pacific Coast at the pageant. Shorty after her return from the east, Miss Zara became Mrs. Wilcox Nelson and shorty thereafter accepted one of several offers to appear on the silver screen. Los Angeles now claims her.

And finally, what became of "Miss America?" Mary Katherine Campbell, who went to the Atlantic City pageant as "Miss Columbus," came home declared the country's prettiest.

At the present time she is preparing to defend her title at the eastern summer resort again, on Sept. 5, 6 and 7. She has been doing nothing since her vaudeville career last fall was cut short by her mother's illness.

Married or engaged?

No—neither!

DOROTHY CARMICHAEL IS DIZZY WITH RICHES

PONCA CITY, Okla., Sept. 11.—Sixteen-year-old Dorothy Carmichael has suddenly become so rich she's still dizzy from the change.

Money—dollars—millions—heaps of good things—nothing to do but gather 'em in—and little Dorothy alone to enjoy them

Alone, without a mother—she had left home when Dorothy was a baby in the Philippines. Without a father—he died in a Manila hospital when she was three. With only her aunt, Mrs Sarah Pettit, to care for her and direct her, Dorothy came into her strange wonderland of wealth.

Were it not for Michael Koeghan, a buddy of her father's in the Philippines, Dorothy might still be there, a poverty-stricken orphan. But Koeghan brought the girl to the United States, sought her father's relatives and finally settled her on the little family homestead at Tonwaka, near here.

That homestead now is valued at $30,000,000. Oil, that's the reason.

Half of it is Dorothy's. The other half has been willed to Mrs. Pettit, her aunt and governess, living there when the land was still considered good only for mediocre farming.

Now, Dorothy, wrested from the claws of poverty, is living with her aunt in a pretty little cottage in town, learning her lessons as every other school girl does, and enjoying life as though she always had been used to the luxuries of millions.

Her royalties—estimated at something like $1000 a day—still reel her head when she thinks of the enormous income.

But she tries to forget her riches, turning her mind to music and play and the good things her poor parents could not provide for her.

MURDER IN BULGARIA BROUGHT SHORT SKIRTS

SOFIA (By mail to United Press).—"Stambouliski's dead, now let's get some real shoes" was what Bulgarian society women said in effect when the peasant premier met an untimely death.

The connection between a peasant statesman and high heels may not be apparent, but Bulgarian women had long groaned under Stambouliski's dress regulations. The sturdy old peasant could see no excuse for high heels, and, among other things, he ordained that women must wear shoes with flat heels. Dresses were also ordered to be worn long, and the police were authorized to check dress lengths by actual measurement if necessary.

The women raged, solo and chorus, but Stambouliski's orders had to be obeyed. Immediately on the news of his overthrow and death, fashionable Sofia rushed the stores and indulged in an orgy of Louis Quinze heels, short skirts and similar frivolities. So great was the demand that Sofia storekeepers were unable to meet it.

The new revolutionary government has not yet ventured to interfere with the height of heels or length of dresses.

SMART CLOTHES FOR WEEK-END

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 11.—(United Press).—"What clothes will I need for a week-end holiday?" a young "noveau riche" asked me the other day.

An surely this indeed a question that should not be lightly answered. Week-ends are becoming quite as popular in America as they are in England and the clothes question is one that requires careful consideration.

In the first place, there is luggage to consider. One hestitates to carry too many cases and grips lest the hostess imagine one has come prepared for a long stay. Again, too many clothes give an impression that one has nothing left in the home wardrobe. A large suitcase, a small hat box and a small overnight case fitted with paraphernalia for the dresser should be adequate for the week-end's needs. Owing to the crushable sports hats one can dispense with the hat box.

We'll presume that the week-end is to be spent at a country home of not too ostentatious surroundings. One sets out on the journey dressed in a smart little sports suit of tweed, jersey or the like and this settles the dress question until tea-time, when one changes to a little frock of crepe de chine or a frock suitable for tea served out on the lawn or on the porches. The type of tea-gown is far simpler than those worn at the smart places in the city.

From this one changes to the dinner gown and one should again be careful not to overdress. Gowns of the semi-evening type with a semblance of sleeve are always sure to be in good taste. One may wear a tiny cap sleeve or a chiffon drape of some sort, but the gown that is entirely sleeveless and over-decked in beads is conspiciously absent at the dinner hour. Unless there are other evening guests arriving for a dance or birdge, this dress will carry one on through the evening. In advent of an evening's party, one changes to the formal evening gown.

For Morning Wear.

For morning wear one consults the weather. A sultry morning necessitates a little frock of cotton crepe, India linen or cretonne, made on simple lines and worn with sports shoes. In this one is ready for a game of tennis or a stroll through the neighboring woods. On chilly mornings the pleated skirt and sweater is preferable. One seldom changes for luncheon.

A new guest is often judged by her luggage. Well packed cases relieve one of embarrassment, since a housemaid usually assists one with the unpacking. Dresser equipment should be placed neatly on the dresser and clothes immediately unpacked and hung in the closet, which is provided with hangers for them. Persons who leave articles of apparel strewn recklessly about the room are seldom welcomed a second time.

FRESH PEARS

Pears are an excellent tonic fruit. They are quite acid, even in their seeming sweetness, and do much toward toning up a tired summer appetite.

Used fresh in desserts or salads or as a breakfast fruit, pears make a welcome change.

Plain baked pears are delicious for breakfast if bacon and eggs are served with toasted bran muffins and coffee.

Baked Pears.

Wash pears and cut in halves. Remove core and arrange in a deep, well-buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with sugar and a few gratings of nutmeg, dot with butter and pour a little water into the dish to prevent burning. Cover and bake two hours in a slow oven.

Try jellied pears for luncheon or dinner.

Jellied Pears.

Four large pears, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups water, 1 lemon, 6 whole cloves, 1-inch piece stick cinnamon, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, ¼ cup cold water.

Pare pears and cut in halves. Remove core. Put water, sugar, cloves and cinnamon in preserving kettle. Add pears and cook until pears are tender. If water boils away add boiling water to make 2 cups. Remove cloves and cinnamon. Put pears in a mold. Soften gelatin in cold water, add water pears were cooked in and stir until gelatin is dissolved. When cool add lemon juice and pour over pears. Set on ice to chill and become firm.

Pears in Chocolate.

Four large sweet pears, 2 squares bitter chocolate, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1½ cups milk, 2 teaspoons cornstarch, 2 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons powdered sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-8 teaspoon salt.

Pare pears and cut in quarters. Remove cores. Roll in fine cracker dust and cook in a frying pan in butter until a delicate brown on all sides. Arrange in a pudding dish and pour over the sauce. Melt chocolate in double boiler. Add sugar and salt and milk and cook, stirring constantly until thoroughly mixed and smooth. Dissolve cornstarch in cold milk and stir into chocolate mixture. Cook, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add 2 tablespoons butter to butter in which pears were cooked and add powdered sugar. Stir over a hot fire until sugar is melted and the whole is pale brown. Add to chocolate mixture. Stir until well blended and add vanilla. Pour over pears and chill.

Pears and Rice.

Six or eight small pears, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup water, ½ cup rice, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ lemon, 8 preserved cherries, 2 tablespoons cherry sirup, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Pare pears, cut in quarters and core. Cook in sugar and water until tender. Add cherries and sirup and remove from the fire. Keep hot until needed. Wash rice. Put it in a smooth sauce pan with milk, butter, salt and ½ cup sugar. Cook until tender. Then add the yolks of the eggs and cook a few minutes longer. Add grated rink and juice of lemon. Spread rice on a large deep pie dish and make a depression in the centre. Fill with pears and sirup. Cover the whole with the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and dry with 4 tablespoons of sugar. Put in a hot oven for eight minutes to set and brown the meringue. Serve warm. This is a hearty dessert, suitable for luncheon.

Pears are often cooked in a rich sirup, arranged on squares of sponge cake in a baking dish and baked with a custard poured over the whole.

HER BABY SUFFERED WITH SUMMER COMPLAINT

A fact mothers must face is that summer complaint with the prostration, often verging on collapse, which sometimes accompanies this disease, makes it one of the most serious and dangerous to contend with during the hot months.

Thousands of infants die annually whose lives could have no doubt been saved by the timely use of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and it has been the experience of thousands of mothers during the past 78 years this valuable preparation has been on the market, that it is the safest and most effective remedy for use in all cases of looseness of the bowels.

Mrs. S. Lafontaine, Great Desert, Ont., writes:—"My baby, when a year old, was suffering with summer complaint. Two doctors attended him, but nothing would stop the vomiting and diarrhoea. A friend told me to try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and after the second dose the baby was better and I can say it saved my baby's life.

I wouldn't be without a bottle of 'Dr. Fowler's' in the house for untold gold.' '

COURT REJECTS WILLS SUIT LEAVINC STAGE CLEAR FOR BIG FIGHT

Critics Believe Dempsey Will Win Quickly But Firpo's Stock Has Risen

ODDS SHORTENED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. — With the removal today of all legal obstacles that have beset path of Dempsey-Firpo heavyweight title match, work was rushed ahead on additions to Polo Grounds arena advance ticket sales boomed and the champion and his challenger put redoubled energy into the finishing stages of their training campaigns for the battle next Friday night.

The threatened legal entanglements were brushed aside in Supreme Court when Justice Hagarty denied the application of Harry Wills, negro challenger for a temporary injunction against the championship struggle. Wills charged that he had been unjustly discriminated against by the State Athletic Commission and that his challenge to Dempsey more than a year ago had been ignored but the court ruled that he had put forward no basis for interference with the forthcoming bout.

The proximity of the title struggle to-day found an overwhelming majority of critics of the opinion that Dempsey would quickly end Firpo's title aspirations and win by a knockout. But in spite of the concensus in favor of the title holder experts have shown a growing tendency to recognize the danger in the South American's remarkable strength, his stamina and the devastating power behind his right hand punch.

Dempsey's superior speed and general ship and his acknowledged hitting power were the factors regarded as likely to turn the scales in the American's favor.

The tendency to accord Firpo more than a mere fighting chance, however, was reflected in the gradual shortening of betting odds. One large wager was reported to-day at 2 1-2 to one on Dempsey, as compared with a number recorded several weeks ago at as high as four to one on the champion.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—John Watson, pitcher of the New York Giants, has been fined $500 and suspended for the remainder of the season by Manager McGraw for violation of training rules, according to word received from Boston, where the champions arrived today to begin a series with the Braves.

McGraw's drastic punishment, according to the advices, was meted out when the pitcher reported in unfit condition for the trip to Boston.

FIRST DAY'S PLAY IN TENNIS TOURNEY

Seven Countries Represented in Contest For U.S. Championship.

PHILADELPHIA, September 11 (Canadian Press). — A single upset market the first day's play in the forty-second annual tournament for the lawn tennis championship of the United States in singles, which began yesterday afternoon on the courts of the Germantown Cricket Club.

Robert Kinrey, of San Francisco, provided a startling reversal of form when he completely outplayed and defeated in straight sets Wallace F. Johnson, of Philadelphia.

Johnson, a finalist two years ago, in the National championship against Tilden, fell before a masterly exponent of the chop-stroke.

The largest first day crowd in the history of national championships saw the field of sixty-four selected players, representative of seven countries, melt away, through the elimination play of the first round or by default to a field of thirty-two players, who will begin the second round to-day.

Rene Lacoste, the 17-year-old star, defeated C. J. Griffin, of California, in straight sets.

The Alonso brothers, of Spain, Manuel and Jose, won their way in the tourney in straight sets. J. O. Anderson and John B. Hawkes, of the Australian team, defaulted.

Ian D. McInnis, Australia, came through with a surprising three set victory over Willis E. Davis, of San Francisco.

B. I. C. Norton, of South Africa, came through with the utmost difficulty. Leon de Turrenne, of Seattle, forced him to twenty-two games before accepting defeat in the first set.

F. R. Leighton Crawford, England's sole entrant, won a straight set match to Gerald B. Emerson, of Orange, N.J.

George King, of New York, eliminated Willard F. Crocker, of Montreal, champion of Canada.

The four members of America's victorious Davis Cup team turned in victories.

William T. Tilden, II., champion of the United States, defeated Watson M. Washburn, of New York.

William M. Johnston, of San Francisco, R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, and Vincent Richards, of Yonkers, N.Y., came through in straight sets.

MARMORA REVIEWS LACROSSE SPIRIT

Young Teams Were Well Coached and Learned the Game Quickly.

MARMORA, Sept. 11.—Nineteen twenty-three will always be remembered as a banner year of lacrosse in Marmora. The reason of this is very clear. Last year our team never won a single game. This year they rose to the semi-final game for the junior championship of Ontario, but lost to St. Simon's team of Toronto.

Much credit for this must be given to Mr. Donnelly of Deloro. Being an old time professional player from Montreal, he was capable of giving the team proper coaching. He broke them off the bad habit of just throwing the ball around when practicing and every practice was made as snappy as a scheduled game. After all practices which were held on the agricultural grounds he made the players run around the race track several time. Thus it is seen that the person to get the credit was certainly Mr. Donnelly. Marmora had the material, and he fashioned it into a lacrosse team.

The result of it all is that the citizens of Marmora are renewing interest in lacrosse that they lost several years ago when the national game suffered so great a decline in popularity.

With the help of Mr. Donnelly we hope to have a still better team next year and in this way continue the work of putting Marmora on the lacrosse map.

Mr. Donnelly, however, could not have had such good results without the co-operation of the players. Albert Wells, McGines, McWilliams and O'Neil deserve special credit. Being all young yet they ought to be just starting a great career in lacrosse.

Soft Ball Games Ending.

The soft ball season at Crowe Lake is drawing to a close. Soft ball was very popular at the lake this summer and great interest was taken in it, not only by the young people but by the older people as well. There were two teams, one composed of boarders at the "Tipperary House" and the other of people from the camp ground. The names of the teams were amusing, the former being called the "beanery" team and the latter, "the hashery" team. Every evening there was a large number out to witness the games.

The wild duck season is well under way. Early risers these mornings say that if each shot they hear kills a duck there will soon be none left.

FINN BREAKS RECORD.

HELSINGFORS, Sepember 10. — Stenroe, Finnish runner, to-day covered 20 kilometres in an hour, 7 minutes, 11 1-5 seconds, which is a new world's record. The former record was held by T. Kolchntainen, also of Finald, and was 1 hour, 7 mins, 40 1-5 seconds.

SPORT EVENTS SOUTH AMERICA

By MILES W. VAUGHN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(United Press).—Whether Luis Angel Firpo, South America's first heavyweight contender, ever wears the championship crown or not, he will at least have the satisfaction of knowing his efforts have brought him more publicity than any other "hope," whether physical, mental or otherwise, who ever crossed the equator northward in search of new fields to conquer.

In his own home town—Buenos Aires—he is an idol—in fact, in the whole southern continent. Firpo gets more newspaper space, has his face exhibited oftener to an admiring public, and has more cigarettes and patent medicines named after him than any mayor or president in all the growing cities and republics south of the line.

Firpo is on the tongues of everybody, everywhere, from the sheep ranches of Chubut to the rubber groves on Amazonas and the copper mines of Chile to the coffee plantations of Sao Paulo.

Ask a Brazilian school boy who San Martin was and he may not know, but ask him who Firpo is and he'll tell you all about "the next champion of the world."

The South American press probably has spent more money in cable tolls on Firpo than it did on the Paris Peace Conference, the death of the late Pope and the German reparations problem combined.

Pictures of Firpo, interviews with everybody who ever saw Firpo, reports of Firpo's training, opinions on Firpo and rumors of the battler's engagement to this or that movie queen or decendant of royalty fill the pages of every newspaper on the continent, and when Firpo has a big match, ringside wires flash the news to every town, where bombs announce the latest victory of the "Wild Bull of the Pampas."

Any place five South Americans get together, on the coastwise steamers from Porto Alegre to Montevideo, the Trans-Andean Railway, or the big liners from Rio or Valparaiso to New York, the talk soon swerves to Firpo.

A newspaper in Valparaiso has erected a huge cylindrical bulletin board on the tower of its building which flashes Firpo victories in electric letters three feet high, moving in a continuous line around the cylinder so it can be read from all directions of the compass every time the Argentine fights.

(By Miles W. Vaughn.)

NEW YORK, Sept.11.— (United Press.)—Tex Rickard's proposal for a fight between dusky Harry Wills and Luis Angel Firpo in Buenos Aires has brought to light an amazing ignorance in American sports circles of the whole sports situation in South America.

Ever since Rickard announced the Argentine battler had signed for a match with Wills in the South American metropolis, dopesters have been busy giving reasons why Wills should be canny in agreeing to the fight.

The experts on fight financing, admittedly a "big business," have figured out the match couldn't possibly pay—that it never would draw a satisfactory crowd; that South America doesn't care anything about boxing and that to attempt to charge anything like American prices in Buenos Aires would be to invite a riot.

And, as is often the case, the experts are all wrong.

The fight in Buenos Aires would pay, and Tex Rickard, who has spent a lot of time in Argentine, knew it very well when he started negotiations for the bout.

Buenos Aires and environs has more than 2,000,000 people, and every one of them is a fight fan, with Firpo as an idol. The per capita wealth of Argentine is just about as great as of the States, and anybody who has ever gone to the races or seen the big football matches in Buenos Aires knows that the Argentine or any other South American for that matter, is more than willing to spend his last peso to see any kind of a good sports event.

Argentine banished bull fighting years ago, and now boxing bids fair to replace horse racing as the best card to get big crowds.

An Argentine fight fan is pretty much like a fight fan everywhere else—he knows the sport, is willing to bet on his favorite, and won't let money stand in the way of keeping him from seeing a match.

Newspapers in Buenos Aires feature boxing over all other sports news, and spend thousands of dollars in cable tolls every week getting all the news on every match of importance in the world.

Any Buenos Aires office boy can tell you the record of every boxing champion, illustrate the punches with which he won his title, and dope out a logical yarn on who'll be his successor.

PIRATES MOVE UP TO SECOND

Blanked Reds and Piled It On With a Big Inning.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 11.—Donohue's wildness and poor support in the infield enabled Pittsburgh to score six runs on one hit in the fourth inning to-day and easily defeat Cincinnati 8 to 0. Errors by Fonesoa and Caveney were costly, and Donohue forced in two runs with passes after filling the bases. Meadows had his curve ball under good control and the Reds got only one man to third base. As a result of the victory the Pirates advanced to second place in the League race. Score:

Barnes after passing Conlon in the second. Jackson's triple which struck the left field wall on the fly in the ninth and Meusel's home run with Frisc on base in the same inning were terrific hits. # JONES OF YANKS IN GREAT FORM

Nearly Duplicated Recent No-Hit Game—Ruth Ties Williams.

NEW YORK, September 11 (Canadian Press). — The New York Yankees made it three straight from Boston, winning easily, 8 to 1. Sam Jones, who pitched a no-hit game against Philadelphia last week, nearly duplicated this feat yesterday. He did not yield a hit until Burns singled with one out in the seventh. Mitchell made the only other Boston hit, a triple in the ninth. Including a game on 31st August, with Washington, Janes went 16 2-3 innings without yielding a hit, which is believed to be a record.

Ruth again tied Williams for the season's home run honours, when he hit his thirty-fifth homer. Score:

FIRPO STANDS TO CLEAR $100,000 WIN OR LOSE

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(Associated Press)—Pugilistic annals record no more meteoric rise to fame than that of Luis Angel Firpo, swarthy Argentine, who has climbed in 18 months from obscurity to challenger for Jack Dempsey's title in a 15-round match at the Polo Grounds September 14.

A year and a half ago, Firpo—crude, awkward and a third-rater in the heavyweight scale—got $300 for his first bout in the United States. When he battles Dempsey he will reap a golden harvest of at least $100,000, win or lose.

In the last six months alone Firpo has added more than $150,000 to his bank account. He received $10,000 for knocking out Bill Brennan, $25,000 for disposing of Jack McAuliffe II, and approximately $80,000, his largest purse, for his victory over Jess Willard. In addition he has profited from exhibitions, motions, motion picture rights and other ventures.

MARATHON GOLF RESULTS IN SOME FREAK RECORDS

During the marathon golf craze, which followed in the wake of the marathon dance contests, some unusual records were made.

From Texas came the first report of an extraordinary feat of golf endurance, when N. J. Morris of San Antonio played 238 holes of golf in one day.

It seemed this record would stand for some time, but a few days later the wires carried the news that it had been smashed. Herbert Obendorf, a pro at Highpoint Coptry Club, North Carolina, after playing 13 hours, finished 243 holes.

Then came Rudolph Suppan of Cleveland who starting at four o'clock in the morning an playing until dusk, hung up a record of 257 holes. In making his record, Suppan played mine golf, having a 78 for one of his rounds, showing that he played careful golf.

These feats were too much for the originator of the marathon idea, Nick Morris of San Antonio, who decided to make another atttempt. He began play under a full moon at 12.40 a.m., and after 19 hours and 10 minutes called it a day. In that time he covered 290 holes. His average was 85 strokes to the round.

That vast territory known as Northern Ontario, reaching from the Eastern boundary of the Province of Manitoba to the Western limits of Quebec, is probably the finest hunting region in America. Almost in every district of this vast area game animals of some kind may be found. From Georgian Bay east to Algonquin Park, and from the Kawartha Lakes North is a veritable hunters' paradise for red deer, while farther north, including the territory north of Georgian Bay and Lake Superior, up to and along the line of the Canadian National Railways for hundreds of miles, moose are plentiful, and red deer are found in some sections. Caribou are found in the Lake Nipigon country and in the more northern districts between the line of the Canadian National and James Bay. Bear are plentiful in all this country.

Write for copy of "Where to Fish, Hunt and Paddle in the New North." Any agent of the Canadian National Railways will obtain full information for interested hunters.

SOCCER NOTES

The regular meeting of the P. and D.F.A. was held last night in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms.

A notification was received from the C.P.C. Football Club stating they were unable to continue their league engagements, owing to pressure of work at the plant and also to some of the players being injured. The Club regret very much this unavoidable step.

The directors of the P. and D.F.A. regret the non-appearance of the Quaker Oats F.C. during the last two weeks at the Oval in scheduled games. They are victims of above mentioned circumstances as the C.P.C. pressure of work and injuries to players.

The P. and D.F.A. despite heavy expenses incurred this season, are in a sound and healthy condition.

The Thistle F. C. and the G.W.V.A. teams are still going strong, at the same time both clubs are carrying quite a string of injured players.

The Canadian Woollens F. C. are in good shape and the players are confident of carrying off the Peck Trophy this season.

A game which will certainly draw a big crowd out will be played between the Thistle F. C. and the G.W.V.A. at the Oval on Saturday next September 15. Kick-off 3.30 p.m. Referee J. C. Russell in charge of the game.

President Jack Cairns and Directors Bill Cook and George Law had a strenuous session last night.

JACK DEMPSEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(By The Associated Press).—Jack Dempsey, matched to fight Luis Angel Firpo for the world's heavyweight championship at the Polo Grounds September 14, came to the front more rapidly than any other ring champion—actually punching his way to a title in less than four years as a result of his boxing power developed in no-decision bouts.

After wading through all opposition, Dempsey's quick knockout over Fred Fulton, the giant Rochester, Minn., plasterer, virtually removed the last obstacle in his path for a championship match with Jess Willard. Dempsey met Fulton, then considered as a possible contender, in Jersey City in 1918, and flattened him in the remarkably short time of 18 seconds.

Dempsey's decisive victory over Willard in Toledo July 4, 1919, for the championship stands out as one of the most severe beatings ever administered to a heavyweight titleholder. The very first punch that Dempsey sunk into Willard's huge frame, a savage right just under the heart, was the blow that started him to defeat. The former Kansas farmer, beaten down with vicious punches to the head, until both eyes were closed and his face swollen to the size of a toy balloon, survived three rounds before his seconds tossed in a sponge.

Dempsey's ability to punch Willard into submission so decisively won him not only the admiration and respect of ring followers, but the experts' acclaim as one of the greatest hitters who ever held the heavyweight title.

The champion carries a knockout smash in either hand; hits as hard with his left as he does with his right, and always seems to be ready, because of his peculiar swinging style, to whip over a terrific punch from any angle.

Back of Dempsey's right is tremendous power, but his left hook probably is an almost equally effective blow. It seldom travels more than a foot, but it carries the force of a falling skyscraper. Dempsey hooks the punch from the shoulder with a slight twist of his powerfully muscled forearm. He rarely swings a punch; always hooks them across. It is not uncommon to see the titleholder lead with his right in an attempt to get his opponent into position for a left hook. The champion is master of every trick in the pugilistic bag. One of his favorites is to get his opponent off balance while coming out of a clinch, thus making him an easy target for a left hook. Dempsey accomplishes this trick by hooking his right gloved fist back of his foe's left elbow, and, with a quick jerk, twisting him around and off balance.

Since Dempsey won the title, Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, the champion's opponent in a 15-round battle at Shelby, Mont., last July 4, is the only man who ceeded chiefly because, in ring parlance out smarted the champion at times; outboxed him in spots, and held on with such tenaciousness in the last three rounds that the referee was constantly breaking them; rather, pulling the St. Paul challenger out of the clinch.

Since winning the title, the champion's knockout victims were Billy Miske, Bill Brennan and Georges Carpentier. Brennan gave him a desperate battle, going 12 rounds before taking the count in Madison Square Garden. Miske had been counted upon to give him a fight, as he had in two previous bouts, one at ten and the other at six rounds, but he fell a victim to Dempsey's blows in three rounds. Carpentier lasted four.

Dempsey holds the distinction of boxing before the greatest crowd that ever saw a boxing contest and of drawing the biggest gate in ring history. More than 90,000 persons were jammed into the big Jersey City bowl on Boyls' Thirty Acres in the afternoon of July 2, 1921 when he knocked out Carpentier. The gate receipts of what was classed as the "Battle of a Century" were more than $1,500,000.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(By The Associated Press).—Willie Meehan, the pudgy heavyweight of San Francisco, occupies a unique place in the ring record of Jack Dempsey, the world's heavyweight champion.

He is one of the two men—Jack Downey is the other—who have won referee's decisions over Dempsey since the latter took up boxing.

He is the only man Dempsey has met more than once in the ring, who was not eventually knocked out by the Manassa Mauler.

Billy Miske faced Dempsey twice and was not knocked out. But the third time Dempsey stopped him in three rounds.

Carl Morris lost a four-round decision to Dempsey the first time he met the champion-to-be. Gunboat Smith's adventures with Dempsey were similar to those of Morris. The first time he lost a four round decision the next time he was stopped in a few punches.

Meehan boxed Dempsey four times, losing once, drawing twice, and taking a decision from him in 1918 after Dempsey had punched his way through a host of opponents in the east.

Meehan is no longer active in the boxing game.

Downey, who won a decision from Dempsey, at the outset of the latter's career, is now a trainer for one of the Pacific Coast League baseball clubs.

Contrasted with Meehan's ability to evade Dempsey's knockout punch, is the fate of Bill Brennan, who faced Dempsey twice and was stopped each time, once in six rounds, and the next time in 12. Brennan, too, was stopped in 12 rounds by Luis Firpo. He and Willard are the only men whom both Dempsey and his challenger from South America have met in the ring.

KIMBALL, Neb., (United Press).—Frank Cunningham, known as the wheat king of Western Nebraska, is making elaborate plans this year to become the potato king of the State. Cunningham has planted 540 acres with potatoes. With a fair yield he expects 50,000 bushels, which at even 90 cents a bushel would bring him $45,000. Despite the fact that potatoes were sold at low prices last year and even fed to hogs, Cunningham believed this would be a good potato year and entered the venture for the first time.

OFFICE SPECIALTY WILL SHOW HERE

Large Truck With Three Tons of Equipment Arrived This Morning.

A feature of unexpected advertising in connection with the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, and one that could hardly fail to obtain a great deal of publicity in the towns through which it passed, was the bringing by motor truck from Newmarket of three tons of office equipment, which will form the exhibit of the Office Specialty Manufacturing Company at the Fair this week.

The massive machine with its towering freight enveloped by a white covering emblazoned on either side with huge black and red letters announcing that "This equipment will be on view at the Peterborough Exhibition, September 12th., 13th., 14th., and 15th," came by road nearly 135 miles passing through Toronto, Oshawa and dozens of smaller places.

Mr. A. Costello, the company's local representative, will be in charge of the exhibit at the Fair.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Sept. 11 1923.

To the Editor, Evening Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Someone who prefers not to sign his name referred to the 'Children's Aid Society' in last night's paper, as allowing some boy in the neighborhood of Stoney Lake "to go on a rampage," as he calls it, why does this friend of the Society and law inforcement, not inform the Superintendent of the Society of the facts of the case, when that is done and evidence produced I will see that action is taken.

Yours truly,
GEO. W. POWELL,
Supt C.A.S.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: I was recently a visitor to your city and during my stay had occasion to eat in several restaurants, or as they are styled, "cafes." No complaint could be laid against the kitchen executives, for the food was as well served as anywhere, but the prices were high. Restaurant prices may be exceptionally low in Chicago, but the folks there think they pay enough, and compared with the standard prices in that city the numbers set down in the bill-o'-fares in the city of Peterboro are as David and Goliath. Were such demands made in the every-day eating houses of that city it is safe to say that there would be an outcry that would be heard in Europe.

Any person almost knows that eggs are nourishing even if they can not give the percentage of proteins and carbohydrates contained therein, and for that reason they are consumed in immense quantities practically the world over.

In Chicago an egg sandwich costs a dime, and for an additional ten cents you can get two eggs and toast. How do Peterboro prices compare with these? One restaurant asked 40 cents and another 45 cents for the latter and 15 cents for a sandwich. Two eggs with butter and bread (white, brown, rye or raisin) and a sidedish of fried potatoes, and even in some places with suar kraut, to boot, in the Windy City, are worth but 25 cents. Is it possible that in Peterborough, in the centre of a productive farming belt, eggs cost more than in Chicago?

And to continue, Why is it that ham sandwiches are 15 cents in the city of Peterboro and but 10 cents in Chicago? Why is it that cream of tomato soup is 30 cents when Chicago won't pay a cent more than 20 cents. How comes it that pie a la mode is 20 cents and only 15c there? Why there is a difference of between 10 and 15 cents in practically all the meat and fish orders? What sort of language would a Chicagoan use were he to walk into breakfast in the morning, order shredded wheat and cream and be handed a check for 25 cents.

Many people apparently in good health, boast that they can get along fine in Chicago on a dollar a day but such an accomplishment would be well nigh impossible, it would seem in your fair city. The prices quoted for Chicago are I believe fair and form an unassailable comparison for they are the prices prevailing not only in the one-arms down town but in the little eating places far removed from the busy loop that cater only to a restricted local trade.

I have taken the liberty of discussing this matter freely as the cost of living is still a subject of general interest. In Toronto, Ont., food prices are high, and so Peterboro is not the only high water mark. Tourists have to dig deep in their pockets about meal time, and scenic attractions will not remove all of the feeling that they are being "held up." I apologize Mr. Editor, if I have been long-winded, and I hope that somewhere in your columns you will find space to publish this. MADISON 'DEARBORN.

NO HARMONY AMONG PETERBOROUGH JEWS.

Editor, Examiner: This is Jewish New Year. This is the day when every Jew goes to synagogue to say his prayers, but such is not the case in Peterborough, and that is because the rich have monopolized the synagogue, by putting a big price for admission to synagogue, thereby forcing some to either stay at home or go to a different community. Five families are treated in this way. Such an outrage is unheard of in Jewish history, that on this day there should be brotherly love and forgiveness, but the rich Jews of Peterborough do not consider brotherly love and forgiveness. But not only have they monopolized the synagogue, but also the kosher meat, because the poor cannot afford to pay for the privilege to buy the meat which is killed by the rabbi, thereby forcing the poor to go without or get it from Toronto.

DEVELOPMENT

the first exhibition ever opened in this county by a representative of our beloved Queen should be opened by one who, like yourself, had a paternal uncle so closely identified with its early history and settlement, and whose kindness to its first settlers led them to perpetuate his memory by calling it "Peterborough."

Guards of Honor.

The guards of honor for the distinguished visitor on this occasion were provided by quotas of the 57th Battalion and a cavalry regiment, the latter in their regimentals of blue with white helmets and cross belts forming a brilliant bodyguard.

There was only one building on the Fair grounds at that time, and it was crowded to capacity with exhibits, much on to-day's style, but specializing in farm implements and supplies. Live stock was accommodated outdoors.

Among firms still doing business in the city who exhibited in 1886 were Peter Hamilton Co., with farm implements; Peterborough Lock Works, who had a glass case of locks; J. J. Turner, showing tents; and the Peterborough Business College with an exhibit of fancy pen work.

Special Attractions.

Special attractions at this Exhibition thirty seven years ago, would not prove a big drawing card to-day. Driving races, saddle horse races and other sports were held every day, and club swinging provided the grand stand entertainment. In the latter, T. McNaughton of Peterboro (champion of Canada) won the first prize of $10. Music was supplied by the band of the Fire Brigade, and on special occasions by the 57th Battalion band.

Some of the Prizes.

One hundred head of cattle were entered in all the classes, including Durham shorthorns, and Holsteins; Cotswold sheep, Leicesters, Shropshires and Southdowns were also shown.

Grain exhibits were considered good and the first prize was $1 more than is now offered.

For a firkin of butter weighing not less than 75 pounds, a first prize of $10 was offered, with a silver butter cooler as an extra prize. This class has disappeared from the current prize list, the largest quantity of butter called for being a 56 pound box.

Fourteen diplomas were given by the directors to manufacturers who made meritorious exhibits.

The Grand Parade.

The grand parade of stock, held on the closing day, in which all horses and cattle were led around the exhibition ring, was over half a mile in length.

The exhibition lasted four days, the opening day being free of charge to everyone. During the three days on which admission was charged, the gate receipts were $1,869.70, a substantial advance from the receipts of the previous year, which were $1,408.85.

Entries in all classes numbered 1,506, and the amount derived for booth rents was $250.00.

Constantly Growing.

Since that time there has been a Fair every year, each one being better than its predecessor, until now the premium list totals $10,000, and the entries run far into the thousands. The attractions of to-day would be the envy of those who attended this fair of 37 years ago and the directors are on the look-out every year for new features and better ways of providing amusement.

The Peterborough Exhibition has had its ups and downs; it has been difficult at times for its managers to carry on in the face of untold difficulties, and year by year the public has expected more exhibits, more prizes and more amusement. The Exhibition has developed with the community, and now has the proud place of being the best institution of its kind between Toronto and Monreal, with many feautres which the larger cities have not.

With its Manufacturers' Building, its barns, its stables, its poultry building, and many temporary buildings filled to capacity, and with the splendid accommodation provided in the cement grand stand, the 1923 Exhibition calls every citizen to reap the benefit of the untiring efforts of the men who labored to build it up four decades ago, and those who have since given their time to the fulfilment of an ideal.

Chimney has been built in Anaconda, Mont., 585 feet high, causing many cricks in farmers' necks.

Doctors estimate Americans have 3,000,000 pounds excess fat, which is a lot of bootleggers.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

"MAIN STREET" NOVEL MAKES IDEAL PICTURE

"Main street" which opened a two-day engagement yesterday at the Royal is a picture of pictures

The word great has been bandied about so often and freely that it has lost some of its connotatons. Yet, it is the word and the only word, fit to describe this wonderful picture which has lost not a single quality in its tranposition to the screen from Sinclair Lewis' novel of the same name.

It is long since such a picture was seen and the highest praise is due all that participated in it, to Harry Beaumont, the director; to Florence Vidor, Monte Blue and the excellent supporting cast consisting of Harry Myers, Noah Beery, Louise Fazenda, Robert Gordon Josephine Crowell, Gordon Griffith, Otis Harlan and Allan Hale.

"Main Street" is the story of Carol Kennicott and her brave but pathetic efforts to make Gopher Prairie a better place to live in. She is filled with ideas she wishes to put into practice. The inhabitants do not sympathize with her; even her husband, Dr. Kennicott, is too engrossed in his medical practice to further his wife's plan.

In despair, she finds her only ally in Erik Valborg, a young idealist. Two things happen; tongues begin wagging maliciously and Erik finds himself so hopelessly in love with Carol that he wants her to elope. These situations bring on the dramatic climaxes to the picture.

The added attractions are interesting and the musical accompaniment worthy of special mention. Main Street, will be shown for last time to-night.

"ROY ROY" SUPER-FEATURE MADE IN OLD LAND.

The Latest Sensation in the Film World—Sir Walter Scott's Spectacular Romance Opens a 4-day run at the Royal Commencing on Wednesday.

"Rob Roy" comes from the Old Country, established as the greatest audience picture of all times playing to record runs of 11 months in Glasgow, 10 months in Edinburgh, and one solid year in London. It is undoubtedly the most spectacular film ever produced, numbering more thrills, more heart throbs, and daring exploits than have ever before been assembled in a big picture.

The central character of the story is Rob Roy MacGregor, chief of the Clan MacGregor, at Inversnaid, feudal enemy of the Duke of Montrose, branded as an outlaw, without name, or hame, or siller, but with all possessing a reputation as a lusty man of battle throughout the length and breadth of the Highlands.

MacGregor is one of the most powerful characters ever appearing in a motion picture drama. The slogan "What Bruce can do, MacGregor can do: Watch out for MacGregor when he takes to the heather," and right soundly does MacGregor set upon his enemies. Working by the old-adage "Might Makes Right," he takes what lass he wants with a brief and stormy courtship ending in the laconic proposal: "To-day your name's Campbell, to-morrow your name's MacGregor."

This production played two weeks at Massey Hall, Toronto, to crowded houses, and no doubt the capacity of the Royal will be taxed the last four days of this week.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Sensational, peculiar, unusual, bizarre; any of these adjectives might be used with truthfulness to describe the big picture now showing at the Capitol Theatre; "Enemies of Women", from Ibanez' daring story of love and intrigue. It is the romance of a half-mad Russian noble and the titled wife of a Parisian duke, and it goes ahead, in the author's astounding fashion to unfold, in a short two hours the regeneration of the two.

Commencing with a somewhat draggy tempo that draws out to its fullest the import of the various scenes, it increases in speed and gallops to a breathless finale. The change of the woman from a beautiful, vain doll who slaps her ducal husband's face when he contradicts her, to the loving mother who clings with passion to the young son she has just repudiated, is done with lightning-like speed. But everything is done quickly in this odd picture.

Prince Lubimoff, the Russian Michael, knouts his luxurious guests after he returns from a pleasant little episod, wherein he has figured in a pistol duel with his inamorata's son, who falls dead with shock before the ball is fired. When Alicia becomes poverty-stricken through sending all her spare funds to her son at the front, she is quietly making a bed in her house one morning, while attired in a very beautiful evening gown. The Prince appears, with a packet of money which she has requested him to lend her. He supposes it is for the use of a secret lover, but comes nevertheless. A hectic scene ensues. They embrace each other with fervor but the lady immediately asks for the cash, and the Prince, in a sudden access of rage, flings her from him again and again with such force tht she falls stunned to the ground.

In Lionel Barrymore's acting, as the Russian Prince, there is a suggestion of very real ferocity through out the entire picture. His characterization is wonderful and holds tense interest of his audience from start to finish.

It is a wonderful production in some aspects, crowded with incident of the most tempestuous sort, the sort of picture that keeps its actor, in a world far removed from the ordinary work-a-day life; a world of artistic orgies, of cruelty to the poor and pride of the rich, a world of sudden fierce rages and passions and deaths. And there is some wonderful scenery. Russia, in the czarist regime, with the inner life of a princely palace, whose owner has a secret taste in luxuries of many types, Paris just before and during the first war days; Monte Carlo and its gaming tables, presentations of the horror of war, new, strange and dreadful with big guns belching death whole sale, with monster gas-bags exploding in mid-air and flaming to a down ward destruction with air-ships hurling in corkscrew dives to a faraway earth they all pass in swift panoramic review through a series of intensely emotional scenes.

Alicia Duchess de Lille (Alma Rubens) comes to the Russian palace and watches its ruler, Michael in a ferocious saber duel that ends in death for his rival, left to stiffen in death under frozen skies. There is something unreal and yet horribly natural about this peculiar duel, with the men's faces suddenly shown close up, a blue light playing on the snow filled courtyard and the flickering torches that light it. And there is intense theatricalism about the episode which results in the Prince regaining his treasure-chest from a horde of blood-thirsty terrorists. Blows struck in this picture are not imaginary to the onlooker. The impact of brutal thrusts on bare flesh and terrible fistic struggles is almost felt so ferocious and savage are the actors.

The roulette tables of Monte Carlo are shown, with their feverish patrons, and the orgies of a proud, tyrannical prince, surrounded by women, who fight for jewels thrown by an exploding bomb from a vast urn. To bring all this temperamental whirlwind to a smooth finish is illogical, but it is done. Conventions are satisfied but a different ending might have made this picture more memorable. As it is, it is a production that those who witness it will recall as peculiarly fascinating and very, very different from the usual run of pictures, and those who don't will regret a lost opportunity. As for the moral, which a painstaking producer tries in vain to point out, it is hard to say just what that is except that everyone in it, except those who get killed off suddenly seem, to have a very hectic time of it for awhile, and then suddenly simmer down to a righteous and pious ending.

A funny touch is the episode of the aged duke, bought by his wife's money, looking on as she raves over the youth she has just tried to conceal from public notice. He is sixteen, and therefore an encumberance to his beautiful and wonderfully-attired young mother. The duke carefully lets himself out of the door closes it firmly, and then proceeds to knock and be re-admitted.

The title derives its meaning from the secret pact of the Prince and his companions as "enemies of women", at the Prince's Villa Sirena at Monte Carlo. The music accompanying this picture is splendidly adapted to its changing humor ranging in force and effectiveness from tragic to martial, from grave to gay and whimsical, as the story unfolds.

FAIR DIRECTORS COMPLETE PLANS

Big Show Will Open Tomorrow — Big Midway Now on the Grounds.

With to-day's prospect of fine weather, the spirits of the Fall Fair directors are at high level. Everything is going forward in the best possible manner.

The fireworks are all here, and the International Amusement Company, furnishing midway attractions, have arrived from Sault Ste. Marie.

Eventualities this year are being considered beforehand, and every indication points to a successful four days for the 1923 Exhibition.

To-morrow will be Children's Day, when plenty of things have been planned for the amusement and enjoyment of children from the city and from many miles away. From 12 o'clock until 4 o'clock, children will be admitted free to the grounds. The programme, which is scheduled to begin promptly on time, is as follows:

2 p.m.—Overture by Band.

2.15—Races, with good prizes, open to all children, boys and girls alike.

3.45—Vaudeville programme.

5 p.m.—Singing contest with prizes of $5.00 each to the winning boy and girl.

To-morrow, the band concert at the Fair will be provided by a juvenile organisation known as Adjt. Smith's Young People's Band, in their first public performance in the city.

On Saturday, an item of interest will be the drawing contest for light and heavy horses, and a tug-of-war will also take place in front of the grand stand on Saturday afternoon.

With the co-operation of the directors and the Canadian Packing Co., Mr. D. McKinnon has arranged to put on a hog-grading demonstration at the Fair on Friday afternoon of this week. Mr. McKinnon will show the various classes of bacon hogs.

The Postal Department will have one of the most interesting exhibits. The new meter machine for handling large quantities of mail, a stamping machine, and other present day means of handling mail matter of all kinds will be demonstrated, during the four days of the Fair.

To-morrow, judging in the Baby Show Contest will be for the class of under-developed infants and for girl and boy babies up to six months of age. Splendid prizes will be given in both sections, and no fee, other than the admission charge at the gate, is charged for the show and contest, which is open to any baby from the city, district, or neighbouring counties.

Prizes to-morrow in the two sections to be judged will be silver mugs, milk tickets, blankets, and Angora rugs, all valuable and worthwhile prizes.

Judging of the under-developed class begins at 2.30, with the babies up to six months of age judged later.

SOCK-SUSPENDER, GARTER MUST GO, DOCTOR'S EDICT

Men and Women Suffer From Sock-Suspenders Women Must Not Roll Them.

The man who first invented clothes,
(Please read T. Carlyle's 'Sartor'),
Has never made as many foes
As he who planned the garter.

The collar high, the tie that binds,
Find many staunch defenders,
But the very latest modern mind
Condemns the sock-suspenders.
—Rhymes of the Rambling Reporter.

Complaints have gone ringing down the well-known corridors of time since Cleopatra's day that beautiful woman has been disfiguring herself by blind obedience to fashion's capricious dicta. But mere man, for whom we haven't given a rap whether or not his sylph-like figure alters or not, is in grave danger, menaced by a common article of wearing apparel.

In other words, the garter must go!

According to Dr. Frank A. Kelly, president of the Wayne County Medical Society, that elastic band which for many years has been a reliable sock support and a great embarrassment when inclining to droop in public, may be the cause of much trouble.

"The wearing of tight garters," said Dr. Kelly, "is likely to induce serious harm. Varicose veins and other similar ailments may often be caused by the binding of the leg by the garter."

Not only men may suffer from sock-suspenders but also, according to Dr. Kelly, the present generation of children in later years may regret their becoming and stylish half socks.

"I have seen children who, after taking off their socks, had bright red marks on their legs," said Dr. Kelly. "This is quite likely to induce, in later years, diseases which may give them more than a little trouble. While we cannot tell now, as the present fashion of half socks for children has only been in vogue for a few years, we may learn later that the wearing of garters has caused serious consequences."

Not to be outdone, of course, by any other species of the genus homo, the flapper, too, is said to be in even a greater danger than the others, not because of the gripping garter, but on account of the absence of them. The girl who rolls her own socks is taking a hazardous risk because the leg is more tightly bound.

"The chief danger," said Dr. Kelly, "is, of course, the wearing of garters that are too tight and interrupt the normal circulation of the blood. When a woman rolls her stockings, as I have heard that many do, there is even a tighter stricture than with the ordinary man's garter. Persons troubled with varicose veins or similar disturbances should, under no circumstances, wear tight garters."

Various suggestions as to means of eliminating the deadly garter have been received but so far none has seemed to solve the problem.

SEIZE EVIDENCE THAT COMITADJI PLAN INVASION

Belgrade Reports That Serbian Macedonia May Be Scene of Extensive War Operations.

CONFLICT EXPECTED

ATHENS, Sept. 12. — (United Press.) — Jugo-Slav authorities in Belgrade have seized documentary evidence that unnamed Comitadji bands are preparing an extensive invasions of Serbian Macedonia, according to messages from the Jugo-Slavia capital to-day.

The messages said it generally was believed in Belgrade that, in the event of an Italo-Jugo-Slav conflict, the Little Entente will supply Jugo-Slava with munitions and perhaps with troops for ostensible use against Hungary and Bulgaria. Meantime Greek authorities watched developments in both Rome and Belgrade with the greatest interest, as the time limit set by Premier Mussolini for acceptance of his terms for settlement of the question of Fiume drew near.

Hope For Break.

Greek officials frankly hoped that the already strained Italo-Jugo-Slav relations might become even more critical, as they saw in this situation an opportunity to escape from the precarious situation into which Greece has been thrown as a result of the Corfu incident. It was confidently believed here that a break in Italo-Jugo-Slav relations would throw the Corfu incident into the back ground, while the Fascisti government in Rome concentrated its efforts on carrying out its programme for control of Fiume.

RUHR SITUATION AIDS THE MARKET

Stock Market Was in a Bullish Mood Today With a Number of Gains

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(Special). —Encouraging strength in the conversations between the French and German envoys at Paris kept the general list in a bullish mood at the opening.

Coppers made the best response to the favorable European outlook under the leadership of Utah, which reached a new high on the movement. Davison Chemical spurted nearly ten points from the week's low, reflecting the information published by Dow, Jones and Co. that insiders proposed to make a market at around $45 a share for the stock of the company which will take over the Silecia-Gel process; if this intention is adhered to Davison should have a market value of $75 a share as the company's other assets, ex-Silecia-Gel, are estimated to be entitled to a selling level of around $30 a share. It is this thought which is given Davidson's recent rise to 72 a clean bill of health.

Professional operators figured that the technical recovery in the market had gone far enough for the moment and they subjected the general list to heavy pressure toward the close of the first hour. Offerings were increased by the thought that the recent rally had partially represented the market's confidence that a solution would be found of the Ruhr problem, and with a settlement of the reparations dispute in sight, traders were inclined to the belief that the good news regarding Europe had been pretty well discounted.

Drops of one to ten points took place in Studebaker, Can. and others. Cosden was heavily sold on the denial of a reported merger with Standard Oil of Indiana. Cosden's four point recovery in the previous session had been based altogether on the prospect of a continuance of the present dividend at next week's meeting, but the speculative habit could not refrain from reviving the Standard Oil of Indiana story when Cosden showed signs of life.

DATE FIXED FOR DELORME'S TRIAL

Celebrated Case Will Come Up at the November Court.

MONTREAL, September 12. Canadian Press. — Abbe Lelorme, who stood trial for murder of his half-brother Raoul Delorme, during 31 days in July and August, and against whom the jury returned a disagreement, failing to reach a verdict after three days' deliberations, will be brought to court to-day, it was announced by the Crown.

It became known that Alleyn Taschereau, K.C., who with C. H. Cahan, K.C., appeared for the defence, will ask for a postponement as the defence is not ready to proceed with the case at the present term of the Court of King's Bench.

Mr. Justice Demers to-day formally set the trial of the Abbe Delorme charged with the murder of his half brother, Raoul Delorme for the November term of the Court of King's Bench. Aplication was made by R. L. Calder, K.C., Crown Prosecutor, and by Attorney-General Taschereau, K.C., one of the counsel for the defence.

SLAV RIVIERA LIES IN RUINS

The Crimea, Once Popular Health Resort, Flowerless and Deserted as Result of Famine.

ALUSHTA, Crimea Sept. 12. — The Crimea the beloved health resort of the old days and known as the "Russian Riveria," once filed with beautiful palaces surrounded by flowers, vineyards and magnificent fruit gardens, lies now flowerless and ruined as a result of the civil war and last year's famine.

Many of the owners of these villas, vineyards and fruit gardens belonged to the upper classes and lived in central Russia coming here for their relaxation. Large numbers fled the country years ago, while others having thrown in their lot with General Wrangel, became the scapegoats of his acts after his defeat and paid the death penalty during the terror which followed the second occupation of the Crimea by the bolsheviks.

Nobody's Property

The Crimea has not escaped the effects of nationalization, confiscation and requisitions, and while nominally the immense vineyards and magnificent gardens have been delivered nationalized as a matter of fact they are nobody's property.

Vineyards and gardens stood unguarded for several years, with the result that everything went to the dogs. The wine stocks dried and a majority of the best fruit trees died. Thousands of acres of almond, apricot, peach and pear trees and vineyards are to-day absolutely worthless and many a year will have to pass before they can be brought to life again.

Conditions Deplorable

The same is true of agriculture and industry. Despite the reconstruction work carried on by the Crimean "independent" soviet government, Crimean agriculture and existing mines or industries are in a deplorable condition. The number of cattle has diminished by 75 per cent. the total number of working horses being today only 30,000. The sowing area is only 40 per cent that of 1916. This year's harvest will be very small.

Industries in the Crimea are insignificant and play an unimportant part in the economic life. They consisted largely of the curing of tobacco tanning and preserving. They all languish. There is no market for the local salt and Crimean wines go begging. The people are impoverished and seem content to live with insufficient food, no comforts or pleasures and with little hope for the future.

The oath of office was administered by Fred. Bulmer, Clerk of the Executive Council.

The ceremony was witnessed by Premier Ferguson and the members of his Cabinet and numerous legal luminaries who are friends of the new Chief Justice of the Province.

WHOLE BALKAN SITUATION NOW ALARMS WORLD

Believed Italy Intent on Forcing Hand of Jugo-Slavia by Threat of Invasion.

VIRTUAL ULTIMATUM

LONDON, Sept. 12. — (United Press).—Italy, having forced her will upon Greece, now is prepared to take military action if necessary, to defend Italian rights in Fiume, despatches from Rome, Athens and the Balkans indicate.

A new Adriatic crisis with Corfu and Fiume as immediate pawns and Italy, Jugo-Slavia, Greece and Albania as possible participants in the new conflict, appeared at hand.

Mussolini has charged the Jugo-Slavs with seeking to take advantage of the Italo-Greek dispute to break a contract that gave most of Fiume to Italy. The Serbs have disclaimed any such intention and insisted they will abide by agreements made, but reports from Athens, possibly inspired, declare Italian military preparations are under way.

Troops Held Ready.

The Athens correspondent of the Daily Chronicle cabled: "In Trieste troop trains are held in readiness with steam up, and heavy contingents of choice Italian troops are being concentrated, presumably for use against Jugo-Slavia, if that nation does not accept the Italian terms for the settlement of the Fiume controversy by Saturday. Ten steamers have been requisitioned by the Italian Government to convey troops to the base of Pola.

"At Bari, the Italians have embarked the Tenth, Sixth and Forty-Seventh Infantry Regiments for an unknown destination. The units are completely supplied with artillery and munitions."

Intense Excitement.

The correspondent said the reported landing of Italian troops at Santa Quaranta still was unconfirmed in Athens, but had created intense excitement in the Greek capital, where it was firmly believed Italy is intent on forcing the hand of Jugo-Slavia by a treaty of invading Macedonia through Albania. Officials in London considered the whole Balkan situation as alarming and feared Italy is ready to go to the extreme ends to carry out her plan for making the Adriatic an "Italian lake."

A Virtual Ultimatum.

They saw in the virtual ultimatum to Belgrade for the acceptance of the Italian Thessis for the settlement of the Fiume controversy a firm determination on the part of Mussolini to carry out the plan originally contrived by Dannunzio in his seizure of Fiume.

MISSING CONVICTS STILL AT LIBERTY

Inspector Will Conduct Enquiry at the Pen

KINGSTON, Setp. 12.—(Canadian Press.) — No further trace of the missing convicts from the penitentiary has been found up till this afternoon, despite diligent and extensive search by guards and Provincial police. Warden Ponsford has detailed a number of guards on railway tracks on the presumption that the fugitives may attempt to escape on a freight train.

Gilbert Smith, Inspector of Penitentiaries, has arrived in Kingston and it is learned that an investigation into escape will be held. He refused to make any comment on the escape.

Officials state that regulations of the penitentiary providing against the possibility of escape by convicts by means of ladders, etc., were observed. It has not been established how the convicts obtained the ladder by which they scaled the wall of the penitentiary.

McMullen is still in the hospital, sullen and disheartened because he failed to make good his escape.

HEIR TO THRONE REACHES QUEBEC

Wales Registers at Chateau Frontenac, Where He Will Stay Today and Night.

QUEBEC, Sept. 12.— (Canadian Press.)—Prince of Wales, travelling as Lord Renfrew, arrived here this morning on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France. The Prince is enroute to his ranch in Alberta, where he is to stay for a month, living the simple life of hunting, shooting, fishing and the great outdoors.

When the Empress arrived at eight o'clock the Prince was in bed. He did not leave the steamer until eleven, when he drove to the Chateau Frontenac, where he will spend a day and a night. He leaves to-morrow morning on a special train for the West.

Enjoyed Sea Trip.

Officers of the liner stated that the Prince had apparently enjoyed himself on the trip. He had mixed quite freely with the passengers and had taken part in all dances. His genial manner made it easy for everybody on the ship to regard him as simply an ordinary traveller.

Early visitors to the liner to welcome the Prince included Lord Shaughnessy, representing E. W. Beatty, K.C., President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and Sir Michael Clume Seymour, Admiral of the British North American Squadron.

The Prince and his party occupy a suite on the twelfth floor of the Chateau Frontenac, where the rooms command a fine view of the St. Lawrence. At his request no change was made in the furniture of the suite and no special preparations were made for his meals.

All the passengers spoke in terms of the highest admiration of the Prince Hon. Justice Tessier, Quebec High Court Judge, who travelled across the ocean on the Empress, told of having several delightful conversations with the Prince. Judge Tessier also had much with the Prince. "We talked of all manner of subjects and all sorts of events," said the Judge. "What struck me most forcibly was his remembrance of the names of many people he had met in Canada during his last visit. He asked me about numerous Quebec people, and he also enquired about the people he had met in Montreal and Toronto.

"Among the people he asked about was Mayor Martin, of Montreal, and ex-Mayor Church of Toronto. Indeed," said Justice Tessier, "the question he asked about the latter was, 'And where is Tommy Church now?' He was greatly interested when he heard of his transfer to the House of Commons at Ottawa."

Judge Tessier said the Prince spoke about the dances arranged in his honor during his previous visit, and rather naively remarked, "I suppose many of the girls I danced with are married and settled down by now."

Judge Tessier said the Prince was fond of a game of bridge, and played it quite well. After an evening game, and when the decks were deserted, the Prince liked taking a long stroll, even keeping it up till two in the morning sometimes. The Prince obviously had ideas of his own on the great topics of the day, but he never forced them on anybody. He was, perhaps, best of all, a listener. His questions, however, showed a fund of information he had about matters. He was deeply versed in the situation in Europe at the present time, said Judge Tessier.

The Prince of Wales will make no public appearance during his present visit to Canada as Lord Renfrew, and will not go to the United States. This announceemnt was made this afternoon on behalf of the Prince by Sir Godfrey Thomas, his secretary.

BOY SEEKS TO FORSAKE FARM LEARN A TRADE

Makes Plea to Children's Aid Society to Release Him From Farm Work.

WURK OF SOCIETY

The Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society held their regular monthly meeting yesterday, in the Board room at the Chamber of Commerce. Reports and accounts were presented since July, when the last regular meeting took place. The president, B. F. Ackerman, occupied the chair, and the following members were present: Mesdames Gibbs, Knox, Stocker, Devey, Holmes, Hodgson, Hill, Fanning, Kimberley, Darcy, Rev. R. C. Blagrave, Rev. W. H. Young, Messrs. Edgar, Powell, Stocker, Dobbin, Dr. E. H. Wood.

Mr. Ackerman welcomed to the Board the newly-appointed member, Mrs. J. Holmes.

The agent, G. W. Powell, read a letter received from one of the wards of the society, a boy of sixteen years of age, who was placed out on a farm. The boy asked last year to be allowed to come into town, and this year is making the same request. He desires to learn a trade. Mr. Powell remarked that the youth had improved considerably since being placed with the farmer who has charge of him. The letter said in part: "What is the use of keeping me out here slaving from morning until night, or on any other farm either. When I am twenty-one, I will not be a bit further ahead than now. The De Laval Company is paying seven dollars a week to beginners, and I would like a position there. I dislike farming very much. I would truly love to be a machinist, and I am depending on you to help me, Mr. Powell."

F. H. Dobbin said, "let him come in." Mrs. Knox was in favor of his plea, and Rev. Mr. Young suggested taking the letter for consideration to someone like Mr. P. Westbye, who was interested in such matters, and would give the matter a personal touch. On Ald. Stocker's motion, the decision was left in the hands of Mr. Powell.

Ald. Stocker reported on projected repairs to roofs at the new Shelter outbuildings, and recommended fall plowing of the ground.

A Bad Practice.

Ald. Stocker also started a discussion regarding the practice followed by some people woh received wards from the Shelter in good condition as to clothing outfits, in sending them back with very little wearing apparel. This practice is as general among city residents, it appears, as among the farmers who take Shelter wards for certain periods. It was suggested that a clause regarding such outfits might be inserted in the contracts.

Mr. Edgar reported arrangements for Tag Day as being satisfactorily looked after by Mrs. J. S. Fanning and her assistants. He read the matron's reports for July and August, showing good health conditions for both periods. In July, 17 children were in the Shelter, four brought in and five taken out. In August, there were 14 children, two brought in and four sent out.

Mr. Powell reported as follows: For July, 4 applications. Approximate mileage covered, 400 miles, with visits to Warsaw, Dummer, Havelock, North and South Monaghan, Norwood, Birdsalls'. Wards placed out, 4; returned to Shelter, 2; visited, 18. In August there were 12 applications. Advertisement in the Farm and Dairy publication had brought enquiries from several places, including one from Northern Ontario and two or three from Quebec, one of the latter offering to come to see the particular boy he wished for. Mr. Powell said that it was not the policy of the head office to allow the wards to go outside of the province, on account of the difficulty of inspection. Children made wards, 1; mileage covered, 280 miles, to Otonabee, Ennismore, Port Hope, Hall's Bridge and Burketon. Wards placed out, 14; returned the Shelter, 2; visited, 11.

Donations for the two months were as follows: July, Stewart Hall, Otonabee, cake and sandwiches; Oddfellows of Peterborough, cake and sandwiches. August: F. H. Dobbin, verandah bench and mattress; W. F. Johnson and J. J. Howden, bag flour; Mr. Heard, extra milk.

Accounts for the two months: July: Herb Allen 25.88, J. M. Heard $13.20, G. A. Pringle $5.45, Can. Packing Co. $3.60, R. Denne $3.20, H. H. Dinsdale $4.75, Mrs. J. P. Bickell $8.18, G. H. Hutchinson $13.75, Bell Telephone Co. (two 'phones) $8.45, G. W. Powell $4, Peterborough Examiner Co. $6.28, W. P. Thomas $12, R. Hall & Son $2.70, Sanitary Ice Co. 5, J. G. Jopling $6, H. Edmunds $6.99. Total $129.43.

August: R. Neill $2.84, Mackey Bread Co. $4.08, Mrs. Rogers (apples) 80 cents, D. M. Minicolo $4.80, New Centre Meat Market $6.02, Kingan Hardware $2; R. Hall & Son 75 cents, J. M. Heard $12.40, Sanitary Ice Co. $10, Brown-Shield Apiaries (honey) $4.50, J. Penrose $21.10, J. E. A. Fitzgerald $10.50, R. Denne $5.35, Higgins Hardware Co. $3.10, S. Kemp $1, Bell Telephone Co. (2 'phones) $9.01, G. W. Powell $8.95, Utilities Commission 68 cents. Total $108.78.

Freak Plants Said to Have Been Caused by Bees Carrying Seed of Tomato to the Potatoes

SUDBURY, September 12. Canadian Press. — A freak of nature that almost outburbanks Burbank was exhibited here this morning in the form of a potato vine with large potatoes adhering to the roots, and well defined green tomatoes on the vine. Tomatoes are about an inch in diameter. On the tops of another potato vine there were small potatoes growing. These while small were well formed and with the usual number of eyes. They developed after the potatoes had been dug and the vines thrown aside.

The freak plants came from the garden of A. J. Leonard, on Copper Cliffe road. He states that he has his potato patch on one side of the house and tomatoes on the other and believes that the freak was caused by bees carrying seed of tomatoes to potatoes. Mr. Leonard states that he has about 15 hills of thees freak potatoes, and tomatoes are on potato plants which blossomed twice.

ROSITA FORBES VISITS BANDITS

Moroccan Disturber of the Peace Holds Court With His Two Wives.

LONDON, Sept. 12. — (Canadian Press).—Rosita Forbes, English explorer, returned to London yesterday after a trip through Morocco, and announced that she was the first white woman to have visited Raisuli, the famous Moroccan bandit. She stayed for eleven days in the brigand chief's mountain stronghold, where he holds court with his two wives, nine daughters, three sons and three score slaves.

The explorer said that Raisuli, who claims a pedigree that goes back to Noah, has a surprising knowledge of European politics. He is a heavy man, 52 years of age, and has a henna beard. He is now friendly to Spain, and believes the coming of civilization to be inevitable, although he asserted that if Morocco was ever conquered by Spain it would be by their doctors and their hospitals.

HELD RECEPTION TO NEW MINISTER

Greetings From Sister Churches of the City

The congregation of Knox Presbyterian church, in goodly numbers, along with friends from the congregation of St. Paul's church, extended a hearty welcome last evening to their new minister, Rev. M. C. Mackinnon M.A., and his wife, in a reception attended by several hundred people.

Mr. and Mrs. Mackinnon were introduced to their new charge by senior members of the church, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Morrison and Mrs. John McPherson, in the ladies' parlor, passing from there to the Sunday School room, where light refreshments were served by the Ladies' Aid Society. Later, a programme of addresses of welcome and music was given in the church. Mr. M. N. Clarke acted as chairman.

Words of welcome from the different organizations were voiced by the following members:

The Session, W. W. Yale. The Board of Managers, J. W. Byers. The Sunday School superintendent H. A. McCannon. The choir, John Anderson, president. The Women's Missionary Society; Mrs. John McPherson. The Ladies' Aid Society; Mrs. H. M. Hobson. The Berean Bible Class; Mrs. John Foster. The Brotherhood Bible Class; G. W. Bartley. The Young People's Giuld; Arthur Pitchford. The Volunteer Bible Class; Miss Edna Buckham. The A.S.K. Class; Howard Hall.

Greetings from the sister Presbyterian churches of the city were brought by Rev. R. Pogue and Rev Jas. Rollins. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Mackinnon acknowledged their welcome in a way that made a strong and favorable impression upon their audience. Mrs. Mackinnon was presented by little Jean Smith with a bouquet of roses.

The musical programme included a piano duet by Jean and Marion McCannon, a piano solo by Isabel Donnelly, a vocal solo by Mr. John Anderson and opening and closing selection by the choir with Mr. J. A. Jeffreys at the organ.

REFUGEES ARE IN CHINA NOW

Foreigners Were Cruelly Treated in the City of the Dead.

SHANGHAI, September 12 (Canadian Press). — Leroy Petty, formerly manager of the Shanghai Hotel, and S. F. Murphy, Jr., of San Francisco, who have arrived here on the Empress of Canada with hundreds of refugees from the Japanese earthquake zone, detail a primitive drama that accompanied the cataclysm. They say that armed officers and crew of the liner Empress of Australia, which had a miraculous escape in Yokohama Harbour, shot several Japanese looters who were attacking defenceless foreigners.

Weapons were taken to the foreigners left ashore at Yokohama, that they might protect themselves. ....

Petty and Murphy add to the statement already made that foreigners were subjected to cruelty in the city and left for a time to the dead and to the ghouls haunting them.

The Empress of Australia was saved from destruction only by the coolness of her officers and by the assistance of the steamer Steel Navigator and a Swedish steamer which towed her to safe anchorage near the remains of the breakwater.

In describing their experiences today, the two survivors said the Yokohama police were on duty continuously without water or food, and finally became discouraged and deserted in the city, leaving it at the mercy of plunderers.

All the bodies of foreigners salvaged from the wreckage had fingers hacked off and ears torn where the ghouls had stolen jewellery.

"I saw one foreigner shot in the back by a Japanese policeman," said Petty, "when the foreigner stopped to pull a body from the ruins. There were numerous similar cases and instances where whole parties of foreigners were fired upon."

Foreign refugees arriving in Shanghai from Yokohama are reporting numerous instances in which Japanese officials and civilians are alleged to have refused assistance to foreigners following the disaster, says a despatch to the Central News from the Chinese city.

The Japanese Consulate at Shanghai has asked for an opportunity to investigate the charges.

PREMIER FERGUSON ON TRIP TO MOOSE FACTORY

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Premier Ferguson, Lieutenant-Governor Cockshutt and party will leave the Union Station about nine o'clock to-night on the first leg of their journey to James' Bay and Moose Factory. The trip is principally to determine whether or not the proposed extension of the T. and N. O. Railway is a matter of economics.

It is expected that the trip will be made in three weeks if the weather is favorable.

Thousands of School Children Quickly Invade the Grounds When the Gates Open at Noon—Wonders of the Midway—Entry List Largest in History.

A BIG PROGRAMME FOR THIS EVENING

When the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition opened its gates to-day it was to admit thousands of jostling children who quickly spread over the grounds, lending an animated appearance to the scene of what is the big day of the year to them. Some of them made a quick run for the grand stand, determined to have the best possible seats for the coming performance and others clustered around the wonders of the midway. In the latter class, the swings and merry-go-rounds were bigger attractions than the side shows.

When the sporting events, which are specially for children, started, the big grand stand was packed to capacity, and many of the small Exhibition boosters were lined along the wire.

Young Bandsmen.

The feature of to-day's opening was the premier appearance of Adjutant A. Smith's young bandsmen. This aggregation of 40 bandsmen was recruited and trained by Adjutant Smith, and the band acquitted itself with honors on this its first appearance in Peterborough. The oldest boy in the band is 15 and the youngest 5. The latter is a stalwart side drummer, who is also proficient in leading the band. Adjutant Smith promised that the little fellow would have an opportunity during to-day's programme to show his proficiency in this way.

"See the Bunny."

Many of the children took an early opportunity to see the live stock, and the poultry house drew a great many. One little girl grew wildly excited as she came unexpectedly on several cases of white rabbits. She tugged at the arm of her older protector exclaiming, "See the bunny." An exhibit of bees busy in their combs is very attractive, and a little pony in the horse barn drew many admirers among the young people.

Baby Show.

Thursday afternoon, infants entered in the Baby Show and Contest at the Peterborough Fall Fair who are between the aged of 6 and 18 months, will be judged—girls at 2.30 and boys at 3.30 p.m. Six prizes for the winners will be awarded to the boys and girls alike, as follow:

1, Electric tea pot; 2, pair of blankets, and 3, 1 dozen Rogers teaspoons.

The presentation of prizes will take place each day after the babies have been judged. Prizes will be awarded at the band stand near the George Street entrance.

Mrs. James Kendry officiated today. Dr. Jessie Birnie will present the prizes to-morrow afternoon, and Mrs. Arthur Stevenson on Friday afternoon.

No entry fee is required, except the regular admission charge to the Fair at the gate, and the contest is open for entries from the city district, or surrounding counties.

Coal Demonstration.

The tent for the demonstration of the burning of the Alberta coal is situated near the eastern entrance of the Exhibition Grounds, and all are invited to sign the petition which will be there requesting that the railway companies establish a freight rate which will permit of this coal being delivered to all points in Ontario on a competitive basis.

Acknowledgment of the assistance rendered by Ed. Cooney, distributor of the three cars of Alberta domestic coal, by the Alberta Government, is hereby given, and also to J. J. Turner & Sons, Ltd., for the use of the tent.

More Concessions.

While every available space seemed taken up yesterday, more tents are being erected to-day, and still more were looking for the directors to arrange concessions.

Fruit and vegetables promise to over-run their bounds in a large marquee. They arrived in democrats, buggies, and automobiles this forenoon and again after dinner a long stream of conveyances waited outside the tent while their burdens were arranged.

Flowers are shown to advantage in a large marquee, where tables, tastefully arranged, allow a view of every bouquet.

Thursday's Programme.

The programme for Thursday announced by Webber Turner is as follows:

THE WAR IN RUHR FOUGHT BY WOMEN.

Situation To-Day Just Like That Which Ended the World War.

(By Carl D. Groat.)

BERLIN, Sept. 12. —(United Press.)— The Ruhr battle will be won or lost at the German fireside.

The situation in the Ruhr is just like the situation on the German front in 1918. Not the men folks for themselves collapsed and threw up their hands under the cramming drives of American, French and British. They quit because their women folk and their children at home were suffering and starving.

If the collapse of passive resistance comes, it will be a repetition of 1918 war history. It will be because the wife and the kids are pinched by the strangling pressure of French occupation with its attendant economic collapse in the Ruhr and the rest of Germany.

The wife, with the market basket and pay envelope, is fighting a battle as desperate as ever armed men fought.

She stands outside the "butter store" for her half-pound of margarine, waiting patiently two or three hours while "green police" hover about. She finds the margarine finally at some hundreds of thousands per pound and the pay envelope far from keeping pace with the devaluation of once proud currency. She comes forth weeping.

She tells it at the fireside that night, at a fireside which this winter is destined to know little or no coal.

That is what is gnawing at the passive resistance in the Ruhr, though the "hard-headed Westphalian' gets madder the more he is prodded. He doesn't want to quit. That is a certainty. He wants to quit only when he gets what he regards as a fair deal, which will leave him free to work without bayonets at his breast.

The government and the industrialist wish to hold on; so does the worker.

Whether the government can supply sufficient fats and potatoes, however, will tell the story. The fireside will be the decisive battleground.

RIVERS OF RUM FLOODING INTO UNITED STATES

Valleyfield, Que., Bootleggers' Paradise, Says Speaker at Montreal Presbytery.

THE LAW A FARCE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—If there is one place in the Province of Quebec which could lay claim to being the bootleggers' paradise it is Valleyfield, Rev. J. C. Gregg, a resident of that town, declared in addressing the Montreal Presbytery today on the evils of the present liquor administration. There are two Government commission houses there and the trade they do is astonishing, he maintaines. In fact, a considerable percentage of the population make their living by carrying out bottles at ten cents apiece to waiting autoists who store them in their cars nine hundred or more at a time.

"The way the law works is a farce," Mr. Gregg declared. "Present conditions would be a legitimate cause of war between Canada and the United States; we are literally pouring rivers of rum into the neighboring country."

There were equally frank and arresting indictments from other Presbyterian ministers who expressed their views following the reading of a report by Rev. Mr. Munro on the findings of a special committee appointed some time ago to go into the whole liquor situation in this province. Mr. Munro said the law was being conscientiously observed and carried out by its officers, but "with my own eyes I have seen convoys of bootleggers, yet they find it possible to operate in such a way as to be within the law."

AUTO ACCIDENT ON PROVINCIAL ROAD

Small Car Ran Into Heavy Truck and Trouble Ensued.

PORT HOPE, September 12. — Another bad accident occurred on the Provincial Highway near Roseberry Hill. The large truck of the Rodburne Cartage Co., of Belleville, was en route from Toronto to the eastern city, but upon reaching Roseberry Hill something went wrong and the truck had to be left on the side of the road, and later towed in to the garage.

A car with four men, Alfred Bicknell, John White, and Charles and William Duncan, all of Toronto, came along. Coming from the east was a large Hudson car, and the lights from this car blinded the driver of the former, and he drove into the rear of the big truck at full speed.

One side of the car was completely wrecked, the top fender and the running board were smashed off and both seats were also broken. Two members of the party were quite seriously injured, John White having several ribs broken and Alfred Bicknell had his leg broken.

Both men were taken to the Port Hope Hospital and are reported to be resting quite comfortably. Duncan brothers were badly shaken up, but are able to be about.

The men were on their way to Ennismore, where they had the contract for putting an asbestos slate roof on the Roman Catholic Church in course of erection there.

New Lamp Burns 94% Air

Eeats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U.S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. S. Johnson, 246 Craig Street, W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

POCKETS.

Pockets are shown in short fur coats of the jacquette type. Caracul takes first place in these short models which are from 26 to 30 inches long.

$200,000 Loss in Fire at Almonte

ALMONTE, September 12 (Canadian Press). — The loss caused by the destruction by fire of two mills of the Yorkshire Wool Stock Mills Co. here yesterday morning will amount to about $200,000, according to company officials who visited the ruins yesterday afternoon.

This is said to include $100,000 worth of machinery which was installed in the plant last year, the remainder covering the damage to buildings and stock.

The plants are said to be well covered by insurance.

The cause of the fire is believed to have been spontaneous combustion.

DEVELOP TRADE MEIGHEN URGES

Advocated Greater Preference Within the Empire.

WINNIPEG, September 12 (Canadian Press). — Development of trade would go far in improving present economic conditions, declared the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, the former Prime Minister of Canada, speaking at the joint luncheon of the Winnipeg Board of Trade and the Kiwanis Club here yesterday.

Canadians he said, should join in their efforts with Great Britain to lay the solid foundations of peace, until the spectre of war was less ominous than it now was.

Mr. Meighen urged greater preference within the Empire. Inter-Imperial trade should be developed and conferences should be directed along this line. Producers of the primary products, he said, were to-day bearing more than their share of the burden which came during the process of deflation following the war. The conferences should seek to bring all portions of the Empire together, and the system of preference would afford market stability and self-sustenance to producers throughout the Dominions.

Lindsay Is Assured of Coal Next Winter.

LINDSAY, September 12. — Coal dealers here declare that there should be no fuel shortage in the town if the American anthracite operators and their employees ratify the proposed agreement on 17th September.

They could not say what effect, if any, the miners' increase in wages would have on the retail price of authracite in Lindsay. Part of this increase might be absorbed by the mine owners and part might be added to the consumers' cost.

Local dealers had fairly good supplies on hand or contracted for, and a much longer cessation of work than had occurred would not have materially affected prices if the miners had not returned to work.

TUNNEL THROUGH ROCKIES.

DENVER, September 11 (Associated Press). — With the bonds financing the construction of the Moffatt tunnel through the Great Divide delivered to the New York buyers, the actual work on the big bore already has been started. Despite the fact that prospective bidders for the construction work were granted a delay in which to prepare their estimates, work at the tunnel site has not been postponed, according to President William P. Robinson of the Tunnel Commission.

"The tunnel will be well under way before snow flies," President Robinson said. "Eighty men are employed, about 40 at each portal. The camp is nearing completion; a water system is being installed which will be adequate for all purposes, and a preliminary power plant is being set up. All of these works are to be taken over by the successful bidder, and will have saved him time in his start before winter sets in. After that the work can proceed without hindrance."

Electric power lines will be extended to both portals of the projected tunnel before 15th October, instead of 15th November as planned originally, Mr. Robinson said. Duplicate lines which will carry current for 4,000 horse-power are being run so that there will be little likelihood of interruption of work from that source.

NATURE KEPT BEER COLD.

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y., (United Press)—Federal agents who raided the home of Joseph Dufrane in the hamlet of Constable assert he has the wisdom of the serpent. After a search of hours they found many bottles of beer hidden in the water in a nearby brook. The bottles were in a hole through which the ice cold water poured. Not only were the bottles hidden, but the beer was kept at just the right temperature for thirsty customers.

The increased cost of fine teas has tempted some to try cheap, inferior teas to their sorrow. It is a real economy to use "SALADA" since it yields to the pound more cups of a satisfying infusion, and besides has such a fresh, delicious flavor.

COURT WITHOUT INTERPRETER IN TRIAL OF HINDU

Predicament in Montreal Murder Case—Prisoner Realized His Position.

PROBLEM FOR COURT.

MONTREAL, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Unable to secure an interpreter in the case of Hossoim Cassum, Hindu sailor, charged with killing a fellow sailor named Said Salem on the S. S. Sheafmount when that ship was in port, the finding by the Grand Jury in the court of King's Bench could not be explained to him today. Cassum appeared to realize the gravity of his position, for he trembled and tears rolled down his cheeks as he gazed helplessly around. The court and officials are just as helpless, for unless they can find an interpreter there is no way to permit him to defend himself. Evidence of witnesses was taken at the preliminary hearing while the Sheafmount was in port, but this does not solve the problem of the defence, nor that of the prosecution.

Cassum was remanded to jail while a further effort to find an interpreter is being made.

DIVORCES COMMON IN UNITED STATES.

Have Increased 35 Per Cent. in Six Years — Marriages Fall Off.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The United States is increasingly becoming a country of common divorce, first returns of the marriage and divorce census taken last year by the bureau of the census reveal.

Complete returns from twenty-one states show an increase of 35 per cent. in the number of divorces registered in 1922 as compared with divorces in 1916, the year of the last similar census taken by the bureau.

At the same time, in the same twenty-one states marriages recorded in 1922 in these states was 445,838; in 1916 418,620. The increase noted is slight and officials credit it to the population increase in the six years intervening between the two censuses.

The number of divorces registered in 1922 in these states totaled 61,073 compared with 45,181 in 1916. This increase is held to be all out of proportion to population increase or increase in the number of marriages, and is held to be a reflection of the spread of divorce among all classes.

Only three states out of the twenty-one for which the bureau has complete returns show decreases in divorce.

HALF ACREAGE IN POOL.

REGINA, Sept. 11.— With only one clear day to go managers of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool campaign find they have just slightly more than half the required wheat acreage under contract. Contracts received to-day bring the total to a little more than three million acres.

Gross Earnings of C.N.R. Increase

MONTREAL, September 12 (Canadian Press). — The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railway for the week ending 7th September, 1923, were $4,781,656, being an increase of $100,189, or 2 per cent., as compared with the corresponding week of 1922.

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railway from 1st January to 7th September, 1923, have been $164,520,721.90, being increase of $17,675,303.80 as compared with the corresponding period of 1922.

FIRE DESTROYED BARN AT ORLAND.

Loss Was $2,000 When Flames Consumed Grain and Building—Threshing at Time.

ORLAND, Sept. 12.— While threshing was in progress on the farm owned by Walter Raycraft and tenanted by James Cowan, north of Orland at 4.30 yesterday evening a fire started in the barn and completely consumed it.

The threshing machine was in operation in the barn, but due to the presence of mind of its owner, Willet Simpson, it was hauled to safety, only the decks being partly burned.

Eight hundred bushels of grain has already been threshed, and five hundred were awaiting threshing. All of this was lost with the barn. There was very little machinery in the building at the time of the fire.

No insurance was carried on the contents, and none on the threshing machine, which was purchased two weeks ago. A small amount of insurance was carried on the barn. The loss will be about $2,000.

Only the intervention of a breeze saved the house and other buildings from destruction.

EDWARD COMES TO SEEK A REST

On His 6,000-Acre Ranch, Britain's Prince Will Forget All Court Worries

HIGH RIVER, Alberta, Sept. 12. —Edward, Prince of Wales, is coming to his extensive ranch 25 miles from here early in September for a real vacation.

This is the sole purpose behind his determination to spend some weeks roaming about on the 6,000 acres of beautiful farm and ranch land in the shade of the Canadian Rockies.

He sailed from England on Sept. 5 and his visit to Canada is not to be interfered with in any way by official engagements. In the past few months he has had plenty of those.

His world-wide popularity and his position as the probable future ruler of the British Empire, has caused countless demands to be made upon him to attend every conceivable kind of function and ceremony.

Until the end of October he is going to spend the time directing management of his pure bred horses, cattle and sheep; in riding over his extensive acres in which ambitious streams well filled with fatted trout ripple and partridge and other game is plentiful.

Engages Manager.

In 1919 the Prince became a land owner in Canada. At that time, when a guest of George Lane, native of Des Moines, Ia., on the latter's "Bar U" ranch, Edward became so enthusiastic about the country he asked Lane to arrange the purchase of the territory he now calls his own.

Prof. W. L. Carlyle, one of the best known agriculturists in the West, was engaged as manager, and soon after the Prince reached home he shipped pure-blooded stock to the E. P. ranch, across the sea.

Horses that came from the royal stud. Cattle of the King's own. Sheep of the finest.

The affection of the Prince for Canada is genuine. He likes to come here.

The way to approach the E. P. ranch is from Calgary to High River, 40 miles south, on the Canadian Pacific Railroad. From High River one has to drive southwest, a distance of 25 miles, through one of the richest grain growing and stock raising countries in North America.

His Retreat.

For the first 10 miles or so the road goes through an undulating country, where in the summer time great fields of wheat and rich pasture lands stretch as far as the eye can see. Then come generous grazing areas, where cattle stay out all winter and do well.

In the distance the jagged peaks of the Rockies clip the clouds and below, well wooded, are the foothills, with extensive belts of rich, natural grass on which horses, cattle and sheep thrive.

This then, is the country in which the heir to the British throne is coming. It will be his retreat from the tiring social and official duties which a crown prince inherits whether he wants it or no.

He is going to shut himself from the world, to get back to nature in its truest sense, to take a real vacation.

CLAIMS OF TWO WOMEN AGAINST GERMANY HEARD

Physical Wrecks As the Result of Acts in Submarine War.

CANADIAN CASES.

MONTREAL, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Evidence heard here today before the War Reparations Commission revolved about two women who, it was asserted, had been reduced to physical wrecks by the acts of the Germans in torpedoing the Hesperian and Lusitania in 1915. Mrs. Thomas Harris of this city had suffered paralysis of one side from being on the Hesperian when torpedoed, and had been bedridden for the last two years. In respect of this and of loss of personal effects by herself and daughter, she claimed $18,176.

Mrs. W. E. Emond of Quebec was the second claimant and she asked the sum of $30,000. Her doctor declared that she was now an "acute tuberculosis case" consequent on shock on hearing of the death of her husband on the Lusitania. Mr. Emond was the purchasing agent for a firm of Quebec furriers and he annually made the trip to Europe in their interests. The claim included $25,000 for loss of husband's support.

GOOD NEWS FOR BOYS.

Boys who want baseball outfits free should ask their mothers to give them Quaker Corn Flakes for breakfast. Every package of these crisp, delicious corn flakes contains a coupon. Boys saving these coupons can get catchers' mitts, baseman's mitts, fielders' gloves, baseballs—in fact a complete outfit for the team. Mothers, too, can get silverware and aluminum ware with these coupons. Quaker Corn Flakes are crisp, fresh and flavory.

Leipsic City, Germany, Reported Bankrupt.

LONDON, September 12 (Canadian Press). — The Daily Mail's Berlin correspondent states that it is understood that Chancellor Stresemann will offer France 30 per cent. of the shares of the total existing German industrial issues.

The same correspondent states that the city of Leipsic declared itself bankrupt yesterday.

IMPORTANT CHANGE IN RELATIONS OF FRANCE AND GERMANY COMING

Negotiations Have Been Informal But Are Believed to Have Produced "Something Tangible."

AWAIT FRENCH REPLY

BERLIN, Sept. 11.— By way of clarifying the situation, which has become greatly confused through conflicting reports of local and foreign origin, a semi-official communique issued late this afternoon admits that the Government is carrying on personal conversations with "all the powers," and that Chancellor Stresemann and the French Ambassador, M. De Margerite have also personally "exchanged thoughts" on the present situation.

That such informal and non-committal pourparlers are wholly in the nature of a reconnoitering movement is further asserted in the inspired bulletin, although a section of the press believes that they have sufficiently crystallized into something tangible to warrant the French envoy despatching an official of his staff to Paris for the purpose of apprising Premier Poincare with the nature of his oral discussions with the Chancellor. This emissary is expected back in Berlin to-morrow.

No Formal Notes.

It was stated officially that formal notes had not been exchanged between the German and French Governments. The official statement adds that the fundamentals of Germany's position on the Ruhr conflict have been clearly set forth in the Chancellor's recent speeches, and that if it requires further elucidation this will be forthcoming to-morrow when the Chancellor addresses the German editors at a public reception. The nature of the reply received from Paris, it is believed, will determine the character of the Chancellor's utterances.

None of the varying editorial conjectures attempts to fathom the Governments' direct position on the question of unconditionally calling off passive resistance, or the manner in which Herr Stresemann proposes to circumvent the ugly word "capitulation." Some of the more adventurous press prophets assume that the French concessions and works are to be resumed, in return for which there will be a vanishing of French and Belgian bayonets, although the occupation will for the time being continue, but in less objectionable form.

Ruhr Chief Concern.

For the present the German Government's chief concern appears to centre on the determination to put the Ruhr Basin back on a productive basis, realizing that the whole range of problems growing out of the occupation and the future adjust-

EXHIBITION IS READY TODAY FOR OPENING

Exhibitors Have Excelled All Previous Records For Beauty and Quality—Big Midway Set Up.

FEATURE EXHIBITS.

Judging by the number of exhibits already in place this morning, the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition will today open the biggest session of its history. All day long yesterday trucks and drays were busy hauling merchandise, lumber and decorations to the various buildings and marquees, and men were busy everywhere, intent on making the stalls and exhibits as attractive as their ingenuity and a lavish outlay of money could achieve.

One of the first exhibits completely installed was the Dominion Experimental Farm stall, and here one could spend an hour in profitable and interesting investigation of the products of farm and garden. Dozens of models of hen houses, backyard poultry houses, silos and pig pens, all complete to the smallest detail, promise to hold the rapt attention of small boys and their fathers alike—the boys considering the fun of making similar models and the fathers turning over in their minds the possibilities in a backyard poultry house with its quota of fowl.

The Post Office Department has installed a fully equipped branch where letters may be posted and followed through the routine until they are dropped in the mail sacks and carried out to their destinations.

In the Bell Telephone stall citizens may satisfy their curiosity as to what goes on in the exchange when a call is rung in, and may also learn the secret of the transmitter and receiver. Telephone instruments are shown in sections from which their construction is apparent. The model circuit, connecting a grocery store to a house, must be seen to be appreciated.

Peterborough Firms.

Only a few of the firms had progressed sufficiently with their decorations to indicate the nature of their exhibits. D. Belleghem & Sons will have a completely furnished bedroom; the brick fireplace in Richard Hall & Son's stall promises a comfortably conceived exhibit; J. R. Turnbull Co. have mattresses in all stages of construction to show the comfort and special features, and

TAXES PLACING HEAVY BURDEN ON INDUSTRIES

Ottawa Manufacturer Emphasizes the Imposts But Is Optimistic.

SPOKE AT FAIR.

OTTAWA, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—A call to municipal and Provincial authorities to realize just how heavy a burden taxation is on industries, was sounded at the Central Canada Exhibition directors' luncheon here today by R. Percy Sparks, President of the Canadian Association of Garment Manufacturers. He coupled his remarks on the subject with an optimistic speech on the commercial aspect of the country as a whole, and decried the "whisper of death" propaganda and calamity howling that he said was being promulgated.

"So far as I have been able to ascertain there is no need for pessimism in this country; Canada is not going to repudiate her debts and industry is prepared to put its back into business and carry on."

Excess of Exports.

Canada's exports amounted to $500,000,000, while home production of goods amounted to $400,000,000 in value. It was a mistake to be pessimistic in the face of these facts, said Mr. Sparks, as this country was bound to prosper commercially.

Mr. Sparks emphasised that the 8,000,000 to 9,000,000 people living in Canada were second to none, physically, mentally, or morally, and fully as capable as any, and from a commercial standpoint, Canadian manufactures could produce goods that would compete with the best in the world.

The Sales Tax.

The problem of taxation was the biggest one facing these people, said Mr. Sparks. Industry was really under a frightful burden, by this taxation. He instanced the new sales tax whereby the country expected to reap about $110,000,000 revenue next year. To four clothing manufacturing establishments in Ottawa, this meant roughly $150,000 in one year in extra taxation.

Mr. Sparks also spoke on the necessity for better distribution of merchandise. He advocated trade expeditions in conjunction with local exhibitions and said they were proving great successes in Europe.

for cleaning mirrors and glass—

To make mirrors crystal-clear, there is nothing to equal Bon Ami. It is made in both cake and powder form.

Put it on in a thin soapy lather. It will dry in a minute to a soft light powder, absorbing the dust, smears and finger-marks as it dries.

Wipe off this powder with a soft cloth and the high polish of the mirror will be left, clear and shining, without a trace of fog or a speck of lint.

So it is with everything. Bon Ami brightens up windows, nickel, aluminum, bathtubs, etc.

RESTAURANT PRICES.

A Chicago visitor writing to the Examiner complains about the high prices charged in local restaurants, comparing the rates here with those prevailing in the Windy City, with the result that the Chicago prices are shown to be materially lower.

There seems considerable ground for this complaint, as the Examiner has more than once pointed out.

It is difficult to understand, in view of the market price of many foodstuffs, why the restaurants continue to charge war-time prices for these articles.

There are many items on the menu that could be scaled down and still leave a handsome profit, but if deflation has been accomplished in any line of business it has certainly not made a very conspicuous appearance in the city's eating-houses.

Although it is surprising to find that the rates here average higher than in a large American city, where the overhead necessarily must be much greater than in Peterborough, our Chicago writer is not the first visitor who has had his eyes opened by the schedule of prices in local restaurants.

GET OUT THE FLAGS.

Peterborough's big Exhibition is under way, and with favourable weather there will be thousands of visitors in the city during the next three days.

Why not recognize that fact by giving Peterborough a gala appearance for the rest of the week?

Get out the flags and bunting all through the business section and let the world know the whole community is behind the Exhibition.

There is nothing like a little colour along the streets to give a holiday air to an event of this kind, and nothing that makes visitors feel glad they have come so much as the sight of the grand old flag snapping in the breeze.

There has not been enough co-operation along this line in the past.

Usually the uptown streets have failed to convey to the people from outside the impression that Peterborough regards the Industrial Exhibition as one of the outstanding events of the year.

Right now is a good time to break away from the old apathy and to give a demonstration of interest and faith in the Exhibition.

A lot of flags and bunting along the principal streets is one simple and effective way of providing such a demonstration.

PUBLICITY FOR THE TRENT.

With the tourist season, so far at least as navigation is concerned, nearly at end a retrospective glance at the volume of traffic that passed through the Trent the past three months shows what the efforts of the Trent Waterway Development Association to attract attention to the merits of the system have been splendidly successful.

A large number of gasoline cruisers made the pilgrimage through part at least of the waterway, and the owners of these craft were enthusiastic over the scenic charm of the lakes and rivers.

They will in turn act as publicity agents for the Trent, and next year, it is safe to say, the influx will be of still greater proportions.

Much of the credit for the launching out of the Trent Waterway Association must be given to Mr. Gordon K. Frazer of Burleigh Falls and to Senator Bennett of Midland, both enthusiastic admirers of the Trent district, who have been untiring in their efforts.

The effect of the formation of the association has not been merely local.

So successfully has it functioned that in other districts of Ontario similar organizations have been formed, with the assistance of Secretary Leon Frazer of the Trent Association and other officers, and the result is that Ontario's waterways are receiving much more publicity than at any period in the history of the Province.

Eventually such publicity will mean that many thousands of dollars will be spent in Ontario by motor boat tourists who would never have thought of visiting this section of Canada had it not been for the propaganda of these associations.

"SELLING" THE HEAVYWEIGHTS.

Somehow when it comes to professional sport our neighbors across the line leave the impression that their much acclaimed business shrewdness is confined to commercial circles.

The manner in which the promoters of prize fighting, especially in the heavyweight class, succeed in unloading juicy lemons upon the public illustrates our point.

The Dempsey-Carpentier "fight," billed as the battle of the century, was a demonstration of what can be accomplished by the judicious use of printer's ink.

The financial success scored was, in fact, as outstanding an example of the value of publicity as can be found anywhere.

Carpentier was a "set-up" for Dempsey—all the experts knew it—but the public was guiled into believing that the Frenchman had a chance.

The revival of Willard was another ripe joke. The big fellow was through years ago, but he was sold to the fight fans for a very substantial sum.

And now comes the Dempsey-Firpo match.

The feeling will not down that the "Wild Bull of the Pampas" is being rushed into meeting Dempsey before he has improved enough to have a show of winning.

Physically perhaps Firpo is the most dangerous adversary the champion has met.

Give him another year's experience and the clash would be justified.

Even now he may win.

But Dempsey, a business man first and a fighter afterward, wants the conditions as easy as possible and the dollar champion has the last word.

The public seems to be swallowing the propaganda just as greedily as ever, too.

THE EXHIBITION IS OPEN.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition opened today, and for the balance of the week local and district interest will centre in the big Fair.

Reports all indicate that the Exhibition is ahead of the best previous standard in practically all departments.

The exhibits in livestock and agricultural products promise rare competition and a big task for the judges.

The special exhibits of the manufacturers and merchants outstrip in magnitude and variety anything in this line ever shown at the Peterborough Industrial.

For those who believe that the Midway makes the Fair, there is a wealth of attractions, rides, special shows and spectacular features that will provide endless amusement.

The programme of vaudeville in front of the grandstand will stand comparison with the best to be seen anywhere, and there will be plenty of horse racing, fireworks displays in the evening and a host of other entertainment features that will make this year's Exhibition a memorable one.

The Exhibition is there, larger, more pretentious, better equipped, richer in features, more lavish in attractions than ever before.

It is your Exhibition—and its success depends in the last analysis upon you.

For after all the real barometer of progress is located in the ticket office.

Unless there is a steady increase in patronage it is idle to look for a steady yearly improvement in the Exhibition itself.

A record attendance this year will be a mandate to the directors to plan even bigger things for the Fair twelve months hence.

Remember the slogan—"50,000 for 1923."

NEW CONDITIONS AND PROBLEMS.

It is curious that in Canada, with its wide, unoccupied areas and great store of undeveloped resources, there should be fear of immigration. Never was the country so prosperous as when immigrants came freely. They bring both labor and capital. Both are essential to national progress and prosperity. In extreme cases an excessive supply of labor may force wages to a lower level, but with an under supply both industry and agriculture languish. When all the labor that is required can be had at reasonable wages industries expand and capitalists are adventurous and confident. When cities and towns are prosperous, so also are the rural communities. Moreover, agriculture is doubly punished when wages are high enough to drain the counties of farm workers. Beyond this lies the farther truth that on this continent there can be no general prosperity unless the farmers have good harvests and satisfactory prices for their products.

What is not generally recognized is that the collapse of Europe has vitally affected agriculture in the United States and Canada. A decrease of purchasing power in Europe means a lesser demand for the products of the New World and a congestion in home markets. For some years and probably for a long period, Canadian farmers in greater degree than ever before will have to depend upon the consuming capacity of Canadian commercial and industrial communities. The whole tariff problem assumes a new aspect in face of the altered conditions in Europe and the comparative exclusion of Canadian products from American markets. It is natural for the farmers of this country to desire reduction of American duties, but we cannot control American policy. There is nothing in Canadian policy to justify the prohibitory duties which are now levied by Washington against the farm products of Canada. Congress answered the demand of American farmers and with the depression in agriculture which now prevails in the United States it is doubtful if the agricultural schedule of the American tariff will be reduced in the near future. There is dissatisfaction with the American tariff, but neither party in Congress, nor even the farm group, seriously suggest that agriculture shall be deprived of the high protection which it now enjoys. Canadian farmers, therefore, must think of the home market and the markets of the Empire. Unquestionably a preference for the Dominion in British markets would be of great advantage to Canadian farmers, although neither the Liberal party nor the Progressives profess any sympathy with the demand of Australia for inter-Imperial preferences in so far as food products are concerned.

To a greater degree than is generally recognized in the older Provinces the West is turning towards "mixed farming." Year by year Western farmers produce more of the products which were drawn from the East when they were content to confine themselves to wheat growing. Anyone who reads The Grain Growers' Guide will be impressed by the rapidly changing character of Western agriculture. But Western towns and cities must grow in population if the farmers are to have an adequate home market and if they are to get the best results from their labors. Industries follow population and capital goes where there are producers and consumers. If Western lands are settled there will be a proportionate growth in the commercial and industrial centres. An energetic immigration policy, therefore, is in the direct interest of Western farmers, for nothing is more certain than that near markets are more profitable than remote markets and that as the commercial communities grow farm lands increase in value and farms can be devoted to a greater variety of products. So with increase of population freight rates can be reduced and local and Provincial obligations—now very heavy in Western Canada—be materially lightened.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Judging by the columns some Canadian newspapers are publishing, Lord Renfrew will have about as much privacy as a gold fish during his visit to the Dominion.

The Children's Aid Society's work on behalf of neglected and dependent children should commend Saturday's tag day to every resident of the district.

Harry, Leon Wilson's Chinaman, with his "can happen" philosophy, is recalled to mind by the escape of five convicts from the Kingston Penitentiary. A feat of that kind would be considered almost impossible in view of the precautions taken.

Remember, it's your Exhibition—your attendance will help to make it a bigger event next year.

Judges at the Baby Show at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition will be in a position to appreciate the difficulties confronting the League of Nations.

Judging by the size of his advertising appropriation, Henry Ford is determined to have the present period known in history as the Tin Age

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—There was a good active demand for butcher cattle this morning and trade was looking distinctly better than last week. The run of fresh cattle was light and commission men report a fairly good clean-up, in contrast to conditions this time last week, when there was a big holdover in a slow and draggy market. In the butcher section good weighty steers are selling up to $7.25 and $7.75. Good loads of butcher steers and heifers, handy weights, $6.50 to $7.00. Good medium butchers from $5.75 to $6.25; common light butchers, 4.50 to $5.00.

There is plenty of inquiry for feeders and stockers, but for the present trade is but slow. There are some good western feeders offering from $4.75 to $5.25, and western heifers around $4.00 to $4.50.

Fat cows steady around $4.25 to $4.50, and choice at $5.00.

Bulls slow.

Calves steady.

Lambs a little firmer at $12.50 to $12.75.

Hogs weak $9.25 f.o.b. bid.

DECLINE IN CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Wheat followed tradition to-day and declined in price. According to a popular belief, this was a regular calendar date for the beginning of a bear campaign. Besides, Canadian hedging sales were said to be enlarging. The market closed unsettled 1-4 and 3-8c to 3-4c net lower, with December ot $1.05 3-8 to $1.05 1-8, and May at $1.10 3-4 to $1.10 7-8. Corn finished at a range varying from 5-8c decline to 1-8 and 1-4c advance, oats 1-8c down, and provisions at 10c lower to 5c gain.

Predisposed to be bearish to-day because backed by experience in former years, wheat traders showed from the outset a quite general tendency to learn to the bear side of the market. The fact that the Government crop report showed a larger yield of domestic Spring wheat than had recently been looked for counted as an additional influence on values, but aside from the calendar the chief incentive to sell came from indications that the Canadian crop movement would rapidly increase unless weather conditions became very unfavorable. In this connection gossip was current that considerable Canadian wheat would be imported into this country at a profit and be delivered on Minneapolis December contracts, duty paid.

Something of a right-about-face in the wheat market here took place during the late trading, however, and part of the price declines which had been witnessed earlier were offset. Shorts found offerings surprisingly light toward the end of the day and rallies were encouraged by reports that about 1,000,000 bushels had been bought to go to Europe, mostly Canadian wheat for deferred shipment.

Corn and oats averaged lower in sympathy with wheat. The bearish aspect of the Government report as to corn was also given attention.

Provisions lacked support despite higher quotations on hogs.

WINNIPEG CATTLE.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press)—Receipts 370 cattle and calves, 130 hogs and 50 sheep and lambs.

The offerings on the cattle market were fairly well cleaned up yesterday and the demand was keen this morning for the limited supplies available. Prices were firm to 25 cents higher for top grades. Lambs sold at $9.25 and sheep around $6.50.

The hog market was steady at $11.00 for thick smooths and $12.10 for select bacons.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press)—The feature of the domestic each grain market was the continued good demand for Canadian western barley, but spot supplies of oats were easier with all grades reduced ½c per bushel. There was no important change in the flour market. A feature of the mill feed market was the advance of $2 per ton in the price of Manitoba bran. Other prices ruled firm and unchanged. Trade in standard rolled oats was steady. There is no change in the baled hay market. The feature of the egg market was the further strength in fresh eggs which were marked up 3 cents a dozen. The market in butter and cheese was quiet.

QUEBEC DAIRY PRICES.

ST. PASCHEL, Que., Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press)—At the meeting of the Board there were 164 packages butter and 105 boxes cheese offered. The butter sold at 34½c per pound and the cheese at 23c per pound.

NOTHING DEFINITE RE WAGE INCREASE.

Head International Nickel Company Corrects Statement Published in Toronto.

SUDBURY, Ont., September 12 (Canadian Press). — Commenting on statements in Toronto papers that the International Nickel Company has posted notices last week of increased wages from 1st October, Superintendent J. C. Nicholls last night stated that this was slightly incorrect.

A scheme is now under way to grant increases to underground men from 1st October and possibly some other branches may be considered, but nothing has been definitely agreed upon nor has the move been actuated by competition with Porcupine.

"We expect to increase pay, because we feel the men have it coming, and for no desire to compete with Timmins," said Nicholls.

Referring to the machinists' wage increase of 50 cents daily is evidently meant to refer to drill operators.

Other nickel companies say no definite wage plan for the winter has been decided yet.

RUSSIAN TREASURES SOLD.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—(Associated Press).—The vast collections of jewels and art treasures of the Romanoff family gradually are finding their way to the many auction rooms of London and Paris. They have come in such abundance during the last two years that they cease to incite curiosity or to bring more than the normal price for such articles.

Recently the most remarkable collection of 42 old French snuff boxes in existence, once the property of the Romanoff family, was sold in London for about $50,000, considered a low price.

One of the specimens, a gold oval Louis XV. box, beautifully chased, with a miniature of Frederick II. in the lid and a small watch in the bottom, said to have been presented to Voltaire by Frederick II., brought $5,000.

Your Health is at Stake if You Suffer from Constipation!

Every man, woman and child who has constipation or constipation symptoms should leave no stone unturned to get instant relief! Keep away from the dangers of pills and catharties, which are almost as much to be dreaded as constipation itself. Your physician will recommend Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL BRAN—and it is Kellogg's Bran that will give permanent relief if eaten regularly.

Most cases of Bright's and diabetes can be traced to constipation; in its milder form constipation is responsible for sick headache, nausea, pimples, sour breath, etc. And, we say right here—and guarantee what we say—that Kellogg's Bran, if eaten regularly, will give you permanent relief.

Kellogg's Bran is wonderful as a food as well as wonderful as a natural means of relieving constipation. Kellogg's Bran contains important mineral salts; it contains elements that are necessary in making bone, tissue and blood—yet it acts as a sweeper, cleanser and purifier.

Eat Kellogg's Bran as a cereal. You'll enjoy its nut-like flavor. Or, sprinkle it on or mix it with hot or cold cereals. Many like it cooked with hot cereals. Two tablespoonfuls of bran should be added in each instance. You have missed much not to have eaten Kellogg's Bran made into muffins, raisin bread or many other bakery batches. Recipes on every package. Prominent hotels, restaurants and clubs serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran.

The Midway.

Everyone has been remembered in the Midway. From the tiniest tot taking in his first Exhibition to the pessimist who has "seen it all," there will be something to attract everyone. Swing boats, the old favorites with those of every age; aeroplane rides that thrill; merry-go-rounds driven by the latest machinery; and a giant ferris wheel, are only a few of the features.

An attractive part of the Midway is the small merry-go-round for the very tiny visitors, with springs to hold them in just as safely as in a go-cart.

Among the sideshows are a circus where "the only two-horned rattlesnakes in Canada" make their home, and where Maggie Murphy, "the only monkey born and raised in Canada," is also to be found; a reptile show; a high striker strength tester; ball games, diamond dart games, houpla, "the battlefields of Europe," and many others of great variety.

Alfredo and Jeanette of the vaudeville show will perform in front of the grandstand in comedy aerial, trapeze and ground acts. One of the members of this aggregation yesterday remarked on the cleanliness of the Exhibition Grounds and their suitability for Exhibition purposes.

Livestock Buildings.

Four horses had arrived last night and were housed in the horse barn, which was sweet and clean with its new bedding of straw and its clean walls. By opening time today the cattle barns, poultry building, stables and all the other livestock exhibition buildings will be filled to capacity. Several horses which will compete in the races were given a try-out over the course yesterday and this morning.

A Picturesque Scene.

The scores of marquees and tents with their bright decorations form a picturesque setting for the opening today. The new bandstand, near the side entrance, will attract large numbers. Seats have been provided for those listening to the music.

The soldiers' monument, the ridderless horse, is again in position, beautifully surrounded with flowers.

The Baby Show, which promises to be one of the features of the Exhibition, will be held in the large brown marquee just inside the main entrance to the grounds.

BE CAUTIOUS OF SUBSTITUTES

There are several medicines on the Canadian market to relieve Kidney and Rheumatic Ailments, but there is one preparation that seldom fails to give quick relief and for that reason Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills are in a class by themselves.

This statement is vouched for by well known residents of this city. For instance Mr. Arthur Pinch, well known in the city, states that he was unable to work and suffered severe pains from backache, but after using three boxes of Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills, he was able to go back to work and is as well as ever.

Mr. Thos. Oldham, another well known Simcoe street resident, has no hesitation in saying that for Kidney and Rheumatic Ailments, there is no equal of Dr. Banta's Pills.

Never neglect Kidney Ailments as they are liable to lead to other complications, but always keep on hand a box of Banta's Pills. If they fail to do what we claim for them, return your box to your dealer and your money will be refunded.

ANNIVERSARY SUNDAY AT RYLSTONE CHURCH.

Services Largely Attended — Rev. Dr. McTavish Preached.

The anniversary services at the Presbyterian church, Rylstone, on Sunday last were largely attended, in spite of the rain the church was filled at both services.

Dr. McTavish, Ph.D., of Belleville gave two strong addresses. His morning sermon was on The Church. In the evening he spoke on the Reflex Influence of Mission.

The origin of the Rylstone Congregation goes back, as so many of our congregations do, to the faithful efforts of the student missionary. The exact date is not known when the services were commenced by a Mr. D. M. McGillivray, a student of Queen's University. After him a Mr. Wiliam Campbell, a lay missionary, conducted services from house to house for a number of years, during which time the congregation was organized and a church erected.

After this there labored as student missionaries Messrs. Taylor A. Cumberland. The congregation then for a period of a year was supplied from Queen's College.

The first ordained minister to take charge of the oversight of the congregation was the Rev. David Beatty.

He was succeeded by Messrs John McLeod and Mills, students of Queen's. It was during Mr. McLeod's term of service, nearly forty years ago, that Rylstone was united with St. Andrew's Church, Burnbrae, as one pastoral charge, and the united congregation called the Rev. J. Steele, B.A. to be their minister.

Mr. Steele was succeeded by the Rev. John Moore, B.A., who labored faithfully until the fall of 1904, when he received a call to Springbank, in the Presbytery of Sarnia.

Mr. Moore was followed by Rev. J. E. Smith, B.D., from March 9, 1905, to October 6, 1912, when he was succeeded by the Rev. C. C. Salesbury, now of Hemmingford, Quebec.

The present minister Rev. J. J. Black succeeded Mr. Salesbury, on June 22, 1918.

Rylstone, like so many other rural charges, has suffered in recent years by the removal of a number of families to the cities or towns. Nevertheless, it is still strong and vigorous.

The united congregations of Seymour and Rylstone (outside the cities of Kingston and Beleville, constitute one of the strongest pastoral charges in the Presbytery of Kingston.

98 OUT OF EVERY 100 WOMEN BENEFITED

An Absolutely Reliable Statement Important to Every Woman

Remarkable Results Shown by a Nation Wide Canvass of Women Purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. 50,000 Women Answer

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

Replies, to date, have been received from over 50,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES. That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take the medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it—only two women out of 100 received no benefit—98 successes out of a possible 100.

Did you ever hear anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Of course we know that our medicine does benefit the large majority of women who take it. But that only two out of 100 received no benefit is most astonishing.

It only goes to prove, however, that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure all—one that is made by the most scientific process; not from drugs, but from a combination of nature's roots and herbs, can and does do more good than hastily prepared prescriptions.

You see, we have been making, improving and refining this medicine for over 50 years until it is so perfect and so well adapted to women's needs that it actually has the virtue to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who take it.

Its reliability and recognized efficiency has gained for it a sale in almost every country in the world—leading all others.

Such evidence should induce every woman suffering from any ailment peculiar to her sex to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and see if she can't be one of the 98. The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario.

IMPORTANT CHANGE

ment of reparations will involve long and tedious negotiations in which the industrialists are expected to play an important part.

The newspapers which represent the coalition aprties in the present Government appear wholly resigned to the impending turn in the Ruhr conflict, while the nationalist organs strongly suspect that the Government is about to "capitulate." They assert that the Socialists are exercising a dictatorial influence in the Cabinet, which, from the beginning, "bore the stamp of a Cabinet of surrender."

A Bitter Pill.

That French participation in German ecoonmics will be a bitter pill to swallow is the opinion of the Boersen Zeitung, which sees in such an arrangement, "an economic enslavement of Germany," whereby Germany will probably be forced to play a secondary role. The Bourse organ, however, believes that once France has been accorded an active share in German industry she will naturally have a fundamental interest in Germany's productiveness, although, "it will cost Germans heavy political and psychological struggles—they are reconciled to such conditions."

The Mark in Abyss.

The political situation and the Government's new currency programme were not without influence on the Bourse to-day, when the dollar rate touched 88,000,000 in late unofficial trading, despite the fact that the New York quotation was more favorable to the mark.

Bonds For Reparations.

LONDON, Sept .11.— Chancellor Stresemann will announce on Wednesday, according to a Berlin despatch to the Central News, that thirty per cent. of the new shares of the German industrial undertakings will be issued for reparations.

CREWS DESERT AT N. Y.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—(Associated Press).—The desertions of firemen from British ships in New York, says the Daily News, has reached such a serious stage that the principal shipping companies are considering the advisability of taking strong action. One phase of the matter which is inexplicable to British shipping officials, is the ease with which deserters get ashore and pass the American immigration cordon. Emigrants who happen to be in excess of the quota fail to get beyond Ellis Island, but practically destitute seamen have no difficulty at all in entering American territory.

The captain of the Royal Mail steamer "Osca" just arrived at Southampton from New York said, "mine is the only ship that has got out of New York in the last two months without paying a substantial bonus to keep firemen aboard. It has become a scandal."

MANGANESE IN AFRICA.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—(Associated Press).—A huge belt of manganese, about 20 feet wide and four miles long, has been found at Hekpoort, near the West Rand, in South Africa.

The belt is already being exploited by two farmers who own part of the land through which it runs. It is said to be of almost pure manganese, and is one of the most important mineral finds recorded in the Dark Continent.

Reservoir broke in Pueblo, Colo., and all we hope is that it washed away some picnic ants.

The Point of Contact

THERE'S a simple catch in the familiar phrase that tells how the world beats a path to the door of the man who makes a better mouse-trap.

The maker of anything, if he is to win the plaudits of the world, must not only manufacture a superior product, but must also let folks know of his achievements. He must point out just why his mouse-trap, his automobile or his shaving cream is better than his neighbor's. He must advertise.

Advertising is the point of contact between the man who makes something and the man who wants something. Through an advertisement, a manufacturer can tell you in a few short minutes all you want to know about the article or the service he has to offer.

This newspaper is constantly full of ideas that other men and women have thought out for your personal benefit. Fail to read the advertisements and you remain in ignorance of countless products that would make life easier, happier and more interesting for you and your entire family.

Advertising gives you news of the latest and best things made—with word as to what they will do, what they cost and where to get them. Think of all you miss when you overlook the advertisements.

25c. ON DOLLAR TO DEPOSITORS

Immediate Payment of This Amount to Home Bank Victims Proposed to Sir Frederick Taylor.

TORONTO, September 12 (Canadian Press). — A definite proposal for the immediate payment of 25 cents on the dollar to the Home Bank depositors by other banks, pending the report of the curator, has been made to Sir Frederick Williams Taylor, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, by a banker in this city.

No reply has yet been received.

Justice Fisher, Judge in Bankruptcy, is also waiting to hear from Curator A. R. Barker before he deals with several petitions for winding up orders lodged in his Court. His Lordship is inclined to the opinion that it is in the public interest not to grant an order for winding up the proceedings until the exact financial position of the bank is known.

FOUR CONVICTS STILL AT LARGE

Penitentiary Breakers Are Supposed to Be Concealed in a Bush East of Kingston.

KINGSTON, September 12 (Canadian Press). — The four convicts from the Provincial Penitentiary, supposedly in the bush a few miles east of Kingston, were still at large this morning. Their pursuers think they have not travelled far, and a cordon of searchers is gradually closing in on the area in which the convicts are believed to be secreted.

The number of the guards has decreased, as the prison could not spare the number sent out yesterday. It will become the task of the Provincial Police to locate the missing desperadoes if they are out of this immediate district.

Edward McMullen, who was recaptured, declared that the guards would never have taken him alive had he not been hit by a shot from a revolver used by Guard Allan Forsythe, who chased the convicts in an automobile.

When back in the penitentiary, McMullen said that they figured they would be able to secure a high-powered car from in front of the home of Mrs. H. W. Richardson, who lives close by the prison. McMullen said he understood that Mrs. Richardson was a millionaire, and that he was sure that the car would be close at hand for their use.

McMullen and Slade, or Pat Ryan, as he was better known, were regarded as two of the worst convicts in the prison, and ever since they have been in the institution they have been closely watched, as it was believed that they were working on some scheme to gain their freedom.

The dense smoke screen was brought about by the use of oil, according to the opinion shared by several prison officials. I t was no chance experiment, apparently, but a well-thought-out scheme. Just how the convicts obtained the oil for their purposes, will probably remain a mystery until the official investigation is held.

The prisoners in the prison were very jubilant over the escape of their five comrades, and during the night the guards in the corridors of the dormitories were continually jeered at by many of the convicts, while an occasional cheer was given. The prison staff was in a tense state of excitement and it was feared for some time that a general outbreak would take place.

Bloodhounds for Trail.

Warden Ponsford is in communication with A E Merriman, postmaster at Collins Bay who owns a valuable bloodhound. An effort will be made to obtain the services of one or more of these dogs in the organised search.

A Glenburnie farmer, J. Cashman, reported that he heard two or more men passing by his house during the night towards Ferguson's Thicket.

There were at least two in the party, because the farmer heard them talking. Shortly afterwards he heard some shots, indicating that some members of the posse had sighted the men and fired at them.

FORTUNE LEFT TO PRINCESS ARTHUR

British Royalty Gets Bulk of Earl Farquhar's $2,000,000 Estate.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Earl Farquhar, who died recently left the bulk of his four hundred thousand pounds estate to a member of the British Royal family. Half the estate goes to Princess Arthur of Connaught, whose father Duke of Fife, lent the helping hand to Farquhar in the days of his youth. Lord Carnegie, heir of Earl of Southesk, will receive fifty thousand pounds provided he marries Princess Maud daughter of Princess Royal, whose engagement already has been announced.

King George gets two sugar casters and anything else he may select from the Farquhar residence, while Queen Mary receives Louis XVI commode and everything owned by Farquhar at White Lodge, Richmond Park.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

The Opera House Changes Hands—Community Hall Wanted—Personals.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 12.—Capt. Hyland, the new proprietor of the Opera House, has a gang of men renovating the interior of the building and the place will be formally opened, under the captain's management, on Friday evening. The picture to be shown at the initial performance will be announced later.

The opera house will be fitted up throughout like a modern theatre. Opera chairs to the number of 250 will be placed in the centre of the auditorium, with an aisle on each side. Along the walls the chairs already in use will do service again. A new ticket chopper is among the equipment

Capt. Hyland realizes that there is no other building in the town, where dances and similar social functions will be held and says he will make provision to accommodate all those who desire to use the theatre for this purpose. The opera chairs will be fastened to the floor but in such a manner as to permit of their quick removal. Any society desiring the use of the theatre for a dance can have it after the evening show from 9.30 or 10 o'clock. The place will still be available for the holding of large public meetings or for amateur theatrical performances. With regard to the latter Capt. Hyland says that once a week or so there will be amateur performers, prizes to be given to the best of these. In this way he hopes to encourage the dramatic talent for which the young people of Campbellford are famous.

Want Community Hall

Clarence Booker, organizer and president of the Twelve O'Clock Club, the society that gave so many popular and successful dances last winter, donated $50 at the end of the season to the Memorial Fund of the I.O.D.E., the suggestion was made that this memorial take the form of a community hall, with an arch or a tablet; in commemoration of the young men who fell in the war. Mr. Booker says this plan has been adopted in other towns not so large as Campbellford, Warkworth, and Havelock for example and the memorial so erected is a benefit to the survivors as well as to others in the community.

Councillor Allan's Plan

Councillor R. J Allan advocates the erection of a municipal building, containing offices for the employees of the town, a community hall and a lock-up. All of these are now lacking in Campbellford. There is no place in which any person placed under arrest can be detained pending a hearing without danger to his health.

Councillor Allan would have the building proper erected by the town, the memorial part to be left to the members of the I.O.D.E. who have a considerable fund on hand for the purpose. A tablet or an appropriate arch over the entrance is Councillor Allan's idea.

Council Makes Tour.

Members of the council made an auto trip around the town yesterday morning to look over certain streets the residents of which are asking for improvements Among the places visited was the residence of James Alexander, at the corner of Garry and Portage streets, one of the first districts to be settled in Campbellford Mr. Alexander, who owns a fine market garden, erected and moved into his house 41 years ago, when there was not another building between him and where the paper mill now stands, a district which now forms the heart of the municipality. At that time the Grand Trunk Railway ran along the north side of Sebastopol street. Mr. Alexander was section foreman for ten years and worked the same length of time in the ranks, never missing a day for any reason in 20 years. He worked nights to clear the land, which is now covered with fruit trees and vegetables.

Garry street was never properly laid out by a surveyor and its width varies from 30 to over 50 feet. Some of the fences encroach on the street line, and this is one reason why there has been little expenditure on the improvement of the roadbed or the construction of sidewalks.

After looking over the ground yesterday Mayor Meyers promised that a gully alongside Mr. Alexander's residence would be filled up and a tile drain put in to divert the water which now flows through the property every time there is a heavy rain or a spring freshet. Garry street, too, it was added, would be surveyed and a sidewalk built from it along Portage street to Mr. Alexander's gateway.

Consolation for Losers.

The consolation games for the bowlers who lost out in the recent prize contests held by the bowling club resulted in a victory for T A. Stewart and I. A. Humpries, who in the finals defeated Walter S. Wiggins and P. J. Kelly by a score of 14 to 11. The prizes were China cups and saucers donated by Mr. Wiggins.

In the preliminary Messrs. Stewart and Humphries defeated Messrs Thompson and Baker of Warkworth by a score of 12 to 8.

The visitors then went up against R. J. Allan and J. Freure ,winning by 12 to 9.

Mr. Wiggins has put up for competition in singles the tobacco pouch which he won last week and this will be played for Friday. Everybody is able to repeat his remarkable performance of last week and win the pouch, which is a companion piece of the pipe, which he has already captured, the championship trophy in the singles.

26 Years in Dairy Business.

William Locke of Seymour shipped 43 boxes of cheese from here to Belleville yesterday, other dairymen also making shipments to the same city.

Mr. Locke says he can see no reason why the patrons of local factories cannot get as much for their cheese as is paid in Belleville, the price here being always at least a fraction less at every meeting of the Board since the beginning of the season. He has been a patron of the Prince of Wales factory, and recalls the fact that the first price he ever received was 9 cents a pound.

Left for Napanee.

Mrs. Walter S. Wiggins left yesterday for Napanee, where she will act as department judge in the women's and art sections of the Fall Fair in that town.

RURAL SCHOOL FAIR IN CAVAN

Young Peoples' Event at Ida Attracted 300 Visitors Tuesday Afternoon

MILLBROOK, Sept. 12. — The first of the rural school fairs for this district was held at Ida (North Cavan), on Tuesday afternoon, probably about three hundred people being in attendance. Owing to the short time since schools re-opened the teachers have had little opportunity for training their pupils in physical culture, marching, etc., or for preparing costumes, school "yells," songs and so forth, and the scholars have had an equally short time for preparing their exhibits in the various classes. Probably for this reason the showing in the tent was not as large as usual, though as far as quality is concerned no fault could be found, and the general spirit of enthusiasm grew considerably as the afternoon advanced.

The Women's Auxiliary of St. John's church had their booth as usual on the grounds, serving a most appetizing diner and tea at noon and again at 5 p.m., and doing a good trade in ice cream cones, etc., in the hours between.

Captain George Adkin, of Port Hope, and Colonel Odell, inspector for the district, were judges of the school parade, and the former, in announcing the results, complimented the teachers highly upon the efficiency of their work. The appearance of all six schools represented was most creditable, but possibly the "Teddy Bears," because of the novelty of their costumes, attracted an unusual amount of attention and applause. The "Teddys" came from "Beechwood," S. S. No. 4, Miss Mary Rogers, teacher, and this school won the silver cup for the highest average number of points per pupil, for the last three years, of any school in the district. This is the first year the Department has provided a cup for the North Cavan Fair.

The prize winners were as follows:

FALL OPENING AT RICHARD HALL'S

From eight to ten o'clock last night, the store of Richard Hall & Son, Limited, was crowded, and the pavement in front of the building thronged, with people who attended their formal autumn opening. Every department of the big store made a display of new fall goods, with a particularly dainty showing of fine lingerie. Autumn leaves in bright colors decorated the interior, with red and green foliage, and purple grapes, making bright spots of colour against the brown and cream background of the big window where models paraded all evening in the latest modes. The window display was the centre of attention all evening for numbers of men and women.

Afternoon dresses, wraps, heavy coats and evening dresses were shown, with appropriate headgear. Dark shades predominate in the Fall costumes and coats, with browns much in favor. Navies and blacks are also greatly in demand. There is much embroidery and braiding on the dresses, many of which are of the "wrap around" variety, with front length openings and unbelted, straight lines. Long sleeves are shown on the majority of the dresses, many of them of the tight type, with rows of self-material buttons. Coats are full, with narrow belts and huge shawl collars of fur.

Three evening gowns were shown: a pale blue sleeveless satin, studded with rhinestones, an orchid georgette, heavily beaded with long crystals, and a jade satin, outlined with black beads, the skirt draped with black radium lace.

In the afternoon gown section, there was a lovely model of black moleskin crepe, the large flowing sleeves composed of green cut velvet. Another black moleskin crepe had wide pleated velvet outlining the short sleeves and skirt hem, and a particularly striking gown was made of Trafalgar crepe, also in black, the side panel, deep skirt ruffle pleating, the bodice and skirt top of brocaded crepe. A narrow collar in the new Belgian lace that has a resemblance to the old Honiton braid effects, finished this beautiful model.

Brown Poiret twill heavily braided, with narrow belt, was shown in one gown, and a handsome navy tricotine had a matelasse bodice and sleeves, the latter finished with the new square elbow cuff that fastens over with invisible domes. A cord girdle with heavy fringed ends completed this dress.

A navy tricotine coat dress in black had its entire skirt section done in heavy braiding, and closed at the waist with a King Tut ornament.

Black, browns and navies hold the field in the wrap and coat section, with much fur on the collars. One wrap with curious little cuff sleeves was made entirely of black caracul, its shawl collar composed of finch. A navy bolivia cloth wrap had pointed side effect, and many black silk braiding with an opossum shawl collar.

A coat of brown burella cloth had shawl collar and small pocket tops of black fox, the pockets ending in simulated panels of raised cord, formed of the same material.

Hats worn with the wraps and dresses showed the seasons tendency toward dark shades in wood brown and blacks. Little, semi-poke effects alternate with dashing types of sharp angles, feathers, demure and striking, trimming most of the models. A close fitting brown velvet had a mount of glycerined ostrich, a wood-brown velvet poke was fronted with a band of hand embroidery, and black panne velvet was trimmed with a side ornament of coq feathers.

The store orchestra provided excellent music throughout the evening, and an enjoyable programme of vocal solos was given by the Misses Isabel Black, Annie Crocker, J. Smith and H. Rush. Messrs. J. Smith and S. Thompson attired in Highland costume also entertained their audiences with bagpipe selections.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Executive Meeting of Reunion Committee Saturday-Comforting News From Japan.

MILLBROOK, September 12. — The executive meeting of the Reunion Committee for the final decision re the disposal of funds on hand after all bills are paid, will be held in the Council Chamber on Saturday, 22nd September, at 8 p.m. At the last meeting held on the 1st inst., there was a good attendance, and most of the outstanding bills were presented.

Mr. H. J. Grassett, chairman of the Finance Committee, reported a total in the bank of $1,740.84.

The executive was congratulated more than once by Old Boys and Girls who were here for the Re-union on giving a good time all round at a very small expense. The object in making any charge at all for the sports, dance, etc., was simply to defray necessary expenses, which were unavoidably large in connection with so big an undertaking as a Re-union has to be.

The Oshawa Band, which added so materially to the pleasure and the success of the three days' gathering, expressed themselves as being so well pleased with their reception and entertainment that they would like nothing better than to assist at a similar event should one be planned for any future occasion.

Anxiety Removed.

The word received from Japan on Saturday stating that all Methodist missionaries in the stricken area are safe will relieve much grave anxiety on the part of relatives at home. Mrs. Arthur Mackenzie, who before her marriage was Winnifred Phelps, the youngest daughter of Rev. A. L. and Mrs. Phelps, of Markham, with her husband and child, were among those who were in the danger zone. Mr. Phelps was at one time a popular pastor on the Millbrook circuit for a three-year term.

Personal Mention.

Mr. T. W. McIndoo and his eldest son, Mr. Matthew McIndoo, motored to Belleville on Tuesday, the latter remaining as a student at Albert College for the ensuing term.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham and family motored to Whitby on Labour Day, and were joined there by Rev. William Higgs and family, of Port Perry, for the afternoon.

Rev. S. T. Tucker is in Toronto this week on a business trip.

TO BAR HASHISH.

LONDON (United Press).—Efforts are being made in England to have hashish—a decoction prepared from the hemp plant of India—put on the list of dangerous drugs.

At a recent police court inquest evidence was produced to show that a serious traffic of the drug is going on in the British Isles, and while it is a drug which when used to excess produces madness, there is at present no legal provision against it.

SOUR MILK USES.

Do not throw away sour milk or cream. Save in a glass jar, and when it thickens use for cottage cheese, griddle cakes, gingerbread, etc.

STRANGE COURSE FLORIDA RIVERS

Traveller Should Prepare Himself For Some Curious Freaks of Nature.

TALLAHASSEE Fla., Sept. 11. —The traveller in West Florida, unfamiliar with the scenery of that section should prepare himself for some curious freaks of nature. Otherwise he may waste unnecessary time groping for an explanation of the strange behaviour of three of the state's rivers. The old pea and shell game expression "Now you see it and now you don't," applies to parts of all of them.

A description of these streams has been written by W. A. McRae, commissioner of agriculture, who quotes a young man who has spent his life on the banks of the waterways. The substance of it follows:

The Wacissa rises in "Beautiful Springs," near Thomas City, on the Tallahassee-Southeastern Railroad, not far from the state capital and flows due south to within three miles of the Aucilla river, where it disappears underground and then re-appears in the Aucilla. Logmen have cut a small canal from the point of disappearence to the Aucilla.

The Aucilla rises in Georgia and flows in a southwesterly direction, forming the eastern boundary of Jefferson county, Florida. About three miles south of where the Tallahassee-Southeastern forms a junction with this river the Aucilla sinks and runs underground in a winding way for possibly 12 miles, rising about three miles north of where the Wacissa comes into it from below the earth.

The course of the river is traced by sink-holes and it can be seen plainly As proof of this an object dropped into the stream where it first sinks is seen to rise and pass through the various sinks to the point 12 miles below where it finally comes to the surface.

The St. Marks, the third of the "sunken rivers," is a few miles to the west of the Wacissa and Aucilla. It also sinks and rises again a short distance away, making Florida's "Natural Bridge." At this point one of the state's hardest battles was fought in the Civil War, mostly by old men and cadets from the West Florida Seminary at Tallahasseee, on the Confederate side. A monument was erected therein 1922 by funds appropriated by the Legislature, and was dedicated Memorial Day, 1922, to the memory of the Confederate soldiers who lost their lives in the fight.

BUCKET SHOP GANG BEATS UP WRITER.

Acting City Editor Lays Attack to His Articles Against Brokerage Firm

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.— Edward J. Chapman, a financial writer on the New York Commercial, collapsed in the office of that newspaper after he had told of an attack on him by a band of thugs near the Twenty-third Regiment Armory in Brooklyn. Chapman said that half a dozen men attacked him and beat him after he had been decoyed to the spot by a man who formerly was employed in a brokerage firm which Chapman said he had driven out of business last July through the publication of a series of articles accusing the firm of bucketing orders and promoting fake stocks.

Chapman said that as he was leaving his home at 1,263 Pacific Street Brooklyn shortly after 8 o'clock in the morning he recognized in front of the house an old acquaintance. This man, he said, approached him as he started to walk down Pacific Street toward Nostrand Avenue, and told him that the publication of the bucket shop articles had caused him to be thrown out of work.

He asked Chapman to recommend him for a new job, and Chapman said he would willingly do so. They had passed the armory by that time and were in front stable, Chapman said, when the man began to denounce him loudly.

Cue For the Gang

At that moment said Chapman, six men appeared from the entrance to the building and the man who had first encountered him shouted: "This is the fellow, boys; give it to him." Chapman was knocked down, managed to get up and fight back, but soon went down again under a volley of blows and kicks. When he became partly conscious he found that he was in an automobile and three or four men were sitting on him. Chapman said that eventually he was thrown on a grass plot in Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn, and lay there for some time before a policeman appeared.

According to Chapman, a Sergeant came along at about this time, to whom he told his story, including the name of the man who had decoyed him into the hands of the gang. Chapman said that the Sergeant told him that the man was the son of a former powerful politician in Brooklyn and advised him to "go home and forget it."

Chapman had been acting as City Editor of the newspaper and despite his injuries made his way to the office where he collapsed. He was carried over to the Turkish baths in the basement of the Woolworth Building where a physician said that his condition was not serious, but because of his age it would be necessary for him to stay there for the rest of the day. When he had somewhat recovered later in the day, he said that his first article attacking the brokerage firm appeared in July Soon after Chapman said the firm was expelled from the New York Curb and not long afterward went out of business. Chapman said that he would advise with counsel to-morrow with a view to instituting criminal proceedings against his assailants.

Splendid work being done for Children of Montreal by Child Welfare Association

About one thousand happy, delighted children were the guests of honor, The Child's Welfare Association of Montreal was the host, while through the courtesy of His Master's Voice Limited, the entertainment was provided and perhaps no afternoon in the lives of these children was more enjoyed than that spent yesterday at the summer day camp of the Association on Dorchester Street, Montreal.

Patriotic tunes, stirring marches, songs and calls of native birds, whistling selections and the popular tunes of the day contributed to the intence delight of the children and all this joy and brightness undoubtedly added to the affection and greatfulness which the children have come to have for the Welfare Association because of its unceasing effort in their behalf.

So life-like were the selections rendered that it was interesting to note the amazement of the children who really felt sure they were undoubtedly listening to the various performers themselves instead of a reproduction of their art on a regular stock model of "His Master's Voice"-Victrola by means of "His Master's" Voice Victor records.

And what made the illusion more striking was the amplifying arrangement made possible through the co-operation of The Northern Electric Company who installed for the purpose of carrying the performance of the Victrola to every one of the junior audience—the same set of amplifiers used to broadcast the address delivered at Vancouver recently by the late President Harding.

The Child Welfare Association of Montreal has many activities for the promotion of the welfare of children. It has established thirteen Health centres in different parts of the city where more than 2700 mothers are coming with their babies to receive instruction and supervision in baby care..

The splendid work of health education being carried on by this association is bringing its results in the greatly lowered death rate among the families who come to the Health Centres for advice. Another special activity is the Nutrition classes for under-nourished children which are carried in selected schools during the the school year. Very amazing results have been obtained by means of these classes.

A noteworthy activity during the summer months is a day camp at 393 Dorchester Street, west, provided by Major Washington Stephens, where large and beautiful grounds are open daily to mothers with their babies and to children of all ages. Many special treats are provided at intervals for the hundreds of children who flock there during the hot weather. It was here that the special concert was held.

The members of the executive under whose direction this splendid and needy work is carried on are-

President, Mrs. Walter M. Stewart.
Vice-President, Mrs. D. Lorne McGibbon.

Directors, Mr. Norman Holland, Mrs. T. J. Stevenson, Mr. W. R. Christie, Mr. R. W. Gibb, Miss. V. M. Macdonald, Miss. Helen Reid, Supervisor of Nurses, Miss N. Caillard, Office Secretary, Miss. E. H. Marshall

TYPHOID FEVER.

Typhoid fever occurs most in summer and early fall.

The typhoid bacillus seems to be somewhat irregular in susceptibility in different individuals. Its favorite range in both males and females is from 15 or 16 years old to about 35. Don't let your summer vacation be broken up and your after life interfered with by contracting this disease.

If your vacation is spent in the city, your chance of infection is rather remote. Cities have reduced typhoid almost to the minimum. In 1922 the extremely low rate of 3.15 for every hundred thousand persons was averaged by the large cities of the United States.

Drinking water is a common source of typhoid infection. If you are drinking well water in a rural district, and are not sure, boil the water. Don't drink raw milk unless you wish to invite typhoid bacilli to dwell in you.

Watch out for the common house fly. He is a carrier of this trouble. Avoid bathing in polluted water. Persons who have had typhoid may continue to carry the bacilli in their systems for weeks and even months. Such persons are called "typhoid carriers." Be on the lookout also for this bacilli in polluted soil.

Typhoid begins with a slight headache, loss of appetite and lassitude. There is some fever and restlessness at night but nothing of a pronounced nature so that one may be on guard. This is just the trouble—you have contracted typhoid and don't know it. The safe way is always to have your guard up and not give this bacillus half a chance.

UNITARIANS DISCUSS RELIGIOUS PROBLEMS

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(United Press.)—What the Christian church should do toward the Christianization of international relationships and the solution of domestic, social and economic problems is being stressed in addresses and discussions at the meetings of the General Unitarian Conference, and the Ministers' Institute and annual chapter convention of the Unitarian Laymen's League of New Haven, Conn., September 11-16.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell of Pittsburgh, a leader in the Methodist Episcopal church, and Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the United States Children's Bureau, are to lead a discussion on "The Church and Social Problems." "What the Church Can Do for New Americans" is the message to be brought by Dr. William P. Shriver, of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions. One of the major contributions of Dr. Shriver to the solution of the immigration problem was the creation of a system of immigration fellowships, by which the American born clergymen, through residence abroad, qualified themselves for service among immigrants in this country. The Rev. C. V. Howell, of the Methodist Episcopal church, organizer for the Harlem Forum Congregation of New York City, will address the Minister's Institute on "The Church and the Labor Movement."

QUICK BREADS.

A loaf of bran or graham bread dressed up with nuts or raisins often helps out a scanty meal and proves a friend indeed to the busy housekeeper in canning season.

These breads are quickly and easily made, are highly nutritious and can be used in place of dessert.

A tiny dainty sandwich served with afternoon tea, be the tea hot or iced, will appeal to any caller if the bread be bran. For she who would "eat and grow thin" may eat bran bread with impunity.

A generous piece of this same bread generously spread with butter will satisfy Johnny when he comes in starved from work or play and make him quite forget he wanted candy.

Bran Bread.

Two cups sterilized bran, 1 cup whole wheat flour, 1 cup butter milk or sour milk, ½ cup molasses, ½ cup chopped nut meats, ½ cup seeded raisins, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt.

Mix bran, flour and salt with nuts and raisins. Add molasses. Dissolve soda in milk and add to first mixture. Beat well and turn into a buttered and floured bread pan. Bake an hour in a slow oven.

This is a simple wholesome bread without eggs that can be served any time during the day. Small buttered sandwiches are very nice to serve with the dinner salad.

Brown Bread.

Two eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup molasses, 2 cups sterilized bran, 1 cup graham flour, 1 cup white flour, 2 cups sour milk, 2 teaspoons soda, 1 cup seeded raisins.

Beat eggs well. Beat in salt, sugar and molasses. Add bran and mix well. Add one cup of milk. Add graham flour, and ½ cup milk. Sift white flour over raisins and add to mixture. Mix thoroughly. Dissolve soda in remaining milk and stir into mixture. Be sure that the whole is well mixed and thoroughly blended. If not well mixed the bread will be streaked and heavy in spots. Turn into buttered and floured bread pans and bake an hour in a hot oven.

If this bread is wanted specially for sandwiches it can be baked in pound baking powder cans if no sandwich pans are at hand.

White Nut Bread.

Three-fourths cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ cups sweet milk, 4 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup broken nut meats.

Beat egg well with sugar and salt. Mix and sift flour and baking powder. Add alternately with milk to first mixture. Stir in nuts and mix thoroughly. Turn into a buttered and floured bread pan and let rise in a warm place for 20 minutes. Bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven.

Graham Nut Bread.

Two cups graham flour, 1 cup white flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 1 cup nut meats, 2 tablespoons molasses, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon hot water, 1½ cups sour milk.

Mix graham flour and white flour with salt, sugar and nuts. Add sour milk and molasses and mix thoroughly. Dissolve soda in hot water and stir into mixture. Turn into a buttered and floured bread pan and bake 45 minutes in a hot oven.

Boston Brown Bread.

Two cups graham flour, 1 cup white flour, 2 cups corn meal, 1 cup molasses, 1 cup sour milk, 1 cup sweet milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon melted butter.

Mix graham flour, white flour and corn meal with salt. Dissolve soda in sour milk and add to first mixture. Add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Turn into buttered and floured baking powder cans and steam three hours. Then bake in a moderately hot oven for 15 minutes.

FIRE BRIGADE WAS ON PICNIC

So Peterborough Man on Holiday in England Went to the Rescue.

Mr. Chas. Thorpe, of the firm of Grant and Thorpe, who, with Mrs. Thorpe, has been spending his vacation in England, figured in an exciting incident a few weeks ago. While he and his brother were at Shoreham on their way home from a picnic an alarm of fire was sounded and they saw flames and smoke issuing from a near-by cottage window. On running to the scene it was found that the cottage was locked and it was reported that there was a child upstairs. To make matters worse, all the volunteer fire brigade were away for the day for a picnic.

Nobody in the crowd seemed to know what to do, so the Peterboro electrician and his brother secured a ladder, pulled themselves up to the window sill and broke the glass, to find that there fortunately was no child there. Then they broke in the back door and discovered the back staircase on fire. They organized a bucket brigade, and got the fire under control, and other volunteers arriving with the fire hose to finish the job. Their efforts saved a row of cottages that would undoubtedly have caught fire.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

TIPPY TRADE MOUSE.

Nancy and Nick stayed with Mister Gallop in his rocky cave when they were not travelling around with him on their ponies.

Each of them had a nice soft bed made out of smelly pine needles and covered with soft Indian blankets.

At night when Snow and Blackie and Echo, the three ponies, were out eating sweet grass, and the leaves of mountain daisies, which they dearly loved, their little master and mistress and the wee fairyman were dreaming fine dreams of new adventures.

But one night, while they were sound asleep and dreaming dreams by the yard, something more real was happening.

Tippy Trade Mouse peeped in.

The cave was as dark as a fruit cellar because the moonlight and the starlight couldn't leak in, but Tippy Trade Mouse's eyes were just made for the dark, and he could see everything.

He sniffed at Mister Gallop's lasso and his high cowboy boots, and he sniffed at Nancy's clothes laid in a neat pile over a chair back, and he sniffed at the magic shoes standing in a neat row under the beds.

Then he came to Nick's clothes laid in a pile at the foot of his bed read yti jump into in the morning.

Tippy Trade Mouse jumped up and sniffed at Nick's clothes. "Ah, ha!" he said, winking his bright little eyes. "Here's the very thing I've been wanting!" And he took Nick's shirt in his teeth and dragged it out into the moonlight.

Then he set to work and chewed and chewed and chewed. "I mustn't make a hole!" he kept saying. "That wouldn't be nice of me at all! I mustn't make a hole. I'll have to be very careful."

After a while he finished what he was doing, and dragged th shirt back again.

Then he went away carrying something in his mouth.

And by and by he came back carrying something else in his mouth and laid it in the shirt.

This he did six times. Then he left for good.

"Oh, look!" cried Nick when he went to put his shirt on next morning. "Somebody's cut all the buttons off my shirt and left six little stones instead."

"It's Tippy Trade Mouse, as sure as anything," said Mister Gallop. "He is always trading something for something else, and nobody knows what he wants it for."

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Teresa Desmond, (Terry), lovely and unbelievably innocent, is impersonating her beautiful half-sister. Juliet Divine, known as the Million Dollar Doll Whose sketchy career is unknown to Terry. Miles Sheridan, Terry's 'Dram Prince,' furnished the money for her convent education when she was a child. His wife is making him wretched with her infidelity and in order to facilitate her obtaining a divorce, Miles offers the Million Dollar Doll $20,000 to take a yacht trip with him. Juliet is unable to take the trip herself, but working on her little sister's gratitude to Miles, she persuades Terry who is an exquisite counterpart of herself, to take her place.

Betty Sheridan, Miles wife, is deeply in love with Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian. Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek who does not know of Terry's relationship to Juliet, is in love with the younger girl. Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, is Terry's maid on board the yacht. Her early disapproval of "The Million Dollar Doll" is swiftly disappearing under the influence of Ferry's child-like Charm. But 'the Prince' is cold and hostile. He has no desire to be friendly with this notorious young person, in whom he does not recognize the little girl he befriended so long ago.

A storm comes up and Terry is frightened until Miles appears.

A Prince's Solitude

"I heard you'd hurt yourself today," he said pausing in the doorway. "You sprained your ankle, didn't you?"

No longer had the girl to strive for courage. She felt no fear at all. Miles had come. He looked almost kind. He was here on purpose to ask how she was.

"Oh, no, I didn't sprain my ankle, thank you," she answered cheerfully. "It was only a little wrench. I shall be all right tomorrow."

"Good!" said Sheridan. "This yacht isn't much of a place for invalids—with no doctor on board. I suppose I must be an optimist, not to carry one. We've had one casualty today. I'm glad you don't call yourself another! Are you bearing up fairly well through this row?"

"Yes," said Terry. "I—I don't mind much when I'm out here. I felt—a little lonely in my cabin. I saw a mouse drowned once, in a small trap—sunk in a tub. I dreamed of it afterwards. I'm sure it would have been better for the mouse just to be thrown into the water, if it had to be, without the trap."

"I agree with you," answered Sheridan. He felt a slight stirring of sympathy for the girl, and was pleasantly surprised that she should make light of her accident, instead of exaggerating her sufferings, as women of her type do.

He had come below, not because he wished to see Miss Divine or talk with her; but she was after all more or less of a human being: she was handicapped by the mischance of hurting her ankle, whereas this storm was bad enough to try the nerves of any robust person unaccustomed to the sea, and in love with life.

He had felt that it would be only decent to reassure her; and Roberts having said that Miss Divine preferred not to go back to her stateroom, Sheridan had expected to find her hysterical. "You mustn't dwell on the memory of that mouse," he went on.

"I wasn't thinking of it till just before I spoke," said Terry.

"You were thinking of something worse, I daresay."

"A verse in a poem I learned at the Convent came into my head," she answered.

"What verse?" Sheridan wanted to know.

Terry repeated it.

"The Great Third Wave!" he echoed. "That never a swimmer shall cross or climb! One doesn't like to think there's a barrier so formidable that it's useless even to try passing over it."

"I think—you would try," said the girl, in a small voice, like a child's.

Sheridan came a few steps further into the room. "You think I would, do you?" he asked. "But you know nothing whatever about me, Miss Divine. So how can you form any opinion?"

"I suppose I can't," faltered Terry.

"You made the remark, then, for the pleasure of hearing your own voice in the midst of the storm? I don't quite believe that."

"No. I mayn't know anything about you; but I have formed an opinion."

"Ah! I ought to be flattered that you should take the trouble! So you think, if I met the uncrossable Wave in my path, I'd try to cross it?"

"Yes."

"Then what would happen?"

"You—might cross it."

"Thank you! You're not a fatalist, evidently. You don't believe that a man's destiny is decided before his birth; as the Arabs say, 'his fate is hung round his own neck'."

Sheridan hardly expected an answer to this question. He was rather battered by his experiences on deck, and this interlude was amusing him faintly, that was all.

The intellectual equipment of a Doll wasn't likely to include ready-made theories upon fate, unless from the palmist or fortune-teller's point of view. But Miss Divine didn't giggle or look vague.

"I wonder if the Arabs don't mean that we make our own fates by the way we act, every day of our lives," she ventured. "Like that, our fate would be hung round our own necks, wouldn't it? I used to wonder about that, among lots of other things, when I was at the convent."

"This is the second time you've spoken of a convent," said Sheridan. "Were you at school in a convent?"

Terry flushed. She felt that she'd been indiscreet in referring to her past, and that Julia would be angry.

"Yes, I was," she had to admit.

"And was what you've just said one of the maxims you learned from the nuns?"

"Oh, no. They only taught us to be good. They didn't try to convert us to their religion. They left us to our own."

"Indeed! And what was yours, if I may ask?" Sheridan enquired with a rising inclination to laugh. The religion of a Juliet Divine—if any—should be a quaint product!

"Why, I—I never heard much about religion at home," Terry confessed. "My father came from a Catholic family. He wasn't a Catholic himself, or anything at all, yet he wouldn't let mother bring me up in her church. I just thought out a religion for myself. "You see one felt as if one had to do it!—the Convent garden was so sweet, and quiet—and I'd always loved gardens! The stars looked so near. The sound of the bells was lovely, too, and put thoughts into one's head.

"I don't believe, though, Mr. Sheridan, that you really want to know about my religion. You are only—making a little fun of me."

COLD WEATHER DOES NOT DETER DANCERS

Rye's Pavilion Presents An Attractive Scene These Nights.

Though the majority of people hug the fire these chilly nights, the dancing public still have a pavilion right in the city open. Dances are still being held at this popular resort at the Street Railway Wharf every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday nights. By the shutter arrangement of the Pavilion, the dancers can have the atmosphere either warm or cool as the weather changes. One notices that on the coolest nights, with the shutters down, the Pavilion is comfortably warm and the dancers discard their cloaks and coats. There are spacious grounds for the parking of automobiles and also for the benefit of the spectators. A convenience, however, which the dancers enjoy is the street car service to the door and especially the midnight car service. This is the car which calls at the Pavilion first and then meets the midnight train.

Novelty dances are held every Friday night, and some of these specialties are new events to the dancing public of Peterborough. These novelty dances always attract a good attendance of spectators, who appear to take as much interest in the events as do the dancers. The balloon dance, with its attendant fun, still remains the favourite among the novelty dances, judging by the crowds that throng the Pavilion.

Careful attention is paid by Mr. Rye and his staff of attendants to the dancing, and everything is done to keep the Pavilion clean and orderly for the benefit of the public.

The orchestra is courteous and obliging and willing to render any service to selections the dancers may ask for. With the great variety of selections, some idea may be had as to the work involved when special numbers are called for.

With present weather conditions, it is expected this Pavilion will be open for some time yet this year.

ISSUES A WARNING.

A warning to merchants and business men in general has been received by Chief of Police S. Newhall from the secretary-treasurer of the Chief Constable's Association of Canada. Certain men are reported active in soliciting advertisements for a souvenir booklet to be issued in connection with next year's police chief convention, representing that the proceeds will go to the benefit of the Association.

So far as Chief Newhall knows no such representation have been made here. A representative of the booklet came through Peterborough, but solicited the advertising legally, and bore credentials from prominent Chiefs of Police and other authorities. He did not represent that he was soliciting on behalf of the Chief Constable's Association.

Chief Newhall warns that any person soliciting advertising should be asked for credentials, or the Chief notified.

TROTTER BROKE THROUGH FENCE

Ran Away Prior to Start of $10,000 Race.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 11.—Taurida, Alonzo McDonald's fleet little bay mare, won the 2:08 Empire State $10,000 trotting stake here this afternoon, the Grand Circuit feature, from a speedy field of six trotters, beating out Clyde The Great and Favonian, the favorites.

Tauria, which was second to Tommy Murphy's Pearl Benboe at Hartford, in the $10,000 Charter Oaks Stake last week, showed a wonderful burst of speed on the stretch in both the second and third heats. Favonian took the first heat after a brush with Tommy Murphys' Clyde The Great, Taurida placing third in this heat. Taurida trotted the fastest competititve mile of her career in the second heat when she was clocked in 2:04 1-2.

Just prior to the start of the Empire State Trotting Stake, Fayette National ran away and crashed into the fence, upsetting McKay and breaking the sulky into fragments. Police in an attempt to stop the gelding, crashed into Tommy Murphy, piloting Clyde The Great, upsetting the sulky and dumping Murphy to the track. Clyde The Great was captured after a short run when forced into the fence by a trooper. His flank was scraped and Murphy's shoulder was injured, but the pair went to the stables for repairs and reappeared to race in the $10,000 event.

PUZZLING PLAYS

THE PLAY

Here is a rather unusual play that came up in a recent minor league game. The unusual situation was created because of over-anxiety on the part of the catcher of the team in the field.

With a runner on third base and one out, the team in the field elected to try the "squeeze" play in an effort to score the runner from third.

As the pitcher started to deliver the ball to the batsman, the runner on third, away to a big lead, dashed for the plate. The catcher, feeling that the big lead obtained by the runner would insure a successful completion of the play, pushed aside the batter and received the pitch in front of the plate, touching out the runner as he slid in.

The umpire ruled that the runner from third was entitled to score because of the actions of the catcher, also granted the batsman first base.

Did the umpire render the correct ruling?

THE INTERPRETATION

The umpire was correct in his ruling. The runner on third was entitled to score because the catcher in leaving the lines of his position technically committed a balk. In brushing the batsman aside and preventing him from bunting the ball, the catcher created an interference which entitle the batsman to first.

The rule covering this play says: "In the event the base runner is trying to score from third base on a 'squeeze' play, a 'balk' and also an 'intereference' should be called if the catcher runs out in front of the plate to catch the ball. The runner from third shall be allowed to score and the batsman entitled to first base."

EHMKE HOLDS THE YANKS TO ONE HIT

Hero of Record No-Hit Game Nearly Repeated.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.— (Canadian Press)—Howard Ehmke, who pitched a no-hit game against Philadelphia on September 7, held the American League champions to one scratch hit here today, Boston defeating the Yankees in the last game of the series, 3 to 0. Witt, the first player to face Ehmke, hit a pizzling bounder toward Shanke, which he cuffed with his glove, and recovered it too late to retire the fast Witt. George Pipgras, a young pitcher from the South Atlantic Association started his first game of the season for New York and made a good showing. Three of the six hits off Pipgras were made by pitcher Ehmke. Score:

Boston ..... 000000300—3 6 1
New York ..... 000000000—0 1 1

Ehmke and Picinich; Pipgras and Schang.

NO SCORE IN SOCCER GAME.

FIGHT FANS ARRIVING ALREADY IN NEW YORK

Crowd at Ringside Friday Night Will Be Unusually Cosmopolitan.

WAGERS REPORTED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—New York has become the fight fans' mecca. The advance arrival today of boxing followers from various parts of the country, as well as from overseas, pointed to the gathering of one of the most cosmopolitan fight crowds in history when Jack Dempsey enters the ring at the Polo Grounds next Friday night to defend his heavyweight crown against the assault of Luis Angel Firpo.

It was indicated that from 20,000 to 30,000 spectators from beyond the limits of the metropolis will view the title struggle.

Preparations for handling the throng and arrangement of other details went forward rapidly today. More than 500 uniformed police, besides hundreds of plain- clothesmen will handle the crowd. Special regulations were promulgated for the handling of traffic.

Weather predictions for the fight were favorable but Rickard said that in event of postponement because of rain, the battle would be staged Saturday night.

Increased wagering on the outcome of the fight today was reported in sporting circles. One of the largest single bets reported was one of $2,800 to $2,000 that Dempsey would win by a knockout, the odds being 7 to 5. Several wagers that Dempsey would win were made at odds of 2½ to 1, a basis that has prevailed for several days.

FIRPO'S FRIENDS GROW CONFIDENT

Plan a Banquet With All the Trimmings As Celebration.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press)—His mental and physical condition mirrored in his fire-sparkling eyes, Luis Angel Firpo tonight was declared ready for the world's title match with Jack Dempsey in New York and was placed "under wraps" until the sound of the battle bell.

As the day of the fight draws near Firpo's little band of faithful followers are growing more confident of victory. Already they have planned a banquet of celebration, employed an orchestra whose instruments are attuned to "get-in-your-bones" music of the Argentine and issued invitations. Already they have planned to make Firpo, "the champion," away from the curious crowds. A trip to Canada is contemplated.

"Luis," they say, "will win inside of six rounds."

The Latin gladiator upon whom their hopes have been pinned remains the great puzzle. He sits in an easy chair in the parlor of his cottage home, taking keen interest in everything that is said about everything but fights. He will not talk "shop."

Dan Washington, the trainer, pronounces Firpo in perfect condition. There were some knots in his muscles a week ago, especially in the left arm, but these have been whisked away under Dan's kneading fingers. His stomach seems like a piece of boiler plate and his legs are compared to those of Joe Stecher, the wrestler of "scissors" fame.

Firpo took all of his sparring mates on for one round apiece this afternoon. Frank Koebele speeded through the first round with the Argentine always on top of him; John Lester Johnson tried to hit Firpo in the second round; Young Bob Fitzsimmons went a round mostly at close quarters and Joe McCann swapped punches with the challenger in the final round. Firpo's blows always were held in leash.

EXCELSIORS AND STUDENTS START.

Rugby Practices Bringing Out Candidates For Squads.

Rugby is getting off to a good start this year in Peterboro. The Collegiate held their first workout Monday afternoon at the Oval under the expert coaching of C. S. Brown. The P.C.I. team this year is not in as strong a position as it was at the same time last year, many of the old stars having graduated but nevertheless the coach holds the opinion that a good team of average weight can be turned out. A squad of players has turned out and light practice was begun.

The Excelsiors city league team also started its practices. The first was held last evening at Central Park. The following were out: E. Sheehy, L. Brown, P.C.I.; J. Turner, last year with R.M.C.; M. Sloan, Noel Risher, G. Webb. W. Ashmore, B. Cowan, P.C.I.; H. Griffin, J. Ward, J. McClelland, C. Perry.

Ross Dobbin is coach and Max Sloan manager. The next workout is tonight at 5.15 at the Central Park.

C.G.E. GIRLS WIN EXCITING GAME

Home Run in Ninth With Two On a Feature—Play-off With Colonials.

Chasing four runs across in the ninth and winning their game with the Colonials by 11-10 at Central Park yesterday evening, the C.G.E. girls finshed at the top of the second half of the softball schedule and will play off with the Colonials who won the first half, a week from Saturday.

The fighting spirt of the Canadian General girls carried them through to a well earned victory. In some respects the quality of ball was not up to the merit of some of the games that have been played in this league. Play was loose in spots, but it was redeemed by clever fielding. Both pitchers were rapped hard and often some of the hits going for extra bases. Miss Dorothy Hayes at second for C.G.E. starred in the field covering a lot of ground in fine style. Miss Sanford came through with the only home run, a timely clout in the ninth inning that sent two across ahead of the C.G.E right fielder and winning the ball game.

The C.G.E. scored in the first when Miss D. Hayes crossed the plate. Miss Plunkett scored for the Colonials in their half of the first. The C.G.E. failed to score in the second but Miss Greenhaugh scored for the Colonials. In the third the C.G.E. went on a rampage and crashed in four runs and holding the Colonials scoreless. The Colonials held the C.G E. down in the fourth and came across with two runs. The C.G.E. got another in the fifth but the Colonials made it 6-6 when they added two more in their half of the stanza. At the end of the seventh it was seven all. Then the Colonials broke loose when with two on bases Miss T. Wade slammed out a three base hit and then came in herself on a hit by a team mate. The Colonials lead of three loomed up large but the C.G.E. made the grade, Miss Sanford's long hit doing the trick, the C.G.E. netting four in all in the ninth. The Colonials didn't reach first in the final innings.

The lineups:

C.G.E.—McCarthy, cf; Hayes, 2b; Sanford, rf; Stapley, c; Taylor, 1b; Millard, p; E. White, lf; Bolon, ss; McLaren, 3b; D. White, ss.

Colonials—Plunkett, c; Bradshaw, 1b; T. Todd, ss; Mrs. Lee, p; M. Todd, 2b; Greenhaugh, ss; Sanders, 3b; T. Wade, rf; V. Wade, cf; D. White, lf.

Score by innings:

C.G.E. . . . . 104011004—11
Colonials . . . . . 110220130—10

After the game Dr. O'Brien presented each of the C.G.E. players with a box of chocolates.

MARVELOUS POLO BY INDIAN TIGERS.

Toyed With the Famous Meadowbrook Team at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12. — (Canadian Press)—The Tigers of India defeated the Meadowbrook Polo Team, 9 goals to 7, in the International tournament at the Philadelphia Country Club today.

The foreign invaders exhibited a brand of polo that was nothing short of marvelous, in the first half simply toying with the famous Meadowbrook players. Their driving and well-directed shots had the team from Long Island bewildered at times.

The playing of Major Jaswant Singh, No. 1, for the Tigers, stood out above all others. In the first half he rode brilliantly, taking the ball down the field or receiving a pass from a team-mate and shooting it between the goal posts for four scores.

MATCHED FOR SEPT. 28.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press)—The battle of the two champions is on again. Benny Leonard, lightweight king of the world, and Johnny Dundee, wearer of the featherweight crown, will meet in the Yankee Stadium, September 28.

Dundee appeared before the New York State Athletic Commission today and agreed to the new date for the bout, when Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston stated that Dundee was out of condition and in justice to the public he should be given time to get in shape.

DEMPSEY CUTS UP HIS HIRED HELP

Champion in the Pink Breaks Up Training Camp

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press)—Trained to a state of physical perfection, Jack Dempsey virtually reached the end of his five weeks training grind for the defence of his title against Luis Angel Firpo at the Polo Grounds Friday night. The champion will wind up his conditioning tomorrow, exercising just enough to loosen up his muscles, but will not do any boxing.

Dempsey finished his boxing program this afternoon, with a four round workout against a trio of sparring partners. Experts said at no stage of his training had he worked so impressively. He was lightning fast on his feet, tireless in his savage attack and his punches were timed perfectly. He cast aside all restraint while boxing two rounds with Jack Burke, the Pittsburgh light heavyweight, unleashing his punches with such fury that Burke, bleeding and groggy, was on the verge of collapse.

George West, British middleweight, and Alex Trambitis, middleweight of Portland, Oregon, were the champion's other sparring partners for a round apiece. They, too, left the ring leg-weary and with bleeding mouths.

Throughout the workout, Dempsey breathed normally and perspired freely, indicating to his handlers that he is as "right" as skilled training can make him. His legs are lean and thin; his broad shoulders and trim upper body do not carry an ounce of fat.

The champion's sparring partners and other camp attendants packed their bags and departed immediately after today's workout. All of them were presented with ringside tickets by the champion.

BETHANY PLAYOFF PORT HOPT TODAY

The play-off between Bethany and Oshawa, which was slated for Bowmanville this afternoon, has been transferred to Port Hope as the grounds in Bowmanville are not in condition. The teams will meet this afternoon on the Port Hope grounds.

MEXICO STIRS TO TALES OF BURIED TREASURE

MEXICO CITY, September 12 Associated Press). — Hunting for buried treasure, and a revival of the legends of hidden wealth, is noted throughout Mexico. The death of Francisco Villa in an ambsucade at Parral, with the resultant disappearance of the fear of that dread outlaw's vengeance if any of his supposed hidden hoards were discovered, is one of the causes of the revival.

From Acapulco comes a story of the discovery by an unnamed German of 15,000,000 pesos worth of gold and silver bars popularly reported to have been hidden by the Mexican revolutionary General Vicente Guerrero. He captured this bullion, it is said, from treasure trains hurrying from the Guerrero mines to Acapulco when it became plain that Spain's days of domination in Mexico were numbered.

An expedition has left San Pedro de las Colonias, Coahuila, in search of several million pesos worth of bullion, jewels, money and other valuable objects reported to have been buried in 1914 by Villa somewhere along the Parras road.

Treasure documents are being republished to prove the existence of a treasure said to total 20,000,000 pesos in gold and silver, hidden in a cave on the banks of the Rio Hondo, between Mexico City and Toluca.

This hoard is reported to have been accumulated by the revolutionary leader Antonio Balizan in raids conducted between 1812 and 1815 against Spanish bullion trains carrying metal from the mines of Sulteped and Temascaltepec. It has been sought before, and again is being hunted with renewed vigour.

RE-OPEN CHURCH AT BAILIEBORO.

Port Hope Missionary and Family Safe in Japan.

BAILIEBORO, September 12. — The re-opening services in the Methodist Church were conducted by Rev. Mr. Richardson, pastor of the Cavanville Circuit, on Sunday, 8th September, at 10.30 in the morning and at 7.30 in th eevening.

At both services Rev. Mr. Richardson preached to a large congregation. Splendid music was rendered by the choir, while the organist, Miss Jean Dawson, presided at the organ.

The Methodist Church has recently been re-painted and decorated, and this makes a fine improvement upon the appearance of the building.

A special offering was asked for by the officials of the church, to which there was a generous response.

Missionary Is Safe.

Mr. Frederic Sneyd, of Port Hope, received a cablegram on Sunday from his brother, Rev. Herbert Sneyd, of Japan, who has for several years been a faithful worker in the mission fields there, that both he and his family escaped injury in the earthquake. Rev. Mr. Sneyd, with his family, was at the time of the disaster away from that region on holiday. He is well known by most of the residents of this village, having spent his boyhood days around Bailieboro. Mrs. George Lord of Bailieboro is also a sister of Mr. Sneyd. Last summer Mr. Sneyd and his family came back to Ontario on their first furlough since entering the mission fields. While home, they spent considerable of their holidays with friends around Bailieboro.

Personals.

Rev. R. M. Patterson conducted the services on the Cavanville Circuit on Sunday last in the absence of their pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jewison and son John motored down from Toronto on Sunday, and are the guests of the former's sister, Mrs. H. Barnard.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bonus, of Toronto, are guests of Mrs. Bonus's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wood.

Mrs. R. Storey and daughters, Misses Vedra and Helen, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Dawson on Sunday.

Mr. John Reid, of Toronto, is visiting friends around Bailieboro.

Although the ducks are still scarce on the lake, many hunters are camped along the shores, and are enjoying the pleasure of fishing at any rate. Some fine black ducks are being shot, but the weather has been too mild for the fall ducks to appear as yet.

Mr. and Mrs. Stillwell and family, of Toronto, are spending a few days at the home of Mr. W. Hibbard.

BRIQUETING PAST ITS TEST STAGE.

Now Wise to Commence Manufacture in Commercial Quantities.

OTTAWA, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Following a lengthy conference yesterday with Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Public Works and Highways for Saskatchewan, and Hon. W. R. Clubb, Minister of Public Works of Manitoba. Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior and Mines, stated last night that briqueting operations at Bienfait, Sask., which have been costing about $8,000 month have passed the experimental stage and experts of the Mines Department, believe that it would be wise now to install a battery there and commence the making of lignite briquets in commercial quantities.

The teams will use the regular lineups with Whitehouse and Collins doing the battery work for the Lakeviews and Bradley and Delehaye for the Leafs. The two clubs are waiting for the final series for the Ontario Championship.

As no games have been scheduled for Saturday the exhibition contest will be put on to provide a week end bill for the fans and a good workout for the teams, against southpaw pitching. There will be no admission fee but a collection will be taken to help the clubs who have heavy travelling expenses in the final games.

WAR SCARE IS NOT YET OVER

Armies of Greece and Italy Massed Ready For Hostilities.

ATHENS, September 12. (Canadian Press.) — The crisis between Italy and Serbia over the Fiume question is causing grave anxiety here, where it is looked upon as a possible menace to the immediate adjustment of the Greco-Italian situation. It is feared that in the event of hostilities Italy will find some pretext to continue the occupation of Corfu, the occupation of which seems to be the uppermost factor in Greek circles.

It is stated in the despatches received here from Rome that Mussolini is determined not to evacuate Corfu until the murderers of the Mission have been executed, and an indemnity paid in full.

The advices from Belgrade say that the populace of the Jugo-Slavia capital is in a state of high excitement and that the government will follow step by step every military movement made by Italy. The armies of both countries are massed along the border ready for immediate hostilities.

The Albanians have closed the Greek frontier and are arming all men of military age.

Arrest Suspects.

The Greek government has arrested eight persons suspected of the murder of the Italian Boundary Commission in Janina, according to a Rome despatch to the Central News, London. The arrest of Col. Bolsearis, a Greek member of the Greco-Albania Commission, is said to be imminent.

PAPYRUS DEFEATED IN ST. LEGER RACE TO-DAY

DONCASTER, Sept. 12.—Papyrus, classed as Premier English three years old and prospective competitor against best United States horse of his age, in race in Unitd States, was beaten in running of St. Leger stakes here to-day. Ben Irish's celebrated thoroughbred finished second to Earl of Derby's Tranquil with H. H. Aga Khan's Terisania, running third.

Thirteen horses ran. The stakes were about 4,500 guineas and distance about one mile six and one half furlongs.

THE TURKS TO HAVE MODERN CONSTITUTION

ANGORA, Turkey, Sept. 11. — (United Press).—Rapidly gathering national assemblymen are faced with the stupendous task of revamping the Turkish constitution.

Immediately necessary reforms will be dealt with as carefully as the necessity for despatch will allow.

The first move will be to fix the life of the assembly at four years. The President of the Assembly, however, will hold office for six years.

Thus, the possible defeat of all sitting members at a general election would not deprive the Assembly of a presiding officer in touch with current business and pending legislation.

Electors will fall into a single classification as soon as the clause dividing them into two degrees can be amended. This will simplify elections and possibly put voting on a fairer basis.

Members of the former imperial family will be debarred from sitting in the Assembly, or from holding either civil or military office, according to a widely favored amendment to be introduced.

Cabinet Formation.

Another amendment will authorize the Premier to present a list of possible Cabinet members to the Assembly for its confirmation. The Cabinet, then, will be selected from among a number of members of the Assembly selected and listed by the Premier. Heretofor, the Premier has had no voice in the selection of his Cabinet, other than his single vote as a deputy.

It is also planned to make the Cabinet, as a unit, responsible to the assembly for the acts of any of its members. The first usage followed the French custom of individual responsibility.

A supreme court of eighteen deputies, functioning somewhat as a high court of appeals, is to be authorized. This latter change will round out the logical sequence of law in new Turkey.

By far the most important of the changes are those dealing with the selection of Cabinet members, the principle of Cabinet responsibility and the inauguration of a supreme court.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

The Downyflake Tea Room,
380 George Street,
Peterboro, Ont.,
Sept. 11, 1923.

The Editor, Evening Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In this date's issue of your paper I notice the remarks of Madison Dearborn in regard to the high cost of eating in our city.

Fully realizing the importance of the tourist trade to all business here and also the earnest endeavors of our Chamber of Commerce and Auto. League to secure this trade, I feel that this letter should be questioned.

If you have the address of Mr. Dearborn, will you kindly forward to him the enclosed menu, which will no doubt open his eyes as to what a small amount of money will really purchase in the line of eating in our city.

It will not be necessary to publish this in your paper, but the writer feels that our good treatment to the tourists must be protected, and we hope that Mr. Dearborn will find himself somewhat in error after looking over the enclosed menu.

Thanking you for your attention.

HEIR TO TURONE

Mr. Thomas added that the Prince had only made one engagement so far, and that was to stay in Ottawa sometime with Lord Byng, the Governor-General.

Sir Godfrey pointed out that the Prince was on a visit to get away from a fixed programme that normally his life consisted of. No announcement could be made as to when he would leave his ranch in the West, to which he was proceeding direct to-morrow.

The only fixed date in his holiday was the day he would sail for home from Quebec on the Empress of France. That was October 13.

Must be awful for a movie star to mistake a former wife for a stranger and marry her again.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

TRANS CANADA THEATRES LIMITED

REMARKABLE CHORUS COMING WITH "LISTEN TO ME."

When Le Comte and Flesher engaged Charles George, the author, to produce their new musical production, "Listen To Me," little did they realize his wonderful ability in the selection of cast and chorus. At their request, Mr. George came to Chicago and immediately went into conference with them relative to types for the respective parts. Le Comte and Flesher were convinced that Mr. George's careful selection of artists for cast and chorus was essential to the lavish splendor for the cast, Mr. George has proven the importance of depicting types for the chorus. The "ponies" who comprise the devilette ballet dancing in the blazing inferno are of lithe forms and exhibit every trace of art in movement. Likewise, George further showed his remarkable ability in the discreet choosing of plump and agile "ponies" for the big scene at the North pole; while those to whom he assigned the characters of the Six Temptations convey impressively their likeness to the parts they they portray.

Neither did the producer fail to taken into consideration the vocal qualities of the chosen artists as this is plainly discernable throughout the entire production. Theatregoers may look forward to a beauty chorus unexcelled in every way when this delightful musical fantasy, "Listen To Me", is presented at the Grand Opera House with a company numbering nearly forty people.

AT THE ROYAL.

"ROB ROY" HERE TO-NIGHT DIRECT FROM MASSEY HALL.

The latest sensation in the film world to come from the Old Country is "Rob Roy," a spectacular romance based on Sir Walter Scott's novel. It comes to Peterboro direct from a two-weeks' run at Massey Hall, Toronto, at road show prices. The original music score will be used by the Royal Orchestra. The success that this production had in Toronto and the story of Rob Roy is too well-known to go into detail here.

The characters, Rob Roy, Helen Campbell, Wee MacGregor, Dougall Argyle and Killearn, portrayed by famous English actors, are figures which seem to live in the story. And the big scenes include the rising of the clans, the tremendous conflagration which consumes the entire MacGregor settlements at Inversnaid, MacGregor's abduction of Helen Campbell, the many physical exploits of Rob Roy, who engages single-handed bands of outlaws and companies of Montrose's retainers, MacGregor's dive into the River Forth, the tremendous mournful funeral procession of the entire Clan MacGregor, which ends in the spectacular rising of the dead.

Local patrons will be agreeably surprised at the admission prices charged by the Royal. Considering the quality of every production since the Royal changed management, Peterboro picture patrons are certainly getting value for their money. Massey Hall charged up to one dollar, while the Royal prices are: Matinee 11c and 15c, evening 25c and 30c.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Enemies of Women, one of the most remarkable stories that, that unusual writer, Vicente Blasco Ibanez ever wrote, will be shown for the last time to-day, the the Capitol theatre. The author of "Blood and Sand" and "The Four Horsemen" has excelled himself in turning out "Enemies of Women" and the story even a more spectacular production, more gorgeous has become as highly dramatic as either of his former pictures. Never before has the power and the glorified mode of life of the pre-war Russian nobility been so intensely and vividly depicted as in Enemies of Women. The artistic orgies of the powerful Russian Prince are scenes of tremendous grandeur; Monte Carlo with its gambling halls and their patrons; Paris before and during the war; all afford a wonderful background for a remarkable story of intrigue and love. Lionel Barrymore is remarkable as the Russian Prince and holds the attention of his audience until the finish of the picture. The suggestion of rugged ferocity which contrasts strangely with his luxurious surroundings, make this one of Barrymore's best roles. Alma Rubens always a splendid actress, makes the most of a big role.

Starting to-morrow Tom Mix in his latest picture "Soft Boiled" will be the attraction. In this picture Mix plays a part radically different from his usual characters. Assisted by his famous horse Tony, does all the stunts and thrills that a Tom Mix picture is expected to have in it. His admirers will find that "Soft Boiled" is one of his best.

CARE WITH STOVE PIPES ADVISED BY FIRE CHIEF

"Clean your stove pipes" is the advice of Fire Chief George Gimblett in view of the approaching chilly weather. Before putting up the pipes for the winter they should be thoroughly cleaned and examined for rust spots. Any pipe that is found defective should be discarded as a very little hole in the pipe may allow a spark to pass that will do great damage. Chimneys should also be inspected to guard against holes. A little prevention now will save much worry when the fires are started.

OWNERSHIP LEAGUE VOICES A PROTEST

Would Withhold Muscle Shoals Water Power From Henry Ford.

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—In tersely phrased message to President Coolidge Public ownership League of America in Session here to-day voiced its Protest against idea of Henry Ford being handed over Great Muscle Shoals water power development, in Southern States.

Resolution carried by convention was as follows:

"Whereas, it is reported in public press that President Coolidge has been in consultation with Henry Ford, with a view to deliver to Mr. Ford, Muscle Shoals water power. Be it resolved, that Public Ownership League of America, most emphatically protest against the turning over of this great public property to Henry Ford or any other private interest. The water power belongs to the people of the United States, it was developed with their money for their use and benefit and we denounce any and every attempt to deprive them of their property by private interests to exploit it for their own personal aggrandisement. We call upon Congress of United States to proceed to utilize this great power for sole benefit of American people, its only and unquestionable owners."

TROUSERS AND THEIR UPKEEP IN ROUND FIGURES

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 11—(United Press).—Trousers worn by Marquette University students here cost $180,000 a year. It cost only $1,-125 to hold them up.

This is a part of the startling information given out through a pamphlet issued recently by the University Press to its advertisers in the city. The report was compiled by students in different departments of the school and shows that $2,500,000 is a conservative estimate for the total buying power of the student body of 4,300.

Because of the many social functions, at which the students want to appear in their best, clothes make up the biggest item, which is $180,-000 while only $1,125 is spent for belts suspenders, safety pins and other contrivances to hold up trousers.

Eight thousand six hundred pairs of shoes are worn out every year, which adds about $55,900 to the total. It costs students $8,600 more to keep their hands warm and free from being chapped, and $10,500 for hats and caps. Neckties add another $15,000 and their underwear increases the amount by $27,000. About $21,000 is paid out for handkerchiefs.

Although there are but few coeds at the university, the reports without itemizing the different kinds of clothing, says it cost about $650,000 to keep Marquette coeds in style during a school year.

Soap is listed at costing $4,300, while shaving cream comes to around $8,100. The report figures that student pays out about $1 a year for talcum. This of course, does not include the coeds. According to the report Milwaukee theatres get about $125,000 worth of business during the school year while confectioners get something like $43,000. Cigarettes are also a big item, being listed at $78,750 and other tobacco ot $10,000.

FALL SWEATERS.

White predominates in sweaters. Of four models shown, one is unrelieved white, one is white with scarlet overplaid, one is white with a border flecked with black and one is whit ewith brown and white striped collar and cuffs. All are of brushed wool.

A BITTER ATTACK ON JOHN L. LEWIS

Blamed for Holding Up the Miners' Strike in Canada.

VANCOUVER, September 12. — Canadian Press. — A bitter attack on President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, for stepping in and deposing the officers of District No. 26, "when the recent strike had been practically won, and on the eve of settlement," was delivered at the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress here yesterday, by Foreman Waye, of Nova Scotia.

"Ws it any wonder that Nova Scotia wanted autonomy?" Mr. Waye asked. He reefrred to the sending of troops to the strike area, and stated that an answer to his wire of protest to the officers of Congress brought a taunt that he had applied for aid when confronted by a difficult situation.

Silby Barrett, provisional President of District No. 26, defended the action of President Lewis in the steel workers strike. He said that the walkout was doomed from the start.

KING ARRIVES AT MADRID ON HEELS REVOLT

State of Seige Has Been Proclaimed — Revolt is Directed Against the Government.

LOYAL TO KING

MADRID, Sept. 1.— (Canadian Press).—Government this afternoon telegraphed Captain General Primo Rivero at Barcelona, appealing to his patriotism and asking him to abandon his 'attitude of rebellion,' Captain General replied with an unqualified refusal. Government thereupon decreed his demotion as military governor of Barcelona.

State of seige was proclaimed here before noon to-day and Catalan military authorities took possession if power in city. It is stated several garrisons, notably those in Madrid, Saragassa and Heiville have adherred to military movement which now must be recognized as regular coup D'Etat. Communique issued by military declares movement is loyal to King and that revolt is directed against government.

The King arrived in city before noon and every precaution was taken to prevent any inauthorized person having access to the vicinity, station being surrounded by troops.

Conditions present normal aspect and no special agitation on part of people has been noticed. The army as whole it is stated, remains loyal to government, which expresses confidence in its ability to stamp out the revolt.

BOARD OF WORKS TEAM ALL HET UP

Ready to Challenge Everything This Side of the Great Divide.

The Board of Works tug-of-war team had another excellent workout on Tuesday evening, and the men are certainly getting down to business in the proper way. The officers were all present, and feel very proud of the team, and feel confident that they will be invincible when put to the test. In fact, their enthusiasm is running as high that "Anchor-Man Murphy" is ready to issue a challenge to any team in North America, and if there are any teams in this district that want to take up this challenge, if they will communicate with Secretary C. S. Stapleton, he will take care of their correspondence, and assign them a place in the contest.

A test was also made at the last work-out, and there are two men on the team, either one of whom will undertake to hold any three men on any competing team, as an exhibition test, so bring on your strong men.

The executive of the team has been materially strengthened by the appointment of W. H. Lytle on the Board, who will act as assistant manager, and assist the other members in an advisory capacity.

THE ATOM MAY BE A SUBJECT MORE ENQUIRY

Scientists Hear Interesting Address on the Structure of the Atom Canadians Present.

LAST MET IN 1918

LONDON, Sept. 13. — (United Press.)—The Presidential address of Sir Ernest Rutherford, former President of McGill University, to the British Association yesterday, has aroused intense interest not only in scientific circles but among laymen also, while ambitious authors who have been writing novels based upon the possibility of enormous development of power from the release of stores of atomic energy, are tearing up their manuscripts.

In revealing the progress of physical science since the last meeting in 1918, Sir Ernest had a warm tribute to the work of the Dominion scientists which was enthusiastically approved.

General interest is centred chiefly in his discussion of the structure of the atom, the discovery of radium and its emanation of alpha beta and gamma rays, has enabled scientists to use alpha particles as projectile for the exploration of the interior of the atom which had practically established that units of positive and negative electricity were the fundamental units upon which the universe was built. He held out the possibility that further enquiry might show that even these units were themselves complex and divisible into even more fundamental entities.

Among the Canadians attending the meeting are Professors Adams, Eve, Tate, Whitby and McCallum, of McGill University.

FIUME SITUATION IS GETTING WORSE

Military Plans of the Balkans Already Decided Upon.

LONDON, September 13 (Canadian Press). — Professor Gilbert Murray, Regius Professor of Greek at Oxford University, and member of the League of Nations' International Committee on Intellectual Co-operation, in a radio despatch to the League of Nations Union in London, describes the Fiume situation as very dangerous.

Dr. Murray says that unless the League of Nations intervenes, general hostilities involving Greece, Serbia, Bulgaria, and Hungary are certain to commence on 15th September.

He adds that some of the military plans of the Balkan Powers already have been decided upon.

The British Foreign Office expressed entire lack of agreement today with the idea expressed by Prof. Murray.

The British Government, it was declared, has not, as reported, suggested a definite date to the Italians for the evacuation of Corfu, that being left to Premier Mussolini himself.

MR. AND MRS F. JOHNSON TO RESIDE IN THE WEST

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson, with their daughter Margaret, left the city this morning to take up residence in the West. Mr. Johnson will be greatly missed in musical circles. Last spring he sang with fine effect the bass parts in the dramatic cantata, "The Darkest Hour," and the King's part in the opera, "Utopia Limited." For many years a faithful member of St. John's choir, Mr. Johnson retired last June when Mr. Devey's resignation as organist and choirmaster became effective. As a slight token of esteem Mr. R. J. Devey presented Mr. Johnson with a splendid Morocco-bound volume of standard bass songs. Yesterday many old friends joined in wishing the departing family every happiness in their new home.

WELL KNOWN IRISHMAN PASSED AWAY SUDDENLY

DUBLIN, Sept. 13 — (Canadian Press).—Very Rev. Henry Patterson Glen, former Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, died at Bray last night. He had been nominated as a member of the Free State Senate.

"WHISPER OF DEATH" FINDS NO PLACE WITH MONAGHAN

Residents of Progressive Township Demonstrate Enterprise, Industry and Confidence in Canada's Future—Building Boom in Evidence

Rumours have reached us from the Montreal Star, of the "Whisper of Death." "Canada," its editor asserts, "is going to the dogs." But no fear of the Whisper of Death has its hold upon the residents of this community. Buildings are going up—and going up rapidly—in every direction—from the humble 10 foot square domicile, to the more pretentious two stories and a half dwelling.

Most of the owners are building their homes in their spare time—putting in perhaps but a tack now and a tack then—but nevertheless building them for themselves. Some of them have forsaken the beaten path of designs set by convention, and are branching out into unbeaten paths of their own. Perhaps they suffer the ridicult of their neighbors for a time, but this is more than compensated for by the joy of achieving.

On one street no fewer than seven new houses can be counted—this not counting those which are being altered or improved. The bungalow design appears to be the most popular at present, though all varying somewhat in shape and size. Ready roofing shingles seem to have won the approval of these builders, as can be seen by the array of green roofs, which one meets with on a tour through this new colony.

Some builders have bought "machine-made" houses, and have the temerity—with the aid of a carpenter—to put them together. "The pieces fit together perfectly," one man explained, as he stood back surveying his new dwelling with pardonable pride. He seemed quite pleased with his adventure in home building, and mentioned that it cost less than the ordinary method of procedure.

Farther south, one finds the same thing going on, though here the conventional path has been forsaken. The tinier dwellings are disappearing in a maze of new scantlings and sheeting which cover one side like a hood, leaving the other end quite bare. Some have boards going in all directions, as though the builder had no idea when he started out just what he intended to do next. Perhaps he had no clear conception of what he wished to do; or had no idea how to do what he wished—but he felt the tingle of achieving, and so he kept on.

Who said that Canada was going to the dogs? that Canada was going bankrupt? The progress of North Monaghan, at least, would give the partial lie to that statement. Only last winter the electric light lines were extended to this enerprising community, and the power is now installed in nearly every home—with those outside the company's limit begging to receive of its bounty.

Last year, also, a post office was insalled near Crawford's Grove—and this is doing its best to build up the community's independence. North Monaghan is progressing—there is no "Whisper of Death."

A NEW POLICY IS SUGGESTED

Invoke Empire Settlement Act to Assist Emigrants to Canada.

LONDON, Sept. 13. — (United Press). — The Times this morning prints a letter from the Hon. F. C. Wade, Agent-General for British Columbia, following up the announcement of the Canadian Government's new immigration policy. Mr. Wade suggests a combination of the British Empire Settlement Act and the Canadian Soldiers' Settlement Act. Under the latter, the British as well as Canadian soldiers are provided with a stated allowance to take up Canadian land on the basis of 20 per cent. provided by the soldier and 8 per cent. advanced by the Government. Few of the ex-service men in Britain are able to raise the 20 per cent., and Mr. Wade suggests that the Empire Settlement Act provide intending emigrants with this 20 per cent. installment as in Imperial. He urges that under such a system thousands of unemployed could be brought to Canada.

SLAV GOVERNMENT WILL CLOSE BULGAR FRONTIER

ATHENS, Sept. 13. — (United Press.)—The Jugo-Slav Government has ordered the closing of the Serbo-Bulgarian frontier, following extensive invasions of Jugo-Slav territory by large bands of armed Bulgarians, a telegram from Belgrade said to-day.

Home Bank Victims Are Again Active

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press). — Depositors and shareholders in the Home Bank are again discussing further measures to secure their rights when the assets and liabilities of the institution are definitely determined.

I. E. Weldon of Lindsay, Ont., secretary of the committee of depositors, says that the committee's object is to secure representative organization of the bank's depositors from coast to coast. It is proposed to hold a meeting of the depositors in Toronto about September 19, at which delegates from other cities would be present.

Mr. Weldon hopes that the curator may find the affairs of the bank such that depositors may not lose anything.

Thirty Pennies

"Ha, ha," was the comment of Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa (above), when he learned that W. T. Meredith (below), former Secretary of Agriculture, threatens to sue him for 30 cents damages. Meredith, Brookhart charged in a speech, helped deflate farm prices in 1920. Both men promise more fireworks.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT ON THE CHEMONG ROAD

The aftermath of an automobile accident on the Chemong road will be heard in police court next week when the driver of one of the wrecked cars who is now out on bail, will appear for trial. On Sunday evening Mr. Truman Jewell of Lakefield accompanied by his wife and Mr. Bruce Beckell of Smith Township, were returning from Toronto, when a car returning from Lakefield and containing four Peterboro men, crashed into them. Both cars were badly wrecked and Mrs. Jewell who received a severe shaking up required medical attention from Lakefield. County Constable S. R. Pearson was notified and after investigating the circumstances laid a charge with the above result.

FOR JAPANESE RELIEF

ROME, Sept. 13. — (Canadian Press).—Pope Pius has sent twenty thousand dollars to Apostolic delegation in Washington for Japanese relief.

THE BABY SHOW AT EXHIBITION A HUGE SUCCESS

Is Evidently Proving One of Peterboro Fais's Big Drawing Cards this Year.

JUDGING RESULTS

The big tent near the George street entrance to the Fair Grounds, which is used by the ladies in charge of the Baby Show and Contest, is evidently going to be one of the centres of attraction at the Exhibition this year. Any doubt of the success of a Baby Show in Peterborough would be dissipated by a visit to this active place yesterday afternoon, when judging in two classes was going on. Many women who did not enter their babies took advantage of the privacy and comfort of the big enclosure to come with their infants for a half hour of rest. In the screened-off section, doctors and nurses superintended the examination and judging of the babies. In the section devoted to infants up to six months of age, there were several new entries, as well as those made at the Well Babies' Clinic during the last few weeks.

Supervised Infants.

The class devoted to specially supervised infants, those who were registered at the Clinic and whose progress since has been watched with careful attention, was perhaps the most interesting. There were seven entries in this class, six of whom received prizes. Two of these were babies whose early days were passed under the shadow of extreme illness, and whose ultimate recovery was considered doubtful by doctors and parents alike. It would be hard, however, to find anywhere two healthier-looking children than these two are now, one a large-eyed, fair-haired little boy, placid and smiling; the other a delectable wee girlie, whose plump cheeks and bright eyes form a strong contradiction to the assertion that at one time she was a puny little baby. For one of these an ocean voyage proved a wonderful restorative. The other had special treatment, with particulor diet and a room with a temperature of eighty degrees.

No Fuss or Flurry.

There wasn't much fuss or flurry at the tent yesterday. The infants were all small, and, for the most part, smiling. One little lady, evidently accustomed to music, kept up a perpetual sort of funny dance in her carriage, beaming at visitors with an eye that matched the blue of her pretty silk cover. A mischievous baby flashed broad approbation on the world at large as she contemplated her white socks, after losing the mate to her black patent-leather shoe. Whether the small men and women knew they were supposed to be on their best behavior is doubtful, but they made little fuss over the examination that preceded the judging.

Outside Entries.

In the second section, of babies under six months of age, there were twenty-one entries, one from outside the city limits.

Physicians who acted as judges yesterday, giving the matter much serious attention and carefully deliberating the points of the various entrants, were Dr. A. W. McPherson and Dr. D. C. King, for the special class of specially supervised infants, and the six months' babies were judged by Drs. W. D. Scott, McNulty, Clark and Wood. In crisp white uniforms, Mrs. G. S. McCartney and Miss Deyell acted as nurses in charge. Assistants for registration were Mrs. R. Harstone and Miss Marjorie Best. Dr. Jessie Birnie supervised affairs generally.

Prizes Awarded.

To the wives of two of the local Y.M.C.A. workers went prizes in the first section judged. In this class four prizes were to be awarded; four silver mugs containing ten, eight, six and four dollars' worth of milk tick-

EXHIBITION SWELLED WITH NEW ARRIVALS

More Attractions Added to Midway — Prizes in Singing Competition—Attendance Was Good

ROUND THE EXHIBITS

When the Exhibition gates opened this morning it was to admit three additions to the midway and several concessionaires who speedily set up their stalls with various attractions.

A good crowd gathered at noon, and by two o'clock the open space around the vaudeville platform was crowded with automobiles, while the grand stand was being filled rapidly.

Yesterday's attendance figures, given out this morning, show a big increase over last year, indicating, in the directors' opinions, in view of the unfavourable weather conditions, a greater interest in the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

Gate count indicated that there were 5,030 children in the grounds yesterday and 2,016 adults who paid admission.

Last year's figures were: 4,500 children and 1,836 adults.

Singing Competition.

In the singing competition conducted yesterday afternoon, James Marchen was adjudged the prize-winner among the boys, and Phyllis Cooper was awarded first place among the girls. The prizes, consisting of $5.00 cash, may be obtained from W. F. Turner.

Webber Turner stated to-day that, brilliant though the fireworks were last night, they were not the best that will be shown. The dampness spoiled two or the sets, and others which had been arranged were held back.

The fireworks display will conclude every day's Exhibition.

Thousands of Lights.

A feature of the Exhibition much commented on last night was the lighting. H. O. Fisk, manager of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, informed The Examiner to-day that a lamp is placed every ten feet along the fence surrounding the grounds, and every building is outlined at corners, ridge, and eaves with lamps spaced three feet apart.

Many hundreds of lights are used in the midway, and more in the lighting of roadways and interiors of buildings. This year's blaze of light eclipses any previous year.

To-morrow's Programme.

The programme for Friday will be substantially the same as to-day, except that racing events will be for horses in the 2.20 class and the 2.30 class, with a purse of $250.00 in each race.

First Alberta Coal.

The honour of lighting the first Alberta coal fire in Peterborough belongs to E. M. Turner, and Roland Denne, president of the Exhibition Board, was second. Everyone who investigated the working of this fuel at the Exhibition was satisfied that it would be an acquisition in the city. The exhibition will continue every day.

The Main Building.

The large upstairs section of the Main Building is devoted as usual to a display of women's work, in fine needlework, painting and cooking. The exhibit of needlework this year is outstanding, the embroideries on view eliciting the most admiring comments for their daintiness and general careful execution.

A noticeable display is in the small section where the handiwork of ladies over seventy-five years of age is on view. Here is a beautifully crocheted bag from the hands of a woman of ninety-two years of age, and a knitted bed-spread whose owner has passed the four score mark. A luncheon cloth and serviettes in unbleached cotton, daintily embroidered in silks, is especially good, and there is a pair of comfortable looking brown knitted socks.

An item that attracted much favorable attention was the inlaid table near the end of the room, with its intricate conventional design picked out in vari-colored tiny sections of different woods, centred by a Masonic emblem, the base picked out with delicate tracings.

The centre of the room has a section holding exquisite embroidered work, with heavy linen scarves and table covers. Above it hang the quilts, knitted and pieced. Here is the Rising Sun in red, and white and blue, the Flowering Rose in red and green, a counterpane in the new style of patchwork, with applied pieces edged with buttonhole stitching, and knitted spreads in the old "woodbine and willow" raised pattern.

There are hooked rugs, warm and

STOCKS UNDER ATTACK AGAIN

Reaction Due to Efforts of an Individual and Heavy Sales.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 13.—(Special.)—Wednesday's outburst of selling at a moment when the market appeared definitely headed for higher prices, caused many commission house commentators to throw up their hands in despair. Their advices to their clients that the chances of further recovery seemed slight brought heavy offerings at the opening and prices were generally lower in the initial dealings. Evidence was afforded all through the list of hasty abandonment of long positions built up in the hope that the recent attempt of constructive interests to create a higher, broader market might prove successful. American Can, Studebaker, Steel and other industrial leaders broke below the points of resistance established on last week's decline, while active rails yielded the greater part of their recent gains.

Stocks continued under pressure through the first hour and prices among the active industrials reached new lows on the re-action toward 11 o'clock. One of the principal impulses which set the decline in motion was Wednesday's heavy selling by a leading Standard Oil house. Wall Street connected these offerings with an allied disagreement in the Standard Oil family over the price policy. However, this firm's biggest transaction was a sale of 10,000 shares of steel in liquidation of a single account. It represented, therefore the opinion of an individual.

Another factor in the re-action was the selling attributed to First National Bank interests. American Can and National Biscuit made up the bulk of the offerings. Can was said to have been sold owing to the relinquishment of the idea of splitting up its common stock this year. It was said an extra dividend of $1 a share was the best which could be expected in 1923. Biscuit was subjected to pressure on reports that plans to increase the present $3 rate or declare an extra $1 had been given up. Opening prices included:

Pan Petrolemum B 57 3-8, up 1-8; Baltimore and Ohio 49 3-4, off 1-4; Republic Steel 47 1-8; Sinclair, 20 1-4, up 1-8; Baldwin, 121 1-4, off 3-8; American Sugar 65 3-4, off 1; Pennsylvania, 43 1-8, up 1-8; U.S.S. 90 1-2; Betthlehem Steel 51 7-8, off 1-4; New Haven 13, up 1-4; Southern Pac. 98 1-2, off 1-8; Reading 74 1-2, off 1-8; United States Rubber, 41 1-4, off 1-2; Studebaker 104 5-8, off 1-8; Can 95 3-4, off 1-2; Northern Pac. 58 5-8, off 1-2; Corn Prods 125 1-4, up 1-4; Southern Railway 33 1-8, off 1-4; General Motors 15 3-8, off 1-8; N.Y.C. 5-8, off 1-8.

COOL WEATHER NORTH COUNTRY

Premier Ferguson and Party Get a Cool Reception.

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Colonel Harry Cockshutt, Lieutenant - Governor of Ontario; Premier G. Howard Ferguson, and members of the Government party which arrived in the "north country" two hundred miles north of here, this morning, to look over the railway and agricultural situation, received rather a cool reception, meteorologically speaking. The weather north of the Canadian Pacific main line, from Ontario to the Pacific Coast, was reported this morning as comparatively cool for the season of the year. White River, Ontario, the provertial cold spot in civilized Eastern Canada, failed to report the official temperature this morning, which in itself seemed ominous. In the neighborhood of Sault Ste Marie snow was reported, while Winnipeg figures showed six degrees of frost during the night. Toronto's 46 above zero as the lowest was comparatively mild when placed beside Calgary's 32 and Edmonton's 38.

FLOWERS MAKE BRIGHT PLACE AT FALL FAIR

The Astors Make a Glorious Display This Year —School Children Make a Valuable Contribution

FEATUQES AT FAIR

Delicacy in coloring seems to be the watchword in the splendid showing of flowers this year at Peterboro's Fall Fair. Although there are brilliant shades in many of the exhibits they are not obtrusive. Even the bright spots of color made by the zinnias and the African ball orbs of yellow and orange marigolds is not glaring, but seems to harmonize with its green-fern and softly-tinted foliage surroundings.

At one end of the perfumed tent, where the light falls with softer effect on the lovely flowers, there is a display of superb gladioli, those up-standing beautiful blooms, that are declared to be better specimens than seen at the Toronto Exhibition. They are larger than ever this year and more colorful. The new variety, the 'Primuliana,' with small, down-dropping petals, is not much in evidence. Wide chalices of color open for inspection in dozens of jars, over the sign of "J. H. Callander. Not for competition." "Old Glory" is a new arrival, a purplish maroon of an odd type; "Mona Lisa" is an orchid beauty; "War," a warm rose madder, and there is one towering lot of wonderful warm cream specimens that are unnamed. The "Mary Pickford" is a white, with pale lemon centre; "Rose Ash" is the exact shade of the old ashes of roses tint, and "Ontario Glory" is a yellowish pink.

Another gladioli display shows a "White Giant," just like its name, a creamish mauve; "Loveliness," a red and purple splashed; "Olive," a clear ne crimson "Lovere," and a pure cream "Flora."

The table bouquets are especially good, showing an artistic touch in their arrangement. There is a pillow of magnicent purple and white asters, and a basket of the same, its base encircled with a wild wood vine, its handle entwined with purple and white ribbon. A table bouquet of reep red asters is outlined with the delicate gypsophila, or baby's breath — another of mauve asters has mauve cosmos to attract the eye.

Over in one corner are the hanging red bells of potted fuchsias, companioned by the begonia Rex that disdains a bloom. Flowering pink begonias, with their shining waxed faces consort with a group of delicately-fronded ferns.

Down at the far end, coleus, the many-shaded foliage plants, show some forty-five different shades of color.

In the centre of the tent is a separate enclosure, with the orchid-like Rubram lily, rose-purple, against a white ground, bursting forth from a mossy base. Here also are windows and verandah boxes, and a collection of the curious cacti, curving in squat and long weird, spine-encrusted shapes.

A strange flower that makes a good showing is the zinnia, with its peculiar variations of tint in bronze, carmine, green and orange. The Picotee variety has a brown tip to its green petals, the zebra is striped to match its name, the cactus has a quilled edge. Nearby are the cheerful marigolds, flaming in yellow and orange, and delicate vases of ping cosmos flanked by wild marsh bouquets, interspersed with white wood berries and tall bulrushes.

Geraniums have a special section in masses of untraced pink and red, and there are a few roses, some pansies, and little sweet williams on a small end table. The asters are glorious this year, some of them are like big, curling-edged 'mums.

The collections of cut flowers are particularly good, revealing to an inquiring eye many of the odd and out-of-the-way blooms seldom encountered. Here are dainty low bowls of Dresden-tinted verbena, with spicy fragrance, a tiny vase of delicate forget-me-nots, gorgeous dahlias, in single and double specimens, the morning glory bells of striped salpiglossis, masses of mauve and red petunias, the flat round lace flower with its periwinkle coloring. Phlox are good this year, in their flat creams and reds and purples; the blue paint-brush is there, with its

TO TELL HOW TRADE ASSOCIATIONS HELP

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(Associated Press).—How the trade association can make a market analysis, promote the use of members' products by co-operative advertising, bring about standardization in an industry, and help elevate the standards of retail merchandizing, are some of the subjects on the program of the convention of the American Trade Association Executives, to be held here, October 24-26.

The functions of trade associations and their place in the economic fabric of the country will be described and analyzed, according to an announcement by O. B. Towne, Secretary-Treasurer. Prominent tradesmen will lead in the principal discussions.

"The establishment of business standards, improvement of methods of production and distribution, the utilization of a wider variety of raw materials, the general elimination of waste, and the development of a higher code of business ethics are some of the achievements of trade associations," Mr. Towne said.

"In gathering statistics of production consumption, stocks and prices, where these have been made available to the entire public, we also have contributed much to the stability of business and the diminution of speculation."

PRINCE KNOCKS ABOUT QUEBEC SEEING SIGHTS

Strolled Around Alone Shopping and Enjoying Freedom From Red Tape

BEATEN AT GOLF.

QUEBEC, Que., September 13 (Canadian Press). — The Prince of Wales, who has come to Canada for a rest-up from red tape and a life necessarily planned weeks ahead, began his vacation in real earnest here yesterday. He had not landed an hour when he started out to act just as would Lord Renfrew, the title he takes on this trip, and not like the heir to the British throne.

He came down from his room in the Chateau Frontenac, and wandered around the rotunda for a moment or two. Then he saw a side door which led to the street apparently, and through it he went. He strolled up the Dufferin Terrace, and looked at the shipping in the harbour beneath. Then he set off at a loose but speedy gait towards the citadel. Having looked this over he shot back to town and entered some stores to buy a few personal things.

Sliced His Shots.

In the afternoon he went out to the Quebec Golf Course, one of the most beautifully situated on the continent, with some of the holes overlooking Montmorency Falls, too close, as a matter of fact, for the Prince, who pulled several balls into them. He played 18 holes.

The Prince seemed to be thrilled by the liberty of his position—nobody playing over the course at the time he was there taking any notice of him. Several times he hopped briskly out of the way of the shots.

He figured in a threesome with Sir Godfrey Thomas, his private secretary, and the Hon. Martin Burrell, of Ottawa. Mr. Burrell is a canny player, and he was too much for the Prince and Sir Godfrey. The Prince enjoyed himself, that was evident.

Returning from the golf course, it was announced that the Prince would not venture out of his suite again last night.

The Prince will play 18 holes of golf this morning.

The Prince proceeds West this afternoon, and his intention is to make the journey to his ranch in Alberta without a break. Coming back he may stop at some Canadian cities for a little while. He has decided on no fixed policy except that he is on holiday.

KU KLUX KLAN IN MEXICO.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 13.—(Associated Press)—The Ku Klux Klan has appeared in Mexico, but thus far has confined its activities to visits to newspaper offices and to writting communications to the press. The klansmen wear black robes and hoods and are chary with words, emphasizing their arguments with pistol flourishes. Their only entrance into public affairs has been a cleanup campaign conducted at Tacubaya, a suburb.

First Touch of Winter in West

SASKATOON, September 13—One-quarter of an inch of ice lay on the ponds and sloughs at Unity, Sask., to-day, following Tuesday night's heavy frost. Garden growth was killed and practically all the standing grain was damaged to some extent.

The University of Saskatchewan weather observatory here registered ten degrees of frost last night. Thermometers in lower-lying sections of the city recorded from 12 to 15 degrees.

Real Wintry Day.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. September 12. — Reports received here to-day from points south of the Assiniboine River in the Portage district, record the first snow storm of the season.

At Oakville and other points south of the river it began to snow during the night, and when daylight came it showed to be about two inches on the ground, a real wintry day.

A Few Snowflakes.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Sept. 12. — Curious weather was at large here to-day. A few flakes of snow, rain and hail, brilliant sunshine and cloudy conditions succeeded each other.

PASS RESOLUTION FOR PROTECTION

Bradford Chamber of Commerce Shows Change of Opinion.

LONDON, Sept. 12. —(Canadian Press Cable.)—For the first time in its history the Bradford Chamber of Commerce to-day passed a resolution in favor of protection.

The resolution urged that the forthcoming imperial and economic conference should be asked to consider the advisability of putting on raw materials of which they have a monopoly an export tax on those going to all countries outside the Empire.

Another resolution adopted was that the Board of Trade should be asked to institute an inquiry, provided for under the Safeguarding of Industries Act, into the causes of unemployment in the West Riding in order that the act might, if deemed advisable be applied to West Riding trade.

E. H. Gates who moved the first resolution, declared that however clever and enterprising the West Riding manufacturers might be they could not meet competition with depreciated exchange.

Akroyd Senior, vice-president of the chamber, said he had been a free trader for many years but if one never learned by experience one never made progress. When the Safeguarding of Industries Act was passed practically no member of the chamber favored it, but they had been through a lot since and they had to admit that others perhaps had shown more foresight.

FOUND DEAD WITH RIFLE IN HANDS

Despondent Blew Off Top of His Head.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Sept 13. —(Canadian Press). — Shortly before noon Sergeant Fred Mastin and P. C. Robertson hurried to 345 Bush street, in answer to an urgent summons from Mrs. Charles Roskelly where they discovered her father, William J. Wright, lying on a bed upstairs with the top of his head completely shot off and his hands still gripping a 36.-55 Winchester rifle with which he had committed suicide. Wright had been in ill health for some time and was living alone at the house, his wife having died some eleven years ago.

Mrs. Roskelly stated that her father has been very despondent lately She went to the house this morning and lit a fire in the stove and proceeded upstairs to do some housework when she discovered the remains of her father.

The police state that the bullet after passing through the man's skull pierced three partitions of the building.

STAMBOULISKY HOARDED CASH.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 13.—(Associated Press)—Stambulisky, the Premier of Bulgaria, who was slain last month during the reaction against the peasant government of which he was the leader, had a tidy sum of money hidden away for eventualities. The authorities have found 57,000,000 levas, or approximately $57,000, in his house in Sofia. He was generally reputed to be a hoarder, and is thought to have planted considerable money outside the country. Endeavors are being made to get this also.

Most of the cash found here was in Bulgarian currency, but among the collection were two American one dollar bills.

Stambulisky's salary as premier was 10,000 levas, or $100 a month.

EXPORT TRADE ESSENTIAL TO THIS COUNTRY

Advertising Manager of General Motors Says It Is Factor in Prosperity.

SPEAKS AT OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, September 13 (Canadian Press). — That one of the foundational factors in the prosperity of the country commercially was its export trade, and that there was a great avenue of trade extension and industrial success for Canada in cultivating the market for manufactured goods in foreign lands was the message of Milton Bergey, advertising manager of General Motors Corporation, Oshawa, Ont., who was the speaker at the directors' luncheon of the Central Canada Exhibition here yesterday.

Mr. Bergey spoke optimisticaly of the outlook for industry in Canada. He said one of the main problems was that of distribution, and that problem was exceedingly complex. A factor in its solution was adequate publicity, and he emphasised the fact that the creation of a favourable publicity ,was a scientific problem that had to be solved in a scientific manner. The day was coming, he felt sure, when every university would have its chair of publicity and advertising just as its chairs of other branches of scientific study.

A great avenue of prosperity lay in cultivating the export trade of the country. But the export market was a difficult one to handle; the export demand must be studied and the requirements of the trade met. With regard to business in general in the Dominion, Mr. Bergey said that the fundamental principle underlying the growth of business was confidence. Confidence in the goods sold to the public by the purchaser. Business would increase in exact proportion to the confidence the public had in the goods and in the business methods of the merchants and the manufacturer. Business ethics were reaching a higher standard, he thought.

New Lamp Burns 94% Air

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U.S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. S. Johnson, 246 Craig Street, W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

Town Destroyed By Pacific Tide

MEXICALI, Lower California, September 12 — Wireless messages received here late to-day report the destruction by a tidal wave of San Jose de Cabo, a small fishing town on the west coast of Lower California, just above Cape San Lucas. The number of lives lost is not known.

Most of the 500 inhabitants of the town are believed to have escaped to higher ground when the tidal wave swept over the place yesterday, according to radio advices sent out by a steamer which cleared Cape Lucas shortly before the catastrophe.

FORCE FARMERS TO LINE ELEVATORS

Effect of the Embargo on Wheat to Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept 13.—Line elevator companies were responsible for the embargo on wheat going to Vancouver, according to W. L. Lawler, former grain man, who appeared before the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission here to-day. Mr. Lawler said the line elevator companies desiring the farmers to ship through their eastern elevators, had caused the embargo. This would force the farmers to send their grain to the companies' terminal elevators where it could be mixed. Also, the companies would not have to pay the premium to the farmers as was done last year when farmers shipped by the western route he said.

Mr. Lawler thought the line companies should erect terminal elevators here. The Canada Grain Act should be amended he said, to give Vancouver a sample market. This, with the proper facilities would make Vancouver the greatest grain export port in the world, he said.

CANADIAN SHIPS FOR GRAIN TRAFFIC

U. S. Vessels Unwilling to File Tariff of Rates.

OTTAWA, Sept. 13—(By Canadian Press) — Further conferences took place to-day between Chief Grain Commission L. H. Boyd, Commissioner James Robertson and Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, on the question of handling grain shipments from the head of the Great Lakes. The Commissioners will remain in Ottawa over Thursday.

Mr. Low said to-night that there was no change in the situation. Only Canadian vessels were available for the traffic, he said, since United States Shipping Companies still refuse to take part owing to their reluctance to file tariffs of rates with the Grain Commission at Fort William in accordance with law passed last season.

MUSSOLINI HAS CASTLE FOR SUMMER HOME

ROME, Sept. 13.—(Associated Press).—The Castello of Sangallo, once the famous fortress and the property of the great Colonna family, has become the summer residence of the Fascisti Premier, who comes to his office every morning by motor.

The medieval castle was owned by the Colonna family when their estates were confiscated by Alexander VI. in 1501. The Castello of Sangallo eventually came into possession of Lucrezia Borgia's daughter and her second husband, Alfonso of Aragon. Alexander VI. added to the castle but all of the property was later returned to the Colonna family.

Once again the Colonna family lost the Castello of Sangallo but recovered it when the people of the district revolted in their favor. The castle was later sold to Clement VIII. for 400,000 ducats and it remained in the possession of the church until 1831 when it was sold for the same price to the Borghese family. It became state property in 1870 and since then has passed into various hands and now is in sore need of repair.

Instead of the picturesque old Colonna servitors or Papal Guards, the castle is guarded by the Fascisti militia, dressed in black shirts, who extend the Roman salute to Mussolini as he enters and leaves the gates.

SMUGGLING CHINESE.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 13.—(Associated Press)—Hundreds of Chinese are being smuggled into Lower California in defiance of the law, according to a complaint received by the department of agriculture from Governor Jose Inocente Lugo. He declares that these Occidentals, who carry great quantities of drugs, are landed on the desert shores south of Ensenada and, on entering centers of population, devote themselves to selling opiates. Scores of them, in trying to reach the populated districts near the American frontier, become lost in the deserts and perish miserably, he asserts.

GERMANY PREPARED TO GIVE REAL GUARANTEE FOR FREEDOM OF RUHR

Stresemann Pledges Mortgages on Private and Public Property For Fund to Pay Indemnity to France.

WANTS RUHR FREE.

BERLIN, Sept. 12.— Chancellor Stresemann, in an address to-day, declared:

"We are ready to give real guarantees in order to secure the freedom of the Ruhr."

He admitted that a solution of the problem could not be obtained by passive resistance.

Addressing a gathering of newspaper editors, the Chancellor after reviewing the economic position, turned to foreign questions. He said that openness was better than illusion and therefore he wished openly to say that without a solution of the foreign political dispute the financial situation could not be settled and the collapse of the mark could not be restrained.

A solution of the Ruhr dispute could not be achieved solely by continuance of passive resistance; nor could the question be settled by a policy of force.

Want Ruhr Vacated.

Even Chancellor Cuno, said Herr Stresemann, had never contended that negotiations could only be undertaken after the evacuation of the Ruhr. The object of passive resistance was only to free the Ruhr territory, and the Government would be doing a great service if it could shorten the Ruhr dispute as far as possible. Feelers hitherto put out, however, showed the difficulties which existed.

"For us," continued the Chancellor, "the question of the sovereignty of the Rhineland and regaining the freedom of the Ruhr territory is decisive .For it we are ready to give real guarantees. M. Poincare in a recent speech said he preferred the positive securities which France had in hand to the finest theoretical rights. He did not intend to exchange pledges for general guarantees and emphasized further that the guarantees belonged to the mortgages which the Treaty of Versailles gave to the Allies on the entire possessions of the Reich."

Erroneous Conception.

"This conception of the French Premier," said the Chancellor, "I must describe as erroneous. According to the Versailles Treaty the property of the Reich and individual sttaes is a pledge for Germany's obligations. What I suggested referred to the direct enlistment of private property, and thus goes beyond the Treaty. This enlistment is also a realizable pledge, while the securities of the Versailles Treaty are at present not so. If mortgages in favor of the Reiech were entered into on property of a state and on private property of economic organizations as a pledge to the extent of a percentage of this property, these mortgages could be transferred to a trusteeship as a real negotiable step. In the administration of this trusteeship the reparation creditors would actively participate. The proceeds accruing from these mortgages would be paid to the trustees, who would then be in a position to issue bonds. Thus France would come into immediate possession of large sums of money and the interest on these payments would be guaranteed.

Not Mere Theory.

"Surely such an accomplishment is not merely a piece of theory or a general guarantee, but constitutes something real and free of all vagueness. Such guarantees will give France cash and will meet the conditions under which France was willing to evacutae the Ruhr.

"Before these guarantees can be obtained Germany must be permitted the right to administer the Ruhr and recover her sovereignty in the Rhineland. These guarantees are capable of solving the question of passive resistance, provided we are given assurance that on the basis of such an understanding the Ruhr will be evacuated and the Rhineland will be accorded its former rights.

YEARN FOR SCHOOL.

WASHINGTON, (United Press). —The Government used to have to use punitive methods to get Indians to send their children to school. Nowadays the problem is to get enough schools for the Indian children who want to be taught, the Interior Department says.

Troops of cavalry used to be sent to reservations when Indian agents couldn't get the red-skinned youngsters to school by moral suasion. Then the Indians used to tear down school houses and interfere with construction of others by hiding the lumber.

Now the Indians help in school construction. All the big schools off the reservations, where Indians are educated, have been forced to increase their capacity this year.

TIMBER CRUISER DEAD

OTTAWA, Sept. 13.—One of the best known timber estimators in eastern Canada, died here to-day, after a week's illness in the person of Abraham George Boland 61, timber cruiser for J. R. Booth, lumber king for the last 25 years. Death was due to paralysis and pneumonia.

Clothing Needed By the Japanese

OTTAWA, Sept. 13.—(By Canadian Press).—The Japanese Consul has advised Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, who has charge of Japanese relief measures in Canada, that the districts suffering from the recent catastrophe need lumber and other building materials as well as clothing and blankets. They are not asking for foodstuffs.

The Minister said that further quantities of the materials in demand would be shipped to Japan on the part of the Canadian Government, just as quickly as shipping facilities become available.

GRAIN MOVEMENT WELL UNDER WAY

Car Situation Favorable But the Weather Causes Some Delays.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 13.—The annual movement of grain from the prairies to the head of the lakes is well under way but the heavier producing sections have hardly commenced wheat shipments yet. Total inspections of grain from the opening of the crop year September 1 to yesterday were 4,402 cars, as against 9,954 cars at the same date last year Of yesterday's total 2,072 cars came via Canadian National lines and 2,330 by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Loadings are considerably lower to date than at the same period of 1922 and itwill be some time before the peak of the movement is reached. In Edmonton district from which it has been estimated there will be a total wheat tonnage in the neighborhood of half a million bushels, the harvesting of grain was delayed by unfavorable weather so that only some 11,000 bushels have been loaded.

The car situation is very favorable and on the Canadian National Railways is stated tobe better this year than at any previous time.

SUBMITS CLAIM FOR 11 VESSELS GERMANS SANK

Canada Steamship Company Presents Bill For Six Million Dollars.

REVISED TOTAL.

MONTREAL, September 13 (Canadian Press). — Technical presentation of the six million dollar claim of the Canada Steamship Lines, covering the sinking of eleven vessels by Germany during the war, occupied the proceedings before the War Reparations Commission in session here yesterday.

The total claim is for $6,119,000, irrespective of insurance and interest. The company agreed to deduct from that amount $3,979,360.02 insurance received. To be added, however, was the sum of $1,827,708.14, covering war risk premiums paid on all ships of the company. This brought the total to $3,967,348.12.

Hon. Dr. William Pugsley, chairman of the Commission, pointed out to the representatives of the company that he would have difficulty in allowing the war premiums paid on all the vessels of the company. With respect to those ships not damaged by the Germans, the loss of money paid out for premiums could hardly be said to be a direct liability against Germany.

It was then stated that the company would present an auxiliary claim for the war risk premiums paid out only on those vessels which had been destroyed.

Presentation of the claim of Lady Allen, who was on the Lusitania when it was torpedoed, was deferred at the request of her counsel, the family being at present in Europe. It was asked that it be heard next spring.

Dr. Pugsley asked that the facts in this case might be communicated to him by letter.

YOUNG PETERBOROUGH'S DAY.

Whoever suggested the desirability of making the first day of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition children's Day and of throwing the grounds open to the youngsters without admission charges undoubtedly had his reward yesterday in the happiness reflected from thousands of smiling young faces.

Probably never before in Peterborough have so many children been gathered together.

They swarmed in every portion of the grounds, crowded the midway, had all the thrills of the merry-go-rounds, the Ferris wheel, the Venetian swings and other attractions, packed the grandstand to view the programme of races and vaudeville, ate cones and "hot dogs," and, in short, enjoyed every minute of their visit.

It was an inspiring spectacle, that big grandstand full of eager, excited children, the men and women of tomorrow, who perhaps a decade or two later on will be taking their share of responsibility for the success of the greater exhibition that will then be held, but who probably will never have a much happier day than yesterday.

The weatherman provided his choicest brand for the children, and as an opening day there was nothing lacking.

Young Peterborough owned the Exhibition yesterday, and started the attendance record climbing.

The same response from the rest of the community will see a new mark reached before Saturday evening.

ALBERTA COAL.

One feature of the Exhibition that stands for a great deal is the demonstration of Alberta coal—an effort to show the people of Ontario the splendid qualities of the Western fuel and to arouse them to the necessity of making Canada independent in regard to her coal supply.

Two things stand in the way of the general use of Alberta coal in this Province.

First, the fact that Ontario people have formed the habit of depending upon anthracite, and, secondly, the present high cost of carrying the Alberta coal to the Eastern market.

Education will speedily overcome the first obstacle—once the good points of the Western coal are understood the anthracite fetish will be overthrown.

The second difficulty is not so easily disposed of, but it is by no means insurmountable.

At the local demonstration at the Exhibition a petition to be sent to the Dominion Government and to the railways asking for a freight rate of $6.00 per ton is being very largely signed.

The circulation of similar petitions everywhere through the Province would do much to bring about a revision of the rates, proving as it would that the demand for a chance to fuel Ontario from within the border of Canada, instead of sending many millions of dollars outside of this country every year, is too great to be ignored.

Visitors to the Exhibition should not overlook this demonstration, nor should they fail to attach their signatures to the petition.

It is time that this fuel problem was looked at from a national angle.

WHERE THE COUNTY FAILED.

Members of the County Council who visit the Peterborough Exhibition, as doubtless most of them will do, should not fail to visit the cattle exhibit and to see for themselves the conditions the Exhibition Board were trying to guard against when they asked the County Council to assist them in financing the building of additional accommodation for cattle.

There is a magnificent showing of cattle, but, unfortunately, the cow barns erected several years ago are not large enough to shelter all the splendid animals.

The result is that scores of fine cattle have had to be tethered in the open, a condition that the Exhibition Board has been unable to avoid.

Had the County Council seen fit to co-operate with the directors, as requested earlier in the year, there would have been ample accommodation worthy of the class of cattle being shown, but the failure of the county legislators to make a worth-while grant has resulted in the swamping of all the available shelter.

The growth of the Exhibition is, of course, demonstrated by such a demand for accommodation, but nevertheless it would have been much more satisfactory on all sides had it been possible to comfortably house all the exhibits.

It is to be hoped that the County Council will view these conditions for themselves so that any future request for co-operation may be assured of a more cordial reception.

NOT PLAYING THE GAME.

The Prince of Wales, in an effort to obtain a much-needed rest from the cares of state and the endless round of formal functions and official red tape, has arrived in Canada to spend a few weeks at his ranch in Alberta.

He is travelling incognito as Lord Renrew, and it is his desire that there shall be no demonstrations or receptions in his honour.

His Royal Highness simply asks that he be allowed to slip out to his Canadian home as quietly and unostentatiously as any other Englishman would be permitted to do, and that when he arrives there he be given a chance to enjoy himself as other young men do when they have a holiday on the prairie.

Unfortunately, however, some of the larger Canadian newspapers show little signs of complying with the Prince's request.

They have shadowed the Royal visitor all the way across the Atlantic, turned loose a small army of special writers at Quebec to describe his slightest gesture, sent aeroplanes to hover over his head in the hope of getting pictures, invaded his ranch and interviewed everybody from the manager down to the Japanese cook as to what he will eat, and, in short, have turned the full barrage of "pitiless publicity" upon every detail.

It may be enterprise, it may be giving their readers what the latter want, but it is in questionable taste—and not playing the game.

It is not cricket.

The yellowest of United States publications could not do much worse.

THE WASTING OF FOOD.

Growers of fruit are complaining that it does not pay them to carry on their business at the prices they receive; and this may be partly true. The difficulty lies in the cost incidental to distribution, but more particularly to the absence of efficient organization in distribution itself. Six weeks ago cherries by the carload were allowed to rot on the trees at Oakville, simply because the producers found that it would not pay them to have the fruit picked. As this experience is typical of what has occurred in relation to a wide range of fruits, and is still occurring, it is worth analyzing. At the moment it is peculiarly illustrative of what is happening in the marketing of melons, tomatoes and other late summer produce.

Primarily, the cherry grower's difficulty was in getting an adequate supply of pickers, although this situation arose at a time when the schools were closed and thousands of boys and girls might have found employment at fair remuneration. Such labor as could be had demanded prohibitive pay. There we are in contact with lack of prescience and planning. There is little room for doubt that pickers could have been mobilized in sufficient numbers if there had been an appropriate plan of mobilization; but there was not. The producers' next trouble was the matter of price. If pickers were on hand at from ten to fifteen cents a basket, he could, after buying his containers, have had a reasonable profit for himself. But all he was offered, f.o.b., at Oakville or Winona, was from 25 to 40 cents per basket.

The irony of this situation comes in when it is remembered that cherries were selling in Ottawa during the preserving season at from 90 cents to $1.15 per basket. Had the grower been able to get 40 cents at Oakville he would have been satisfied, provided baskets and the cost of picking had not exceeded 25 cents. The transportation charges on fruit in carload lots, between the Niagara peninsula and points in the Ottawa Valley, would not amount to more than seven or eight cents. There is a special classification to cover such shipments. Why should the consumer have to pay $1 for what could be laid down in Ottawa for from 45 to 48 cents? The answer is that he has to pay for an utter lack of organization in the fruit business, plus some little profiteering. That is to say, there is nothing whatever in the shape of co-ordinated planning which brings the consumer, with his demand, into contact with the primary sources of supply.

We complain about the high cost of living, and with ample cause; yet an appalling waste of food takes place every year, chiefly because producers do not co-operate in an effective way, at one end of the chain of distribution, and consumers do not at the other. The latter must not be blamed. They are not organized, and it would be very difficult to organize them. But that is scarcely necessary. Here is something which the Ontario Government might very well do. It has a Department of Agriculture, which unquestionably does good work in some directions, yet holds aloof from taking a single step toward putting the distribution of fruit on a sound basis.

There is no need for objectionable paternalism nor interference with the ordinary machinery of commerce. All that seems necessary is the working out of a scheme which would solve the difficulties of the producer—not a hard problem—and provide for efficient distribution to centres of consumption. Everything at present is left to the middleman and the local merchant. The advance of more than 100 per cent. between what the grower gets and what the consumer pays has the inevitable effect of limiting consumption; and this applies to practically all classes of fruits. There is discouragement and loss at both ends. It can scarcely be said that there is no remedy for such an unsatisfactory and discreditable state of affairs.

We have at hand an illustration of what may be accomplished by discussion and earnest planning. When everybody was smarting under the excessive cost of fuel last winter, the Journal tried the experiment of bringing a special grade of coal from Alberta to Ottawa. The cost per ton laid down here was prohibitive. Popular interest in the matter was aroused however, and, as the result of all parties concerned getting together in a co-operative spirit, Alberta coal is now being delivered in Toronto at $11 per ton. In that we have a demonstration of what is possible in the way of improving the situation with respect to fruit and other food staples which are now going to waste for the need of a rational system of distribution. There will be no betterment until there is action in the matter, and the Ontario Government might very appropriately take the initiative in respect of needful organization. Cheap fruit is just as important as cheap light and power, and would not necessarily involve the Province in any liability at all. Once a sound plan were developed the thing would probably take care of itself, with possibly some measure of official espionage and guidance.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

No, it's not the same old Exhibition.

On the other hand, the Peterborough Industrial lives up to the show bills' slogan, "Everything new but the name."

The Exhibition got away to a flying start yesterday. The children gave very nearly a 100 per cent. response to the invitation. It is now up to the rest of the community.

An enquiry will, of course, be held in connection with the escape of five convicts from Kingston Penitentiary. What is still more remarkable than their getting away from the institution itself is the manner in which four of them, although closely pursued, have managed to elude the posse of guards.

CANADIAN WHEAT CROP BEARS CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Estimates that the 1923 Canadian crop of wheat is 70,000,000 bushels larger than last year's total led to much selling here to-day near the end of the Board of Trade session; largely as a result prices closed heavy 1-2c. to 3-4c. lower, with December $1.04 3-4 to $1.04 7-8 and May $1.10 1-8. Corn finished at a range varying from 1-4 and 3-8c. decline to 3-8c. advance, oats at 1-4 and 3-8 to 1 1-4c. up, and provisions 5c. to 17c. down.

Except for a brief rally near the middle of the session, wheat had a downward tendency throughout the day. Initial weakness of Winnipeg quotations started the price declines here, with bearish sentiment emphasized by reports that the Canadian crop movement was gaining rapid headway, and that export demand was narrow for this time of year. It was only, however, receipt of new Canadian crop figures that the advantage went decisively to the bear side of the market.

According to a report credited to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the total yield of wheat in Canada this season is 470,000,000 bushels, the largest amount on record. This would make the combined United States and Canadian crop 1,259,000,000 bushels, an aggregate only 3,000,000 bushels less than last year, and would suggest 500,000,000 bushels surplus for export after allowing for a liberal carry over at the end of the season. Considerable liquidation of wheat holdings here ensued, and although little, disposition to sell short was in evidence, the close was at virtually the day's bottom level.

Corn averaged lower with wheat, despite rather widespread frost. Oats were higher owing to scantiness of supply here.

Lower quotations on hogs weakened the provisions market.

MONTREAL, Sept. 12.— A fair amount of business was done in cash grain on the local market to-day. Demand for flour continues fairly good. There was no change in the condition of the millfeed market. A good steady business prevails in baled hay. There were no further developments in the local egg market. The tone of the potato market was firm with a moderate trade passing. Trade in butter was slow. An easier feeling was shown in the cheese market and prices were down 1-4 cent to 3-8 cents per pound.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Sept. 12.— (Canadian Press.)—The Canadian market for storage stocks will be to a large extent controlled by prices ruling in the United States. The markets in the latter country are very nervous under the heavy load of stocks in storage. If a healthy export demand develops and there is further improvement in home consumption, storage stocks will be well absorbed. The market continues very firm for fresh with specials and extras in excellent demand. The poultry markets are fairly firm, receipts are increasing, very little has been packed for storage. Storing is expected to commence in about two weeks.

GERMANS ANXIOUS OVER POOR CROP PROSPECTS

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—(Associated Press).—Germany's food situation has reached what was called the "bagman" stage in the Russian collapse. City folks must now travel to the country and get their foodstuffs, unless they want to pay the extortionate prices asked by food speculators.

Suburban trains are crowded by men and women carrying vegetables, milk, butter, meat and other supplies which local retailers in almost all German cities are unable to provide under present conditions. Farmers who have food supplies insist upon payment in foreign money. As retailers must sell for German paper marks, their business is at a standstill.

A well-dressed man who was walking along Unter den Linden carrying an expensive alligator case, found himself recently the centre of an envious group when his case burst open and potatoes rolled out over Berlin's most fashionable boulevard.

Berlin householders are already beginning to seek their winter supply of vegetables, and food scouts are travelling throughout the potato districts making contracts for families. Field workers' strikes and a cold, rainy spring—the coldest, wettest spring in some 200 years—have materially affected Germany's 1923 harvest, which otherwise would have been about the average, according to reports from the agricultural districts.

Potatoes, one of Germany's chief foods, and in many families fully as important as meat and eggs and milk, were set back by the cold weather, and prospects for the late crop are not at all encouraging, the agriculturists report. Germany has been importing potatoes from Holland and other nearby countries for months in efforts to relieve the shortage.

BUDGET OF NEWS FROM OMEMEE AND VICINITY

Motor Accident Victims Are Recovering—A New Style of Motor Truck on Exhibition—General News.

OMEMEE, Sept. 13.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church was held in the basement of the church on Thursday afternoon with an attendance of about twenty-five. The President, Mrs. E. Rolland, presided and conducted the devotional exercises, after which many items of business were transacted. It was decided to make quilts and pack a bale for the Oshawa Mission Church, where they are distributed among the poor where necessary, and it there is an over-supply these are sold and the money resulting from same is used to pay off the debt of the church.

As is the usual custom of former years, a crate of fruit will be packed in October for the Fred. Victor Mission, Toronto, and the Deaconess Home, Toronto, respectively. The date for the annual bazaar was fixed for the first week in December instead of March as in previous years.

An interesting item on the programme was the response to the Watch Tower by a number of ladies. An appropriate reading on "The Book of Psalms" was given by Mrs. T. A. MacPherson and a leaflet on "Exploring the Pioneers," by Mrs. James Bushnell, added interest to the programme. Miss Lila Parsons rendered a very pretty solo, entitled "Thy Will Be Done," which brought to a close a most profitable afternoon.

A social half hour was then enjoyed, the hostesses being Mrs. Reuben Bradley, Mrs. Wm. Henderson and Mrs. C. L. Morcombe.

Deanery Meeting.

The deanery meeting of the Women's Auxiliary will be held in Christ's Church, Omemee, on Wednesday, Sept. 19th. There will be an afternoon and evening session at which Miss Summerhayes and a returned missionary will give addresses.

Special Sermon.

Rev. E. Rolland of the Methodist Church will deliver a special sermon on Sunday evening next on "The Second Coming of Christ," or "Will Christ Come Again?"

A Motor Accident.

The motor accident which occurred here on Sunday evening, thus injuring the lives of four young men, has caused much anxiety to the citizens in general in this community. The boys, who are all members of the Anglican Church, had attended the service previous to the mishap, and are well known and highly respected citizens. Mr. John Bent, who was the most seriously injured, having received a broken collar-bone, his skull cracked and other injuries, is somewhat brighter, having showed signs of recognition on Tuesday.

Mr. Reuben Reeds, a companion of the former, and who also received a broken collar-bone and two ribs, is progressing favorably.

The other two of the party, both of whom received several cuts on the head which required stitches and other minor injuries, are doing nicely.

Attracted Attention.

A large motor truck with an up-to-date bathroom and kitchen equipment for farm homes, attracted much attention here on Saturday afternoon and evening. The exhibit is in charge of the Department of Agriculture.

Wedding Bells.

An early autumn wedding of much interest to Omemee people was solemnized in Midland on Wednesday, September 5, when Mr. Albert Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Graham of Detroit, Mich., took for his bride Janet Bruce, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davenport of Midland. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. John McNabb, pastor of the Presbyterian Church. The happy couple are spending their honeymoon at Duluth and Detroit. The good wishes of many Omemee friends will follow Albert and his bride through life.

Library Board Meeting.

A meeting of the Library Board will be held in the reading-room on Friday evening, September 14. All the members are requested to attend.

Death of Mrs. Samuel Lamb.

Mrs. Samuel Lamb, a former resident of Omemee until a few years ago, passed peacefully away on Thursday evening, September 6, at her late residence, Peterborough. Mrs. Lamb had reached the ripe old age of eighty-seven years—a lifetime filled with deeds of loving kindness to those about her. Death was not unexpected, the deceased lady having been in failing health for some time past, and for two weeks previous to her death had been confined to her room. The sorrowing family, who deeply mourn the passing of their aged mother, were rich indeed in the possession through so many years of their counsellor and guide.

In religion Mrs. Lamb was a staunch supporter of the Presbyterian Church.

The funeral service, which was held on Saturday afternoon, was private, owing to illness in the family. Interment was made in the family plot in the Emily Cemetery, many old friends being in attendance. The service at the grave was conducted by Rev. J. Black of the Presbyterian Church, assisted by Rev. E. W. Rolland of the Methodist Church, Omemee.

The many beautiful floral tributes gave evidence of the loving esteem in which the aged lady was held.

Left to mourn her loss are five daughters—Mrs. J. Morrison, Miss Lamb, Mrs. H. R. Murray, Mrs. W. Corneil of Peterborough and Mrs. English of Toronto—and two sons —W. J. Lamb of Peterborough and Lawrence of North Bay—to all of whom the sympathy of many old friends is extended.

RECENTLY ENLARGED POULTRY BUILDING FULL OF EXHIBITS

About 1,200 Entries, the Biggest Showing of Poultry in the History of the Exhibition — Coops Crowded Together.

Remarkable Progress.

"Bigger than Toronto's" was the tribute paid to the poultry show at Peterboro's Exhibition by Mr. C. H. Curtis of Warkworth who is widely known throughout Ontario as a breeder of pure-bred stock and a poultry fancier.

And the achievement of the directors in charge of this class is emphasized by the fact that although their building space has been doubled in size this summer their space was crowded this morning when the judges, A. W. Tyson of Guelph and Wm. Cadman of Tilsonburg, began their work. Other departments in the Exhibition have made notable and gratifying progress within a year. The swine and sheep entries completely fill up the new pens that were constructed for them a short time ago, and as for the cattle classes the accommodation is deplorably inadequate. Herds were bedded down in the open last night because there was no room for them in the big building and in the old stalls.

Need County's Help.

"If the County Council had done their part" said a retired farmer who is one of the most active directors of the Exhibition, "we would have the building we hoped they would put up for us. I can speak as a farmer myself, and if the Exhibition does not impress the farmers of this county as represented by their County Council it is pretty nearly time we took stock of our position. We are personally liable for the cost of improvements on the grounds which we undertake in the general interest of agriculture in this district, and I firmly believe the most of the farmers are behind us and want us to be provided with suitable equipment."

Trucked From Oshawa.

But coming back to the poultry show it was estimated last night that not only has it made a long jump from the old standards both in quality and quantity, but it is as big as the winter exhibition of the Peterboro Poultry Exhibition. The increased space, twice as large as last year, was piled up with coops last night, and the directors in that building were cudgeling their ingenuity to find room for the birds that were being rushed by motor during the night from the Oshawa Fair. They were expected to arrive in the wee small hours and to be cooped and ready for the judges this morning, but it was also pointed out that many other poultry breeders would have entered if they could have arranged to make the trip from Oshawa to Peterboro within the prescribed time for the local judging. Bottrill of Bowmanville together with Oshawa and Port Hope men would have come to Peterboro if the judging had been deferred at least part of the day.

As it was, however, the directors were satisfied that these other poultry men were not showing their birds here, for the simple reason that they could not have been accommodated. The Poultry Building is now packed with coops that have been set up in extra storeys and tiers and laid in additional rows at the foot of the stands.

First Time Here.

Among those who are showing here are H. L. Vanallen of Stirling who had 213 entries. This is his first appearance in the local exhibition, and he came directly from Oshawa last night. If there was a prize for the most numerous entries Mr. Vanallen would have it all to himself. Harry Lush is second in the numerical order with 193 entries. C. H. Curtis of Warkworth is third with 100 and Geo. Hutchinson and Sons of Warkworth are well up in the big entry list. Others are Frank Andrews of Norwood who also showed at Oshawa, Blade and Darrah of Peterboro, W. Stewart, W. J. Nesbitt, B. Moncrief, H. Lucas, Elric White, Victor Tully, Kent Throop, R. Carr of the fire department, George Blodgett, A. R. Ibson and F. Robson, Frank Chambo showing French fowl, game and and bantams, George Buller, J. H. Davis and many others.

Visit This Show.

The poultry show should not be overlooked by all those who attend the Exhibition, and that should mean all the citizens and farmers of this district. It may be pointed out that the Exhibition Board has appreciated the efforts of the directors in charge of this department, and the enlarged building was an evidence of the Board's encouragement.

Among the exhibits is a fine display of geese by E. Kelk, also several pairs of domesticated Mallard ducks, and a wild turkey exhibited by Mrs. D. Beck of North Monaghan.

Supervising Directors.

The directors specially assigned to the Poultry Show are George Paxman, chairman; Tom Darrah, Jos. Kelly, Fred Holmes, W. Stewart and W. J. Nesbitt. It is generally realized that the Peterboro Poultry Association's annual show in January has stimulated interest in the breeding of good fowl throughout the city and district contributing very largely to the development of the poultry show at the Peterboro Exhibition.

A BILLION BUSHELS OF GRAIN IN THE DOMINION

Wheat Yield in Alberta Will Be Double That of Last Year — Other Figures.

OTTAWA, Sept. 13.—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics last night issued its preliminary estimate of the yields of the principal grain crops, based upon reports of average yields per acre, as estimated by crop correspondents at the end of August. The areas of grain crops used for the preliminary estimate of totals are as obtained in June through the rural schools for wheat, oats, rye, barley and flaxseed in the Prairie Provinces, and for all crops in the Atlantic provinces and Ontario. Only in Quebec and British Columbia, where the compilation of the anual June statistics is not yet completed ,are the areas as estimated by crop correspondents at the end of June. Outstanding features of the present report are the yields of wheat (470,328,000 bushels; oats (535,124,000 bushels), and barley (80,048,000 bushels), all these being the largest crops on record for Canada. The wheat yield of Alberta (149,192,000 bushels) is especially excellent, being more than double that of 1922.

Canadian Averages.

The average yields in bushels per acre for the whole of Canada in 1923, with last year's averages given in brackets, are reported as follows: Fall wheat 24¼ (2¼); spring wheat 20½ (17¾); all wheat, 20¾ (17¾); oats, 39 (33¾); barley, 28½ (27¾); fall rye, 19¾; spring rye, 18; fall 10¼ (15½); flaxseed, 11 (8.85). The total yields in bushels, based on these averages, and the areas sown, are as follows, last year's final estimates being given within barckets: Fall wheat, 19,731,000 (18,056,000); spring wheat, 450,957,000 (380,830,400); fall wheat, 470,328,000 (399,786,400); oats, 535,124,000 (491,239,000); barley, 80,048,000 (71,865,300); fall rye, 21,744,000; spring rye, 6,415,400; fall rye 28,159,400 (32,373,400).

Search of 22 Years Ended Successfully

"Yes sir, it's a fact; four years ago Tanlac relieved me of troubles of twenty-two years' standing so completely that I haven't had a sick day since," is the remarkable statement of Lorne Johnston, R.F.D. No. 2, Lambeth, Ont., well-known farmer.

"I had asthma so bad I had to go to an open window all during the night in order to breathe. My eyes were watery and inflamed, and my head all stuffed up. In haying time I suffered agony, and often couldn't even go into the fields. My stomach couldn't have hurt much worse had someone been jabbing me with a pitchfork, and I was so nervous I couldn't harness a horse at times. I spent money enough to buy a good tractor and was a terribly discouraged.

"But now I never have a touch of asthma or hay fever and my head is clear as a bell. My stomach is in fine condition, my nerves steady. I eat like a wolf, am strong as an ox, and can pitch hay with anybody. Tanlac has been a godsend to me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

YOUNG PEOPLE STAMPEDED TO GET IN RACES

Children's Day Was Successful and Youngsters Enjoyed the Big Show—Excellent Vaudeville.

CONTINUOUS MUSIC.

Slightly unfavorable weather last night failed to dampen the spirits of Exhibition visitors, and the programme arranged by the board was carried out according to schedule. Many of the children took lunches to the grounds and stayed there from noon until a late hour.

Continuous music was supplied during the afternoon by the Parkdale Serenaders, five young men who are already known to Peterborough people through their performances at Chemong Park. The Young People's Temple Band, led by Adjutant Smith, continued the splendid programme inaugurated when they marched into the grounds at two o'clock.

Children's Sports

The sport events which were run off at 3 o'clock were hotly contested by the young people, every call for entries being followed by a miniature stampede from the grandstand. The events and prize winners were:

Sack Race.—1, Archie Cox; 2, Jack Wolstenholme; 3, Arnold Sanderson.

Girls' 50 yd.—1, Annie Constable; 2, Tilly Guppy; 3, A. Janeway.

Wheelbarrow Race.—1, Jack Hope and James Murphy; 2, Bill McCarney and Reg. Hearne; 3, Willie Cole and Frank Jordon.

Girls' 75 yd.—1, Ethel White; 2, Tilly Guppy; 3, Eleanor Dodds.

Boys' 75 yd.—1, Wilson Dunlop; 2, Mart Swanger; 3, Chas. Dorrington.

Girls' Potato Race.—1, Grace Hawks; 2, Hilda Joies.

Boys' 880 yd.—1, John Holland; 2, Mart Swanyer; 3, Christopher Jay.

Boys' Relay Race, Central.—1, Wilson Dunlop; 2, George Kiff; 3, Arthur Millen; 4, Roy Louis.

Girls' Nail Driving.—1, Jean Thorne; 2, Olive Weese; 3, Florence Greer; 4, Lillian Grierson; 5, Eleanor Dodds; 6, Elizabeth Lawrence.

The prizes for the school events will be presented to the winners at the Y. M. C. A. on or after Friday. Winners are asked to call promptly.

Grand Stand Performance

The grandstand performance commencing at 8 o'clock was fully up to the high standard claimed by the Exhibition Board. It was clean and entertaining, with variety and humor.

Community singing, led by Bert Caldwell, of Toronto, who was leader last year, was heartily enjoyed. Leading his large choir through the aid of a monster megaphone, Mr. Caldwell enthused the audience into singing with gusto such popular songs as "Barney Google," "Bells of St. Mary's," and "Three O'clock in the Morning."

One of the most thrilling events seen here is the performance of Choy Gar, Chinese, who leaps through five hoops studded with knives. The blades are turned towards the centre of the hoops, only 19 inches space remaining between the points. Through this hoop the Oriental gracefully dives. The act was made dangerous last night by the slippery condition of the platform following the evening rain, and the performer told The Examiner that while working under similar conditions two years ago his foot slipped at the instant he leaped. He received severe cuts on that occasion.

Rose Kress and J. R. Moore, assisted by Eleanor Bunting and J. Miller have a skating act which is one of the best seen here. They perform dizzying evolutions in a small space and give interpretative dances with wonderful grace and control.

Animal Performers

Another act of great merit is given by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howard, assisted by Oriey Patton and Joe Daly. Nine fox terriers, a collie called Pat, and four ponies perform with great sagacity and precision. Pat is an intelligent, friendly dog, and romps around with the ponies in a most amazing way.

Of course, there is a comedian, and last night he brought laugh after laugh from the audience and made his exit with difficulty.

Several other acts of stellar quality are included in the programme. The entire vaudeville will be given twice daily during the run of the Exhibition.

Fireworks Supreme

Webber Turner announced that the fireworks would be unusual, and he was justified by the exhibition last night. Rockets of all descriptions lightened the sky with their myriad colors, and new contrivances set off the exhibition to the best advantage. Expressions of praise for this feature were heard on every hand.

EXHIBITION NOTES.

Automobiles are only admitted by the Eastern entrance. This is in the interest of safety.

Practically every industry in the city is represented by an attractive display.

Many new competitors in the live stock classes are noticed, and the old stand-bys are again on hand.

The keynote of the Fair is pep.

Several church organizations are represented in the refreshment marquees. They did a good business yesterday.

The Examiner conducts a news bulletin in the north west corner of the Manufacturers' Building, where the latest news is posted.

There are five post office mailing boxes on the ground from which mail is taken and handled through the branch post offices.

When Firpo and Dempsey enter ring on Friday night at nine o'clock, The Examiner will start a bulletin service on the grounds which will cover the bout round by round.

A RURAL SCHOOL FAIR WAS HELD MILLBROOK

Any school winning a cup three times, not necessarily in succession, retains it permanently.

RESIDENTS HAVELOCK UNVEIL MEMORIAL TO THEIR SOLDIER DEAD

Belmont Also Contributed to Outstanding Monument to Heroism of Boys From Both Village and Township.

STIRRING ADDRESSES

HAVELOCK, Sept. 12.—Residents of Havelock and the Township of Belmont united yesterday in paying tribute to their soldier dead, when Venerable Archdeacon Davidson, of Toronto, pulled the cord which removed the flags from the memorial inscription on the handsome arch that has been erected over the gateway to the Fair Grounds. School children and others piled flowers at the base of the memorial, and among these offerings, one of the most appropriate, was a wreath of poppies, the tribute of the Peterboro Branch of the G.W.V.A. to their fallen comrades. In the centre of the wreath was a picture of a white cross, like those which mark the distant graves, and the inscription, "In memory of the men who sleep far away under the poppies."

Erected By the I.O.D.E.

In every community where such memorials have been put up it is generally found that the I.O.D.E., or some other organization of women, have originated the movement and carried it to a successful conclusion. It was the I.O.D.E. of Havelock who took the initiative in this case, and for the past two years they labored unceasingly with that end in view. Finally they had a fund of $1,600 on hand, and W. H. Barry, architect, of Peterboro, was engaged to draw up the plans for the arch. Of the amount secured, $900 came in the form of a grant from the Council and $150 was donated by the local branch of the G.W.V.A. There is still a balance of $700 due, but when the returns are all in from the receipts of yesterday, it will probably be found that considerable of this deficit has been wiped out.

Mrs. William Vance was Regent of the I.O.D.E. when the work was undertaken, and perhaps no single individual in the district is deserving of more credit for the success of yesterday which crowned the movement. She never wearied in her efforts to secure funds for the memorial, and when her term of office expired her colleagues showed their appreciation of her services by electing her to the position of Honorary Regent. The present officers of the society are: Mrs. R. S. Dickson, Regent; Mrs. E. Williams, First Vice-Regent; Mrs. Wellington Holcombe, Second Vice-Regent; Mrs. H. Roche, Secretary; Mrs. George Smith, Standard Bearer; Mrs. E. Mathison and Mrs. A. E. Thompson, special secretaries.

The Parade.

All the arrangements yesterday were well planned and successfully carried out. here were veterans in uniform from Peterboro, Hastings, Norwood, Marmora and other outside points. Those from Peterboro were: Lieut.-Col. Chas. Ackerman, Major J. Winterbottom, D.C.M., M.C., Capt. Sidney Whatley, Lieut.-Col. F. E. Birdsall, Major Clifton, Col. T. J. Johnston, Reg. Inst. R. K. Muir, Corp. Kellar, Corp. C. Hensley and Lance-Corp. Stewart.

The veterans, commanded by Lieut. Barney Quinn, formed at the village hall, and, headed by the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery of Kingston, marched to the park, where they formed, with arms reversed, around the memorial. Then came the pupils of the High and Public Schools, carrying flowers, the several classes being marshalled by their teachers, who are as follows: Miss McDowell, principal, and Miss Brewster, assistant of the High School; Principal Yeuill, of the Public School; Peter Buchanan, third grade; Miss Margery Crowe, second grade; Miss Birdie Houston, first grade; Miss Lillian Hubble, primary, and Miss Long, kindergarten department. Some of the smaller tots in the latter class were almost unoble to keep up with the procession, but they struggled bravely on as if realizing the importance of the occasion.

Officers of the 93rd.

Nearly all of the men to whose memory the crowd of over 2,000 had gathered from all parts of the district, had gone overseas with the 93rd Battalion. With that fact in mind the members of the I.O.D.E. had endeavored to secure for the unveiling ceremony as many as possible of the officers of that unit. Col. Johnston, who had commanded the 93rd, was one of the speakers. Venerable Archdeacon Davidson was chaplain, Judge E. C. S. Huycke, another of the speakers, and John A. Sexsmith, ex-M.P., who acted as chairman, were closely identified with the recruiting of that Battalion, so many member of which crossed to France, never to return.

The Union Jack on the tall flag pole at the entrance to the park was flying at half mast when Chairman Sexsmith called the gathering to order and invited the following gentlemen to the platform: Rev. O. E. Seymour and Rev. James McElroy of Havelock, Col. Johnston, Rev. Father Bretherton of Hastings, Lieut.-Col. Ackerman, Capt. McLean, Judge Huycke, Capt. Walker, Col. Birdsall, Major Pierce of Marmora and a number of others.

In his opening address Chairman Sexsmith expressed his thanks for the honor which had been conferred upon him when he was asked to preside on such an occasion. He also thanked the members of the I.O.D.E. and the veterans who had worked so hard to raise the funds for the memorial in honor of those who had given their lives for the doctrine of Christ as against the doctrine of force.

The Unveiling.

Venerable Archdeacon Davidson took charge of the unveiling ceremony proper. Accompanied by the band the audience sang three verses of "Nearer My God to Thee," after which Rev. O. E. Seymour read several appropriate verses selected from different parts of the Scripture.

After the audience had sung three verses of the hymn, "Abide With Me," and repeated the Lord's Prayer in unison, Venerable Archdeacon Davidson removed the flags which had been placed over the inscription and the names of the fallen. At the top of the arch appears the words, "In memory of the men of Havelock and Belmont who fell in the Great War," "Erected by the I.O.D.E. 1923." The names of those who made the sacrifice are as follows, those from Havelock appearing on the left and those from Belmont on the right side of the entrance:

Havelock— J. E. Jones, E. Williams, B. Williams, W. A. McMullen, G. Milligan, E. Milligan, P. J. Dewey, H. Taylor, A. E. B. Blatchford, A. H. Woodhead, Ralph Phillips, M. J. Kjernan, W. G. Affleck, W. Starky, R. C. Kelly, L. Reid.

Belmont—Clifford Easton, Emerald Avery, T. Weese, J. Steenburgh, W. Parcels, S. Aulthouse, P. Young, S. Deline, W. E. McInaid, M. M. Woodbeck.

The band then played the dirge, "The Silent Tent," and the Last Post was sounded. The school children filed past the memorial, each laying a floral tribute upon the base of the memorial under the names of each group. This was one of the most impressive sights of the day.

During these services the relatives of the fallen occupied chairs reserved for them in front of the platform.

The Speeches.

The unveiling ceremony had been conducted while the people stood on the street but at the conclusion they gathered in front of the band stand from which the addresses were delivered, Judge Huycke being the first speaker.

The Judge congratulated Havelock upon the public spirit of its people and referred in terms of eloquent praise to that splendid organization, the I.O.D.E., which in this and in every other community took the lead not only in the work of erecting soldier memorials, but in other good movements He was especially pleased to meet his old friend Venerable Archdeacon Davidson, who had been chaplain of the 93rd and who while on duty overseas had spoken many words of comfort to the boys in the trenches. The speaker complimented the band for their excellent work and said that what he had enjoyed most of all was the sight of the children, the future hope of Canada, reverently laying flowers on the base of the monument as if they understood what had been done for them and their country by the fallen

Rev. James McIlroy.

Rev. James McIlroy delivered a short address, in which he likened the memorial arch to the gateway through which the dead heroes had passed to eternal life. Mr. McIlroy is the new pastor of the Presbyterian Church here, and although a recent arrival has already established a reputation as an effective public speaker.

Master Norman Peary, of Toronto, sang the hymn, "He will wipe the tear from every eye," so acceptably, that the audience insisted on a recall.

"The Battle of Peace."

Lieut.-Colonel Ackerman said that the world to-day is in almost as serious a condition as it was in war time. We have for the past few years been engaged in the battle of peace, and everyone should take an interest in this if future disaster is to be averted. He hoped that the people of Havelock would pay as much respect to the memorial just unveiled as the residents of London did to the Cenotaph that had been erected in that city.

Lieut.-Col. Ackerman gave a short account of the unveiling of the memorial at St. Julien, which he attended on his recent trip over the battlefields. All signs of the conflict are being removed and he hoped that the present generation and many generation to come would never see war as that in which so many Canadian boys laid down their lives.

The speaker made special reference to W. G. Affleck of Havelock and T. Weese of Belmont whose names are on the memorial. He had been in the same unit at the front and was in a position to testify to their gallantry.

Members of His Family

"The boys who are gone," said Col. T. J. Johnston," were more to me than to most. They were members of my family and we all lived happily together."

Col. Johnston advised the surviving veterans to stick together to look after the suffering among themselves and others. For his own part he is out of military life after having been in it for 44 years.

"Before there is another war," continued the colonel, 'I hope the regulations will be amended so as to close the gap between officers and privates. There is no sense or reas on in this difference. If any man should be easy to approach it is the commander of a military unit. He should stand more in the relation of a father to those under him than as a person whom they fear."

KINGSTON MEN STILL LIBERTY

Four Convicts Believed to Have Escaped from the Woods.

KINGSTON, Sept. 13.— (Canadian Press.)—Although close watch has been kept by residents of the district and pursuers have been on the alert night and day, no reports of anyone having sighted four fugitive convicts since shortly after their sensational escape have been made to the police or officials of the penitentiary.

It is quite probable that the squad of criminals has made good their escape from the woods where they first concealed themselves. Diligent search is being continued, however, in the woods by authorities. All the prisoners at the prison are being confined to their cells until such time as the guards return to the prison. McMullen was able to leave the prison hospital yesterday afternoon and is now under careful supervision and in solitary confinement. He is pleased that the others have so far managed to escape capture.

BRIGHTON DEFEATS WARKWORTH TEAM

WOOLER, Sept. 13.—One of the big attractions at the Wooler Fair was the ball game between Warkworth and Brighton teams of the Northumberland League. Brighton played good ball behind Way's clever pitching, to win decisively by 11-5. Way pitched a nice, steady game and his victory to-day and the one in Colborne last week seem to justify the claim that, given good support, he is one of the best pitchers in the league.

Zufelt started for Warkworth and did well until the third, when Brighton got to him for five runs. With four runs in and one out in the fifth Mulhall relieved him and held Brighton to one run for the balance of the game. Way struck out seven and Mulhall and Zufelt three each.

"Cliff" McKee knocked two long doubles and a single and Hugh Strong two singles for the winners, and for the losers Harry Belford had a trio of one base knocks and Harold Mulhall a pair of the same variety. Walt's base running was also a feature, as were pick-ups by McKee and Mulhall.

On the whole the game was well played and Northumberland League ball made a very favorable impression on the Wooler people.

SPAIN DECLARES WAR AS RESULT MOVEMENT TOWARDS SEPARATION

Military Garrison in Madrid Ordered to Be Ready for Immediate Duty — Government Criticized.

OFFICIALS BITTER

MADRID, September 13 (Canadian Press). — The Council of Ministers at 3.40 a.m. to-day declared a state of war in Barcelona as a result of the Catalonia Separatist movement.

Military garrisons in Madrid were ordered to be ready for immediate duty, and all troops and men on leave were recalled, and immediate mobilisation of the police and the Civil Guard was ordered.

The decision of the Cabinet came after an almost continuous session, beginning at 2 p.m. yesterday, during which the Ministers were notified of threat of an armed movement by the army unless immediate steps were taken to down the Catalonian Separatists and take energetic measures to push the Moroccan campaign through to a successful conclusion.

Rumour of a coup d'etat by the military persisted throughout the night.

The Separatists at their meeting in Barcelona yesterday criticised the Government and the King and the Queen, demanding immediate independence for Catalonia.

Army officials have been bitter for weeks against the Government because of its alleged dilatory policy in the campaign against the Moroccan rebels, led by Ab Del Krim, and repeatedly have demanded that ample forces and supplies be placed at their disposal for downing the rebels.

General Aguilera is scheduled to arrive to-morrow to discuss the situation with the Supreme Council of War.

Army officers at Madrid have revolted, and martial law has been declared.

The rank and file of the army have joined in the revolt, but the navy personnel is quiet.

The main telephone exchange here was occupied early this morning by a band of revolutionaries, who are reported to be led by Captain-General Primo Riviera.

It is believed that the movement will signalise an outbreak in the chief towns of Spain.

A document addressed to all Spaniards, and signed by Riviera, was published this morning. It criticises the present Government, and stigmatises the professional politicians for seizing the power and annihilating the will of the King.

Owing to this situation, the document continues, the military authorities will take direction and responsibility of the power to govern, either directly or through the civilians.

At the moment of declaring a state of seige, the document asserts, the military authorities will deprive the present civil officials of their powers and assume their functions. It will seize all means of communication and forbid circulation except for business or family reasons.

The authorities of the new regime will occupy the headquarters of the Communist and Revolutionary Associations, prisons, banks, electric and water stations.

The document ends with an appeal to the patriotism of the population, and entreats the military forces to give their lives to the country if necessary.

It also promises that the leaders of the movement will seek to maintain the normal life of the country.

EGGPLANT

Use vegetables and more vegetables! Only keep in mind the needs of a balanced ration and plan the meals accordingly.

Eggplant is a delicious vegetable with many possibilities. It makes an excellent hearty dish if stuffed with meat or a delicious breakfast vegetable if carefully sauted in butter.

The most perfect vegetable can be ruined in the cooking. Too long cooking makes highly flavored vegetables strong and unpleasant, while the delicately flavored ones become tasteless. Underdone vegetables have a raw, unpleasant taste.

Of course, the freshness and the age of all vegetables has much to do with the length of time required for cooking. And a wilte vegetable should be freshened before cooking just as carefully as if it were to be served uncrooked. Let stand in cold water until firm and crisp. The blanching of vegetables preserves their color and flavor in cooking quite as well as in canning.

To blanch eggplant put it in a square of cheesecloth and dip it in boiling water for five minutes. Remove from boiling water and plunge into cold water. Let stand one minute and drain.

Stuffed Eggplant.

One good sized plant, 1 small onion, 4 fresh mushrooms, 4 tablespoons cold chopped meat, 4 tablespoons dried bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter, stale coarse bread crumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspon pepper, 1 teaspoon minced parsley.

Cut eggplant in halves lengthwise without paring. Blanch and cold-dip halves of vegetable. Then put in briskly boiling salted water and cook until tender, but not mushy or broken. Drain well and scoop out the inside, leaving as thin and firm a shell as possible. Chop the pulp quite fine. Melt butter. Add onion cut in thin slices and fry a pale straw color. Shred mushrooms and fry with onion. Add chopped eggplant and mix well. Cook just a minute and remove from fire. Add meat, dried bread crumbs, parsley, salt and pepper. Mix thoroughly and put in eggplant shells. Put in a shallow pan to bake. Cover the stuffing with coarse bread crumbs, dot thickly with tiny bits of butter and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven. The crumbs should brown. Serve at once. Small eggplants can be used, each half being served individually.

Eggplant combines with other vegetables advantageously. If you have a little of this and a little of that in the house try a vegetable casserole for luncheon.

Baked en Casserole.

One eggplant, 1 onion, 1 cup corn cut from the cob, 1 green pepper, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1½ cups tomato juice, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1-8 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons butter.

Pare eggplant and cut in slices one inch thick. Dip in boiling water for five minutes and plunge into cold water. Drain and cut in cubes. Cook 15 minutes in boiling salted water to cover. Drain. Melt butter, add onion minced and cook until onion is a pale straw color. Put pepper in boiling water for five minutes, plunge into cold water and rub off the outside skin. Cut open and remove seeds and white ribs. Cut in fine shreds. Scald tomatoes and slip off skins. Rub through a fine wire sieve to remove the seeds. Mix all ingredients and turn into a well buttered baking dish. Cover and bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven.

YOUR EYES

You may be acquainted with the story of the Six Blind Men of Hindustan who went to "see" the elephant. Each told a different story of what the elephant resembled and of course all of them were wrong.

There is nothing which we would exchange for our eyes. If they are deceptive, through lack of early treatment or if the sight has been lost through carelessness or by an accident, we are all wrong, like the blind men of Hindustan.

Psychologists tell us of the great value and pleasing sense of color to the individual. Without it a great void exists in our lives which nothing can replace. With it, the world is ours, for the eyes are the windows of the soul and convey to our innermost being the real joy of living, through this sense of color.

Guard From Birth.

The eyes of the new-born baby should always be carefully examined and treated at once if the least weakness or any impairment of vision shows itself. In the great city hospitals it is a law that all babies' eyes must be treated as soon after birth as possible. The Crede method by which a 1 per cent solution of silver nitrate is instilled in the baby's eyes is generally used.

The eyes of children should be carefully examined by a specialist before entering school and a least every year after that time in order to guard against any change in vision or eyestrain.

Glasses are not always needed. In many cases, however, the use of correct lenses in early life will help and often restore eyes to their normal condition. Worth while, isn't it?

Goggles for Workers.

Shop goggles should be worn by all men who are exposed to the least danger, in the mills and factories. Do not let any false pride or the jibes of fellow workmen rob you of your eyes. Many mills have physicians and nurses to properly treat all accidents at once. But in spite of all precautions, there are places where eye accidents run as high as 25 per cent of the total injuries.

Beware of the so-called shop oculist. He is one of those fellow workers who is ready at all times with dirty hands and a sharpened match to remove foreign particles from your eyes.

There are infections so drastic of sight. A well-known surgeon, in one of our great centers, has recently suffered in this way. Guard your eyes against all infections. Do not attempt home remedies. At the least sign of trouble consult an expert at once. Use your hospitals, dispensaries, physicians and nurses and save what is the most priceless that the mere touch means the loss of all your senses.

Convinced by Help It Gave Friends

Testimonials from people he knew, convinced Sergeant Elvin, of the Salvation Army, that Dreco was well worth trying. Results have delighted him.

Mr. J. R. Elvin, of 177 Mulock street, Toronto, who for twenty years has been a Sergeant in the Salvation Army, is outspoken in his praise of Dreco, the new herbal remedy. Suffering himself, he read of Dreco's wonderful work, heard it spoken of in the deepest gratitude by people he knew well. What more natural than that he should decide to try it himself?

"Although I have only taken a bottle and a half of Dreco, it has done me a world of good already," states Mr. Elvin. "Last winter I had an attack of lumbago, which left my system in a very badly run-down condition. Pains shot across my back, over the kidneys. My stomach would not digest my food properly, causing gas to rise after each meal, and I often had bilious attacks.

"After reading o fthe help people I knew were receiving from Dreco, I thought it might also benefit me and I have not been disappointed in any way. The pains in my back have greatly improved, my stomach is much better, and I have had no gastric or bilious spells since I started taking this medicine.

"My bowels are regular; I get up feeling fine and refreshed in the mornings and my day's work is done much easier. I have recommended Dreco to many already and never hesitate to praise it."

Dreco's claims can be readily substantiated. Reliable people who have tried it are loud in their praises of this fine herbal remedy. They have found that it actually does tone and regulate the system and improve the general health. Dreco is made from herbs, roots, bark and leaves and contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sol din Lakefield by E. H. Northey, and by a good druggist everywhere.

GREEK DISPUTE STILL A MENACE

Mussolini Will Not Withdraw From Corfu

PARIS, Sept. 13. — (Canadian Press.)— Arrangements for settlement of Greco-Italian dispute is proving laborious and it is understood on the best authority that the British member of the Council of Ambassadors is insisting on the evacuation of Corfu at the earliest possible moment. Mussolini, it is stated, has again expressed his determination not to withdraw from Corfu until all terms of settlement have been fulfilled by Greece.

YOUR MEMORY

An exceptionally keen memory is often a sign of ill-health, claims the medical editor of the London Times. A new idea this, that there is apt to be something physically at fault with the person who remembers too much of the past, especially the unpleasant.

Strong and healthy people seem able to forget the unpleasant things of life—dismiss them from their minds as we discard old rubbish not worth any further thought.

The unhealthy, particularly the brooding neurasthenics, garden their troubles. They keep disappointing memories in mind—nurse and coax them along. Like the person who "enjoys poor health."

The art of forgetting, within reasonable bounds, is as desirable an accomplishment as the development of keen memory. All of us have rough bumps and headaches in life. If we weren't able to forget them, existence would be dismal, drab.

Memory has to do with the past. The man with keen memory is often anchored back yonder. Quite the reverse of the man with the ability to forget; he has rung down the final curtain on the past; is living in the present and for the future.

Europe's chief trouble is its inability to forget the prejudices, injustice and hatreds of the past.

Forgetting is not an accident, it's an effort of the will power, claims the London medical editor. The stronger our will power, the easier for us to blot the past from our conscious minds.

The jovial healthy person with the art of forgetting has a great advantage. He may not be able entirely to ignore the unpleasantries of life as they come along, but he at least doesn't meet them with a magnifying glass.

A good memoy is most valuable when accompanied by a good forgettory.

CHOLERA INFANTUM

A FATAL DISEASE OF CHILDREN

Cholera Infantum or summer complaint of children is one of the most dangerous bowel complaints during the summer months.

It begins with a profuse diarrhoea, the stomach becomes irritated, very often accompanied by vomiting and purging and the matter excreted from the stomach has a bilious appearance. The child rapidly loses flesh, is soon reduced to languor and prostration, and in a great many cases death ensues.

Mothers, if any of your children become sick with cholera infantum do not endanger their health, perhaps their life, by experimenting with some new and untried remedy; get one that has stood the test of time; one that will quickly offset the vomiting, purging and the diarohea. This you will find in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, a remedy that has been on the market for the past 78 years.

Mrs. W. A. Harrison, 10 Elevator Court, Halifax, N.S., writes:—"Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry saved the lives of three of my children when all other remedies failed. It stopped the vomiting and terrible diarrhoea with which they were troubled. I always keep a bottle of it on hand in case of emergency."

"Dr. Fowler's" is soc. a bottle; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE THREE BROWN OWLS

"Hi, yi!" he shouted.

"I must look in the postoffice and see if there is any mail for me," said Mister Gallop, the cowboy fairy.

"Come along, kiddies," he called over his shoulder as he touched his pony with his spurs (not enough to hurt him) and galloped along the road toward some cottonwood trees.

Nancy and Nick followed on their ponies and arrived just in time, to see their friend swing himself out of his saddle and flatten out on the ground. Then he reached his arm down into a deep hole and what should he pull out but a letter!

"Hi yi!" he shouted, jumping to his feet and unfolding his missive. "I kinda thought I'd get one today. Let's see who it's from. Why, it's from Penny Prairie Dog. For goodness sake! Do you s'pose he's in trouble again? Here, you read it, Nancy. I'm kind of hard of seeing."

So Nancy took the letter and read:

"Dear Mister Gallop:

"I hate to be such a nuisance, but honest to goodness, I can't help it.

"I left my house today for a minute to ask Johnnie Jack Rabbit something; and when I came back I was told to move out.

"Three leggy looking things who call themselves owls were sitting on my front porch and hooting at me. They said they had just moved in and intended to stay, as they had been told that mice were plentiful thereabouts.

"When I told them all the trouble I had taken to dig out my house 'n everything, they just blinked their silly eyes and said that since I was so good at it, I could easily make another one.

"Please, sir, help me out of this fix and I'll do something for you some day.

"Yours in trouble,

"Penny Prairie Dog."

"Poor Penny!" said Mister Galop. "Sure, I'll help him. Come along, kiddies, but be quiet. She! Here we are at Penny's house now. Be ready to grab it anything comes out."

Then he squeaked like a little mouse.

Suddenly out popped a tiny brown head. It was Banty Burrow Owl looking for his dinner. Before you could say boo, Nancy grabbed him.

Mister Gallop squeaked again and out came another brown head. That was Buffy Burrow Owl. Nick got him.

And the last one Mister Gallop grabbed himself. "Come on, Penny," he called. "Your house is empty. Now, you three owls march off and look for a 'For Rent' sign next time before you make yourselves so much at home."

SALE OF GERMAN RELICS RECALLS BIG WAR DAYS

HONOLULU, Sept. 11.—Memories of the world war were revived here recently with the opening and official sale of trunks, boxes and bags of German sailors who were called from merchant ships here to serve abroad the German cruiser Nurnberg, which sailed from this port shortly after the declaration of war by Germany. The cruiser went down with all hands in the battle off the Falkland islands on December 8, 1914.

When the German sailors all naval reservists, left Germany aboard their various vessels— the Pommern Setes Prinz Waldermar, Holsatia, and others —they carried with them pictures of home groups and many trinkets, which came to light when the luggage was opened preparatory to auctioning off the contents. The bags also contained menentoes of many far lands— Java, India, the Straits Settlement, China, New Guinea and Borneo.

When Germany declared war nearly all of the German merchantmen in the Pacific hastened toward Honolulu for safety. The cruiser Nurnberg, pursued by British and Japanese vessels put in for coal and supplies. There was need for haste and all of the reservists aboard the merchentman were transferred to the Nurnberg. The men could take only a small portion of their effects with them. The remainder were placed in the trunks boxes and bags, which were taken in charge by the collector of customs when the United States declared war on Germany.

For six years the effects have been in the customs house. Recently, as the result of correspondence between the German ambassador at Washington and the state department, permission was granted to auction off the luggage and to return the purely personal effects, such as pictures letters and trinkets that represent human interest, to the German consul a San Francisoc, who will forward them to the families of the men in Germany.

The receipts from the auction of clothes and other articles will be sent to the families, also. The prohibitive price of freight which would have to be paid in German marks, prevents the dispatch of all of articles to the German families.

The bags yielded many interesting objects—rare linens, beautiful ostrich and other feathers a Lueger pistol loaded and ready to fire, several sextants, and other navigation equipment and many books.

ARGENTINA FINDS OIL.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 13.—(Associated Press)—The discovery of what are apparently rich deposits of petroleum in the province of Jujuy, Argentina, has elated industrial interests. Borings made under the direction of the administration of state railways resulted in striking oil at a depth of 530 meters. The well did not prove to be a gusher as at first reported, but a column of oil ascended the tube for a distance of 150 meters, from which two tons were pumped in three hours.

Work was then suspended to await the arrival of storage tanks. The engineers are confident that borings 30 meters deeper will tap an extensive pertroleum strata. The oil is said to be of high quality.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

ELINOR FINDS ELIXIR YOUTH

Grandmother Glyn Succeeds in Keeping Pace With Youngsters.

By JACK JUNGMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 12. — Grandmothers, it might be surmised, would be under some handicap in keeping pace with youngsters in the movies.

Not so Grandmother Elinor Glyn, author of "Three Weeks," "Six Days" and other novels of more or less diurnal duration, who is now personally supervising the filming of the first named at the Goldwyn Pictures Studio.

The English writer has three grandchildren. Her years are double those of many with whom she works. But in energy, in capacity for toil, none exceed her, and that capacity, she says, is constantly increasing.

In her deliberate conservation of physical resources, Madame Glyn says she has found an elixir of life by dancing with youth.

* * *

One night a week, often two and three, she devotes to terpsichore. From Hollywood's legion of fancy male steppers she selects the best dancer—a grandmotherly privilege. The only condition imposed upon the honored partner is that he must not talk, for, says Elinor, talk distracts from complete exhiliration of the dance, and it is for complete relaxation and recreation, not social diversion, that she steps out.

Who is to win Madame Glyn's favor for the weekly hop at the Ambassador cocoanut grove is one of the ever current speculations of Hollywood. None has yet refused the gracious invitation of the green-eyed, red-haired grand dame who asks no quarter from any film flapper on the polished floor.

And, watching her easy gyrations and her assured competition with the younger set for the pick of the men, Hollywood's fairest, always primarily concerned with the conservation of beauty and grace, are taking copious notes on the Englishwoman's system of work and play.

* * *

In Paris, where she does much of her writing, Madame Glyn maintains a villa to which no one may gain admittance during her hours of toil. There, behind a high garden wall, she also dances for relaxation once a day to the tunes of a phonograph, with few clothes to hamper movement.

She has a theory that people partake of the characteristics of animal groups—some are horse folk, some feline, others birdlike and so on. She herself is of the tiger persuasion, she contends; the tiger with its agility, energy, vitality and power of recovering quickly from fatigue.

And if you're inclined to scoff at that statement, bear in mind that Elinor Glyn says she has always held her audience by asserting only what she believed to be true. Adroit showman she certainly is, familiar with all the tricks of self-exploitation, but she gives an unmistakable impression of sincerity, according to her lights.

* * *

In addition to her arduous work in the production of "Three Weeks," now under way, she does considerable newspaper writing and answers a great many requests from all over the world for advice on love problems and domestic relations. Incidentally, she's very proud of her reputation as an authority on these questions. Most of her writing is done in the morning, in bed, before breakfast.

There is nothing erotic about Elinor Glyn, although the world, which once whispered salaciously about her "Three Weeks," once believed her so.

She is tenacious of youth. Tenacious of her principles. A tremendous fighter for what she believes and wants. Insatiably curious about life. Indefatigable. One of the most remarkable figures associated with motion picture making.

WIVES DIRECT TRAINING TABLES OF SCULLERS

DULUTH, Sept. 13.—(Associated Press)—No special staff of chefs is a part of the "training camps" of Walter Hoover, world's champion sculler, and W. E. Garrett Gilmore, Canadian champion, who are preparing for the Philadelphia gold challenge cup race here September 15.

The wives of both men preside over their respective kitchens. Training quarters are located in modest bungalows on Minnesota Point, directly adjacent to the rowing course on St. Louis Bay. Hoover has a summer home on the point within a few blocks of the boat house. Gilmore's staff includes Coach Frank Muller of the Bachelor's Barge Club, under whose colors Gilmore rows. Muller is head rowing coach at Harvard University.

The best course usually is right along the point, which extends eight miles to the Lake Superior entry to the harbor. Both men are working out on the stretch and frequently paddle across the bay to the mouth of the St. Louis River and 15 miles up stream to Fon du Lac, making a 30-mile round trip.

According to visiting oarsmen who have trained on the bay and connecting waters in preparation for the numerous northwestern and district regattas staged here, the local course is exceedingly attractive and most conducive to hard work. The water front on the west side of the bay with its grain elevators, coal and ore docks and other shipping facilities is interesting, while the scenery on the easy side next to the point is equally attractive. Huge freighters and innumerable small craft form the background for constant activity in this, the second largest inland harbor in the world.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

The Religion of a Million Dollar Doll

"I'm not," said Sheridan; and suddenly it had become the truth that he spoke. "I do want to know. This is the sort of night—(though I'm pretty sure we're in no great danger) that a man's mind turns beyond this world. It would really interest me to know what is the religion you thought out in the convent garden." (He didn't add, "the religion of a Million Dollar Doll.")

"Why—it's hard to tell you in a few words," the girl answered very shy, yet not wishing to be obstinate, and refuse. "I—well, I used to say to myself: 'this world seems so wonderful and beautiful that it must be—a thought of God, or perhaps, in a way, part of God.' God must be everything I used to think. There must be God in every leaf and flower—and so, of course, far more in all of us.

"We must be like beads on a string, I thought, with the same thread—that is God—running through us, every one. Or else God is the Great Fire and we're little sparks of that fire."

Sheridan stared, frowning slightly, the girl was puzzling him a good deal. But he remembered Phillips' several warnings. She was evidently cleverer, and far more subtle in her playing of the game than most of her sisterhood.

"If we're all sparks of the great fire—that is, if we have an equal share of the God-flame in us, why are some of us so beastly, or so unfortunate, with no hope of bettering ourselves?" he tested her theories.

"Oh, I thought that, too." Terry went on, losing self-consciousness in her interest. "Of course, there's the life after this, where everything must come right, for those who've tried to be decent. But then, there's the trouble about the bad people! Of course, there can't be a hell, like one reads about in the Bible.

"It can't mean forever, no matter what they've done to us; and God's so much kinder than we are. But it would seem to make things wonderfully just, if we came back to this world in a number of lives, to pay for what we've done wrong, or to go higher because we've done well! At last we'd be ready for a glorious heaven, wouldn't we, when we'd worked everything out here?"

"Where did you read all that?" Sheridan asked sharply.

"Nowhere, it was just in my thoughts.

"Thoughts in a convent garden! Well, they're not bad thoughts to have in any garden. I've no special religion myself. Not that I haven't had my thoughts—and some of them weren't unlike yours.

"If convent gardens bring thoughts of religion to young girl's minds, I'm glad I sent the prettiest child I ever saw to a convent school. Yes, it must have been a good thing for her! I wonder what she's turned out to be? I've been reminded of her by—"

Terry's heart leaped. She had a moment of fright, but it quickly passed. She sat silent for a moment, listening to the roar of the sea and the straining of wood which her talk with Sheridan had made her almost forget.

"Where was your convent?" he flung at her suddenly, perhaps merely for the sake of something to say.

Now the girl was really alarmed. Could he suspect? Julia would be furious if he found out. Perhaps it might even injure Julia a great deal if the trick (yes, it was a trick) should be exposed.

"If you don't mind," she said softly, "I—I would rather not tell."

Sheridan chilled instantly. He guessed at once that the fair Juliet Divine had never been schooled in any convent at all! "Certainly, you needn't tell me unless you choose," he drily replied. "And I suppose I should be over-curious again if I asked how long ago you were there."

"Oh, I can tell you that!" Terry began eagerly, then checked herself with another of those blushes which showed up so under the supposed paint and powder. "No," she went on, "I'm afraid I'd better not tell that, either."

"Why should a lady give away her age?" laughed Sheridan.

The girl said nothing. She had been afraid to "give herself away" as seventeen, instead of twenty-seven, which was Julia's age.

"Well," Sheridan exclaimed. "I've stopped below a good deal longer than I meant. I must go back on deck. We're one hand short owing to that accident today, and now and then there's something I can do. I had no idea of discussing religion when I came in here—except the religion of courage; but I've seen that you have that. There's nothing of the coward about you."

"I do hope not," responded Terry. "I can't bear cowards, even women. I don't like this storm, but if I'm brave, it's only because there's nothing else to be."

Sheridan laughed once more, and looked at her with approval in his eyes. She might be a little schemer—certainly was. And she might deviate almost absurdly from that high moral code which she had just enunciated, but there was something of the true sportswoman about the creature. She had brains, too. And she was pretty—damned pretty!

He wasn't sure whether it was conducive to the pleasure of the voyage, or necessary for dignity's sake, to continue sending such a girl to Coventry.

"If we weather this night all right, why, we'll see!" Sheridan said to himself. And aloud he added, "If there's any real danger, I'll come to you again. But I don't think there will be. So don't worry."

Then he was gone.

Terry didn't worry. And the memory of those last words was sweet: He would come for her.

Just Apply This Paste and the Hairs Will Vanish

(Boudoir Secrets)

The judicious use of a delatone paste insures any woman a clear, hairless skin. To prepare the paste, mix a little of the powdered delatone with some water, then apply to the objectionable hairs for two or three minutes. When the paste is removed, and the skin washed, every trace of hair will have vanished. No pain attends the use of delatone and it will not mar the most sensitive skin, but to insure results, see that you get real delatone.

WHEN YOU DIE

At some unknown date in the future, your heart will stop beating. What then? Death, of course. But what is death? Read the strange case of eight-year-old Jack Leaney, of Stratford, Canada.

He was ill, in agony. At 10 o'clock at night, his heart fluttered and ceased beating. Physicians applied every test known to science. "It's all over," they announced gravely. "The lad is dead."

But shortly after midnight, two hours later, his heart began beating again. He breathed. Life was miraculously restored, though only for three hours. At 5 in the morning, he died for the second time. This death was final. Jack Leaney is buried, gone into the Hereafter.

Medical journals soon will be discussing this.

It is possible to bring a man "back to life" after the heart has stopped beating, by injecting adrenalin, most powerful of heart stimulants. But only under certain conditions, usually when the sick man expires from the anaesthetic during an operation. Even then, according to medical rule, adrenalin must be injected within a few minutes after the heart stop beating.

The Jack Leaney case is one of the greatest mysteries in medical history. The doctors, of course, finally will decide that the lad's first "death" was really a condition of suspended animation, form of trance. But isn't "suspended animation" a good description of his second death—of all deaths?

You see a man driving an auto. It runs along smoothly. Then it goes dead, stops. A little tinkering . . . a broken-down part replaced with a new one . . . and the auto runs again. If the collapse of the mechanism is too emphatic, the owner buys a new car.

Our bodies are the autos driven by our spirits. The auto wears out. The driver gets a new car.

TWO ESKIMOS WILL PAY DEATH PENALTY

FORT McMURRAY, Alberta, September 13 (Canadian Press). — Two Eskimos, convicted of the murder of R.C.M.P. Corporal Doak and Otto Binder, Hudson Bay trading post factor, were recently sentenced to death by Judge Lucien Dubuc at Hoschel Island Detachment Station of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, in the Arctic, according to passengers on the steamer Northland Echo, which arrived here from the North yesterday.

They will be hanged on 7th December.

TO SAVE HER SON'S SOUL FROM CRIME.

That Is Mother's Reason For Effort to Take Youth's Life.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Gladly she would have died for him—

But the mother love of Mrs. Rosa Simez was so great that she chose rather to fire a shot into the body of her 19-year-old son, Dezso Simez, in order to save him from himself and the eventual life of a criminal which she sincerely believed he would enter upon.

This paradoxical manifestation of parental affection has thrown sociological experts into a furore of incredulous amazement here as Dezso hovers at death's door in a local hospital, viewing with apathy the chain of events which led to his probable mortal injury.

The shooting has brought into bold relief the modern battle between outraged parenthood and pernicious influences of twentieth century jazz rebellion, which educators say is the primary fomenter of filial insurrection against parental discipline.

Would Die for Him.

"I thought the hangman would get him," police say Mrs. Simez sobbed, as they took away the still smoking pistol which had crimpoled her boy—"my baby"—in a huddled heap to the floor.

"It would not have helped, for me to die in his stead. So death for him—to save him from himself—was what I believed was best. I shot him because I loved him. There was no other way."

An investigation of the case revealed that the Simez family had come to Chicago from Hungary when Dezso was but three years old.

Tall, handsome and bright, his mother had scrimped and saved enough to send him through high school. But his tastes of recent years, she explained, were for street corner companions and the illicit adventures they suggested. He had been arrested a time or two, police say, once on the charge of stealing an automobile.

Other Cases Recalled.

Tired of her unavailing admonitions and whippings, the mother, in final desperation, bethought herself of the only method left to her resources—to barter the rod for the pistol and save "his soul at least."

The Deszo case recalls two similar instances of firearm regenerations wherein desperate parents chose death by a bullet for their offspring rather than permit the progress of what seemed to them the continuance of an abandoned life.

In this same city last year, Frank Piano Sr., shot and killed his son, Frank, 18, when the lad refused counsel to stop his carousings and undisciplined conduct which brought him in constant contact with the law.

A jury acquitted the father in three minutes when he told his story on the stand and explained that he had killed the boy, although he loved him dearly, "to save his soul."

And in South Bend, Ind., not so long ago, John R. Wyman sent a bullet into his 15-year-old adopted daughter, Ellen, in the belief that his conduct was for her good and would "save her morals," as he expressed it.

Can You Solve It?

All these combined instances veil the secrets of parental love behind a barrier of inexplicable mystery. Psychologists have pondered over it. And as yet have arrived at no satisfactory conclusion. Perhaps YOU can solve the riddle. It is this:

Can a love be so strong that it will sacrifice itself and then at the next breath reverse and slay the object of its desire?

Kipling having some such thought in mind once wrote:

"If I were hanged on the highest hill, I know whose love would follow me still. If I were damned of body and soul, I know whose love would make me whole. Mother o' Mine."

But Kipling wasn't thinking of the corollary—what mother love and father love might do when confronted by high tensioned twentieth century sway, batterin down the right of parental rule.

'Tis then that the atavistic in parenthood rises, sociologists say, and what is cannot save for its love in life endeavors to perpetuate in

PULLMAN CONDUCTOR-EVANGELIST SAYS:

"When a Bum Wants a Bath He's Got Religion!"

By GEORGE BRITT.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—"Brother, when a bum wants a bath, he's got religion."

That is the sage observation made by Thomas J. Marx, whose twin occupations include collecting tickets between earthly railroad stations and offering free transportation to celestial terminals of the blest.

In work time he is a Pullman conductor on runs westward from here. At the end of a trip, whether in Chicago or in some strange city, he goes to a mission or street corner religious service and prays for the salvation of down-and-outers.

For 32 years he has been combining work and evangelism. For the greater part of the time he was with a piano company. Three years ago he gave up the position of superintendent there, because of his health, and became a conductor. But all the time his life's interest and hobby has been mission work. Thousands of converted derelicts are his trophies for the effort.

Starts in St. Louis.

"Brother, when a bum wants a bath, he's got religion," he says from the fullness of his experience.

It was in St. Louis that he evolved that maxim. A ragged wreck of humanity asked Marx for money. Marx spoke to him of religion, and the man at length professed that he had found forgiveness for his sins. Marx was rejoiced, of course, but he didn't feel entirely sure of his man until he came around the next morning and asked for a bath. That was years ago, and the man's successful life since has been a witness to his reformation.

"Almost all the friends I have are ex-bums," says the conductor. "I think more of the bum than I do of the tailor-made man. I was as much of a drunkard as any of them, although I was making good money as a young fellow. Besides my regular pay I could make $10 a night playing a cornet in a beer garden, and I used to wear a $15 plug hat and a $75 suit. But liquor had me as a slave.

Broadminded.

"And then I met the girl, who was religious to the core. Because of her I found God and quit the booze. My old bunch all said, 'You'll get over it when you get the girl' and they waited for me to go back. But I've been a worker for religion ever since."

On the train, Conductor Marx doesn't intrude his religion upon passengers. He doesn't organize prayer meetings in the smoking rooms or invent blue law regulations.

"Now and then a passenger will give an opening for a word about his salvation, and I take it," he says. "I refused a drink of whiskey not very long ago and the passenger was so surprised he was ready to listen to what I had to say. But there's a way of talking to them so they don't resent it. Some time in the future after such a talk it will all come back to a man and he'll turn to God.

"The well-fed man who rides the Pullman car is made out of exactly the same human stuff as the bum who is panhandling for the price of a cup of coffee. They both need the old-time religion."

AMERICA'S MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 13.—This city, still is the home of America's most beautiful girl.

Mary Katherine Campbell has again won over all opposition at the Atlantic City Beauty Pageant, winning the title of "Miss America," even as she did last year.

But the girl herself isn't worrying a great deal over titles and such.

Having refused a half dozen good offers from the movies and the stage, she today is apparently preparing herself for a "home" career, by learning to cook!

Only recently she baked her "first batch of biscuits" and, she says, "they came out fine and fluffy."

Not Real Serious.

Home town rumor insists that Miss Campbell will shortly announce her engagement to an Ohio State University gridiron star. But she herself says she is not going to "get real serious for a couple of years."

Miss Campbell has received 30-odd proposals since she was crowned Miss America last year. They were from all parts of the country. Many written ones from persons she did no. know, usually contained, "I am considered pretty good looking hereabouts," and one read in part: "* * * of course, I like to keep money in the background, but I might say here that I'm worth several millions."

Many Columbus youths also pay marked suit to Miss Campbell.

Have Their Use.

Miss Campbell generally finds herself besieged by several suitors at a time by which circumstance, her mother, Mrs. Stella Campbell, has profited greatly, having hit upon the lucky idea of setting them to do the housework. Mrs. Campbell hasn't washed the evening dishes in months, and she says her daughter's admirers are getting more and more indispensable.

Following her selection last year as Miss America, Miss Campbell received offers from three movie companies, two musical comedies, Keith's, a circus and an itinerant pianist.

Miss Campbell turned down a $1,000 a week salary with a vaudeville circuit to return home when she received word that her mother was ill. After her mother recovered Miss Campbell concluded to remain at home and is now thinking about entering Ohio State University.

CORDINGTON FIRE ENTAILS BIG LOSS

Tenant of Farm Suffers Most—Havelock Building Changes Hands.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 13. — James Cowan, tenant of the farm in Codrington on which the barn was burned Tuesday evening during a threshing, as told in yesterday's Examiner, will be a heavy loser. The contents, all of which were destroyed, consisted of 1,200 bushels of grain, 20 loads of hay, two sets of double harness, two sets of single harness, a cream separator, a number of hens and other articles. Mr. Cowan's loss is estimated at $1,500, with insurance of $500. Walter Raycroft, owner of the farm, had $550 insurance on the building.

Buys Havelock Building.

Henry Redden has purchased the old roller mills building, a three-storied brick structure, from the village council of Havelock, and has begun the work of tearing it down. The brick will be shipped to Campbellford and used in the construction of two houses which Mr. Redden is erecting. The building has been dismantled from the roof to the bottom of the top storey. This structure, which has been vacant for years, was purchased by the Corporation in the hope that some manufacturer might be induced to lease it, but no tenant was ever found. The price paid by Mr. Redden is $600, and this is just sufficient to permit the village to break even. The Council paid $300 for the property, but had a claim against it to an equal amount for back taxes.

FLOWERS

higher-sounding title of ageratum; there are clear yellow bits of sunshine in the cups of California poppies, and pure tones of white and green in the tall Shasta daisies.

Larkspur, or delphinium, as the botantists call it, gives a blue note, the everlasting "straw flower" crinkles softly beside the America centurea of feathery mauve, the plant that goes to sleep in the afternoon, and the perennial sunflower, the helianthus flirts with a dignified deep maroon Princess feather. Tiny pink and white daisies look out at the passing world from a low glass bowl, and pansies, the 'thought' flowers, show a preference for the deep warmth of velvety purple and gold.

The School Children.

The school children of the city contribute a certain element of interest and entertainment to the Fair every year. This season, they are not lacking in their displays, which are the subject of many complimentary remarks from observers. In the annex section of the Main Building is shown the results of the work of the manual training day classes at the Peterboro Collegiate Institute and the public schools' auxiliary classes. There are clever models on many things done in wood; a finely-constructed piano lamp, with lovely shade, flower stands and hall racks, finished in every detail, little models of aeroplanes and ladders and dolls' beds. There is a drawing from a blue print of a coat-hanger, done to a half-inch scale, with the "elevation" clearly marked. A miniature sail-boat is a noticeable item, and a small delivery truck with red body and black wheels.

The juniors show small pigs and bunnies and squirrels, with an assortment of pen and ink work and water-colors in conventional designs.

In the Main Building, on the ground floor, the Collegiate Institute and the public schools have an exhibit of art work, in pretty needlework and drawings. The Institute girls evidently excel in the use of the needle. There are some splendid specimens of their handiwork here. A form shows a ratine dress made by a pupil, another displays a gingham model, with pretty collar and cuffs. The lingerie section is particularly good, with examples of fine hemming and embroidery and crochet. A complete domestic science outfit clothes another model showing the towel and holder fastened to the side button of the large, enveloping apron. The apron and towel show a dainty bit of color in purple cross-stitching, purple silk makes the towel's initial, and a purple binding finishes the edges of the small holder.

There are dolls' sets, complete, dainty, neat and embroidered bags.

Posters adorn the walls, done in pen and pencil, and the opposite space is devoted to the primer pupils' attempts at art. These small lads and lassies show a tendency to explain their artistic creations, a laudable practice that might well be followed by more mature men and women. They also favor, evidently, the rather smudgy black crayon.

Topsy, hanging out a very black washing, consisting of a shirt and a pair of trousers, is labelled with the nursery rhyme that has to do with the adventures of the young lady whose nose proved attractive to a visiting blackbird. "Santa Claus and his reindeer" shows a little old man drawn by three lazy beetles; "A Runaway Horse" has a decided "Spark Plug" air about him, and "a bird hunting for his breakfast" shows a robin braced against a monstrous worm.

"Be Polite, Tell the Truth," is the subject matter of a rather doubtful-sounding bit of advice outlined in painstaking fashion, and the labels, "What I want to be when I grow to be a man," reveal somewhat contradictory tendencies. One little drawing of this sort shows two prize-fighters whaling away, surrounded by an audience of six polite figures, while another depicts a youthful violinist, practising furiously in a room whose table is adorned by a peaceful flower pot and whose walls show three pictures, hung askew. A little lady who reveals "what I want to be when I grow to be a woman," has housewifely tastes, evidently. She is engaged in her mature existence with feeding one small child at a large table.

ABOUT SAN FRANCISCO

By A. H. FREDERICK.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—By their hats do you know them in San Francisco and the bay region these days.

And by the same token it's easy to spot visitors from the east. Because upon first sight they turn and stare at the "peculiar" hats.

Oakland started it when it got the idea for a yearly Mardi Gras on the shores of Lake Merritt.

The idea was conceived of forming an organization known as the "Dons of Peralta," named after the Spanish soldier who once held a royal grant for the territory where the east bay cities now stand.

But instead of the usual button, or pin, it was decided that all dons should wear a hat modeled upon the lines of the old Spanish grandees and resplendent with red and yellow ribbon. And now such hats are thicker than ants at a picnic.

Then San Francisco, never to be outdone, decided that hats had to be the official regalia for welcoming the pony express riders from St. Joe.

The old "beaver" game has taken a new lease on life, except the cry of "beaver" is replaced by the "Hey, sombrero! Score one!"

* * *

Modern scientific achievements were the main exhibits in two recent divorce cases here.

The first one happened when a woman introduced testimony that her husband, ostensibly at the office was out joy-riding instead. "I couldn't be mistaken," she said, "because while his office was only a half dozen squares away, his speedometer would show a increase of 60 to 90 miles some evenings."

But she was eclipsed by the woman who complained that her husband was completely engrossed away from her and parlor felicity.

"We hardly speak a word a day," she said.

"Hm'm," pondered his honor. "Do you suspect there's an affinity?"

"I should say so," the plaintiff replied. "It's that radio set he's got down in the basement."

* * *

Speaking of the march of progress, here's one that will bring grief to all former lovers of Young Wild West, Deadwood Dick, etc., of boyhood days.

In the old days when there was a bad'un to break in, it was an event beloved of the cowman, and if the rider "grabbed leather," or was thrown, all he got was loud guffaws and razzing.

But recently a sixty-one-year-old cowboy on the Adobe ranch of Madero was thrown by a bronc and he got $1,265.40 from the State Industrial Accident Commission!

ARTHUR DUBAY WON PRIZE HAM

Yesterday's Weight Estimating Contest at Fair Resulted in a Tie, Decided Impartially,

Arthur Dubay, 458 Aylmer Street, Peterboro, yesterday won the prize ham offered by the Canadian Packing Co. at the Exhibition to whoever estimated nearest the actual weight of the ham selected for the day's competition.

Mr. Dubay estimated the exact weight of the ham—36 lbs. 2 oz.—as also did A. Butcher, 536 Stewart Street, resulting, of course, in a tie to be determined in an impartial manner. A disinterested authority consequently drew to decide to whom the ham should be awarded, and in this way the Rose Brand prize went to Mr. Dubay.

This ham was weighed by Clifford Lowe, of the New Centre Meat Market.

This evening, to-morrow and Saturday the estimating competition will continue, one Rose Brand ham to be awarded to the lucky estimator each day.

Interest in the C.P.C.'s exhibit in the Manufacturers' Building is naturally accentuated by this daily estimating contest, of which a large number took advantage yesterday.

FERGUSON APPEALS IN BEHALF JAPAN

Urges Generous Response by Ontorio to Red Cross Relief Efforts.

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press).—The Ontario Government has considered the appeal of the Canadian Red Cross on behalf of the stricken people of Japan, and yesterday Hon. Howard Ferguson gave out the following message to the people of Ontario:

"Japan, a near neighbor of Canada and an ally in the Great War, is staggering under the effects of one of the greatest disasters in history, which has devastated the very heart of her empire. A number of those who have been killed or severely injured is as yet uncounted. It is, however, estimated that 100,000 to 350,000 men, women and children are dead, and over 400,000 buildings destroyed. The people of Ontario have always been foremost in responding to appeals for help. An opportunity for assistance to Japan is now offered to them through the Red Cross, an international society, specially organized and equipped to administer relief in times of disaster."

"School children of the Province will doubtless wish to help the children of Japan, and arrangements will be made through the Junior Red Cross for their contributions to be used for this purpose."

LIBERAL PARTY THE ONLY OPPOSITION

Premier Ferguson Will Not Recognize Drury as Offcial Opposition Leader.

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press). — Despite numerical representation of the U. F. O.-Labor group, which the Legislature places in second place as regards voting strength, they will not be recognized by the Ferguson Government as the official Opposition in the House next January. As has been previously stated, the Government will regard the Liberal group as its official Opposition, and W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., as official Opposition leader.

While the Premier has intimated the likelihood of this step on the part of his Government, he stated definitely yesterday that the Government would not recognize the U.F.O. as an Opposition party, or ex-Premier Drury, its prospective leader, as official leader of the Opposition. His view is that the last election vote was a clear mandate from the people to get back to the two-party system.

BETHANY LOST OUT WEDNESDAY

Oshawa Won Out in the Third Game of Second Round.

The third game in the second round of the Intermediate O.B.A.A. series to decide the tie between Oshawa Motors and Bethany was played at Port Hope yesterday, with a final score of 17-6, in favor of Oshawa. Alex. Kay acted as umpire-in-chief. There was a big crowd of fans present from Bethany.

Up to the seventh inning, Bethany showed good form, but blew up suddenly, Oshawa scoring 8 runs in the seventh. Dumb base running on the part of the losers cost them several runs. Oshawa worked the hidden ball trick twice on them. C. Staples, pitching for Bethany, worked hard, and Bruce Riley got four hits out of five times up, including a two and a three-bagger.

The line-up was as follows:

Oshawa Motors—Sisson ss, McCartney 2b, T. Staples c, Riley 1b, Price cf, R. Staples 3b, Laing, lf, C. Staples p, Arnott rf.

Bethany—Hall ss, Thompson 2b, Hipwell c, Hobbs 1b, Brown cf, Jubb 3b, Cretney lf, Bennett p, Crouter rf.

The Port Hope diamond was in bad condition for play, the weeds having been allowed to flourish unchecked throughout the summer.

A SMALLER HOME POLICY FAVORED

WINNIPEG, September 13.—Protest against further building of institutions for the care of dependent children and recommendation of a policy of smaller homes in rural districts will be embodied in a resolution to be brought before the Canadian Conference on Child Welfare, now in session here The protest was voiced at a meeting of the nominating committees this morning, when it was pointed out that many children's institutions were being considered throughout Canada at the present time.

Extension of the functions of the Canadian Council on Child Welfare, to embrace increased publicity, survey and research during the year, with possible establishment of headquarters at Ottawa, was recommended in the report of Miss Charlotte Whitton, secretary, delivered at the annual general meeting yesterday afternoon. She stressed the amount of work accomplished during the past year and the urgent appointment of a ways and means committee which would consider broadening of the scope of the organization.

Convention delegates met in three sections this morning — French-speaking workers, child health, and child labor. In opening the French-speaking meeting, Judge Prendergast of Winnipeg, welcomed the delegates. He declared the many French-Canadian institutions throughout the Dominion for the care and protection of children was eloquent token that this section of the community was alive to its responsibility.

Mme. P. E. Marchand, of Ottawa, in a brief address, discussed basic principles of child welfare and traced the history of the movement for healthier and better children. The French conference is continuing this afternoon.

J. Mackie addressed the Child Labor section, speaking on the "Apprenticeship Law in Relation to the Child." High wages, he said, failed to attract young apprentices, and he felt the solution would be reached by finding employment for the young people during the winter months, when building was at a standstill and by making apprenticeship a matter for the whole trade at large.

MEETING OF WOMEN'S TRADE UNIONS CALLED

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(United Press).—The New York State Women's Trade Union League has issued a call to trade union organizations having women members in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Connecticut for a conference to be held at Echo Hill Farm, Yorktown Heights, N.Y., on October 20 and 21 for the consideration of special problems confronting women in the labor movement.

Discussion at the conference will deal with minimum wage legislation and the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court on this matter; child labor legislation; education of workers, workers classes, study groups and colleges; and international peace.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

"ROB ROY" PLEASES CAPACITY HOUSES AT THE ROYAL.

Last Night a Crowded House at the Royal greeted the Big Production made in Scotland, "Rob Roy." This Production Fresh from Two Weeks at Massey Hall, Toronto, is one of the best British Productions the Writer has Seen.

Let me confess at once that it is so many years since I read the novels of Sir Walter Scott that I cannot remember very much about his version of the Scottish outlaw's life. Some mean-minded historian might tell us that Rob Roy was not as picturesque or as romantic as we like to think, but he is one of those historic figures about whom a great deal of legend has grown up. And everybody, especially a Scotchman, loves the Rob Roy tradition.

I cannot say how closely the picture follows the Rob Roy legends, but at least the story always puts the Red Macgreggor in the right, and his ruthless enemy, Montrose, hopelessly in the wrong.

The silent drama opens with border raids and shows how the daring of Rob Roy caused him to be elected chieftain of the Macgregor clan. Then he journeys to Stirling and wins the heart of Helen Campbell, with whom he elopes, thus winning the hatred of Montrose, who had an eye on Helen also. Montrose succeeds in discrediting Rob Roy and securing his possessions. Despairing of getting justice, the Red Macgregor becomes an outlaw and for many years successfully defies those who wish to capture and execute him. In the end by a daring ruse, he captures the castle built by Montrose on the spot where the Macgregors' home once stood. One assumes that he was ultimately pardoned and lived happily with the fair Helen.

If you are Scotch you will doubtless know whether that is a fair reproduction of the legends of the kilted outlaw. Anyway, it makes a good story, that holds the interest to the end.

You will be sure to like the leading performers. The actor who plays Rob Roy is sufficiently romantic and virile. He does not give you the impression that his manly stunts are developed in a gymnasium.

The rugged and bleak Scotch scenery makes a splendid background for the action of the play. I should like to see "Rob Roy" a second time, if only for the feeling of reality that one gets in the scenes. They have beauty, too.

Also I liked the spirit of Helen Macgregor. When a vile lieutenant of the Montrose cornered her in a lonely room, and offered an unwelcome kiss, her behaviour appealed to me. American heroines when thus cornered usually offer a feeble fight to protect themselves. They chase about the room and make agonized close-ups. But not so with Helen Macgregor. She sailed right into the nasty minded visitor, knocked him down, slapped his face, pulled his hair and put him to rout in the most ignominious manner.

All the Hollywood heroines who have been lured to roadhouses ought to be taken in a body to see Helen Campbell in action. If they followed her example the lurers would not be so eager to kiss them on the neck. That would improve the Hollywood dramas considerably.

It is not often I devote so much space to one picture. But in the United States the movie writers have the habit of talking as though all the pictures of any account were made in that country. Here in Canada we are in a neutral position and see silent dramas from other countries, too. We are not quite as sure as our friends across the line that "The American Pictures lead the World."

AT THE REGENT.

GLORIA SWANSON IN TRYING ROLE

Star's Versatility is Taxed in "Her Gilded Cage"

A little French girl in poor circumstances—

A danseuse in a French cafe—

A famous singer in the American theatres—

A model for an artist.

These are the four transitions in the life of a girl which Gloria Swansons portrays in her latest Paramount vehicle "Her Gilded Cage," which will be shown at the Regent theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Such a role is enough to tax the versatility of any actress, but Miss Swanson is equal to the emergency according to reports of the new picture said to be one of the most colorful and brilliant photoplays in which she has yet appeared.

ROSE ROBERTSON.
The Handsome Baritone With "Listen To Me" At the Grand, Wednesday Night, Sept. 19.

AT THE GRAND.

"LISTEN TO ME."

Le Comte and Flesher's smart musical success, "Listen To Me", will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House, Wednesday, September 19th.

It is a modern extravaganza, possessing music, dancing, comedy, lights, novelties and pretty girls, gorgeously mounted and takes one from New York City, through Hades to the North Pole, back through Candyland, to the stage of the Ritz Theatre, New York, to Cupid's Post Office in fairyland.

Written by Charles George, author of "My China Doll" and "Go Easy Mabel," it possesses every attribute to please, tuneful and gay, with a romping, dancing chorus of dainty girls and cast of great excellence and theatregoers can look forward to an evening of joy.

"Listen To Me", Le Comte and Flesher's brilliant musical extravaganza, which comes to the Grand Opera House, Wednesday, September 19th, will present one scene, among the many novel scenes, that stands out because of its wonderful gorgeousness—The Land of the Midnight Sun.

There we will see the Eskimo villages, dotting the snow clad land, dog team resting after their long journeys over the desolate ice, great icebergs rearing their magnificent heights to the soft radiance of the Aurora Borealis, the delightful sleigh bell ballet dancing to soft music in their fur trimmed costumes and the joyful frolic of the native villagers giving battle to each other with mammoth snow balls. This indeed is the most novel and bewildering sight presented in a long time with a big company of singers and dancers, including Ross Robertson, Joe B. McGee, Gates Austin, Eddie Walkup, Peggy Earle, Valerie True, Marguerite Williams and others, not forgetting the smartest, danciest chorus alive.

A WOMAN MAY GET CREDIT FOR CHANGE.

Lone-Handed Experiments Which May Revolutionize Stage Tactics.

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Almost every person of note who comes to New York finds his way eventually into the Triangle Theatre. And that is because in this tiniest of playhouses, seating barely a hundred persons and tucked away in a cellar on the outskirts of Greenwich Village, a woman is carrying on a lone-handed series of experiments which may revolutionize American stage tactics.

Lights are the medium with which Kathleen Kirkwood works. The average woman of good looks and talent prefers to be out upon the stage where there is an audience to see. Kathleen Kirkwood is content to sit huddled away in a dark corner of her little theatre and play upon an unpoetic-looking switchboard.

A beggar is moaning on a street corner. He cries out hands are choking him. And suddenly huge shadowy hands do seem to come out of the air and clutch at his throat. The audience gets a tremendous thrill. But it means only that away in her dark corner Miss Kirkwood passed her hands before a strong projecting lantern.

Gelatine "Day."

A gnarled old apple tree stands in the background. Over it passes the whole course of a day—the deep blue of early morning, the high light of noon, the flaming reds of sunset. But the gnarled old apple tree is merely a few lines painted upon a lantern slide. The reds, and blue and yellows that testify to a day's passing are bits of gelatine skilfully juggled over a strong white light.

Miss Kirkwood has borrowed from the German theatre her idea for the concrete done which surrounds her tiny stage and upon which she throws her many colored lights. The rest of her effects are original and may be seen nowhere else in the world. Her experiments parallel in a way the experiments which Maude Adams is making.

Simple, But Tedious.

"I have so many ideas," she says. "As soon as one idea is proved, dozens of others come crowding in to take its place. But although my effects are simply achieved, they are seldom easily arrived at. I was months discovering how to project a landscape upon my background."

Miss Kirkwood was one of the art editors of the Pictorial Review when she determined that her love of color must be turned to practical account in the theatre. All the resources that she had were turned into equipping the tiny little Triangle. And for months she worked intensely, never bothering so much as to hang out a shingle.

Then Broadway discovered her. Now Broadway managers come to her to get their plays in shape. And after they've been set up and lighted and tested out in the Triangle they move uptown into the larger theatres.

SEIZED BOAT OF RUM-RUNNER

Rum Crew Surrender After an Exchange of Shots.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., September 13. — Canadian Press. — Seized at the point of gun, after a running revolver battle on Lake Ontario which extended all the way from Sackett's Harbour, near Watertown, to Pultneyville, a forty foot Canadian motor launch, loaded with 350 cases of ale, put in here to-day with seven prisoners on board.

Career of alleged international rum running craft was ended by Collector of Customs, John Pallace, of Rochester, when the boat chased by the government cutter, amid a rain of bullets was forced into a trap at Pultneyville harbour, where customs men were waiting.

When they discovered their plight the rum crew surrendered, but an auxiliary crew which had assembled in three automobiles at the Pultneyville dock ostensibly to unload the cargo, put up a stiff battle, exchanging shots with Collector Pallace's men.

Those held include Clayton W. Smith of Toronto, owner of the vessel.

HORSE OWNER SUES JOCKEY

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Probably for the first time in the history of the turf a horse owner has sued a jockey for damages for the loss of a horse killed on a race track. Hence the case of R. J. Boam, of Hove, Brighton, against Michael Beary, the Irish jockey, for £800 for the loss of the racer Ironore, has excited more than usual interest on the part of the public generally. The plaintiff claimed that Ironore a mare, was killed in May last while running a selling plate at Kempton Park as a direct result of Beary's crowding Ironore result Beary's crowding Ironore's jockey, F. Lane.

Beary was riding Golly Eyes. Ironore was thrown against the rails and Lane was pitched several yards forward on the course. Lane escaped injury but Ironore was killed, her neck having been broken in the fall.

The case was tried by a jury with justice Darling presiding, and a verdict was given for Plaintiff Boam for

In his evidence the plaintiff said that the running of the race the defendant, on Golly Eues, ran in front of his mare, Ironore, to secure a more favorable position near the rails with the result that there was a collision between the defendant's horse and Ironore, whose neck was broken. He valued the mare at £700 or £800. She had won several races. Boam said he had been racing in England for two years. Previously he had raced his horses in South America. He admitted that he had never before heard of such an action as this against a jockey. Neither had he ever before known of a horse being killed in a race as the result of the carelessness of a jockey.

Frederick Lane, the jockey of Ironore, at the time of the accident, gave evidence placing the blame on Jockey Beary. The horses all were racing for the bend, because if they lost their inside place they would have a poor chance of catching up afterwards. One horse was boring into another and Ironore was the ultimate sufferer.

Beary testified that he was forced by other jockeys in the race to bump his horse, Golly Eyes, into Lane's mount.

Justice Darling, in summing up for the enlightment of the jury, referred to the action being the first of the kind brought in the English courts. He mentioned that there was a bend at Kempton Park, and those jockeys who got their horses to the rails as a rule won, and that was what the jockeys wanted, of course. But they must do it rightly, and wrongly, he said.

"Racing," said the judge, "is not bit like hunting or polo. It is only a question of sitting on a horse for two or three minutes at the outside. It does not look like horsemanship at all. It is essential that jockeys should only try to get in front of each other by legitimate and proper means, and not by foul means. Foul riding must be discouraged.

The judge, referring to the fact that the Stewards of the Jockey Club had found Beary guilty of foul riding in connection with the killing of Ironore, warned the jury that this was not to affect their decision. It was for the plaintiff to prove his case in court, if he could do so.

As to the question of damages, if the jury found for the plaintiff the judge reminded the jury that evidence had been given that the mare, Ironore, had been sold on one occasion for £364, and at another time for £300.

The jury agreed that it was a case of foul riding and that £300 was enough for Ironore.

cosy, net curtains with filet lace insets, tea cosies in solid embroidery and Madeira luncheon sets.

A wicker shopping bag has a pretty design in wool flowers, there are centerpieces and doylies in eyelet and Roman cut work, towels with crocheted edges and a display of delicate tatting and Honiton braid pieces. The knitted section, with babies' outfits in dainty colors, and sweaters in silk and wool, is interesting.

At one side is placed a tempting-looking array of preserved fruits and vegetables, with fat loaves of bread in white and brown.

The fine arts section has some good examples of Peterborough talent, in pen work and oil and water color paintings of figures, landscapes and still life subjects. The head of a reflective girl shows a skilled hand in the broad type of oil work, a gypsy with good flesh tints and curves looks out from the centre wall, and the head of an Indian chief is done in warm sepias. The landscape attempts have some pretty color work. A delicate pastel-tinted summer scene catches the eye, there is a warm glow of color in a yellow glimpse of an autumn wood, and a hint of evening in a snow-bound winter river.

In the still life pictures, a sheaf of American Beauties glows against a pale grey background, rosy apples come tumbling out of an old brown hat, and a pair of shoes waits dejectedly for an owner whose medium was a soft crayon.

Above the stairway, the Young Women's Christian Association has placed an entertaining array of posters, showing girls from many climes in many colors and in many different poses, all evidently enjoying themselves in different ways.

NO TRACE OF FOUR MEN WHO ESCAPED FROM PEN

KINGSTON, Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—There is yet no trace of the four convicts who made their escape from Portsmouth Penitentiary on Monday last. Early to-day searching parties were sent to Napanee and Ernstown where reports had been received that fugitives were in the district.

It is now stated here that the escape of convicts on Monday was part of a big plan by which forty long term men were to break prison. The plan was frustrated by the efforts of Chief Keeper Walsh, who was injured by Ryan when he endeavored to prevent the convicts from scaling the wall of the penitentiary.

IN MEMORIAM.

CUNNINGHAM.—In loving memory of our dear little son and brother, Herbie Cunningham, who departed this life September 13th, 1921, age 4 years 2 months.

There was an angel band in Heaven
That was not quite complete,
So God called our darling Herbie
To fill the vacant seat.

No stain was on his little heart,
Sin had not entered there,
And innocence slept sweetly on
His pale, white brow so fair.

We cannot clasp your hand, dear Herbie,
Your face we cannot see,
But let this little token show
We still remember thee.

—Ever remembered by his Loving Parents and Brothers and Sisters.

IN MEMORIAM

WEESE — In loving memory of Alice Mayell, wife of Walter Weese who died one year ago today Sept. 14th 1922.

Gone but not forgotten.
The lips may not speak
When the heart mourns sincerely;
For grief often dwells
Where it seldom is seen.

Sadly missed by husband.

Died.

TARGETT — On September 12th, at her home, 554 Downie street, Anne Maria Targett, widow of the late Thomas Targett.
